NAVIN FIELD, Detroit, Oct. 9 (AP)—Mickey Cochrane climbed from a hospital cot to-day with his injured left leg swathed in bandages, donned his uniform and led the Detroit Tigers into action for the seventh and final game of the melodrmatic World Series battle with the St. Louis Cardinals.

Cochrane crossed up the guessers by deciding to pitch his 24-year-old under-hand flinger, Elden Leroy Auker, instead of either Schoolboy Rowe or Tommy Bridges, as most observers had expected. Auker, who pitched and won the fourth game at St. Louis, drew the assignment of opposing the great Jerome Herman (Dizzy) Dean, coming back

TWO MEN GIVEN EIGHT MONTHS

MONTH BEING DRUNK.

Sentences of eight months determinate and four months indeterminate in Ontario Reformatory were this morning imposed by Magistrate W. A. F. Campbell on two transients who appeared on remand in answer to charges of assaulting Issac Puffer aged Norwood police officer. The two accused who gave the names of Jack Cameron, 9, Toronto and Fred Perrin, 34, Ottawa were also fined $15 or one month in the county goal each, on charges of intoxication.

Crown Attorney V. J. McElderry, K.C., outlining the circumstances under which Constable Puffer was assaulted by the two accused, stated that the Constable was now believed to be out of danger. At one time, as a result of a blow he received in the chest, it was thought that pleurisy might develop.

Chief Constable Samuel Newhall stated that nothing was previously known against Cameron except one conviction at Oshawa which he had admitted. Perrin, the Chief stated, had been going under aliases and had been convicted of vagrancy and intoxication under the name of William Amelin, in Western Ontario.

In passing sentence His Worship stressed the seriousness of the charges of assault to which the accused had pleaded guilty.

Survivor Claims Twister Struck Them—Craft Sank Inside Minute.

SEEK THREE BODIES.

GRAVENHURST, Ont., Oct. 9 (C.P.).—Inquest will be held here to-day into deaths of a passenger and two members of the crew of the ill-fated Muskoka Lake Navigation Company's steamer Waome which foundered Saturday and sank in 125 feet of water off Cindermere Island near Beaumaris.

Meanwhile it was said here an insurance company will make efforts to locate the bodies of Rev. L. D. Coxson, former missionary from India, and Arthur F. Thompson, mate of the stricken vessel, who lost their lives with Captain C. W. Henshaw.

Robert Bonnis, fireman who saved himself by swimming ashore, described in vivid terms the squall which struck the vessel as its skipper sought a passage past Cindermere Island.

"It was a twister," Bonnis said. "The boat was going nearly at full speed. Rain fell first and then the storm struck. The boat reeled to port and fell on its side in the

EXPECT PRINCE GEORGE TO BE MADE DUKE OF KENT

LONDON, Oct. 9 (AP)—Announcement that Prince George is to be made a duke shortly, a high authority said to-day.

The probability is that he will be named Duke of Kent, with the King conferring the dukedom upon him in connection with the Prince's marriage next month to Princess Marina of Greece.

Should the Prince be made Duke of Kent it would revive for Queen Victoria's grandson the title last held by Edward, fourth son of King George III., the illustrious Queen's father.

The title would link Prince George's family with that of his bride, for former King George of Greece, the head of Princess Mariana's royal house, is a descendent through his mother of the last Duke of Kent.

Death Car Chauffeur Grabs King's Slayer

MARSEILLES, France, October 9 (C.P.-A.P.A. Cable). — The chauffeur of the royal car in which King Alexander of Yugoslavia and Louis Barthou, French Foreign Minister, were fatally wounded by assassin's bullets this afternoon, continued driving with his hands slashed by sabre-strokes as officers wildly attempted to beat down the assassins.

"Just as the car came into the Stock Exchange Square," said the courageous chauffeur, "a big fat man ran from the crowd, jumped on the running board of the king's car, and fired four or five shots at the king.

"I immediately grabbed him by the neck while a colonel just beside the car began slashing. The assassin tried to kill himself by firing a shot into his mouth, but the police by this time closed in and shot him down."

FIERCE BATTLES RAGE IN SPAIN TIDE SEESAWS

Northern Provinces Shut Off From Madrid—Lines Down to France.

THOUSANDS DEAD.

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press).

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain, Oct. 9.—Northern Spain was completely shut off from Madrid as fierce fighting broke out early this morning and continued into the forenoon.

Authorities closed the French frontier, and even foreigners were not allowed to cross the border.

Telephonic communication with Madrid was broken and lines to Paris were expected to be cut soon.

Skirmishes between strikers and soldiers were frequent all along the coast from Santander to Hendaye. At Bilbao shooting continued all night. Soldiers mounted huge searchlights atop the Carlton Hotel in an attempt to locate the strikers' positions after they had poured volleys into the town.

Twenty Americans, employees of the Firestone Tire and Rubber Company, were marooned at Basauri, in the centre of the troubled area in North-Western Spain.

Priests Burned.

Ten priests were reported burned alive last night, one at Mataporquera, Santander, and the others at Navas, Catalonia.

In the former village, rebels were said to have burned the priest and a civil guard together, and in the latter place the priest was said to have been covered with gasoline and cremated alive.

Another priest was reported to have narrowly escaped cremation at San Vincent de Castellet, Catalonia. Scores of churches are known to have been burned to the ground.

The death toll in the fighting which broke out last Friday remained uncertain because it cannot be reliably estimated in Asturias. There are virtually no communications from the region and fatalities may range from a few hundred to a thousand or more. Insurrectionists there were well-armed with everything from pistols to field artillery.

Unofficial estimates of the dead in other regions:

Madrid and vicinity—About 100.

Catalonia—About 150.

Remaining provinces — Approximately 250.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 9. — (CP)—California police held Harold W. Vermilyea under provisional arrest today on a warrant charging him with the axe-slaying of his aged mother in Belleville, Ont., last week while they sought evidence to undermine an alibi that he had not been out of the state in years.

The investigators claimed to have made marked progress yesterday in efforts to disprove the account Vermilyea gave of his movements while he was absent from Oakland, Calif., home at the time 76-year-old Mrs. Nanthiel Vermilyea was brutally hacked last Thursday.

Seemingly of prime importance was the statement of Inspector William J. Bright, of the Los Angeles sheriff's department, that two witnesses had identified Vermilyea as a man who left Grand Central Airport in nearby Glendale last Saturday soon after the arrival of a passenger-plane from Chicago.

Cab Perplexes Police

Police were perplexed when the prisoner telephoned from his home at Ontario, Calif., Saturday afternoon to his sister in Belleville, Ontario. Then, as now, he stoutly denied any connection with the revolting slaying and the fact he was in California less than 48 hours after the unexplained attack in far off Belleville lent credence to his statement.

Only by using an aeroplane a great part of the distance could a person travel from the Province of Ontario to the little California community of the same name in such a short time.

FRENCH GENERAL, THIRD IN DEATH CAR, SEVERAL BYSTANDERS HIT IN FUSILADE.

Attack Comes So Suddenly Scores Of Police, Detectives Have No Time To Act Before Royal Auto Is Riddled.

MARSEILLES, Oct. 9.—(AP)—General Alphonse Joseph Georges, wounded today by the assasin who killed King Alexander of Yugoslavia and Louis Barthou, was reported dying at 5:30 p.m.

MARSEILLES, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Policeman Gaili died today, fatally wounded in the hail of bullets which killed King Alexander of Yugo-Slavia and Louis Barthou, Foreign Minister of France.

MARSEILLES, France, Oct. 9.—(C.P.-A.P. Cable)—Assassin's bullets today wrote a bloody finale to what was to have been a new chapter of friendship between France and Yugoslavia. They took the lives of King Alexander I, 45-year-old monarch of the nation that is a member of the Little Entente, and of Louis Barthou, veteran French foreign minister and former premier.

The two leading protagonists of Franco-Yugoslav co-operation were struck down and others slightly wounded in a wild fusillade of bullets as thousands of people lined the street cheering the monarch, just arrived in France for a goodwill mission to Paris promoted by Barthou, whose death may prove to coincide with the bursting of the wide circle of friendly alliances he had been acctive in promoting.

They were shot down by an assassin later identified as Petris Kalemen, 35, a Yugoslav, said to be a merchant recently arrived in France. Kalemen, after his onslaught, attempted to commit suicide by shooting himself in the mouth but was cut down by police sabres, and died shortly afterwards of his wounds. First reports he had an accomplice were denied, although two other suspects were picked up.

Eleven others were wounded beside General Georges. It was believed that some of the spectators were so badly hurt that they might die. The assassin, Petris Kalemen, wounded most of the spectators who were shot after he had been cut down by sabres. When he fell to the pavement he kept on firing. Seven women were among the wounded.

Police found he had been armed with two pistols and a small bomb. The bomb, however, had never been removed from his pocket.

Others Are Wounded

Several others were wounded in the wild burst of firing and in the ensuing turmoil everything was confused, the infuriated crowd, the frantic police and the sorrowing aides of the assassinated king milling in wild excitement as they sought to lay hands on the assassins.

The one captured alive after being rescued from the crowd was identified as Petris Kalemen, 35, a Yugoslavian born in Zagreb. The other's identity was not learned immediately.

While Alexander died within a short time, with three bullet wounds in the chest, Barthou at first was not thought to be seriously injured. Closer examination however led to a decision for an immediate operation and he died while it was being performed.

A number of persons close to the automobile in which the King was riding were wounded by the flying bullets. General Alphonse Joseph Georges of the French Superior War Council was another victim of the abrupt attack, suffering bullet wounds as he rode in the royal retinue.

King Since 1921

Alexandria, King of Yugoslavia since the death of his father in 1921, fought along with his Serbian troops in the Great War. He had visited the western Allies during the conflict while his country's government was in exile at Corfu.

He had landed here from a warship convoyed by a whole fleet of French naval vessels fresh from a triumph of friendly diplomacy in Bulgaria and bound for Paris on a goodwill mission to France. His visit was of the utmost importance, expected to result in a fresh rapprochement between Yugoslavia, member of the Little Entente, and France.

The thoroughfare down which he rode was closely guarded but the attack came so suddenly no one was able to block the assassins' aim. The King was riding with M. Barthou and General Georges.

Cheers Drown Shots

A mass of humanity packed the street, cheering as the King and the French leaders passed, but the welcome was drowned by the burst of gunfire. The shots spattered the automobile in which the King rode.

The King was struck three times and died within a few minutes. Barthou was shot in the stomach, dying not long after; Georges was struck. A number of spectators were hit.

The police broke their lines to plunge in the direction whence the shots came. Spectators surrounding the assassins

ROAD CRASHES KILL SIX.

Two Sisters Die as Truck Hits Them on Fort William Street.

(By Canadian Press.)

The long holiday week-end in Ontario was marred by loss of nine lives. A young boy was electrocuted, a man was fatally shot while hunting, and another was drowned. The crowded highways resulted in mishaps that took a toll of six lives.

The drowning victim was Romeo Fortin, 23, of Chapleau, Ont., who went to his death in Sylvanite Lake, 23 miles from Chapleau. Harry Clifton, 55-year-old Pembroge, Ont., resident, was accidentally shot by a companion while hunting.

Fifteen-year-old Stanley Novak, son of Walter Novak of Waterloo, Ont., was electrocuted when he climbed up a street lighting pole and came in contact with a wire, falling 30 feet to the ground.

Curtis Book of St. Anne's, Ont., was fatally injured on the Brantford-Hamilton Highway by a motor car driver who failed to stop, and William Berry, 43, of Brucefield, was killed when his car crashed into a cement post on the Brucefield-Bayfield Road.

Two women, Mrs. Spence and Mrs. West, sisters ,were killed in Fort William when a truck struck an auto and then hit them as they stood on the street. Thomas Sawyer, 45, of Brockville, was killed when his car overturned about 30 miles north of Lanark; and David Gray, 46, of Ridgeway, was killed when two cars collided near Stevensville.

ALIBI OF THREE IN ZUKOR JEWEL THEFT IS DENIED

State Assails Night Club Owner's Story of Finding Purse.

GEMS VALUED $65,000

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—Alibis of a woman and two men accused of stealing $65,000 worth of jewels from Mrs. Adolph Zukor were assailed by Assistant State's Attorney Charles Dougherty before a jury in Judge Harrington's Criminal Court.

The defendants, James Weinberg and his wife, Eula, and Robert Vestal had stated that two strange women left a purse containing the jewels in Weinberg's 300 Club and that Weinberg, learning of the theft, felt he should have the reward offered for return of the gems.

But Dougherty declared in his final argument that Mrs. Weinberg stole the jewels from Mrs. Zukor's Blackstone Hotel suite early in the morning of June 14, and added:

"They tried to collect the reward because the jewels were of such a nature that they could not be sold."

He scoffed at the story of the two strange women and ridiculed the idea that the Weinbergs could as they testified, have mistaken such beautiful gems for artificial ones. He said that Vestal knew, when he took the jewels to a vault, that they were Mrs. Zukor's

Pheasants Reported Mixing With Turkeys

COBOURG, Oct. 9 — Farmers in Northumberland County are greatly elated over the way pheasants are mixing up with turkeys. It is stated by several farmers that, when feeding their flock of turkeys, in each case several pheasants, especially this year's birds, are mixing up with the turkey flock.

It is expected great results will be obtained, as the pheasants are becoming quite tame when with domestic fowl.

Farmers consider it a crime to slaughter these birds in the fall, and will again communicate with the Game and Fisheries Department to endeavor to stop the shooting of pheasants.

MARMORA FAIR LARGE EXHIBIT DAY IS VERY WET

STEP DANCING CONTEST

Marmora Defeats Bancroft 5 to 3 in Baseball Game.

MARMORA, Oct. 9 (Examiner Correspondence) — Rain falling in heavy showers in the forenoon on Saturday, undoubtedly dwarfed what would have otherwise been a record crowd for Marmora's annual fair. On all hands one heard the expression, "Isn't it too bad, with such a wonderful lot of exhibits in every class?" And competition was good everywhere, whether in crop yields, works of art or children's work. Members of the executive were forced to make a difficult decision after a lull in two hours rain and chiefly because of the splendid exhibits they ultimately decided against the postponement suggested by some patrons. So cheerfully everybody carried on though the attendance was only about half of other years. Though many horses arrived for the two scheduled races, only four remained to race on the heavy track and these staged the free for all with the following result:

1—Anna Patch, Elmhirst.
2—Kate McClure, L. W. Hess.
3—Hal Winger, Gifford.
4—Tillie the Great, Dunford.

Fiddling Contest

Exceptionally good fiddling featured the old time fiddlers' contest, honors going to Pat Woods, of Flinton with Elwin Yanot of the same village running a close second. In the step dancing,the result was as follows: 1, Sherman Palmateer; 2, Mrs. Mary Burrows.

Louis Green and Allan Hubble were winners in the log sawing contest and James Dostanko and Oscar Anderson came second.

In reply to his attorney's question as to what he did during the beatings, Arnold said he "just kept on working."

lice were weaving. Bright said he found these articles in Vermilyea's clothing. The cigars and the small candy packa... were stamped "made in Canada." The soap bore the name of a hotel in the Canadian province.

Against this evidence, Vermilyea said he had not been out of California since 1932 and had not visited his former home in Belleville in more than a decade.

Check Up Letter

Police questioned the prisoner at length regarding a letter to the ill-fated Mrs. Vermilyea in which her son reportedly wrote that he was badly in need of money. The authorities were silent on the possibility that this might be a motive for the slaying.

Bright would only say the accused stated the letter was mailed in Los Angeles last Sept. 26 by a stranger to whom he had given a ride from Ontario, Calif.

That was the day that Vermilyea drove away from his California home, where he once prospered as a citrus grower and packer. In the day-to-day account he gave officers of his movements since that date, he said he had toured extensively by car through the state seeking employment.

CUBANS FACING ANOTHER STRIKE

United Front Plan Separate Walkout Free From Red Influence.

NEWS PLANT BURNED.

By Edmund A. Chester.

HAVANA, Oct. 9 (A.P.).—Cuba faced a new general strike threat to-day after one such movement, inaugurated with violence, had collapsed.

Refusal of the United Front Labor group, embracing all unions of public service employees, to cooperate with the Radical National Confederation of Labor broke down the walkout which began Sunday at midnight.

Officials of the United Front said the Confederation movement was a Communist effort, but called a meeting to-day to plan their own general strike, free from Communist influence.

A major demand of the public service workers is that the Government force the American-owned Cuban Telephone Company to re-employ all except 46, but the United Front, made up of some of the island's strongest unions, insists that all be given their old jobs.

Seven bombs exploded in Havana last night and there were scattered shooting affrays. No casualties were reported and commerce appeared to be normal.

One man was killed, 15 were founded and the plant of the newspaper Ahora was burned in disorders attending Monday morning's walkout.

Veteran Flier, Wife Injured In Car Crash

BROOKLYN, N. Y., Oct. 6.—(A.P.)—William Alexander, 40, veteran aviator, was critically injured and his wife, Helen, also a pilot was slightly hurt early today when their automobile struck an elevated railroad pillar.

Alexander, who was wounded while serving with the British Air Force during the Great War, flew with Lewis A. Yancey to Bermuda in 1930 and three years later led an aerial relief expedition to British Columbia after Jimmy Mattern, round-the-world flyer, cracked up in Siberia. Last summer Alexander obtained a plane for a globe-girdling flight.

He overturned a plane on the beach at Coney Island in 1927, killing two children, but was exonerated in homicide court.

LINDBERGH BABY MURDER IS LAID TO HAUPTMANN

Same Voice I Heard in Cemetery Noted Flier Tells Jury.

INDICTMENT RETURNED.

Remembers Words "Hey Doctor, Over Here Doctor" Night Ransom Paid.

TRENTON, N.J., Oct. 9. (AP).—Bruno Hauptmann's voice came echoing down the months to-day from a brown cemetery to a Jersey courtroom to call his own name as the murderer of the Lindbergh baby.

"The voice of Hauptmann is the voice I heard in the cemetery that night when the $30,000 ransom was paid," Col. Charles A. Lindbergh told the Hunterdon county grand jury late yesterday.

The grand jurors accepted it all clinching testimony. They returned an indictment charging murder.

Hauptmann, held in the Bronx, New York, under charges of extortion, has been notably uncommunicative since his arrest last month. Taciturn and tight-lipped as he has been, it was words from his lips that sealed the murder indictment against him.

Those words—

Lindbergh heard them, and remembered the voice.

Although the case is invariably referred to as the "Lindbergh kidnapping" the Hunterdon grand jury returned no kidnapping indictment. Kidnappers may only be sentenced to life terms. Murderers face the electric chair.

Going to New Jersey?

Governor Moore will ask New York to turn the prisoner over to New Jersey promptly. The papers probably will be signed before night. Some believe Goverement Herbert Lehman of New York may approve the extradition immediately, without the formality of a hearing.

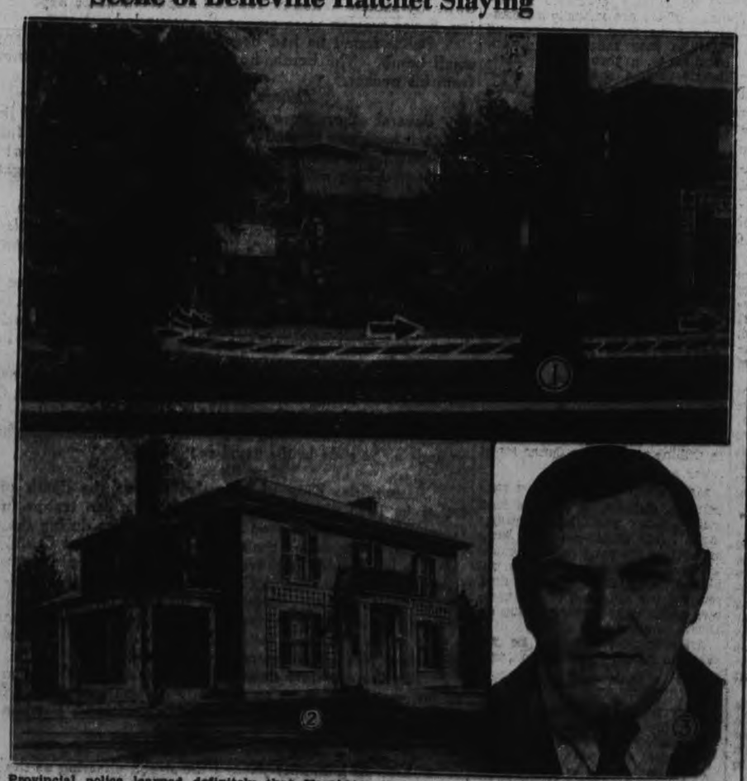
Scene of Belleville Hatchet Slaying



Provincial police learned definitely that Harold Vermilyea, alleged slayer of his mother, the 75-year-old mother-in-law of Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, Ontario minister of health, had been in a Hamilton hotel and from there it is believed he crossed the border and took a plane to California where he was arrested on Saturday. Inspector Albert Ward, of the provincial force, has unearthed a series of usual taxicab rides taken between Toronto, Belleville and Hamilton by Vermilyea. Here an artist in (1) shows the route taken by Mrs. Vermilyea and a man believed to be her son as she left the home of Mrs. J. J. Farley, to visit to the home of her son-in-law, Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner. The attack took place at the side of the Faulkner residence in Belleville, and (3) is Hiram Walker, taxi driver, who drove the alleged hatchet killer from Toronto to Hamilton on Oct. 5.

SUCCESSFUL SERVICES ARE HELD BY TRENT RIVER CONGREGATION

Rev. Mr. Hinton of Castleton is Guest Preacher at Anniversary.

LARGELY ATTENDED

TRENT RIVER, Oct. 9 (Examiner Correspondence)—Thanksgiving anniversary services afternoon and evening drew large crowds to hear Rev. Mr. Hinton of Castleton deliver two appropriate and most helpful addresses at the United Church.

Beautifully tinted autumn leaves decorated the chancel rail and electric chandelier, pretty potted plants filled the windows and along with cut flowers adorned the pulpit desk. Special mention is to be made of an artistically arranged banner with evergreens for a back ground bearing the word "Thanksgiving," the letters being formed from brightly colored thorn apples, while pumpkins and other vegetables completed the harvest thanksgiving suggestion. The choir rendered suitable and appropriate numbers under the direction of Mr. Wesley Wildman.

The choir selection for the afternoon was "Worship the Lord of Glory." Mr. Roger McMillan of Norwood rendered a vocal number "I shall not pass again this way," during the afternoon service most effectively.

Rev. Mr. Hinton chose as the subject for his address "The greatness of Christ." "A person in this age has to be critical to appear educated. Something is wrong with the churches of to-day. A minister to be popular should only preach 15 minutes or pack his trunk. We can sit two hours at an entertainment but only 15 minutes to hear of Jesus," the minister said.

A special thanksgiving offering was asked for as $300 was the objective required by the Church Board of Management. At the evening service which was again largely attended Rev. Mr. Hinton chose as the topic for his address, "The Church and the purpose of founding the Church."

A quartet, Mrs. Bert Robson, Mrs. W. Wildman, Messrs. Rufus Redden and Bert Robson sang "Face to Face." The choir rendered "Let us sing unto the Lord."

ONE QUILT HOLDS JUST 4,280 BITS

Mrs. T. Ramsay's "Trip Around World" Won Prize at St. Vital Fair.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 8.—(C.P.)—Four thousand, two hundred and eighty diamond-shaped pieces, handsewn by Mrs. T. Ramsay into a pastel-colored quilt, won the quilt contest at the St. Vital fair. "Trip Around the World," Mrs. Ramsay calls the pattern of the prize quilt which measures 90 by 63 inches. Yellow, apricot, pink, green, blue, orchid and old rose, in solid and printed patterns, alternate in rows around the quilt. It is one of three completed since last February.

Mrs. Ramsay buys the material for the quilt at one time, and chooses good quality material. "You can't put just any material into a fine quilt," she said. Mrs. Ramsay has made quilts since she was a child but it is only in the last two years that she began to specialize in fine quilts. She has 22 grandchildren, each of whom receives a hand-knitted present each Christmas. "That keeps me quite busy," says Mrs. Ramsay, "but I love to sew and knit I think making quilts is a fine pastime."

PROPOSES CLOGS FOR SCHOOL KIDS

English Medical Officer's Suggestion May Not Get Far.

MANCHESTER, England, Oct. 8.—(C.P.)—The medical officer of the West Riding county council schools makes a plea for the wearing of clogs by school children. It is to be feared, however, that his recommendation will go unheeded so long as clogs are regarded by most parents as an indication of social inferiority.

Yet clogs, of a sort, were formerly footwear for people of fashion, the Manchester Guardian points out. An advertisement of a London tradesman of the 18th century, said: "Thomas Berry at the Patten and Crown under St. Dunstan's Church in Fleet street, selleth all sorts of fine leather clogges, fine leather pattens, corke clogges for ladies, all sorts of clogges for gentlemen, and all other sorts of clogges and pattens. Likewise all sorts of leather clogges for children."

GOT FAT ON LIGHT WORK

Then Took 6 inches Off His Waist With Kruschen

Here's a man who soon found that there was at least one drawback to having an easy job—it made him fat. He writes:—

"Lately, having a light job, after being used to heavy work for years, I began to put on weight. I used to weigh ordinarily 163 lbs., but after about two years on my present job, I weighed 234 lbs. Now, after about twelve months taking half a teaspoonful of Kruschen in hot water every morning, I weigh 198 lbs., and I can bend about like I used to before. I may say I do not diet myself, but eat the same as I always have been used to. I am at least six inches smaller round the waist." —E. F.

The "little daily dose" of Kruschen Salts keeps the organs functioning properly every day, and fills you with such a feeling of radiant vitality and vigor that before you know it you are fairly alive with energy, instead of moping around—and reduction follows as a matter of course.

CHIEF OF POLICE ASKED TO QUIT

THIEVES ARE ACTIVE

LINDSAY, Oct. 9 (Examiner Correspondence) — The council of the village of Fenelon Falls has called for the resignation of Chief of Police Irwin. The officer is charged by members of the council with failure to enforce the Traffic By-law, not notifying the council before absenting himself from duty and failure to keep a proper surveillance of the beer parlors. Mr. Irwin was present at the council meeting to defend himself against the charges.

Burglars, believed by the police to be local parties, were busy during the week-end. They broke into J. R. O'Neill's service station in the east ward and carried off tobacco and automobile tubes. A car belonging to Mrs. David Crowley, who resides near the station, was stolen from the laneway. It was found some distance up the street and the police believe that the thieves were unable to start it.

A man named Morrison was assessed $10 and costs by Magistrate Gee on the week-end for shooting partridges illegally. The gun license was also cancelled. The information was laid by Fish and Game Overseer Windsor.

Fred Chambers, a resident of Fenelon Falls was fined $25 and costs for having liquor illegally. The cancellation of his liquor permit was recommended by the magistrate.

To Publish Pictures Of Quintuplets Again

Already stars in a newsreel picture showing various parts of their daily routine, their pictures published in papers in every part of the world, arrangements have been completed to publish the mites' likenesses in a new role—that of sponsors of Bee Hive Golden Corn Syrup.

This action follows announcement early in the quintuplets' career that their first feedings were on milk to which corn syrup had been added. Inquiry by the St. Lawrence Starch Company, manufacturers of Bee Hive Golden Corn Syrup brought to light the fact that it was their product which was used.

Early this week W. T. Gray, vice president and general manager of the St. Lawrence Starch Company, received a letter from W. H. Alderson confirming the fact that Bee Hive Golden Syrup was the product used, and conveying the information the guardians were so satisfied with Bee Hive Golden Corn Syrup that if it became necessary to use any corn syrup again Bee Hive would be the brand used.

NORWOOD WOMAN HURT WHEN CAR LEAVES ROAD

NORWOOD, Oct. 8.—Admitted to Nicholls Hospital at Peterborough following injuries received in a motor accident on Sunday night, the condition of Mrs. E. P. Cuffe is today reported as satisfactory.

Mrs. Cuffe was one of four persons riding in a car from Hastings to Norwood when the vehicle suddenly swerved from the road and collided with a tree. She was accompanied by her husband and by Miss E. Cuffe and John Robb.

Mr. Cuffe and Mr. Robb were in the front seat of the car and escaped with minor scratches and bruises. Mrs. Cuffe riding in the rear seat with Miss Cuffe was attended for her injuries by Dr. N. F. Sutton who ordered her removal to hospital.

The accident occurred at about eight o'clock Sunday evening, midway between Hastings and Norwood.

ST. PAUL'S ANGLICAN CHURCH CELEBRATE 60TH ANNIVERSARY

LIVELY PROGRAM.

MARMORA, Oct. 9 (Examiner Correspondence).—Concluding the 60th anniversary celebrations of St. Paul's Anglican Church, a most successful chicken supper and concert was held in the Town Hall on Monday evening. The attendance at the supper was estimated at being over 250, and all had praise for the excellent bill of fare served by the Ladies' Guild of the parish in the Council Chamber.

Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell presided at the concert, and following an instrumental prelude by the Toonerville Folks orchestra welcomed all in a very apt speech.

Rev. G. G. Wright, rector of Christ Church, Belleville, in conveying the greetings of his congregation, drew attention to the fact that this was a year of many church anniversaries. He also referred to the successive populating of Ontario by the U. E. Loyalists, Scot, Irish and English settlers and their contribution to the fabric of the Dominion.

J. F. Baker prefaced a well-rendered request solo, "Thora," with a couple of good stories. Greetings of Stirling and Frankford Anglican churches were forthcoming from Rev. A. S. McConnell, rector of the joint parish. He mentioned that missionary endeavour from his parish extended the work of the church to Marmora. Next June, the church of St. John, Stirling, celebrates its 75th anniversary, and he hoped a large number of the congregation at Marmora would wend their way to Stirling on that day. For the next contribution, Miss G. Taft, organist of St. Paul's, selected a very suitable pianoforte solo. Miss B. Arbuckle of Belleville gave two readings.

Word From Rawdon

Canon W. G. Swayne tendered the congratulations of himself and the parish of Rawdon. He noted the splendid success which had attended the efforts of those who had arranged the anniversary functions. Referring to the days of the U.E.L. settlement in Ontario, he said that their outstanding characteristic and living example was their provision of a place for religious worship. Mr. S. B. Wright then entertained the audience with two English violin airs.

Rev. C. W. Hollingsworth, pastor of St. Andrews United Church, in a breezy address, touched upon the good feeling existing between the representatives of the different religious bodies in the village and on behalf of himself and congregation wished St. Paul's success in the years to come. Miss Arbuckle then contributed another humorous recitation, "Saunders McLachlan's Courtship."

Rev. W. Hope Swayne of Tweed expressed congratulations and good wishes from the parish of Tweed and Madoc, and referred to the fact that his parish was 75 years old. J. F. Baker then sang "Sylvia," with pleasing voice. Rev. C. C. Brazill of Bannockburn added his words of congratulations and encouragement. Harold Brodhagen added to the enjoyment of the program with two nicely executed violin numbers.

James L. Perrin was applauded for his recital of "Whispering Bill" and Stewart and Brock, as the concluding number, executed a novel roller skate dance. After the conclusion of the program Toonerville Folks Orchestra played for a dance.

George Armstrong Is Elected League Head

TRENT RIVER, Oct. 9.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The Young People's League met on Friday night. George Armstrong was elected president, filling the vacancy caused by D. Walker's going to Campbellford. A vote of appreciation was tendered the retiring president for his efforts in the league work. Miss Violet Chaplin was appointed vice-president. Miss Debra Longmuir resigned from the office of convenor for Christian citizenship and Miss Leatha Davidson was appointed in her place.

The Misses Laura Wight, Agnes Wight, Messrs. Will Goodfellow and Jack Kearsey, of Toronto, attended the funeral of the late infant son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Wight on Saturday and spent over the holiday at the home of the Misses Laura and Agnes Wight's mother, Mrs. A. Wight, "Cedar Isle."

No Mixtures

BERLIN, Oct. 9 (AP) — All Germans are to be compelled in the future to carry racial cards, certifying ancestral origin, it was revealed to-day by Minister of the Interior Wilhelm Frick, in an address to civil register officers.

Frick explained they must gather the minute details of every German's blood race, tracing it through ancestry and kinship, for the purpose of keeping the race pure from foreign intermixtures.

LINDBERGH BABY

Col. Lindbergh told his story in 16 minutes. He was one of two dozen witnesses who testified yesterday before the 23 grand jurors sitting in Flemington, less than 15 miles from the big white house in the Sourland Hill country from which the baby was kidnapped March 1, 1932.

Before hearing Col. Lindbergh, the grand jurors—three of whom were women—examined several grim bits of evidence which lay on a table before them. There were the ransom notes and their envelopes, all in Hauptmann's handwriting, experts said; there were specimens of his handwriting, his 1932 auto registration card; there was the wood chisel found near the Lindbergh home after the kidnapping; there was part of the tell-tale ransom money—the $10 bill spent at the gas station just before Hauptmann's arrest, the $20 note found on his person when he was taken into custody, and part of the currency cache in his garage; there was the autopsy report of Dr. Charles E. Mitchell, Mercer County physician, on the baby's body, and the laboratory report of Arthur Koehler, who traced the wood of the kidnap ladder to the Bronx lumberyard where Hauptmann once worked.

The murder indictment will mean the abandonment, for the time being, of the plans of Bronx County to try Hauptman on the extortion charge. In the event of an acquittal on the charge here, he will be returned to New York.

You can always be proud of clothes washed with Pearl White Naptha Soap. Actual tests by housewives have definitely proved that this white, fresh smelling soap makes quicker suds that stand up longer. Brisk, active suds that quickly loosen even ingrained grease and dirt without hard rubbing and scrubbing. Pearl really does leave the clothes whiter and cleaner. It is more economical, too. It saves the clothes because there is no rough washtub wear.

"My job has taught me lots about laundry soap. If the wash isn't sparkling and white in this institution, I'm responsible. So I insist on Pearl White Naptha. It's so beautifully white and the clothes smell so sweet and fresh."

"I'm so thrilled at having a home of my own! I want these beautiful new linens to last, so I'm going to use Pearl White Naptha. Mother does too, and she never seems tired after doing all the washing."

You will prefer Pearl White Naptha for more reasons than one. Buy a bar—it costs so little. Compare it with any other laundry soap. Its pure whiteness and clean, fresh smell will delight you. There's nothing like it to ensure a cleaner, sweeter wash in a shorter time.

THEY WANT THEIR SHARE.

Probably in the same spirit that animates the small boy to send Santa Claus a long list of gifts he would like at Christmas, the Ottawa City Council is forwarding a petition to the Ontario Legislature requesting a share of the revenue obtained from the gasoline tax and the sale of auto licenses.

Why they overlooked the revenue from Government liquor stores is not quite clear, but possibly they have in mind going after that source next if the present petition is successful.

A good case, of course, can be made out on behalf of the municipalities, seeing that they are taxed to help build provincial highways and suburban roads and at the same time their own streets, although links in the highway system, are worn out by through traffic, and the whole burden of construction and maintenance is borne by the urban taxpayers.

Certainly under those conditions these urban municipalities have a right to demand a share of the gasoline tax and motor license revenue.

Obtaining that share is something else again, for Governments, having discovered a fruitful source of revenue, are not usually inclined to let other bodies in on the thing, and it will require a lot of pressure, it is to be imagined, to persuade Queen's Park that a portion of the gas tax fund should be turned over to the municipalities.

Other attempts in the past have failed to get action, and there is no particular reason to feel that Ottawa's campaign on this occasion will be any more successful.

OUR CAVALRY GUESTS.

Peterborough has been glad to play host these last two days to such a distinguished body of representative Canadians as the Canadian Cavalry Association which has been holding its nineteenth annual meeting here.

This organization of cavalry officers from all sections of the Dominion is to be congratulated upon the interest and enthusiasm displayed by its members; Canada is to be congratulated, too, that in spite of the apathy shown toward military training in many quarters and the active opposition to the spending of public money upon the militia of the Dominion, there are men patriotic enough to come together from all over the country in an endeavor to improve themselves as cavalry officers and to increase the efficiency of the units to which they are attached.

As in other branches of the militia, many of these officers have seen active service, but they feel that their obligations as citizens of Canada have not been fully discharged, and that it is their duty to carry on so that should an emergency arrive the Dominion would not be left entirely defenceless, but would have a nucleus of trained officers and non-commissioned officers around which to build an army.

Canada has gone further toward total disarmament than any other country on the map, and it is well under those circumstances that there are enough public-spirited citizens among them, our present guests, to keep our militia units functioning.

They have a somewhat ungrateful task, but they are doing it well, and they should have the support of all thinking Canadians.

TORONTO'S HARBOR.

The Examiner has to thank P. J. Mulqueen, member of the Toronto Harbor Commission, for a copy of the centennial year report of the Port and Harbor of Toronto, a most interesting and artistic booklet, full of unusual information and illustrated with many rare old prints as well as with a very fine collection of modern photographs.

The publication contains a description of the growth of Toronto's water-borne trade from 1615, when the Humber portage, known as the Carrying Place, was an important link in the main route of travel from the upper Great Lakes and Georgian Bay to Lake Ontario, down to the present day. There is a large amount of data, too, upon the history of Toronto, and the booklet is worth while preserving for the light it throws upon the development of Ontario's capital city.

The transformation that has been accomplished along Toronto's waterfront in recent years, the creation of a new industrial area in that section, and the many improvements that have been effected are effectively set forth in the report, and there is as well a great deal of information as to the water-borne traffic in and out of Toronto harbor.

How important that traffic is to the business and industrial life of the Queen City may be estimated from the fact that last year 2,426 vessels entered the harbor, carrying a total cargo amounting to 2,500,100 tons, with coal and ore forming the leading commodities.

The effect of the opening of the Welland Canal is shown by the listing of 146 large vessels of the upper Great Lakes with a total cargo of 182,952 tons among the craft entering last year.

An interesting feature is that as recently as 1926 only 5.12 per cent. of the coal arriving at Toronto came by water; last year over half the coal supply—54.06 to be exact—was water-borne—1,326,567 tons, comprising 50,562 tons of bituminous coal from Nova Scotia, 788,592 tons of the same kind of coal from the U. S. A., 22, 692 tons of Scotch, 217,540 tons of Welsh and 2,517 tons of American anthracite and 243,914 tons of American coke, came by water.

80 PER CENT. DUE TO CARELESSNESS.

When it is realized that the annual loss of insurable property by fire in Canada is more than $40,000,000 and that more than 300 Canadians are burned to death every year, the reason for the holding of an annual Fire Prevention Week should be generally obvious.

This week has been set apart for this campaign, and the Royal Proclamation gets to the root of the matter when it says:

"Reliable statistics show that at least 80 per cent. of the fires which occur originate either directly or indirectly through inexcusable ignorance and neglect and are, therefore, preventable. The exercise of reasonable prudence and proper carefulness on the part of responsible individuals would reduce the losses by fire in Canada to the comparatively insignificant proportion of losses in other countries.

"Economic and humanitarian considerations imperatively demand that human life and material resources in Canada be so far as possible conserved in order that the national prosperity may be maintained and that the general welfare of the people may be measurably increased.

"For these reasons, it is desirable that the attention of the public be directed to the extent of underlying causes of the preventable loss of life and property by fire and to the best and most practical means of their control and that a specific period of the year be set aside and properly designated for the dissemination of such information."

There is no reason why the per capita fire loss in Canada every year should be ten times greater than that of five of the leading European countries, and that this condition exists is due solely to mass carelessness and indifference on the part of the people of Canada.

It is about time that we arrived at a decision to be more careful in our own habits and more watchful about checking up on fire hazards around our property.

MORE THAN MAN DESERVES.

Dogs, so they tell us, cannot reason, and do not think. Here in Ontario the other day a collie ended a trip of 350 miles undertaken on his own initiative in order to get back home. To him the trail was new, but he'd hope in his heart, and the vision of a master he loved awaiting him at the end of the journey. That dog may not have reasoned, been quite incapable of thought, but he wangled through as successfully as if he'd passed college tests and taken honors in the art of transportation. Did he possess some extra sense—something more than a bump of locality? If not how explain his action?

Inexplicable as such a trip seems, there is still one thing harder to understand about a dog than his nosing out his own kennel from afar. Pedigreed pup or mangy mongrel, they all have one divine characteristic—devotion. All dogs are one-man, although many of them will tolerate the attentions of outsiders. Where they give their loyalty they belong. Kindness or lack of it does not seem to matter. Indifference will not destroy their fealty. Wonderingly one questions—what is there, what can there be in the human creature known as man to bring forth such devotion?

The way of a dog with his master is beyond understanding. The more one puzzles over it the more one is satisfied that human being are much better than they are said to be—otherwise dogs wouldn't live for them and die for them. Taken at the value his dog puts upon him any man is a demi-god—though his world holds him a flop and a failure.—Ottawa Journal.

MERE DIPLOMA MILLS.

Something of a sensation will undoubtedly be caused by the damaging indictment made against the system of education in the United States by the Carnegie Foundation, in a report made on 40 institutions in the state of Pennsylvania after an investigation carried on for six years. Stated briefly the report says that the average Pennsylvania college is just a diploma mill turning out graduates who fall to rise from the intelligence level of their high school days. The foundation cites figures to prove that thousands of boys and girls have wasted four valuable years of their lives, and money of their parents to the extent of about $4,000 per pupil, to obtain degrees that mean almost nothing as a standard of educational development. If this severe indictment of the Pennsylvania schools does not arouse public interest it will be surprising.

The report implies that the whole organization of higher education as administered in the state is at fault, and it lays the chief blame on the so-called "credit system" by which degrees are awarded. The synopsis of the "Pennsylvania Study" as given in the New York Times points out that the question the study tried to answer was, "Whether the American college as typified by these institutions trains minds or whether it feeds the students facts for four years and then hands them a degree." In other words, to put the question briefly, it asked, "Is college worth while?" The survey disclosed that as far as general knowledge was concerned seniors not only failed to show a substantial advance over the freshmen, but in some subjects, such as spelling and English literature, the seniors actually knew less than the sophomores. In some cases seniors about to be graduated from college achieved scores lower than 30 per cent. of the high school seniors four years younger."

The average intelligence standing of the seniors in four typical high schools was above the average of all college sophomore candidates for education degrees throughout the state. In fine arts 14 per cent. of the girls who were seniors in high school did better than 45 per cent. of the senior women in college who got their highest score in this subject. That certainly is a very sharp arraignment of the educational system of Pennsylvania. Whether that is typical of other states remains to be seen. Canadians take pride in their educational institutions, and there is no reason to believe that any such state of affairs exists in the colleges of this country. Nevertheless there is an increasing demand throughout the Dominion that college students shall be trained to think for themselves, and to develop initiative and enterprise that will help them in the tasks of life. Any system of spoon feeding in education is detrimental to the native ability of the students.—Ex.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The next holiday, if you are interested, is Christmas. And it's almost time to think about that shopping.

The Star remarks that the new Ontario Government has eyes to see and ears to hear. And sometimes, it is suspected, mouths to talk with, too.

There have been moments in the world series when it looked like a couple of picnic ball teams had slipped into the competition by mistake.

Three more federal by-elections are looming up, and that, in the opinion of the Bennett Government, cannot possibly be construed as anything resembling good news.

According to Premier Hepburn, Col. George Drew as Securities Commissioner was merely a supernumerary. Just where does that leave J. M. Godfrey, K.C., the new commissioner?

THE OLD HOME TOWN

Registered U. S. Patent Office

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

CUMBERLAND, BRITISH COLUMBIA.

This town was founded about 1890 by James Dunsmuir, who came from Ireland. At the outset it was called Union, but the presence of coal in the district induced the inhabitants to rename it Cumberland, when it was incorporated in 1898. The name was chosen out of deference to the coal mining district in England of the same name.

All the streets of the town are named for coal mining towns in England, with a sole exception. It was fitting that at least one street should bear the name of the man who was responsible for the town's birth.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

OLD HAT, OLD LIFE

That old gray hat lying on the table over there didn't look like that once . . . A few months ago it was new and clean and the latest thing in hats. I hardly dared to wear it, it was so immaculate, with the narrow ribbon and the little ventilator holes in its sides. When I wore it down the street, anybody could see that that fellow had a new hat, and that it didn't go with the rest of him, not with his shoes, not with his comfortable clothes, nor his face, either.

Didn't feel so comfortable in it, for that matter. Too new. Too easy to soil. Too much "the latest thing" . . . Of course, there was a certain not-unpleasant sensation in wearing a nice new hat. Everybody knows that, but every man also knows that he doesn't feel quite right until his new hat has some of the brand-newness worn away . . . He isn't really comfortable in it, or under it, until that happens.

But now the old hat is quite all right. It has spots on it. Its light gray is a darker gray now. If I look under the ribbon I can see where the color has changed slightly. And under the brim at the back is a place where somebody—not I—has burned it with a cigaret. Not a bad burn. Just a little one that doesn't disturb me at all . . . And if I turn it over and look inside, I can see how the old hat has taken the shape of my head, fairly straight on western side, bulging out a bit at the Southeast corner, like all hats I've ever worn.

I'm at ease in it now. It is at ease on me. We belong to each other. It's mine. I belong to it. We are an easy-going pair at last, and we understand each other and fit each other. As all a man's clothes finally come to fit him, and as he—if he has any luck, any common sense, any philosophy worth the name—finally comes to fit this adventure we call life. After the newness wears off a life and a man learns a bit of what it is like and becomes used to its ups and downs, its rules and regulations, its pains and its joys, its possibilities and its limitations, his life grows to resemble that old hat over there on the table and he gets to have an affection for it and he knows, deep inside of him, that he wouldn't trade it for any other . . . Because it is HIS.

Wesley Anniversary Is Largely Attended

NORTH SMITH, Oct. 9.—On September 22, Wesley United church anniversary was largely attended. Rev. Mr. Miller of Selwyn took the service in the morning and Rev. Mr. Archer of Lakefield in the evening both services being enjoyed by all, while the choir very nicely rendered suitable anthems for the text.

On the following Tuesday a hot fowl dinner was served in the hall which everyone did ample justice. Afterwards a good mixed program was given of home talent and surrounding districts was given in the church. On Wednesday evening a social was given to finish up the fowl and plenty of good pies and cakes, the proceeds of the dinner being $102.

Mrs. Maggie Sage visited her son in Emily last week.

Mrs. Howard Pearson and daughter, Joyce, are visiting in Fenelon for Thanksgiving.

They that sow in tears shall reap in joy.—Psalm 126:5.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

FIRST LOCOMOTIVE AT WINNIPEG.

This day in 1877, was a red-letter day in the history of infant Winnipeg. It was the day when Manitoba's railway history began, though Lady Dufferin had on September 29 driven the first spike of the "Canada Pacific Railway", and perhaps that should be the first railway milestone. But the coming of the locomotive was more colorful. In her Journal, Lady Dufferin tells of their arrival on the journey back east on the river steamer at Fisher's Landing, Minn., and adds: "We saw the engine of the Canada Pacific Railway. It is going to Winnipeg with a train of railway-trucks, and is to be called the Lady Dufferin".

Early on October 9 (which had been declared a public holiday) the news spread that the Selkirk was in sight and all the population rushed to the river landing to welcome her and the barge on which the Lady Dufferin and several flat-cars, all decorated with union jacks, stars and stripes and streamers of bunting. The Manitoba Free Press issued a special edition giving all the details and it sold so rapidly that the press had to be started afresh to print more copies.

We are told that the Lady Dufferin had steam up and "what with its shrill whistling and that of the steamer, the ringing of bells and the whistles of the saw mills joining in the chorus, there was a perfect babel of noise. A young lady, Miss Racine, kept ringing the bell of the steamer and was cheered lustily by the crowd. The Selkirk steamed down to the landing below Point Douglas, where a track was laid on which they ran the engine and cars, and thus was landed the first locomotive ever brought in this province".

If you want to see a picture of the Lady Dufferin as she appeared that October 9, 1877, look at the illustration in W. J. Healy's "Winnipeg's Early Days". If you happen to visit Winnipeg, you can even today see the Lady Dufferin herself, for she is an historical exhibit outside the C.P.R. depot, a monument to the brave railway pioneers who overcame obstacles of climate and finance and made Winnipeg one of the great railway centres of America.

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterboroughs Leading Handwriting Analyist for the Readers of The Examiner

Full name and address (complete) must be given in all samples sent in.

Lucille Anne O'Brien, Harwood, Ontario.

Your handwriting indicates that you are a person who desires to do business in a big way. You are good-natured and happy-go-lucky but a trifle self-centered. In order to be truly happy, it is necessary for you to command attention and practically own the floor. This does not detract from your merit, however, because in this world it is quite imperative that some rule and others obey.

You are quick, intuitive and impulsive. You are also observant, intelligent and temperamental; attracted to and by the opposite sex.

There is a subtle influence about your personality which is beyond description yet, is alluring and might be said by some adorable.

You dress well and with intricate care. Strangely enough although you possess all the above characteristics, you have a tendency to doubt your abilities and become nervously entangled and tongue-tied, when you have occasion to make verbal explanations.

You are born under the sign of Aries the Ram which is ruled by Mars. Tuesday is your lucky day and June and July are your most fortunate months. Your number is eleven.

The handwriting as delineated on your sample for analysis, shows that you have a tendency to keep things to yourself, and to worry about them. You are reserved and apt to be moody and you do not seem to take others into your confidence as much as you should, in order to make sure of things. Therefore, you ponder and ponder, and the more you think about things, the worse they appear to be. You see, you are nervous temperamentally, undecided and reticent.

The small writing, with its angular, and also rounded writing formations, illustrates a cramping of style. You desire self-expression, but never seem to allow yourself the privilege. Your disposition is changeable only in the sense that you are adaptable, for as a rule you are usually about the same.

You should be very fond of music. This doesn't mean that you must play an instrument. For as you know, many lovers of music cannot play one note, yet experience great joy upon hearing their favorite tunes played by others.

You are quiet and unobtrusive. You try to encourage others to make the best of things. You are strict in your moral code. Your home should be your castle, because you have the power to make it so.

The terminals in your writing seem to express a tendency to start too many undertakings at the same time, then there appears to be difficulty in finding the necessary time in which to complete them.

You are born under the sign of Capricorn the Goat, which is ruled by Saturn. Tuesday and Saturday are your most fortunate days. March and the month of November are your lucky months.

Mary Helen Horrison, Harwood, Ontario.

Your handwriting illustrates an artistic temperament. Your writing is almost printed, and that reveals the ability to study along lines of artistic subjects if you so desire.

The rounded upper loops, indicate humor and a musical interest. I think that you are rather inclined to be too precise about things or fussy over details.

Your downstrokes are not heavy, and they seem to be written with the side of the pen, as a rule this denotes sarcastic tendencies, but in your case I believe that you are more nervous than sarcastic.

The slightly versatile script shows that you can be secretive when you think it is necessary for you to be so, but I do not think you are too secretive as a general rule, though you are conservative and retiring nearly always.

You are genteel and discriminating, choice in your manner of speech and dress. You carry yourself with an air of well-bred distinction.

Your birthsign is Cancer the Crab, ruled by the Moon. February and September are your most fortunate months, and Monday is your most fortunate day.

Marion Hazel O'Brien, Harwood, Ontario.

Your handwriting as delineated by analysis shows that you are luxury-loving, materialistic and imaginative.

The last two qualifications do not as a rule converge, but in your writing they do because you have the faculty of being just what you desire to be at the specific moment.

You are generous in matters of comfort and ease and pleasure. Sometimes self-centered and indifferent.

Your capital letters reflect pride and poise. Your 't' bars are not forceful, but the rather exaggerated loops in the center of a word reveal dramatic tendencies or sudden moods.

Interior decorating or something artistic should interest you because the tall upper loops represent imagination which could be used to advantage.

Betty Macfarlane, R. R. No. 2, Peterboro, Ont.

Your handwriting indicates that you are not a very determined person. You are subject to moods and temperament. This is due to your desire for self-expression and should be guided along the right course if you are to make the success of your life that you wish.

Self-expression is generally craved by most of us, but is not always the best outlet for our emotions, but with you it is essential because your mind is intelligent and needs encouragement along mental study.

As yet you are not sufficiently mature to enable you to state definitely which line of endeavor you prefer to follow. So I might suggest that you study sewing of some kind in the meantime. But under no conditions should you let your other studies pass into discard.

You will need to build up your health, and find joy in the very fact that you are alive, for without health nothing much can be accomplished.

You show quite a nervous tendency, but this should pass when your mind is more settled.

You are born under the sign of Libra the Balance, this sign is ruled by Venus, the God of Love. The months of August and December are your most fortunate months and Friday is the most fortunate day for people with the number nine.

No. 3 Timothy, baled, ton.. $16 to $17
Straw, wheat, baled, ton.. $10 to $00
Straw, oat, baled ton ..... $ 8 to $ 9

WOOL.

Wool, fine, 10c per pound; medium, 8c; coarse, 7c; rejects (cots, black, seedy, and burry fleece), 5c; rejects, included, 8c.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

CHICAGO, October 9. — Eastern selling, together with lack of sustained support from speculative buyers, turned wheat and corn prices decidedly downward late yesterday, more than offsetting early gains.

An outstanding feature was that domestic flour trade, which last week took on big proportions, failed to continue in volume yesterday. In addition, friends of higher prices were disconcerted by the fact that a sharp advance of wheat quotations in Liverpool dwindled out almost altogether before the day was at an end.

Wheat in Chicago closed near the day's bottom level, ⅝c to 1¼c under Saturday's finish. December new, 96⅝c to 98½c, corn ⅝c to ⅞c down, December new 73c to 73¼c, oats, unchanged to ½c higher, and provisions unchanged to a decline of 2 cents.

Corn fluctuated mainly in line with wheat and reflected knowledge that shipping demand was laggard. The cash corn basis, however, was ⅛c to ¼c higher, white corn selling at the highest premium of the season. Oats were responsive to meagreness of receipts.

LIST FOLLOWS NEW YORK BOARD

OILS HOLD FIRM.

TORONTO, Oct. 9 (C.P.) — Prices weakened to-day on the industrial section of the Toronto Exchange as offerings came out on a thin buying demand. The list was depressed by lower prices on the New York board. Brazilian was offered in quantity at a net loss of ⅝ to 10⅜ and other soft spots among the leaders was Nickel, Ford "A" and .P.R. Oils in active trading held generally firm.

SILVER GROUP HOLDS STRONG

GENERAL LIST SOFT.

TORONTO, Oct. 9 (C.P.) — Traders came back from the Thanksgiving holiday feeling none too cheerful about the mining market's outlook and selling new orders were more plentiful than orders to buy, with the result that prices were shaded generally except in the silver group. The silvers were firm to strong on higher prices for metal in the London and New York market.

PROTEST CHANGING SCENE MICHAEL BRADLEY TRIAL

CAMPBELL'S BAY, Que., October 9 (C.P.). — A lengthy protest against any change of venue for Michael Bradley, held on a charge of murder, from this place to Hull, was read and a petition to go to the Attorney-General's Department, Quebec, was signed by a largely attended meeting of the Pontiac Liberal Association held here yesterday.

The president, E. C. Lawn introduced J. O. Laflamme, who circulated the petition. W. R. McDonald, Provincial member for Pontiac, was present and stated that he would personally deliver the petition to the Attorney-General.

The tax payers and voters are circulating the petition because they claim that when a case before the local courts is of any importance, the case is transferred to Hull, and that the courts there get all the court costs, while the County of Pontiac got none.

BOSTON "A" WILL RULE U.S. SPEECH

Will Become Standard Speech of Films, Says Screen Star.

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 9.—All America will soon be broad A-ing with the best of Bostonians, was the prediction yesterday of Mary Boland, stage and screen star.

Miss Boland, speaking as the official guest of the Mexican Ministry of Education, told the literati of Mexico at the New National Theater:

"Boston English will become the standard speech of the films, and from the movies it will be adopted by the people of the United States generally.

The "Oxford accent," the affectation of those who have attended Oxford University, and a lot who haven't, she described as "absurd."

John Barrymore won Miss Boland's praise for having the finest diction on stage or screen.

Livestock-Produce Quotations

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Oct. 9 (CP).—Lambs pushed 25 cents higher on the Toronto Livestock Market today, while bids on hogs were also 25 cents higher, but the division was still unsettled. The two divisions had opened unsettled with salesmen asking higher price than offered. A heavy run of plain quality resulted in dull trading on the cattle division, but prices held steady at last week's close. Sheep and calves continued firm.

Receipts as reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle, 5,020; calves, 1,680; hogs, 1,180; sheep and lambs, 3,620.

Weighty steers of medium to good quality ranged from $4.00 to $5.15, with common down to $3.00. Good and choice butcher cattle brought $4.00 to $4.35, with common as low as $2.25. Good cows held steady at $2.25 to $2.50 and a few tops went up to $2.65. Good bulls went at $2.25 to $2.75 and bolognas made $1.75 to $2.00. Fed calves sold slowly at $4.75 to $6.50 cwt. Stockers were fairly active at $2.25 to $3.00.

Lambs gained 25 cents after an unsettled opening to sell at $6.00 for good ewes and wethers and at $5.00 for culls and bucks. Some show lambs were still unsold. Bids advanced 25 cents on the hog division, but salesmen kept their supplies. Bids were $6.90 f.o.b. for bacons, $7.25 off truck and $7.65 off car.

Calves held at $6.50 to $7.00 for choice and at $4.00 for common. Grassers went at $2.50 to $3.00. Sheep continued to sell at $1.00 to $3.00 per cwt., according to quality.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET

NEW YORK, Oct. 9 (AP)—Moderate unsettlement replaced forenoon improvement in stock to-day. Early demand centered principally in merchandising shares. The late tone was irregular. McLellan Stores and U. S. Smelting retained part of their earlier firmness. Santa Fe and Continental Can held about unchanged while fractional losses were shown by American Telephone, U.S. Steel and Consolidated Gas. Transfers approximated 700,000 shares.

England's football league has 84 clubs this season.

The two teams are all square—errors, too. Each has made five in two games.

two days after defeat to make his third start in the series.

Cardinals Favored

The series stood at three games all, and the big share of the money hung in the balance, for either club to grab with a victorious finish. The Cardinals were pre-game favorites.

FIRST INNING

Cardinals—Martin fanned, swinging hard. Rothrock hit sharply over Rogell's head and ran to second when White handled the ball poorly. The scorer credited Rothrock with a two-bagger. Frisch lifted a short fly that Rogell caught back on the grass. Medwick fouled to Owen in front of the boxes off left field.

No runs, one hit, no errors; one left.

Tigers. — White grounded out, Frisch to Collins. Gochrane grounded out, Frisch to Collins. Gehringer lifted a short foul that dropped uncaught off the left field line near the boxes. Charley thought it had fallen in fair territory and had to be called back from second base. Gehringer lifted a high fly to Rothrock near the right field line.

No runs, no hits, no errors; none left.

SECOND INNING

Cardinals.—Collins hit sharply to centre for a single on the first pitch. Delancey grounded to Owen and the Tigers pulled a double play, Owen to Gehringer to Greenberg. Orsatti singled past Gehringer. Orsatti was thrown out trying to steal, Cochrane to Gehringer.

No runs, two hits, no errors; none left.

Tigers. — Goslin bounced to Collins and was out at first on a pretty play, Collins to Dean. Rogell bounced to Durocher, but was safe at first when Collins failed to hold the shortstop's low throw. Collins was charged with an error. Greenberg fanned, missing a curve by a wide margin. Owen bounced to Martin and Rogell was forced at second, Martin to Frisch.

THIRD INNING

Cardinals. — Durocher flied to White. Dean dropped a hit in left field and stretched it to a double as Goslin handled the ball slowly. Martin grounded to Greenberg and beat it out for a scratch hit as Auker came over to take the toss from the first baseman. Dean reached third. Martin stole second. Cochrane's throw was wide and almost got away from Gehringer, but Dean stuck to third base. Rothrock walked, the fourth ball being inside and the bases were filled.

Frisch hit sharply into right field, for a double, scoring Dean, Martin and Rothrock. The ball caromed off Fox's glove and rolled almost to the boxes before he recovered it for a relay to the infield. Cochrane removed Auker from the box and summoned Schoolboy Rowe, the victim of yesterday's Tiger setback. Rowe had developed a sore hand last night, but apparently was in good shape, and the Tigers were ready to pin their remaining hopes on his strong right arm. Medwick grounded out, Rogell to Greenberg as Frisch ran to third.

Collins singled sharply through the infield to left, scoring Frisch. Delancey up. Rowe threw to first. Delancey smashed a long drive to the right field wall for a double, scoring Collins. Cochrane went into a conference with his big right hander. Rowe was taken out of the box and was replaced by Elon Hogsett, the Indian southpaw. Orsatti walked, the fourth ball being wide.

Dean hit a grounder along the third base line for a scratch hit, scoring Delancey and leaving the bases still full. Dean's hit was a hopper that Owen was unable to handle. Martin walked, the ball being inside and Orsatti was forced over the plate with the seventh Cardinal run in the inning. Hogsett was taken out of the box. Tommy Bridges, slim right-hander who pitched the Tigers to a brilliant victory over Dizzy Dean last Sunday at St. Louis, was the fourth Detroit pitcher. Twelve Cardinals had come to bat in the inning and the bases were still clogged, with two out. Rothrock grounded to Gehringer and Martin was forced at second, Gehringer to Rogell as the inning finally ended.

Seven runs, seven hits, no errors; three left.

It was one of the biggest scoring innings in World Series history. The record, ten runs, for a single inning was made by the Athletics in 1929 against the Chicago Cubs.

Tigers. — Fox lined to Orsatti. Bridges was thrown out by Frisch at first after the Cardinal manager juggled a hard line drive. White flied to Orsatti, who made a nice running catch in left centre.

No runs, no hits, no errors; none left.

FOURTH INNING

Cardinals. — Frisch grounded sharply to Gehringer and was tossed out at first. Medwick flied to Fox. Collins dropped his third straight hit into right field for a single. Delancey bounced to Gehringer, and Collins was forced at second, Gehringer to Rogell.

Tigers. — Cochrane popped to Frisch. Gehringer smashed a single to right for the first base hit off Dean. Goslin hoisted a short fly to Medwick. Rogell grounded to Frisch and Gehringer was forced at second, Frisch to Durocher.

FIFTH INNING

Cardinals.—Orsatti flied to Goslin in short left. Durocher lifted another high fly to Goslin. Dean fanned, waving his bat at a ball and the crowd yelled with delight.

No runs, no hits, no errors; none left.

Tigers—Greenberg pumped a long single to right centre. Owen flied to Rothrock. Fox hit sharply to left for a double, sending Greenberg to third. Fox barely beat Medwick's relay to second base. Bridges fanned on a called third strike. White bounced to Durocher and was thrown out at first on a nice play as the shortstop grabbed the ball in front of second base and threw to Collins on the run.

SIXTH INNING

Cardinals.—Martin slashed a hit to left and stretched it to two bases on Goslin's poor handling of the ball. The Goose was charged with an error and Martin credited with a single. Rothrock flied to Goslin. Martin held second. Frisch flied to White.

Medwick pumped a long hit against the right field bleachers for a triple, scoring Martin. There was a sudden outbreak at third as Owen's foot dug into Medwick's leg, and for a moment it looked as though there would be a fight. Players of both teams and umpires joined in separating the two players, and play was resumed. Collins belted his fourth straight hit to centre, scoring Medwick. Collins ran to second when White fumbled the ball for an error. Delancey swung and missed a third strike but Cochrane dropped the ball and threw to Greenberg to retire the batsman.

Two runs, three hits, one error; one left.

The fans in the left field bleachers started hurling fruit and other missiles at Medwick, meanwhile booing the Cardinals left fielder as the result of the run-in with Owen at third base. Umpires and members of the Cardinal team went out to left to start cleaning up the debris and make some effort to control the action of the howling crowd. Workmen were called out to collect the stuff thrown on the field but the barrage continued at intervals, for as soon as fans could get their hands on anything to throw on the field. Play was suspended indefinitely while the crowd was out of control. Just when the outbreak seemed to have subsided and as Medwick started back to his position, another short volley was fired from the open stands. This caused another delay, and the umpires obviously were contemplating some drastic measures if possible.

Finally a second attempt was made to continue the game, but it was short-lived as a fresh load of buns came a hortling out of the bleachers. Judge Landis called over two of the umpires for a conference, and Mickey Cochrane went to left field in an attempt to wield some influence on the crowd.

The Cardinals were called off the field and Medwick went over to talk with Commissioner Landis, with Manager Frisch also called into conference. Cochrane and Owen joined the huddle. It appeared Judge Landis had decided to remove Medwick from the game and this was promptly confirmed, as Chick Fullis came out to warm up and take a place in the outfield. Fullis then went to field and the crowd quickly subsided.

Cochrane lined to Rothrock near the right field line. Gehringer was thrown out on a hopper to Durocher, who made a beautiful pick-up and throw. Goslin lifted a high foul to Collins back of third.

No runs, no hits, no errors; none left.

SEVENTH INNING

Cardinals—Orsatti lifted a long fly to White. Durocher pounded a triple against the bleacher wall in right centre. Dean bounced out, Owen to Greenberg. Martin grounded to Gehringer and Durocher scored while Pepper reached first safely on Gehringer's fumble. Martin stole second base. Cochrane's throw was low and Gehringer failed to hold it. Rothrock hit to the bleacher barrier in left centre, scoring Martin and pulled up at second for a two-base hit. Frisch flied deep to Fox.

Two runs, two hits, one error; one left.

No runs, no hits, no errors; none left.

EIGHTH INNING

Cardinals — Fullis lashed a hit past Rogell for a single. Collins lined out to Fox in deep right centre. Delancey sent a hopper through the box and was thrown out at first, Gehringer to Greenberg as Fullis went to second. Orsatti walked, the fourth ball being low. Durocher grounded to Rogell and Orsatti was forced at second, Rogell to Gehringer.

No runs, one hit, no errors; two left.

Tigers—Fox lashed a long hit for two bases against the screen in the left field corner. Gerald Walker batted for Marberry. Walker flied out to Fullis. White fanned swinging, Cochrane lifted a high foul fly to Rothrock.

NINTH INNING

Cardinals.—Crowder went to the box for the Tigers. Dean flied to Goslin. Martin fouled to Greenberg. Rothrock fanned swinging.

No runs, no hits, no errors; none left.

Tigers. — Gehringer singled to left. Goslin bounded to Collins and Gehringer was forced at second, Collins to Durocher. Goslin beat the relay to first. Rogell singled past Frisch. Greenberg fanned for the second straight time, swinging hard. Owen grounded to Durocher and Rogell was forced at second, Durocher to Frisch.

Thug Robs Ottawa Surgeon Of $60

OTTAWA, Oct. 9. (CP).—Dr. J. Lorenzo Lamy, well-known Ottawa surgeon, was held up at the point of a revolver and robbed of $60 when a man gained entry to his house on Stewart street, supposedly to be examined, last night.

Although the man tore the telephone in Dr. Lamy's consulting office from the wall before leaving, the doctor immediately notified police of the hold-up from another house telephone.

Armed with a good description of the man, police kept a close watch on all points of exit from the capital.

CONVENTION TO SETTLE BUILDING TRADES SCRAP

SAN FRANCISCO, Oct. 9. (AP). One of the fights which has created a climax while another was headed for the floor of the organization's 54th annual convention.

The battle in the building trades department over the re-affiliation of three powerful unions—carpenters, electrical workers and bricklayers — which withdrew seven years ago, probably will be brought back to the convention floor to be finally decided.

It was freely predicted the adjustment committee would support the executive council and demand reaffiliation for the three strong unions.

"Goose" Goslin's throw to the plate to nip Medwick in the third inning was a masterpiece. It was so strong and accurate that it caught Medwick by 10 feet and ultimately saved the game, as the run would have been the Cardinal's third.

HAMPTON MAN IS ROBBED OF $80

Storekeeper is Held up by Armed Thug on Saturday Evening.

DESCRIPTION FAULTY

BOWMANVILLE, Oct. 9—Walking into the general store operated by W. W. Horn of Hampton, five miles north of here, about 6.45 p.m. on Saturday, an armed gunman held up the proprietor and rifled the till of a little over $80 in cash.

According to the details given to police by Mr. Horn, the man entered the store and asked for a package of cigarets. On being handed the package, the man asked Mr. Horn if he could change a $10 bill, and, becoming suspicious, the merchant refused, whereupon the robber drew a gun from his coat pocket, and, sticking it into Mr. Horn's ribs, ordered him to the corner of the store, while he rifled the till of its contents.

Faulty Description

In the excitement of the hold-up Mr. Horn was unable to get a full description of the man. He was stated to be about 5 feet 10 or 11 inches, weighing about 160 pounds, of dark complexion, and wearing a brown coat, with the collar turned up, and a cap.

Just previous to the hold-up some girls on the street saw a man answering to this description near the store. A touring-model car was near by, and police are of the opinion that this was the car he made his getaway with. He is thought to have had no accomplices.

Horn was ordered, before the man left, to lie flat on the floor, and make no attempt to call for help or phone police till the man got away, on pain of death. The store was empty of customers at that time.

Have Few Clues

Provincial Constables W. E. Smith and Ed Purves of Bowmanville and Provincial Constable Bill Carey of Cobourg are working on the case.

business. Especial mention may be made of the exhibit of the Swedish Separator Co., of Montreal, who through their local agent, James E. Gehan showed a nice display of up to date cream separators. Close at hand was the booth operated by Marmora Women's Institute which was well patronized. Upon the bandstand Vernard Brock and his Toonerville Folk provided a program of music and vaudeville stunts, besides putting on a variety show in the Town Hall in the evening. A second attraction the same evening was the dance put on in the exhibition building with music furnished by Charles Jones' Orchestra. Also in the afternoon a baseball game was played between Marmora and Bancroft, the homesters just managing to win by 5-3.

The teams:

Bancroft — G. Barker, 1b; R. Watson, 3b; H. Watson, p; B. Reid, cf; P. Warren, lf; R. Foster, 2b; M. Moffatt, rf; R. Barker, c; P. Melville, ss.

Marmora—M. Callery, cf; J. McInroy, p, cf; C. Robertson, 1b; A. Brown, ss; J. Brady, 2b; H. Hewitt, 3b; G. Stewart, c; V. Callery, rf, p; F. Leal, lf, p.

Two-baggers were obtained by Robertson, M. Callery and Stewart. Marmora obtained seven hits to Bancroft's five. The game was much enjoyed despite a slippery field and the two teams are hoping for another struggle in Bancroft within a few days.

Score by innings:

Bancroft .. .. 000 001 200—3
Marmosa .. .. 003 110 00x—5

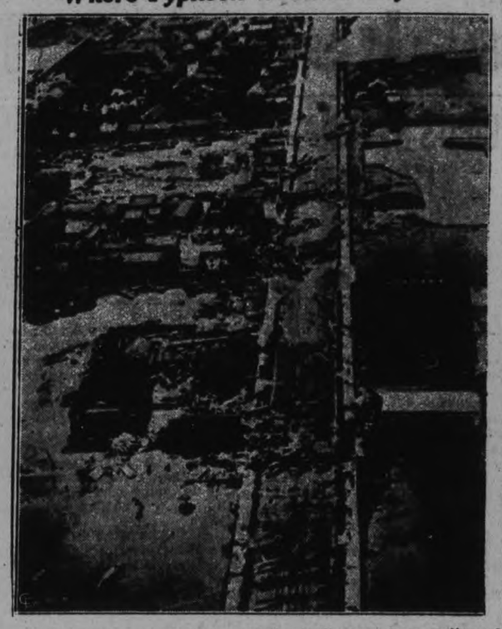
Where Typhoon Wrecked City



Flooded ruins are all that are left of this once busy section of Osaka, Japan, after the destructive typhoon which swept in from the Osaka harbor had completed its damage. The piled-up waters of the harbor were swept far inland by the force of the tremendous wind, and added to the terror of falling walls and the terrible shriek of the hurricane. The toll of the storm was 2,500 dead, 500 missing and almost ten thousand injured, while hundreds of thousands are homeless, and property amounting to hundreds of millions of yen were destroyed.

EAT BRAN FLAKES and enjoy it!

GET rid of that "blue" feeling. Check up on your digestion. Perhaps your trouble comes from constipation due to lack of bulk in the diet. Then you need bran flakes. And why not eat bran flakes you will actually enjoy as a food? Make Post's Bran Flakes With Other Parts of Wheat a part of your diet every day. In the morning for breakfast, or at any meal. Delicious and effective. Post's Bran Flakes also makes the grandest bran muffins. Recipe is on the package. Post's Bran Flakes is made in Canada.

Constipation due to insufficient roughage in the diet should yield to Post's Bran Flakes eaten regularly. A competent physician should be consulted for cases not corrected in this simple manner.

Scotland Yard Detective Sniffs Envelope When Called to Ocean Liner.

DIAMONDS VANISHED

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN
Central Press Canadian Writer

PARIS.—I have just learned how the mystery of the disappearance of a $500,000 diamond necklace from the safe of a giant ocean liner was solved by a meer sniff on the part of Mr. George Slothwell, detective of Scotland Yard, after the captain and the officers of the ship were ready in despair to admit the heavy loss. The stunt which came near defrauding the insurance company and the shipping concern of half a million dollars, belongs to one of the cleverest and most daring criminal ventures which the high-sea crooks have carried out of recent years. The details were told me by the chief purser of a liner which plies between New York, Cherbourg and Southampton, and only on the distinct understanding that I mention neither his own name nor that of the boat on which he is an officer.

"The first day out of New York," he said, "is always our busiest day. In the travel season the entire journey involves constant vigilance because the safes in the purser's office contain frequently millions of dollars' worth of valuables. One or two of the ship's officers are on guard night and day. The office is not left alone for a moment.

"On one of our last trips we had among our passengers the Duchess of Westminster, who asked us to keep in our safety vault a diadem worth $250,000. On the same trip Princess Radzilow gave a pearl necklace in safe keeping which was worth $300,000, and the Harley sisters celebrated dancing twins, left their garters, studded with brilliants valued at $35,000. These were the main items on our list which was no less than eight pages long. We had nearly five million dollars' worth of jewels in our safe that time.

"Just before dinner time on such trips," went on the chief purser, "we are doubly on the alert. Passengers come in one by one, or all in a crowd to withdraw their jewels in order to wear them during the evening. Here is the wife of a French perfume king. 'Give me my bracelets and pendants,' she says. Another lady wants her diamonds. They want them quickly. But we must unseal the envelopes in which the jewels are contained and ask them to sign for the withdrawal. Yet the ladies are in a hurry and dozens are waiting. Everybody is impatient to withdraw all or part of their treasures.

"On this particular trip of which I am speaking a gentleman hands me a package just after we had left New York and asks me to weigh it. It was eight grams. He tells me: 'These are diamonds,' and I put his package in an envelope, seal it, have him sign on the outside and I register him in the book as Mr. Muritrillo, jeweler, address New York City. His valuables are insured for $500,000.

"The journey went well until we came within sight of Southampton. The ship's machines had slowed down already, and the tenders were coming alongside to take off passengers when I see Mr. Mutrillo walk up to my desk. He presents his receipt and I take the package from the safe.

"Imagine my stupefaction..... there was a hole in the heavy paper envelope. I put the package on the scales and its weighs but 20 grams. My heart almost stopped. I had not left the office for six days and six nights. I knew as positively as the sun shines that nobody had touched that safe except myself and my assistant. My assistant is the son of honesty. That anyone of the crew on a British vessel had been involved in theft is simply unthinkable. It never happened yet in the history of the sea.

"My head whirled around. But there was nothing for me to do but face the music. Here is your package, Mr. Murtrillo!' I said to the jeweler. He took it in his hand and looked at the hole. 'I refuse to accept it,' he said.

"I immediately sent a bellboy to call the captain and the ship's detective. They weren't long in coming. Other passengers were coming up to my desk to withdraw their valuables. They noticed nothing of the trouble we were in. The disappearance of the diamonds was kept a strict secret. After the passengers went on shore, Mr. Muritrillo, the captain, my assistant and the ship's detective went into conferece. We envisaged every possible conjecture, but could arrive at no solution.

"It was then decided to notify Scotland Yard by wire," the purser continued his story. "Mr. Muritrillo went ashore but promised to be back on board the same afternoon when the representative from the Yard had arrived. This gentleman Mr. Slothwell, appeared at three o'clock. He had left London immediately upon receiving the captain's wire.

"Mr. Muritrillo was also present when we gathered in my office again. We explained the circumstances of the loss to the detective and handed him the envelope. He took it into his hands, ripped it open and took a good long sniff at it. Then he turned to Mr. Muritrillo and said: 'You are under arrest, sir!'

"'Just a minute,' interposed the captain, 'Mr. Muritrillo is a first-class passenger'....'Never mind, sir,' came back the detective, 'this is too simple. It's the mouse-trick. The man you call Mr. Muritrillo gave you a package with a thin card-board bottom. In the package was a live mouse and a piece of fat pork. When the mouse became hungry it first ate the pork and then started to dig a hole in the paper bottom, and after that through the envelope. But by that time the envelope was lying in the safe. The mouse escaped from the safe while it was standing open. The disappearance of the pork and the mouse explains the difference in weight at the time of the first weighing and later. I arrest Mr. Muritrillo and charge him with fraud. I think we will be able to tell you later what his real name is."

TRAIN WRECKED BY BROKEN AXLE

Two Men Are Killed and Nine Others Badly Hurt

WEEK TO CLEAR TRACK.

SASKATOON, Oct. 9. (CP) — A broken axle to-day was believed to have been the cause of the wreck of a Canadian National Railways grain train at Borden, Sask., 150 miles west of here Saturday, when two men were killed and nine others injured.

Clearing of the debris from the scene continued to-day with six feet of grain lying along both sides of the track. The 15 broken box cars have all been moved off the tracks to permit trains to pass but it will be a week before all the debris is cleared away.

W. C. Owens, general superintendent of the Canadian National Railways for Saskatchewan, said he believed the wreck due to a broken axle. Investigation into the accident is being continued by railway and Royal Canadian Mounted Police and an inquest into the deaths will be held.

Possibility the death toll may increase was seen in inquiries for missing men believed to have been on the train. As many of the 50 or more men from the harvest field who were riding the rods disappeared in the brush and into nearby towns after the accident, a complete check is impossible.

PARAGUAY ASKS CONFLICT IN CHACO HALT AT ONCE

GENEVA, Oct. 9.—(AP)—Paraguay demanded immediate cessation of hostilities in the Chaco war in a message to the League of Nations conciliation committee today and a special non-agression pact with "international guarantees."

Paraguay also informed the committee it was disposed to proceed toward conciliation with the idea of reaching a direct accord with Bolivia on their differences and eventually a decision of arbitration.

No Paraguayan delegate attended the meeting but a telegram from asuncion announced the country's readiness to send a representative under certain conditions.

Dr. A. Costa Du Reis of Bolivia placed himself at the disposition of the committee.

Noted Yukon Pioneer David Ring Passes

SEATTLE, Oct. 9 (AP)—David W. Ring, 69, Alaska pioneer and former President of the International Sourdoughs Reunion, was dead today.

His autobiography, written at the request of the Alaska Yukon Pioneers, tells how he made the heart-straining, back-breaking dash over the Chilkoot Pass in the Yukon gold rush, carrying a 25-pound pack which included 10 pounds of chewing tobacco. Strong men with dog teams to carry their loads died in that rush. Ring did it on one leg.

He hobbled to the top of the pass, and a Canadian Customs agent found the tobacco. The law required duty on such imports. "Did you bring all that up the trail yourself?" the agent asked.

"Yes."

"Well, I haven't the nerve to charge you duty. You have more nerve than any man I ever saw."

WARM WELCOME GIVEN VISITORS CIVIC LUNCHEON

COMMITTEES NAMED.

Brigadier General J. B. White, D.S.O., Presided at Annual Sessions.

Delegates to the 19th annual meeting of the Canadian Cavalry Association, embracing a membership of distinguished cavalry officers from all quarters of the Dominion, were yesterday noon tendered a warm and enthusiastic official welcome to Peterborough as a civic luncheon tendered at Empress Hotel.

Alderman (Major) M. R. Sloan, chairman of the Reception Committee of the City Council, and second in command of the 3rd Prince of Wales Canadian Dragoons, host unit to the convention, presided as toastmaster. The welcome he extended on behalf of the city was further augmented by Mayor Roland Denne, in replying to the toast to the city, proposed by Colonal F. B. Inkster, V.D., of Ottawa, officer commanding the 2nd Mounted Brigade; and also by Alderman G. A. Macdonald in proposing a toast to the Cavalry Association.

The president of the association, Brigadier-General J. B. White, D.S.O., E.D., of Montreal, responded to the toast to the association. He commented highly on the hospitality extended by the city, and said that, while it was his first visit to Peterborough, he was familiar with some of her products.

Particular reference was made by the speaker to Peterborough canoes, and he also stated he knew of several sons of the city who had gone from here to make names for themselves in the world of commerce and industry.

Earlier in the luncheon program grace was asked by Captain (Rev.) J. D. Paterson, chaplain, while the toast to the King was proposed by Lieut.-Col. Claire H. Stuart, officer commanding the Dragoons.

Business Opens.

Luncheon was preceded by the meeting of the Association Council, which met in the hotel in the forenoon with the following members present: Brig.-Gen. J. B. White, D.S.O., E.D., president, in the chair; Col. H. C. A. Hervey, V.D., R.O., past president; Col. R. M. Courtney, V.D., R.O., past president; Lieut.-Col. E. A. Devitt, V.D., 4th Hussars, honorary secretary; Col. F. B. Inkster, V.D., 2nd Mounted Brigade, honorary treasurer; Lieut.-Col. R. B. Crouch, E.D., 1st Hussars, vice-president M.D. 1; Lieut.-Col. N. King Wilson, V.D., Mississauga Horse, vice-president M.D. 2; Major J. D. Fraser, P.L.D.G., vice-president M. D. 3; Lieut.-Col. L. W. Miller, E.T. M.R., vice-president M.D. 4; Lieut.-Col. P. L. Johnston, D.C.M., 11th Hussars, vice-president M.D. 5; Col. E. J. Mooney, V.D., 9th Mounted Brigade, vice-president M.D. 6; Major G. H. T. Ruffee, K.C., Hussars, vice-president M.D. 7; Col. P. J. Montague, C.M.G., D.S.O., M.C., V.D., A.D.C., 6th Mounted Brigade, vice-president M.D. 10; Major H. F. Smith, B.C. Hussars, vice-president M.D. 11; Major H. S. Packman, Saskatchewan Mounted Rifles, vice-president M.D. 12; Lieut.-Col. W. L. Oliver, M.C., Alberta Dragoons, vice-president M.D. 13; Lieut.-Col. G. M. Endacott, V.D. Reserve of Officers (West); Lieut.-Col. C. H. M. Anderson, O.B.E. Reserve of Officers (East). The following were also present: Capt. G. F. Berteau, Royal Canadian Dragoons, Permanent Active Militia; Major J. W. Bain, 4th Hussars, district secretary M.D. 3; Lieut.-Col. C. E. Connolly, H.Q., M.D. 3; Lieut.-Col. Pearkes, V.C., D.S.O., M.C., representing National Defence Headquarters, Ottawa; Lieut.-Col. R. T. Hall, V.D., 2nd Dragoons, district secretary M.D. 2; Major S. C. McLennan, 4th Hussars, Department of Agriculture.

Committees Appointed.

The committees were struck as follows:

Resolutions—Col. R. M. Courtney, Lieut.-Col. R. B. Crouch, Lieut.-Col. C. M. Endacott, Lieut.-Col. W. L. Oliver, Col. E. J. Mooney, Lieut.-Col. L. W. Miller, Lieut.-Col. C. E. Connolly, Col. P. J. Montague.

Merritt Challenge Cup committee to review and report upon the conditions of the competition—Major J. D. Fraser, Col. F. B. Inkster, Capt. G. F. Berteau, Major H. F. Smith.

Efficiency competition — Lieut.-Col. C. H. M. Anderson, Lieut.-Col. P. L. Johnston, Major H. S. Packman, Lieut.-Col. W. L. Oliver.

Remount competition—Lieut.-Col. E. A. Devitt, Lieut.-Col. L. W. Miller, Major J. W. Bain, Col. H. C. A. Hervey, Major S. C. McLennan.

Stockwell Cup competition—Col. H. C. A. Hervey, Major H. F. Smith, Major G. H. T. Ruffee, Col. F. B. Inkster, Major J. W. Bain.

The president read a telegram received from Colonel the Hon. R. F. Stockwell in which he regretted, owing to Government business, his inability to attend the meeting, and wishing the association all success.

Colonel P. J. Montague gave a brief resume of the last meeting of the Conference of Defence Associations, and the following officers also addressed the meeting on the question: Colonels Connolly, Inkster, Pearkes and Hervey.

Over Lift Locks

In the afternoon the delegates and their hosts had an enjoyable trip over the Lift Locks in the S.S. Bessie Butler, and there was quite a large crowd of people on hand to watch the craft lock through to the upper level of the canal. While the canal is normally closed at this time of the year, the local organizers of the convention obtained special permission to undertake the boat trip from the Department of Railways and Canals, through the courtesy of E. A. Peck, K.C., M.P. The weather was ideal for the occasion and the novel trip appeared to merit the approval of the many visitors.

Disembarking at Nassau the boat passengers were met there and transported back to the city by automobiles, and were taken on a tour of the various points of interest before returning to the Armouries for tea.

In the evening the officers of the 3rd Prince of Wales Canadian Dragoons entertained the delegates and also the officers of the sister units of Peterborough Garrison at dinner in the recreation room at the Armouries.

Novel Souvenirs

The room was tastefully decorated and novel souvenir place markers in the form of miniature canoe paddles made by Peterborough Canoe Company, and artistically inscribed with the various names and ranks of each of the guests were provided.

Captain A. R. MacNab, mess president, presided at the dinner, calling upon Captain (Rev.) J. D. Paterson, chaplain of the Dragoons to say the grace.

As at the luncheon earlier in the day, brevity was the keynote of the toasts. That to the Canadian Cavalry Association was voiced by Lt.-Colonel T. D. Johnson, V.D., former O.C. Dragoons, and was responded to by Brig.-General J. B. White, D.S.O., E.D., President of the Association.

The Sister Garrison Units was proposed by Major M. R. Sloan, being responded to by Lieut.-Colonel G. G. Winterbottom, M.C., D.C.M., Officer Commanding Peterborough Rangers, and Lieut.-Colonel D. J. Lawrie, Officer Commanding the 4th Machine Gun Battalion.

Lieut. A. E. Chalmers proposed The Regiment, and the reply was ably voiced by Lieut.-Col. Claire H. Stuart, O.C. 3rd Prince of Wales' Canadian Dragoons.

Immediately following dinner the gathering adjourned to the Dragoons' and the Rangers' officers' messes, preparatory to the big dance which wound up the program for the first day of the convention.

FIRE PREVENTION BULLETIN

This is Fire Prevention Week—Do Your Part to Reduce Peterborough's Fire Losses

BULLETIN FOR TUESDAY

National records show that more firemen are killed and injured in trafic accidents while riding to and from fires than while actually engaged in fire fighting operations. This fact was brought out by Fire Chief George Gimblett today in an appeal to drivers of the community to give fire apparature the right-of-way when en route to fires. He also urged citizens to avoid clogging streets with their cars when they learn that a fire is in progress.

"When you hear the warning signals of the fire apparatus," the chief requested, "pull over to the curb until it has passed. If you hear the apparatus when approaching an intersection, do not cross until you are sure the apparatus is not coming. The Chief points out that quick response of apparatus is always necessary since lives may be in danger or a delay in arriving may allow the fire to spread beyond control. "While returning from fires," the Chief continued, "the fire apparatus will obey all traffic rules, just as any other vehicle, but on our way out, we must have the right-of-way if we are to keep the fire losses down."

Speaking of the practice on the part of the public of rushing to the scene of fires, the Chief said, "Curiosity in regard to fires is natural and we have no objection to spectators as long as they do not crowd so close that our movements are hindered. Also we hope that no motorists will park their cars within two blocks of the fire in order that the laying of hose lines will not be hampered or the movement of apparatus arriving later will not be hindered."

PALE, PEPLESS GIRL BECAME PRETTY —AND WASN'T SHE PLEASED!

It all happened in 30 days! In November the girl was pale, run-down and lacked vitality. Weight subnormal; only 91½ lbs. Her blood, when tested, was found to be low in red corpuscles and lower still in haemoglobin, the red substance in the red corpuscles. She was given a 30-day treatment. And what a happy change took place!

She gained nine pounds and her complexion glowed with rosy health. Her face rounded out and she became positively pretty. The treatment—as shown by a second blood test—had greatly increased the red corpuscles and haemoglobin in her blood, consequently she felt and looked radiantly well. The preparation that worked these wonders was Dr. Williams' Pink Pills.

This famous old remedy restores health in a most constructive way. We know that the blood carries nourishment and vitality to every part of the body. But unless the blood has a sufficient number of red corpuscles and red colouring substance called haemoglobin, it cannot carry on its vital work. It is here that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills produce constructive benefits. This remedy increases, in most cases, both the red corpuscles and the haemoglobin. Blood tests prove it!

Good looks and good health are too precious to neglect or experiment with. If your feelings and your mirror tell you that you are under-weight, nervous, sallow, easily tired out—take this tested remedy, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, for 30 days, as the girl mentioned above did. Then check up on beauty and health you have gained. Full size box is priced 50c.

Vermilyea Arrested in California on Charge of Murder

WANTED MAN BEING HELD FOR ONTARIO

Arrest Follows Telephone Call to Mrs. J. A. Faulkner in Belleville.

ASKED ABOUT MURDER

Cake of Toronto Hotel Soap Found When Man Searched, Report Says.

BELLEVILLE, Oct. 9 (C.P.)—A tension that has gripped this city for three days, since the mutilated body of Mrs. Nathaniel Vermilyea was found late Thursday night, was partially lifted on Saturday when announcement was made through the local police that Harold W. Vermilyea of Ontario, Cal., had been taken into custody, and will be charged with murder in connection with the crime. Mrs. Vermilyea was fatally slashed over the head with a hatchet, and was found beside the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. A. Faulkner, wife of the Ontario Minister of Health. She died from her injuries, which included an almost severed right hand, Friday morning.

Move for Extradition

Extradition proceedings will be instituted at once, stated Crown Attorney B. C. Donnan, K.C., who has been the head of the investigation in the matter. Events moved swiftly to a conclusion of the sensational hatchet murder after Vermilyea phoned from his home in California on Saturday inquiring about the details of his mother's death, to members of the family here.

The first intimation from Vermilyea, who has been steadily linked up with the crime by the police, was on Saturday when he wired his sister, Mrs. Dr. Faulkner: "Just heard of mother's death in morning papers. Connect me with crime. Fine advertising for my family. Rush details."

Nothing was done about the wire, in the hope that he would again get in touch with the family, and this transpired, when a few hours later he put through a phone call to Mrs. Faulkner, insisting that she tell him of the details.

Crown Attorney Donnan was privileged to listen in on an extension in the home, but he refused to make public the conversation, and Mrs. Faulkner refused to make a statement on advice of counsel.

It is known, however, that in the middle of the conversation Mrs. Faulkner abruptly asked: 'Harold where have you been all this week?" and he answered: "Why, I have been in B——. Oh, I have been up State and up the valley." The Crown Attorney, at the termination of this call, got in touch with Chief J. H. Loch, of Ontario, Cal., and had the man picked up, and asked him to search the man, and soon a wire was received from that officer, stating:

Hotel Soap Found

"Have checked car. His Buick coupe was in a Los Angeles garage since Sept. 25 till 10.15 Saturday. Had in his possession business card of a Checker zone cab, Yonge at Walton street, and on back a notation, 'O 9294,' written in ink. Also sample bar of soap from Walker House, Toronto."

The airports out of Chicago were checked by Chicago police, and a wire was received from J. L. Sullivan, Chief of Detectives, Chicago, stating: "Re Harold Vermilyea investigation. Officers report Grand Trunk Railway discharged passenger at Central Park Station, one mile from Municipal Airport, who purchased ticket on P.A. plane to Los Angeles, leaving airport at 10.-20 p.m., Oct. 5." Passenger gave name of B. F. Collins, Toronto, Canada. Appeared nervous and anxious to get plane. Had forty pounds excess baggage, and answers description, except he wore light-colored hat. Plane arrived Glendale Airport, twenty miles from Los Angeles, 9.05 a.m. Saturday."

Arrest Is Ordered

Immediately this word was received, another wire went through to California to hold Vermilyea, and he was picked up, and Sam Ervine, traffic officer in the district, rode post-haste to Toronto with the warrant issued on Friday to the Attorney-General's Department, from where it will be forwarded.

Officers in reconstructing the crime expressed the belief the assailant of the woman intended establishing a strong alibi. It was known a man called last Monday night at the house where Mrs. Vermilyea lived, but she was not at home. This man came back twice on Thursday night, on the last occasion talking with Mrs. Vermilyea for some time in her room before they left for the Faulkner home, where the attack occurred.

It is definitely known that Harold Vermilyea has been in communication with his mother for some months over money matters.

Clothes found in the hotel in Toronto where Vermilyea was said to have stayed have been confiscated by police. The clothes were reported to show a slight trace of blood, and a pathologist is coming to Belleville to examine them to see if the blood is the same as that found on the Faulkner lawn.

Following the telephone conversation yesterday, Mrs. Faulkner said her brother hung up the receiver when she asked him to surrender to Ontario, Cal., police.

Must Be Settled

"If he has done what he is supposed to have done, he is a very dangerous man," she said, "and if he has not, then I am very glad to know he will be cleared."

She expressed the belief if her brother had committed the act he must have been temporarily insane. "He is a wonderful brother and a wonderful son," she declared. Mrs. Faulkner urged her brother to "come right home," and she declared he appeared to be "muddled" when she spoke to him over the telephone, his answers being "evasive."

Vermilyea, the sister continued, had insisted he was not out of California. Mrs. Faulkner urged him to return to Belleville for his mother's funeral.

BONARLAW

Miss Olive Hamilton was taken suddenly ill on Wednesday and on Thursday was taken to Belleville General Hospital where she was operated on for appendicitis.

Mr. and Mrs. Bill Barlow and Mrs. John S. McKeown motored to Peterborough on Friday and Miss Marjorie McKeown returned home with them to spend the holiday.

COUNTY SCHOOL TEACHERS MEET IN NORWOOD FOR CONVENTION

Miss B. Hart is Appointed President for the Coming Year.

NORWOOD WINS CUP

NORWOOD, Oct. 9.—(Examiner Correspondence). — Peterborough County Public, Separate and Continuation School teachers held another successful convention on October 4 and 5 in Norwood.

A very profitable Thursday morning was spent at Norwood Urban School where the urban teachers of the county observed, and at the other centres at different rural schools in the county.

Thursday afternoon session was held in the Norwood Town Hall and took the form of an elimination contest in which two pupils from each grade of the five urban schools spoke. The six highest contestants in each group were graded, the two highest competing again at the evening program for first and second place.

Supper was served in the dining hall of the Norwood United Church by the ladies to over a hundred and fifty teachers and pupils. After supper Inspector L. W. Copp showed pictures which he took at the rural school fairs in the county. Many interesting and amusing incidents of the different fair activities were recalled to those taking part.

Open to Public.

The evening session was open to the public, and the over-crowded hall showed the interest and enthusiasm of the citizens of Norwood and community as well as many from Havelock, Lakefield and Peterborough.

L. Nelson, president of the association, very capably took charge of the very splendid program. J. Marks, chairman of the board, on behalf of the Norwood Board of Education, extended a very hearty welcome to all the visiting teachers. The program consisted of recitations and speeches given by the two high contestants from each grade of the afternoon's contest, interspersed by very delightful musical numbers rendered by the Norwood Citizens' Band, also Norwood, Westwood and Daisy Dee schools, under the direction of C. Renaud, supervisor of music. Sr. III. and Jr. IV. of Norwood Public School sang two numbers, "The Fox and the Grapes" and "Sleep, Baby, Sleep." Daisy Dee demonstrated what a small country school could accomplish in ten months' music training by singing "Bye lo Land" and "Welcome to the Lovely Spring." A wand drill given by the girls of the Norwood Public School was very well presented. Westwood pupils sang three selections which were well received, "Ho, the Boating," "Hark, the Lark" and "The Rain."

Mr. Renaud demonstrated how pupils who are taught music by the same supervisor can sing part songs together never having practiced together by having Westwood and Norwood pupils sing two songs, "The Mermaid" and "Young Richard."

The concluding musical numbers were "Purple Spectacles," sung by Westwood school, and "Abide With Me," which was accompanied by the Norwood band.

Spelling Match.

The spelling match was an interesting feature of the program and was presided over by Inspector Martin of Northumberland County. Mr. Martin congratulated the teachers and pupils for their splendid work in preparation of the contests, and also the trustees who were so anxious to help in every way possible. He emphasized the point that the greatness of Canada depended on its boys and girls who will be the leaders of to-morrow. Mr. Martin then announced the first and second placing of the speaking contests, and these, added to the placings of the afternoon's contest, are as follows:

Urban School Contests.

I. Book—1, Jean Miller, Lakefield; 2, Lillian Calberry, Lakefield; 3, Mary Pitchford, Confederation; 4, Leona Miller, Confederation; 5, Patsy Elliott, Mays; 6, Betty Holdcroft, Havelock.

II. Book—1, Mary Alice Renwick, Lakefield; 2, Marion Forsythe, Havelock; 3, Winnifred Murphy, Lakefield; 4, Ethelwyn Gibson, Confederation; 5, Ruth Peters, Havelock; 6, Eileen Campbell, Norwood.

III. Book—"Hide and Seek"—1, Virginia Shearer, Lakefield; 2, Eileen Giffin, Norwood; 3, Betty Brown, Lakefield; 4, Nona Breckon, Norwood; 5, Bertie Gauld, Havelock; 6, June White, Confederation.

IV. Book—1, Jack Bush, Havelock; 2, Viola Edwards, Confederation; 3, Mary Blewett, Lakefield; 4, Ethel Barnes, Confederation; 5, Patricia Barnes, Confederation; 6, Beryl Johnson, Mays.

Public Speaking.

1, Freda Webster, Lakefield; 2, Rita McQuigge, Havelock; 3, Doris Gill, Norwood; 4, Marguerite Welsh, Confederation; 5, Marguerite Hawthorne, Confederation; 6, Lester Bougard, Norwood.

Spelling Match.

1, Rita McQuigge, Havelock; 2, Marjorie Raybould, Mays; 3, Dennis Remnant, Lakefield; 4, Doris Beckett, Norwood; 5, Fred. McMahon, Confederation; 6, Isabelle Thorne, Mays.

Inspector Downey presented the cup to the Norwood Public School for receiving the highest total number of points in all the contests. This is the third successive year Norwood has had the honor of holding the cup.

The final standing was: Norwood, 97 points; Confederation, 81; Lakefield, 79; Havelock, 62; Mays, 37.

FRIDAY SESSION.

Friday morning's session of the convention opened with the president, L. Nelson, in the chair. Rev. A. C. Reeves, pastor of the Norwood Presbyterian Church, conducted the opening exercises. The minutes of the past year were read by the secretary, Miss M. Inkster. Moved by Mr. G. Ball, seconded by Miss E. Dewart, that the minutes be adopted. Carried.

Miss Hart, vice-president, took the chair and called on the president for his address. Mr. Nelson chose as his subject, "Choosing a Vocation."

President Nelson again took the chair and called on Miss Kidd to report on the health course which she took last summer. Miss Kidd gave a very interesting paper on mental hygiene. One startling fact she mentioned was that out of every forty pupils ten are in ill-health and two of these will some day find their way to a mental hospital. There are as many causes of mental disease as of physical diseases. Every preventable disease is a disgrace. The teacher's mental health is not only her affair, it spreads to the pupils. Every teacher should ask her or himself, Am I happy? Have I ambition? Can I do things smoothly and evenly? Do I enjoy solving problems? Have I learned to live in the present? Do I make decisions promptly, and do I get along with other people?

Miss V. Squire, who also took the health course, gave a talk on "Physical Health." She emphasized the importance of teaching the child how to care for himself, which is more important in later life than being able to do decimals. She also stressed the responsibility of the teacher in supervising cleanliness in the class room and good health habits.

The report of the resolutions committee was read by G. Ball, who moved that it be accepted, and seconded by Miss H. Stuart. Carried.

Mr. L. Copp referred to a number of important points in connection with the new register, after which Miss B. Hart gave an interesting report on the O.E.A.

A banquet was served in the dining hall of the Norwood United Church by the ladies, after which the convention met in the auditorium of the church where Mr. Renaud led the Glee Club of the Norwood High School in the following numbers: "Oh, Dear, What Can the Matter Be?", "White Ships" and "Listen to the Lambs."

Miss V. McIlmoyle gave a report on the O.E.A., which was very inspiring.

The report of the nominating committee was read by Miss W. Nelson. The officers for the coming year are:

Honorary president, Mr. R. Lees, M.A.; past president, Mr. L. Nelson; president, Miss B. Hart; vice-president, Mr. E. Sloan; secretary-treasurer, Miss M. Inkster; corresponding secretary, Mr. L. W. Copp; executive, Mr. Downey, Mr. D. Buchanan, Mr. T. Chaplin, Miss E. Dewart, Miss V. Squire, Miss M. Boyce; auditors, Mr. F. Yuill, Miss L. Wing; delegates to O.E.A., Mr. E. Sloan, Mr. M. Parnell.

The main feature of the afternoon program was a splendid address by Inspector Downey on "The Personality of a Teacher." Mr. Downey wove his address from three texts: First, "And he gave unto one five talents, and to another two, and to another one"; second, "And he opened his mouth and taught"; third, "And if I be lifted up from the earth I will draw all men unto me." All teachers on entering the profession should remember these texts, and especially the last one. In the community as well as the school the teacher should be a leader. Personality means "You"—thinking, feeling, working and living a moral life where you are. A person of good personality is always maturing, but not to the point where he becomes dead to further development. The body is the house of the soul that grows, develops and attracts. Everyone should care for it, for it houses the spirit which reveals itself from our intellect, emotions and willingness to help others.

Education is imparted by personality, and its success or failure depends on the teacher. It is not so much what you teach as what you are. The person who ceases to study begins to die, thus every teacher should have an intellectual hobby. His equipment for work should be a good voice, neatness, cheer, self-control, courtesy, humor, magnetism, self-confidence, leadership.

Mr. Downey concluded his address by reading some very effective poems describing, first, the teacher of long ago from "The Deserted Village"; second, the teacher who will welcome and care for the little ones; thirdly, "The Teacher's Ife" and lastly, "The Two Temples."

Miss E. Kidd moved a hearty vote of thanks to Mr. Downey, which was seconded by Mr. Stacey.

An invitation from Mrs. Jackson and Mr. Stacey to hold the convention in Peterborough next year was accepted.

To prevent the destruction of next summer's crops, locust larvae now swarming in the Formosa and Salta territorities of Argentina are being destroyed.

Obituary

MRS. NORMAN GRAHAM

TRENT RIVER, Oct. 9.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The death occurred on Saturday of Edith Johnston, beloved wife of Norman Graham, at her home in Willkie, Saskatchewan. Deceased leaves two sister, Mrs. George Vance of West Seymour and Mrs. Garnet Rutherford of Seymour, also one brother, Arthur Johnston, who resides in Dauphin, Man.

JAMES ANDREW WIGHT

TRENT RIVER, Oct. 9.—(Examiner Correspondence).—The sudden death took place Friday in Nicholls Hospital, Peterborough, of the youngest son of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Wight of Peterborough (formerly of Trent River) at the age of 8 months, 13 days, after an illness of a few days having taken ill at the home of his parents only the Tuesday before and was taken to Nicholls Hospital on Thursday. The remains were brought Friday night to the home of Mrs. A. Wight, "Cedar Isle." The funeral was held Saturday afternoon at half-past two, the service being conducted by Rev. Dr. Hugh Brown of Havelock. The pall-bearers were Jim Brown, George Brown, Harold Camrite and Carl Ellis. A number of beautiful floral tributes covered the little white casket. Interment was at Maple Grove cemetery.

Weddings

GOTSELL—SHARPE

WOOLER, Oct. 9. — Examiner Correspondence).—A lovely autumn wedding took place on Wednesday at noon, when Marjory Jean, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Sharpe, became the bride of Kenneth Gotsell, son of Mr. and Mrs. John Gotsell, Norfolk, England. The Rev. A. Poulter officiated. Mrs. S. L. Terrill played the wedding march. The ceremony was conducted on the lawn against a background of a white lattice arch trimmed with a white bell and flowers. The bride, given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of white point d'espirit over white silk. She carried a shower bouquet of delicate shades of Gladiolus. Miss Lucille Sharpe attended her sister. She was gowned in pale blue point d'esprit over blue silk and carried a bouquet of pink Gladiolus. Clarence Fox was groomsman. During the signing of the register Miss Laura Vosburgh sang sweetly "I Love You Truly." After the reception and luncheon the bridal couple left by motor to Toronto. The bride travelled in a smart grey suit with matching accessories, and wore the groom's gift, a wrist watch.

BRISTOW—LORD

MILLBROOK, Oct. 9 (Examiner Correspondence)—A quiet and very pretty fall wedding took place at the home of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Lord, Main street, on Saturday at 2.30 p.m., when their third daughter, Miriam Eleanor, became the bride of Walter James Bristow, of Peterborough, son of Mr. and Mrs. George Bristow, of Tunstead, Norfolk, England.

The ceremony was performed by the Reverend H. R. Williams, B.A., pastor of Grace Presbyterian Church, and the bride, who looked charming wore a becoming dress of coral pink silk crepe, with corsage of 'Talisman roses. The young couple were unattended, and were the recipients of a number of beautiful gifts. Lovely fall blossoms were used in decorating the home, and following the wedding-luncheon, Mr. and Mrs. Bristow left, by motor, for Peterborough, where they will reside, the bride wearing a navy blue ensemble suit, with matching accessories.

Only the immediate relatives were present, and included among the guests were: Mr. and Mrs. H. Toms and their daughter, Miss Mildred, of Toronto; Miss Mabel Lord, of Toronto; Messrs. Charlie Lord and B. Brydges, of Toronto; Mr. and Mrs. Harry Lord and their daughter, Dorothy, and Miss Winnifred Lord, of Peterborough.

James Angus, a barber of Peterhead, Scotland, who died recently, made violins as a hobby, and some were used by leading Scottish concert artists.

CAVAN

Mr. and Mrs. James Douglas spent Sunday visiting Mr. and Mrs. George Hooton of Fairmount.

Mr. and Mrs. Ray Syer were visitors to Toronto over the week-end.

Miss Gwen Hunter of Toronto spent Thanksgiving with her mother, Mrs. Annie Hunter.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Hill and son Jack of Peterborough were guests of Mrs. Hill's parents, Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Swain on Sunday.

There is a slight improvement in Miss Winona Cathcart's condition after being seriously ill for the past eight weeks.

MOORE.—PARK.

A very pretty wedding was solemnized in the home of Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Ray, of North Monaghan, on Saturday evening at eight o'clock, by the Rev. C. D. Daniel of Mark street church, when Margaret, second daughter of Mr. and Mrs. L. E. Park of Fraserville, was united in marriage to Mr. Nelson Moore, son of Mr. Louis Moore and the late Mrs. Moore of Millbrook.

The bride, looking very pretty in a frock of white satin, fashioned on Princess lines, with velvet jacquette to match and carrying a bouquet of pink carnations, entered the beautifully decorated living room on the arm of her father, who gave her in marriage.

After the ceremony a wedding supper was served to the immediate friends and relatives. Later Mr. and Mrs. Moore left on a brief honeymoon. The bride's going away costume was a frock of midnight blue and black broadcloth coat with muskrat collar and accessories to correspond. On their return Mr. and Mrs. Moore will reside at the home of Mr. Louis Moore, fifth line, Cavan.

The Weather

TORONTO, Oct. 9.—A severe storm centred off the Labrador coast has caused strong westerly winds and gales in the Gulf of St. Lawrence. Light showers have occurred in Quebec and East Maritimes, though in other districts east of British Columbia the weather has been fair. It has been cool in Northern Ontario and Quebec, with above normal temperature in Southern Ontario and in the Western provinces. Pressure is low over the Mackenzie River Valley and shallow low areas are centred in Iowa and over the Gulf of Mexico, with high pressure over Ontario and the Far West states.

Lower Lake Region: Moderate easterly winds; fair to-day and Wednesday, followed by showers in south-west counties; not much change in temperature.

Georgian Bay: Moderate north-east and east winds; fair and comparatively cool to-day and on Wednesday.

Northern Ontario: Fair to-day and Wednesday; quite cool to-night.

Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley: Moderate winds; fair to-day

A well-attended fowl supper was held last evening at Mark Street United Church, followed by an interesting program, with the Rev. C. D. Daniel in the chair. At the close, the Rev. Dr. Moore moved a vote of thanks to all taking part.

The program was as follows: Organ recital by Harold Kitney, with Miss Muriel Moorhouse at the piano during the dinner hour; trio numbers: violin, piano and bass viol, Mr. and Mrs. Searles and T. Smith; whistling solos, Miss Mignon Mayneord; vocal duett, Mrs. E. V. Morphet and Miss Florence Glenny; Cornet solos, Mr. Wilson; readings, Miss Jessie Tully; vocal solo, Miss Glenny; vocal trio, Mesdames Hepburn, Mitchell, Telford; vocal solos, Mrs. E. V. Morphet.

DIES OF RAZOR WOUND.

CARDINAL, Ont., Oct. 9.—(C.P.)—James Beggs, aged 65, died yesterday in St Vincent De Paul Hospital, Brockville, from self inflicted wounds by a razor on Sunday afternoon. Leaving his boarding house on Sunday he walked down the street a short way and, drawing a razor from his pocket, slashed his throat twice. A doctor was immediately called No reason could be found for Beggs' act. The coroner deemed an inquest unnecessary.

ENEMIES FAIL FOURTH ATTACK UPON INSPECTOR

Acid Hurled on J. F. Vance Burns Hands, Legs, But Misses Eyes.

ON WAY TO B.C. TRIAL.

VANCOUVER, October 9 (C.P.)—Unsuccessful in four attacks upon his life, the enemies of Inspector J. F. C. B. Vance to-day had attempted to destroy his eyesight by throwing acid upon him—and failed again. Vance is head of the Vancouver Police Bureau of Science.

An hour before he was scheduled to leave for Nanaimo yesterday to give testimony in Assize Court against George Hannay, former police officer charged with burglary, the noted criminologist was doused with acid thrown by a man who crouched outside his garage. Only an instinctive raising of his hands saved his eyesight The fiery liquid burned the backs of his hands severely, and dripped down on to his trousers, burning through the cloth and leaving a two-inch burn on his left leg above the knee and another on his left thigh. A spatter of acid went through his fingers and burned his cheek below the eye.

The inspector is being treated in hospital.

One Man Arrested.

One man is being held for questioning.

On the outside of the garage investigators found a crudely pencilled note. The note, police said, had on it a roughly-drawn picture of a man's head, with the caption "Blindness" beneath. It was signed "Hannah—Hannah's Pals."

Inspector Vance's evidence was largely responsible for the committal for trial of George Hannay on a charge of burglarizing the safe of the Pearson Sales Company in Nanaimo, on May 4 last.

Dust taken from a pigeon hole in the safe, shavings from augur holes in the flooring of the company's office, and a scrap of paper were linked by the inspector in his evidence with similar materials allegedly found on the accused.

Police would offer no theory as to the identity of the perpetrators of the latest or previous attempts upon Vance.

Criminals Arch-Enemy.

Arch-enemy of British Columbia criminals and instrumental in putting scores of them behind prison bars, Inspector Vance has brought the power of science to aid police in solving what otherwise might have been "perfect crimes."

Particles of dust, bits of glass, paper, sand and a multitude of other clues which, to the layman, are of no significance, are fitted together in jigsaw puzzle fashion by the inspector to make a trail leading time and again to the arrest and conviction of the perpetrator of a crime.

More than one criminal, believing himself secure with an iron-clad alibi, has broken down to plead guilty and throw himself on the mercy of the court when he learned Inspector Vance had worked on the case.

The inspector came to Vancouver as city chemist 27 years ago, fresh from the gold fields of interior British Columbia where he had been employed as a mining engineer.

He turned more and more to criminal investigation until three years ago the police Bureau of Science was created with him in charge of it.

One Case

Here is one example of his work:

Two criminals once were caught in the act of burglarizing a Chinese vegetable store. One was shot and killed by the awakened proprietor. The other fled before anyone could get a description of him in the dark. The dead man was about six feet tall.

Inspector Vance went to the scene and found where the burglars had gained entry to the store through a window. When they opened the window the slain bandit had stood on the grass while his companion was forced to stand on a stone ledge below the window. The shorter one had also scraped his knee against the side of the store below the window.

From the footprints on the ledge and the place where the knee had scraped, Inspector Vance figured out the burglar's height. With that he combined the size of the footprints with the manner in which they had been made, to get the man's weight.

Armed with this description police searched for such a man who had been a companion of the slain burglar. Within a week the man was arrested and confessed to his participation in the burglary.

The Inspector also takes a turn at inventing. He is now perfecting a mechanical nose which will enable police to follow the trail of a criminal by means of scent.

INJURED IN CRASH

HUNTSVILLE, Oct. 9 (CP)—Wm. Flood, son of Percy Flood of Huntsville, lies in the Orillia Hospital in a precarious condition, the result of a motor accident on the East Road three miles from Huntsville yesterday forenoon.

He was trucking gravel on the Huntsville-Dwight Highway when his truck overturned in the ditch. Flood was pinned beneath the truck and was seriously injured internally. His chest was crushed and his lungs penetrated.

W. J. Moorhead, recently appointed manager of the local branch of the Agnew-Surpass Shoe Stores, Limited, has moved into the W. L. Ferguson house on Morrow Street. Mr. Moorhead was transferred to Peterborough from Sault Ste. Marie, where he was manager for twelve years, and comes to this city with the recommendation of a fine business record in the northern city.

SHOOTING WINNERS.

Three winners of turkeys were declared as the result of a fowl shoot at the newly-opened George Street Shooting Gallery over Moncur's Drug Store Saturday. First, second and third winners respectively were John Blodgett, Melville Harris and J. Martin.

Some fine prizes are at stake for shooting to be carried out each day this week. The gallery is under the proprietorship of Sharpe and Finney.

PEACEFUL WEEK-END

One alarm was the exception during a peaceful week-end the city's fire fighters spent during the past three days. Shortly before 10 o'clock Sunday morning a chimney blaze at 266 Burnham street required attention.

No Damage resulted from the fire. Chief Gimblett to-day voiced a reminder to citizens that permission must be secured from himself or the officer who happens to be in charge of the Department before starting rubbish fires. Serious fire dangers are likely to result unless the by-law authorities given the Fire Chief in the matter of such fires are exerted, he warned.

He again urged the cleaning of flues and stove pipes. This is the proper time of the year to comply with the by-law which requires an annual cleaning, he said.

CRIMINAL NEGLIGENCE

Mendel Smith, C.N.R. section foreman at Lakefield was today charged in Magistrate's Court here with two offences arising out of a motor accident on Buckhorn road on September 1, in which two Indian girls from Curve Lake Reserve and other Indians were injured.

The charges were one of criminal negligence and of having liquor in a place other than a residence. The accused through his counsel, T. J. Carley, declined to plead or elect, and asked for a week's adjournment which was granted by the bench.

STRUCK BY MOTORCYCLE

Miss Olive Cowle, Dickson street, sustained slight injury on Saturday evening when she was struck down by a motorcycle as she was in the act of crossing from the north side to the south side of McDonnel street to go across Confederation Park. Her injuries were attended by Dr. Knott.

The motorcycle, driven by Samuel Carew, 275 McDonnel street, was riding pillion on the machine. In making an unsuccessful effort to avoid the pedestrian the motorcyclists were thrown from the machine but escaped with minor injuries.

Magistrate's Court

Pleading guilty to a charge of intoxication, William McMurray, of Douro Township, was this morning fined $10 and $2 costs. On a similar count Robert Downing, Toronto, who stated it was his "first and last time" was released on suspended sentence.

Reginald Corkindale, who told the bench his home was at Melfort, Saskatchewan, appeared on remand on a charge of vagrancy. He pleaded guilty. Asked by the Magistrate if he would return to his home if given the chance, the defendant promised that he would. He was given his freedom, and conveyed to the westerly limits of the city in the police car, with orders to keep going.

Catherine Lemieux, who said she came here from Montreal with the previous defendant, was also before the bench on a remand charge of vagrancy. She pleaded guilty and was remanded for two days when she said she had no money to return to Montreal.

Bryan Freeman, 20-year-old English immigrant, was placed on probation for one year on his own recognisances, after pleading guilty to theft of a wristlet watch. He came to Canada six years ago, it was stated and had since worked on farms in and around Peterborough district. His former reputation was stated to be good.

FRANCE'S COL. DREYFUS SPENDS 75TH BIRTHDAY IN HOSPITAL

Still Haunted by Memories of His Imprisonment in Devil's Island.

GREAT GIVER TO CHARITY.

PARIS, Oct. 9 (A.P.).—Colonel Alfred Dreyfus, still haunted by dreams of captivity in Devil's Island, spent his 75th birthday today in a private hospital, where he has been a patient for several weeks.

Forty years ago the burning controversy over the "Dreyfus case" gripped the world, but it was doubtful to-day that even in the intimate circle of his family a single word would be spoken to revive his memories.

Friends say nightmares of his imprisonment still wake him from his sleep, although it has been 35 years since he was pardoned from an unjust sentence for treason. Dreyfus probably was the worst-treated prisoner on the island, since instructions were issued by the Minister of Justice that he be subjected to especially severe discipline.

His condition now is described as "satisfactory as possible."

Time gave Dreyfus a verdict of innocence, but memories of the day when families separated, bombs were thrown, duels fought, all in the heat of passions roused by the question of his innocence, remain ineradicable in his mind.

Sentenced For Treason.

(Dreyfus was convicted of giving military information to Germany, in 1894, and was sentenced to life imprisonment after long agitation, in which Emile Tola and Georges Clemenceau supported his cause, his name was cleared. Another officer confessed guilty).

Dreyfus has withdrawn completely from society. He served with distinction in the Great War and a son was killed in action. Later he was retired and decorated by the French government.

His wife, whose devotion has become legendary, is his faithful comrade. For his grandchildren he has a smile seldom seen by anyone else.

A light is thrown on his character by his regular contributions to charity. His dispensations to children of the poor are generous. Friends say he is a tireless stamp collector, not for himself, but for his favorite grandchild.

Colonel Dreyfus has never been known to comment for the public on his own fate. Three years ago he became afflicted with gland trouble and he suffered another severe attack. He is now almost blind.

Obituary

LEONARD BRISBIN.

ROSENEATH, Oct. 9 (Examiner Correspondence).—Death yesterday claimed Leonard Brisbin in his 76th year after a lingering illness. Mr. Brisbin was well-known here, where he had resided most of his life. Besides his widow, he is survived by two daughters, Mrs. Alex. Brown, of Roseneath, and Mrs. S. Redshaw, of Oakville. The funeral will be held Wednesday afternoon at 2.30 in the United Church, with Rev. L. W. Scott officiating. Interment will be made in Macklin's Cemetery, Bethany.

ROBERT I. BEAVIS.

Following an illness of three months, the death of Robert I. Beavis, 639 Rogers street, occurred at his home Saturday evening. He was 76 years of age.

Mr. Beavis had resided forty years in Peterborough. Son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Archibald Beavis, he was born in Douro and spent the early part of his life there before moving to Peterborough. He was a long-standing member of Nassau Loyal Orange Lodge and attended Mark Street United Church.

The wife of the deceased passed on in 1926. surviving are five sons, Bruce of Belleville, Walter, Kenneth and James of Peterborough and Arthur of Philadelphia, and one daughter, Mrs. Edward Payne of this city. Two brothers, David of Peterborough, and Archibald of Dunsford, and two sisters, Mrs. E. H. Marr of Toronto, and Mrs. Annie Gordon of Edmonton, survive.

The funeral proceeded from the home to Little Lake cemetery this afternoon at 2 p.m., Rev. C. D. Daniel, pastor of the deceased's church, officiating.

OUSTED BY FLAMES

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 9 (CP) — Thirteen people dressed in a hurry early this morning and escaped to the street while flames destroyed the rear of an English street home.

The fire broke out in the kitchen of the residence of C. L. Dussling and on one or two occasions ignited the home of Daniel C. Messeroll, next door.

DEATH

BEAVIS.—At his residence, 639 Rogers street, on Saturday, October 6, 1934, after an illness of three months, Robert I. Beavis, at the age of 76 years.

Funeral will be held from his late residence on Tuesday, October 9, 1934. Interment in Little Lake cemetery.

RANGERS ATTACK CITY ON HOLIDAY

Peterborough Rangers Carry Out Annual Tactical Scheme.

DEFENDERS MYTHICAL.

While Peterborough's citizens yawned over their holiday reading and sniffed hungrily the odour of roasting turkey yesterday noon, the city was attacked by the enemy. The attack was not carried to completion, but the manoeuvres of the attack were declared to have been eminently successful and the city would have fallen if they had been carried to their conclusion.

As a matter of fact, the enemy was a friendly enemy—the Peterborough Rangers Regiment. The occasion was the Rangers' annual execution of a tactical scheme. The place was the region of the Ranges on the Norwood Road. The zero hour for the attack was 11.15 a.m.

The Regiment, under the command of Col. G. G. Winterbottom, D.C., D.C.M., was reorganized into a composite company for the execution of the attack. Captain R. J. Bolton commanded the company, with Captain D. Crawford acting as second-in-command. The four platoons were commanded respectively by Second-Lieut. A. M. Hamilton, Second-Lieut. G. Armstrong, Second-Lieut. H. Willis, and Second-Lieut. Robert S. Allin.

Under the observing eyes of Major A. L. Salmon, M.C., General Staff Officer for Military District No. 3, the order for the attack was given at 10 a.m. and at 11.15, the zero hour, the troops went into motion. The forces defending the city were entirely mythical, but the attacking Rangers manoeuvred with all possible moves of retaliation and repulsion of a defending force envisioned. The men were "in battle order," with arms, knapsacks, and all standard equipment carried on attacks in actual war.

The attacks were concluded at 2 p.m. after three hours' progress. Major Salmon then proceeded with his criticism of the Rangers' execution.

BAND 42 STRONG VISITED CITY

Dovercourt Band From Toronto Made Big Hit With Music Lovers.

GAVE SEVERAL CONCERTS.

Peterborough was treated to a visit of the renowned Dovercourt Band of the Salvation Army Dovercourt Corps in Toronto over the holiday week-end. A number of programs by the band, both unassisted and massed with the local band, were presented in the open air and at the Temple during the three-day stay.

Numbering forty-two members under Bandmaster William Merritt, the band was welcomed to the city at a supper in the Salvation Army Temple Saturday evening by Alderman Max Sloan on behalf of Mayor Denne, Adjutant Neil Warrander of the local corp, and the leader of the local band, Bandmaster Gerald Routley. Songster Leader Ben Smith paid tribute to the visiting organization's fine reputation. It was the Dovercourt Band's first visit to this city since 1929, having played here previously in 1914.

The Band was introduced to the general public during the evening when a short open air concert was presented on Confederation Square. The visitors were massed with the ranks of the local band on the occasion, making a unit eighty strong. A musical festival in the Temple followed. Deputy Bandmaster E. Irwin of this city and the local saxophone section assisted. Mr. Irwin's contribution was a well-received trombone solo.

A number of open air appearances in several different sections of the city were made during Sunday. On each appearance the group proved an unfailing attraction to the music-loving public. Two more open-air concerts by the band massed with the local musicians were offered during the afternoon and evening and, as well, the visitors contributed to special services in the morning and evening at the Temple. At the evening massed presentation in the open, more than 150 musicians and regular Army workers were present.

Visits to the House of Providence, St. Joseph's and Nicholls Hospitals and the Anson House were features of the Thanksgiving Day activities of the band in addition to its part in the Temple Thanksgiving Day program. During the afternoon, the Toronto men joined local Army workers in a program of sports at Nicholls Oval.

Several of the numbers presented by the Dovercourt Band during their visit were composed by their bandmaster's brothers, Brigadier James Merritt and Bandmaster Percy Merritt of Winnipeg. Among Army notables present in the city in connection with the band's visit were Col. A. J. Sims, Army head of the men's social work for Canada; Major and Mrs. Wallace Bunton, director of Army police court work in Toronto; Major and Mrs. A. J. Smith, in charge of the Toronto Hostel; Major F. W Beer, trade secretary, and Major Hurd of the subscription department.

SPITE CHARGE COUNSEL INFERS

Norwood Man is Charged With Driving Car While Intoxicated.

SENTENCE WITHHELD.

"Your Worship should reprimand this sort of thing. An accused person should not be whipped and scourged and frightened into pleading guilty to charges," stated E. P. Sheehy, addressing Magistrate W. A. F. Campbell in court here to-day.

Mr. Sheehy, who was appearing as counsel for Alex. Davis, Norwood, who stands charged with being drunk in charge of a car, and of consuming liquor in a place other than a residence, asserted that the former charge against his client had been laid almost two weeks after the commission of the alleged offence.

Counsel demanded to know why, and inferred that the police had laid the charge against his client after getting "peeved" because the accused had failed to plead guilty to another charge when the case was previously before the court.

"I was told this charge would be laid if I pleaded not guilty," Mr. Sheehy asserted.

He also levelled criticism against "police officers who go into the witness box and state the accused said this and the accused said that." Any statements made by an accused person, Mr. Sheehy maintained, should be taken in the form of written depositions. Evidence of police officers not in writing should not be accepted by court, he argued.

"Why not?" Magistrate Campbell demanded. "Do you not think that a police officer is as honest as any other person?"

While evidence in the two charges against the accused had been completed, His Worship withheld any decision of the cases for one week on application of counsel for the defence.

Weddings

Rutherford—Hollingsworth

The marriage took place at St. Peter's Cathedral this morning, of Helen Lillian Hollingsworth, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Edward Hollingsworth, to Mr. George Frederick Rutherford, son of Mrs. Rutherford and the late Christopher J. Rutherford.

The Rev. V. G. McFadden of Downeyville, cousin of the bridegroom, solemnized the nuptial ceremony and Mass.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a gown of vermilion velvet with turban and shoes to match, and carried a bouquet of Joanna Hill roses and lily of the valley.

Miss Thelma Hollingsworth was her sister's attendant, wearing brown fat crepe trimmed with pink and brown hat and shoes with a bouquet of Talisman roses.

Mr. Joseph Sharpe was best man.

The wedding music was played by Miss Veronica Scollard, A.T.C.M.

After the ceremony, a wedding breakfast, attended by immediate relatives, was held at Walkerfield House. Later, Mr. and Mrs. Rutherford left on a motor honeymoon trip, the bride travelling in a metallic dress of black and gold, with black accessories.

Mr. and Mrs. Rutherford will live in Peterborough.

Safe, $700 Is Stolen In Kingston Store

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 9.—(C.P.)—One of the most daring robberies ever committed here was reported to police this morning when Buehler Bros.' meat market reported that the safe in their store had been stolen.

The safe contained money believed to amount to about $700.

The robbery took place either Sunday or Monday night, the store being closed all day yesterday. The robbers who entered a lane on Brock street, made their way to the back of the store, which is in the very heart of the business section on Princess street, then broke through a door and entered the front part of the store. They removed the safe and placed a "dummy" in its place.

Robbers had to carry the safe a distance of at least 100 yards, but they left no trace or clue. Police are investigating.

If the Tigers had lost, Hank Greenberg's face would have been red. The big Detroit first baseman had chance after chance to become the day's hero only to miss, striking out twice with the tying run on base. He played a sparkling defensive game to make up for it.

Thousands Seek New Home As Industry Fails

The failure of the world's deepest copper mines to come back threatens to write a new version of "Acadia" into the history of North America. The great copper country of Michigan, which in the heyday of its production led the United States, faces at last a momentous decisions and thousands of families in its stricken ranges may be forced by a wholesale migration into new centres of productivity as the state's only hope for permanent solution of its staggering $150,000,000 emergency welfare problem. Only two major companies operate today. At least a half dozen well-known mines, which shut down four years ago due to overproduction and underconsumption, show no promise of reopening. One of the biggest, the Mohawk, will never come back, geologists say. Twelve thousand men were employed in two counties during the good years. Only 2,000 are employed today. Copper sold for 18 cents per pound in 1929. Today current quotations hover around nine cents. They have hit five cents.

FRENCH EX-PREMIER BARTHOU DIES SEVERAL MINUTES LATER

Suicide Thwarted

The other assassin thrust his pistol into his own mouth in an attempt to commit suicide, but police shot him down dead before he could pull the trigger.

Despite the mad confusion of the crowd, screaming beneath the veritable canopy of flags which decorated the street, the royal automobile continued on its way to the Prefecture to where King Alexander had started.

The monarch was carried into the study of the Prefect and laid upon a couch. Physicians and surgeons ran to his side. They did all they could to staunch the flow of blood but their efforts were vain.

Never Come Conscious

The King of Yugo-Slavia died without regaining consciousness. Barthou and General Georges were taken to the hospital Hotel Dieu where Barthou later succumbed. The general condition was serious.

The chauffeur of the royal automobile piloted the car onto the Prefecture bravely, despite the fact that his hands had been cut by the wild sabre strokes with which a colonel had beat down the assasin closest to the automobile. The chauffeur gave a vivid description of the tragedy.

The inhabitants of Marseilles who had turned out en masse for the royal visit were thrown into consternation. The assassination was the second of a notable in France within two years, and they excitedly recalled the assassination of President Paul Doumer in 1932 at Paris.

Flags Half-masted.

Thousands of flags which a few minutes before had fluttered gaily from windows and flagpoles under the grey skies of a cloudy day were immediately half-masted.

Queen Marie, daughter of the late King Ferdinand and Dowager-Queen Marie of Roumania, young consort of the King, was not present when her husband died. She had entrained from Basle, Switzerland, for Paris at almost the exact time of the assassination, having travelled from Yugoslavia by train simply because she disliked the trip across the Mediterranean by cruiser.

Officials Weep.

The King died in the Marseilles Prefect's Office; Barthou in hospital while surgeons were vainly trying to give him a blood transfusion. French officials in the Prefect's Office wept when the King was pronounced dead. Madame Jouha Mamaud, wife of a city official, closed the monarch's eyes.

A check-up disclosed that five persons in the crowd, including two women, and two policemen, were wounded by the fusillade of bullets.

Barthou Veteran Statesman.

Barthou, one of France's older statesmen, Prime Minister in 1913, was shot in the left forearm and in one leg. He died as surgeons tried to give him a blood transfusin.

He was 72 years of age and those who saw him died believed his death hastened by the nervous shock of the assassination of the King as much as by his own wounds. The King's death may have wrecked the political-alliance dreams of Barthou.

Barthou's death came within two hours of the assassination and was chiefly caused by loss of blood, surgeons being unable to make a transfusion in time to save him.

King George Shocked

LONDON, Oct. 9.—(C. P. Cable)—The King, at Sandringham, was immediately informed this afternoon of the assassinations of King Alexander of Yugoslavia and Foreign Minister Louis Barthou of France, and he at once sent messages of sympathy to the countries concerned.

The news profoundly shocked diplomatic quarters in London. Here, Alexander was always regarded as the protagonist of a policy of peace and friendship in the Balkans, and it was largely due to his untiring efforts that Balkan relations today are better than they have been for many years.

It was said in authoritative quarters here that it is too early yet to estimate the effect of the assassinations on either the internal situation in Yugoslavia, the ministry in Paris, or in the international sphere.

Confusion at Home

BELGARDE, Yugo-Slavia, Oct. 9. (AP).—Confusion gripped government offices to-day when news of King Alexander's assassination reached here.

Officials wept openly as telephones rang frantically throughout the government buildings calling department leaders into conference.

Some fear was expressed immediately that the King's death might be the signal for an uprising instigated by groups, especially Croatians, which have always opposed his authoritarian rule.

Most observers seemed agreed, however, that the army, excellently organized, would be able to maintain order until a regency was arranged to exercise executive powers until Peter reaches his majority.

HEARD SIR WALTER SING HIS BALLADS

Death of Rev. R. C. Jonstone Recalls Story of Woman Who Knew Poet.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 9.—(CP).—The recent death of Rev. R. C. Johnstone is written of in the Free Press, connecting his varied life with an old lady who in her childhood had sat on the knees of Sir Walter Scott and heard him singing ballads. This was a Mrs. Buchanan, daughter of a banker who was one of Scott's intimate friends.

With very great reluctance this old lady, years and years afterwards, consented to the plea of her friends to attend a lecture being given by a young clergyman — Dr. Johnstone — in some little town where she was then living. He must have acquitted himself well, for after the lecture the friends of the old lady, at her instigation, invited him to join them at supper.

The old lady took Dr. Johnstone aside and told him: "I liked your treatment of the Ballads, and am pleased and surprised, for I once had Sir Walter himself sing them to me and I cannot bear to risk hearing the usual singing of them on public platforms. But tell me," she asked earnestly, "why did you not give the best of all, the Ballad of all Ballads?"

Dr. Johnstone replied he would sing it if she could play the old, correct tune to it. The old lady, immensely pleased, led Dr. Johnstone to the piano and played the accompaniment for him. He sang [illegible] style to the tearful gratification of the old lady who, as a child, sat on Scott's knee and listened to him softly lilt Borderland Ballads.

Bridge

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Oct. 9 (CP)—Richard Dix observed 16 Indians in heated argument as their movie company was preparing to go on location at a nearby ranch.

Dix said he thought little about it, assuming since the Redskins represented a number of tribes that had something to do with it. When everybody was ready to leave they still were arguing, and Dix went to see what the trouble was.

They were debating on how a hand of bridge should be played.

NO RADIO OR BEER FOR INSULL JURORS

Fourteen on U.S. Panel Face Months of Isolation—Can't Even Phone Wives.

CHICAGO, Oct. 6.—No newspapers. No radio. No communication with friends or relatives except by letters censored by the court. No beer or other intoxicants. Such is the fate of the twelve regular jurors and two alternates who yesterday were selected for the great Insull trial.

Until they are dismissed or return a verdict—probably late in December or early in January, these fourteen men will be isolated, kept together under the constant guard of Deputy United States Marshal Frank Otto and Larry Prucha.

In connecting rooms, 312 to 316, with all the doors open that they may not be at any time separated, the jurors spent their first night last night in the Great Northern Hotel. Earlier they dined—together—and in solemn procession, two by two, exercised. That will be their routine for the next three months with only card games and an occasional motion picture as diversion.

Hong Kong, China, plans to censor all motion pictures.

Bennett Will Sail For Canada Friday

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 9. (C.P. Cable). — Prime Minister R. B. Bennett will sail back to Canada on the Duchess of Richmond, leaving on Friday, it was announced to-day.

The Prime Minister has been in France and Geneva since he left Canada nearly two months ago, during which time he attended the assembly of the League of Nations and concluded an important supplementary agreement to the Franco-Canadian trade treaty.

William L. Mackenzie King, Liberal leader, and Hon. Ernest Lapointe, one of his chief supporters, are still in London but the latter will go to France in a day or so, thence returning home. Mr. King will stay in London somewhat longer.

Occupants Uninjured Car Upsets In Ditch

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 9.— (Examiner Correspondence.)—On the Brighton highway, about one-half mile north of Wooler crossroad, Mr. and Mrs. Earl C. Gregg, with daughters Dorothy and Ruth, had a narrow escape from serious injury about 9.15 on Monday night. The family were returning home after having spent the week-end with friends in Arthur. Mrs. Gregg, who was at the wheel, was blinded by the headlights of an approaching car, turned out and striking some loose gravel, the car turned completely over in the ditch. Fortunately no glass was broken and passing motorists pulled the occupants from the wreckage. Ellis Darling conveyed them to their home in Campbellford.

The car was badly damaged, but the occupants, who received a bad shaking up, otherwise escaped without injury. Mr. Gregg, who is school principal, was on duty this morning as usual.

Al Schacht and Joe E. Brown participated in a prize fight within a roped arena near the plate as the fans roared. Joe won by a "knock-out" in the second round. Al was counted out by George Raft, who caught a few of the synthetic punches himself.

FOUND SISTERS AFTER 15 YEARS

QUESTIONED THOUSANDS.

SUDBURY, Ont., Oct. 9 (CP)—After vainly searching for 15 years for his brother and two sisters, George Yurkevitch, of Sault Ste. Marie, has found them in Sudbury. He had formed the habit of asking everyone he met if they knew a boy and two girls named Yurkevitch, whose first names he did not know, and this question put Saturday to a man on the Sudbury station platform as he awaited the train to the Sault met with results.

The man recalled that his daughter had gone to school with children of that name, Yurkevitch found one sister working as waitress in a restaurant and the other sister and brother, still at school. His stepmother had remarried while he was away from home 15 years ago and left without leaving any forwarding address or without telling him her new name, and took her three small stepchildren with her.

He had visited almost every city in Ontario in his quest.

Three Missionaries In Outlaws' Hands

PEIPING, China, Oct. 9 (AP) — A despatch to the British Legation from Chungking said to-day three foreign missionaries, including Miss Grace Emblen, a British subject, had been captured by outlaws.

They were taken prisoners at Lohuanping, 80 miles east of Kweiyank, Kweichow Province (Southern China), the despatch stated.

Advices from Shanghai said Miss Emblen is attached to the China Inland Mission. The other captives are an Englishman and a Swiss.

SMART HOME WEAR

There's no reason in the world why you shouldn't look pretty in your house frock for busy morning hours.

Home clothes are so adorable these days. Take this model for instance. Can't you imagine its prettiness carried out in flattering beige and brown tones in shirting cotton broadcloth of soft shiny finish? The V-neck and sleeves are edged with bias brown binds. They may be bought already folded to stitch to the dress.

Stripe seersucker, plaided gingham, challis print, etc., are other inexpensive ideas for its development.

You could easily run it up on the sewing machine in about an hour. Being a one-piece affair and having flat trims it's very simply laundered.

Style No. 3263 is designed for sizes 16, 18 years, 36, 38, 40, 42 and 44 inches bust. Size 36 requires 3¼ yards of 39-inch material with ⅝ yard of 35-inch contrasting.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Complaints are of two kinds, namely the futile and the useful. The great majority of them belong to the first group. These expressions of dissatisfaction are made merely for the purpose of letting others know of one's sufferings. The person who does the grumbling gets no benefit. The person listening to them may have one of several re-actions. She may be annoyed to have her peace of mind disturbed when she can do nothing to help the one complaining. She may have her sympathies so drawn on that her strength is taxed, and to no avail. She may be bothered temporarily only, but with the determination to have little to do with the person who is a retailer of miseries. Since there is nothing much more bothersome than to listen to futile laments, the complaining person is never a favorite.

* * * * * *

The second kind of complaining is of a different calibre altogether. It is not done for the sake of expressing dissatisfaction merely, but with the intention of having matters improved in the future. The complaining is done to some specific person, or company of people who have the power to set things right. In the first place anyone who makes this kind of complaint seeks to find the person who is sufficiently in authority to rectify the wrong, or to straighten out the disturbing difficulty.

* * * * * *

It is this point which is especially valuable—the knowledge of the right person to whom to make a complaint to. But of even more value is it, to make the complaint to the proper one or ones. Nothing good can come of talking of things which need to be set right unless you speak to the person or persons who can do it.

* * * * * *

Strange as it may seem most complaints never get to the ears of the right authorities. For example, boarders are very apt to express dissatisfaction among themselves of the food, and the service. None of them can make it better. The one in charge is the only one who can do it. Either a change should be made in the board place, complaints be ceased, or be entered correctly.

* * * * * *

Persons who hesitate to bring up a matter to the right person, should also hesitate to talk about it to others, unless they hope for co-operation and that by concerted action they can show a united determination to change a wrong situation.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

Written for General Press

MASTER PLAY

During my acquaintance with bridge there never has been a better player than Sidney S. Lenz. I should know. During the past 23 years I have played in scores of duplicate games as his partner, and hundreds of times in rubber games. Much that I know of bridge strategy I owe to his advice and example. Here is a sample of his skill and keen card reading. In a two-table match he won 7 tricks more at no trumps than the other player sitting South, at the same call.

	♠ 7 3 2 ♥ 10 8 ♦ K J 9 ♣ A J 9 7 3
♠ Q 10 8 4 ♥ A 6 5 3 ♦ Q ♣ 8 6 4 2	W E N S	♠ K 6 5 ♥ Q J 7 4 2 ♦ 6 4 3 2 ♣ K
	♠ A J 9 ♥ K 9 ♦ A 10 8 7 5 ♣ Q 10 5

The opening lead was the 4 of spades, at both tables. The K fell to South's ace. Mr. Lenz's rival attempted to establish clubs, losing on the finesse to the lone K in East's hand. There came back the Q of hearts, giving opponents 5 tricks in that suit, in addition to 1 club and 3 spade tricks. Instead of losing 9 tricks, Lenz, by better strategy and fine card reading, won 11 tricks—7 tricks more than South at the other table.

Lenz knew that West held just 4 spades originally, and no longer suit, or he would have led it. One adversary must hold at least 5 of the 9 missing hearts. That must be East, but he would have bid so long a suit, if headed by the ace, with the K of spades on the side, just to insure its lead against no trumps. Probably West held the ace of hearts. Letting West in could do no harm, but it was dangerous to risk letting East in.

Lenz led a low diamond, intending to play high from the short end of the suit, then lead back the J through East's hand. When the lone Q fell he knew that West originally held 4 cards of each suit except diamonds, while East held 3 spades, 5 hearts, 4 low diamonds and a lone club. The odds were 4 to 1 that West held the missing K of clubs, but Lenz took no avoidable chances.

There was no hurry about running off the 4 good diamonds. The first thing to do was to give a club trick to West, if he held the K of that suit. It could do no harm to let West in. All he could win would be a good spade, the ace of hearts and a club. Lenz could still make 4-odd. Dummy's ace of clubs was led. East's lone K fell, so that Lenz won 1 spade trick, 5 diamond tricks and 5 club tricks. The hand only offers a fair sample of Lenz's care and skill.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

Much of the confusion that exists among those not trained in medical science regarding various diseases, would be dispelled if they had an elementary understanding of the science of disease which is called pathology. With this knowledge it would be understood that disease is not an unnatural state, but a perfectly natural one. Disease processes follow natural laws in a perfectly orderly fashion. They are, indeed, in most cases, protective—the defensive reaction of the body to injury. In the sense that they remove super-annuated individuals from the scene, they are protective to the race.

Nothing better illustrates the defensive nature of disease than the process called inflammation. Inflammation is a set of activities that bodily cells perform as a result of injury. The injury may be one of many kinds—due to heat, burns; due to chemical destruction, as from caustic acids; due to force, as the fracture of a bone; or a cut. But commonest of all, perhaps, is infection, the entrance into the body of germs or bacteria.

Whatever the cause, there results a destruction of tissue, and the healthy cells and tissues around proceed to repair the damage. First there occurs a dilation of blood vessels in the vicinity—evident to the naked eye as an area of redness that is noticeable around all cuts or burns. From these dilated vessels there exudes into the wound a large number of white blood cells which engulf and destroy any bacteria present. The same cells, or similar cells, remove the debris of the destroyed tissues. From the surrounding tissues there come wandering tissue cells which in the course of time form a layer over the surface of the injured area.

Above this frequently clotted blood and matted masses of destroyed cells form the scab, under which the healthy granulations form with the scab as a protection.

Finally, when the granulations prepare the way, connective tissue cells creep out through and over the granulations and heal the gap. If it is a skin wound, the skin cells from each side of the gap grow over the granulating surface and cover the wound with new healthy skin.

Nature has performed this miracle, and without her help no surgeon could be successful.

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

ABE ORPEN'S Long Branch track enjoyed a wonderful week-end. Saturday morning it was raining and it looked like a wash out but around noon the sun came out and about nine thousand of the faithful were on hand when starter Tom Clarke sent the first race on its way, with fans still pouring in by the hundreds. While Monday the crowd was even larger. The racing on both days was keenly contested and marked by several spirited finishes. We hope you took our advice of last week and followed Connie Smythe's nags. His latest being Polygeny at $75.15 for the deuce. This coming after Lady Marlboro clicking twice once at Woodbine at over eighty smackers and once at Long Branch at thirty simoleons, and Conny is not nearly through yet. This young Atkins who looks after the riding for Conny is a real one and while only a lightweight kid, handles himself like a veteran.

Seemego is not far from a winning effort and the same goes for old Single Star who has taken on a new lease of life. Have you noticed how consistent Princeton has become this year at Detroit? This one always campaigned over our tracks until this year when he has been in Detroit practically all summer. He has sure earned his keep and then some. The Smallman Stable pulled out on Sunday morning for Pawtucket, R.I. to be on hand for the opening of Narragansett Park. Jockey R. Watson went along with them to do the riding at that point. J. S. Mulvihill has acquired the veteran Canadian bred Pat Gaiety for the sum of five hundred dollars. He will try to win back the purchase price the first time out. Down at Laurel, we have one called Bally Bay who is all primed for a win. This one possesses a lot of class and no mistakes will be made. Any distance will suit. Fluffy Lee at the same place looks like a sure fire winner in the near future.

LONG BRANCH closes tomorrow after a very successful meeting and with a two day layoff Dufferin Park will swing into action on Saturday for a seven day session that will close the Canadian season. Right here now we want to tell you that Len Sweep, the queen of the half milers is at Little Saratoga and in rare condition. It will not surprise us at all if she wins right on opening day and repeats once or twice during the meeting. Most of the horses now at Long Branch will remain over for the above mentioned meeting. Watch Jockey Dougherty do his stuff around the short turns. He is better than a green hand at Dufferin and next to Dude Foden has won as many races at that place as any of them. The Campbell-Foden combination will also get their share without any trouble.

Second Lacrosse Victory For Orillia Terriers

CANINES TAKE 19-6 VICTORY FROM VISITORS

WILSON SCORES NINE.

BARRIE, Ont., 9.—(CP)—Grumpy Spring and his band of New Westminster Salmonbellies scratched their heads today and thought of ways and means of spiking the rampage of Orillia Terriers toward the Mann Cup, emblematic of Canadian lacrosse supremacy.

Subdued during the early part of last night's fracas, Bill Wilson, fleet home player, suddenly reached his peak in the second half and personally led the Terriers to their second successive triumph in the series by a 19-6 count. The dashing 23-year-old Terrier threw off the muzzle of the Salmonbellies snared about him and sprinting, feinting and swerving barged through the Western defence to plant eight counters behind Henry Baker and assist in six others.

Terriers Confident

Meanwhile, today, the Terriers were puffed with confidence, ready to finish the series tomorrow night and write finish to a gallant display of teamwork and polish that brought them the Eastern title. However, should Salmonbellies rally their forces and win the next encounter, the fourth will be played in Toronto and a fifth, if necessary, in Orillia.

Battling doggedly during the first half, the tiring Salmonbellies suddenly went to pieces and the Orillia team marched over them to notch goals 14 times in the second half while the Salmonbellies only replied four.

Makes Courageous Bid

Little Alfy Davey, midget of the invaders, made a courageous bid to rally the fading Westerners, making daring and speedy attacks that were rewarded with two counters. But the killing pace had taken its toll and Salmonbellies were unable to cope with the well-planned attacks. Captain Johnny Vernon also smashed against the Easterners bulwarks, but only twice was he able to outwit the defence and count. Ray Baker and St. Josephs whipped in one apiece to round out the western titlists' scoring.

Ernie Curran found his aim good enough for a quartette and his brother came through twice while Ed. Downey added three with single going to Gordin Boettger and Bill Wilkes.

Martin Tries To Score But Run Doesn't Count

Pepper Martin, the slugging third baseman of the St. Louis Cardinals, is shown crossing home plate, but the run did not count. Here's why: He started the Cards off with a single to centre, but didn't get as far as second until two were out, and made that on a wild pitch. The inning ended when Medwick flied. The St. Louis Cardinals losing the fifth game of the World Series played in St. Louis gives the Detroit Tigers a one-game lead.

NINTH INNING COMEBACK WINS FOR COLUMBUS

Four-run Lead Not Sufficient For Brennan and Birds Beat Leafs 9-8.

HOMESTERS NEED ONE WIN.

COLUMBUS, October 9. — Columbus Red Birds scored five runs in the ninth inning here last night to come from behind and defeat the Toronto Maple Leafs, 9 to 8, in the seventh game of the Junior World Series.

The Birds are now within one game of the championship, and the Leafs need two more victories to win it.

It was the second time during the series that the Birds have come from behind in the ninth to turn apparently certain defeat into victory.

Sheriff Fred Blake was the other victim in the second game of the series in Toronto, the Birds scoring six runs off his delivery, to win a 7-4 victory.

Huesser Batted Out.

Last night Don Brennan who pitched the Leafs into the play-offs and then into the Junior Series, was the victim.

It was a see-saw game, Ed. Euesser blanked the Leafs for the first five innings, while the Birds piled up a three-run-lead. Then the Leafs drove Ed to the showers in the sixth, scoring six runs, and added two more in the seventh off Ed Greer. Ward Cross then came to the rescue and blanked 'em the rest of the way.

Leafs started the ninth on the long end of an 8-4 score, and Columbus fans had given up hope. But a triple by Angley, walk to Myers and triple by Riggs drove Brennan from the mound. Hilcher replaced him, and a single by Terry Moore, triple by Gene Moore, and long fly by Bill Sweeney produced the needed runs for the Columbus victory.

WORLD SERIES ODDS.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 9 (A.P.)—After the Cardinals' 4-3 victory over Detroit in the sixth game of the World Series yesterday, Tom Kearney, St. Louis betting commissioner, offered 2 to 3 odds that the Redbirds would win the final game and the series in Detroit to-day. Kearney offered even money the Tigers would win the series with a victory in the seventh game.

Millbrook-Innmen Tied On The Series

MILLBROOK, Oct. 9 (Examiner Correspondence). — Millbrook took the count, in a 7-4 score, from Dinty's Inn (Peterborough), in the fourth game of the play-off in the Inter-County Box Lacrosse League, at the Cosmos Rink on Friday night, leaving the standing, 2-2; the next and final game to be the deciding one for the shield.

Casualties were numerous, and heavy checking a feature, both teams battling steadily and strongly for the victory. Fans filled all available space, sitting and standing; the visiting squad having a goodly number of supporters present. Ken Donnelly, of Millbrook, suffered the most severe injury, having to be carried off the field and two stitches being necessary to close a deep cut over one eye.

B. B. Dawson, Millbrook, and D. Miller, Peterborough, were the umpires, and two visiting players, Staunt and Weir, had major penalties of five minutes each in the final period. There was no change in the lineup of either team.

Greenberg Scores First Detroit Run

COCHRANE STAYS OVERNIGHT IN HOSPITAL WITH INJURED KNEE; BACK TO DUTY TO-DAY

HALLAHAN-DEAN TO-DAY?

Auker or Crowder Are Likely Choices for the Detroit Mound.

(By Edward J. Neil)

DETROIT, Oct. 9 (AP)—Of these things, and these alone, could the baseball world be certain to-day as the Tigers and the Cardinals staggered down to the startling line for the seventh and final game of the 1934 World Series, punch drunk from the wildest orgy of form reversals, accidents, brilliance, mediocrity, and pugnaciousness in the modern history of the classic:

Anybody is likely to pitch.
Anything may happen.
Anybody is likely to win.

Mickey Cochrane was in a hospital overnight, but he insisted on coming out to catch somebody who must eventually go to the box for the Tigers. The Cards, right back on even terms, where they were before the series started, when everyone knew everything about everything, had a choice either of big Jerome Dizzy Dean, the great failure of Sunday, or little Will Hallahan, the suge success of the second game. Inept fielding by Hallahan's mates, gave Schoolboy Rowe a chance to win in a 12-inning masterpiece. The natural choice, Diz has a heavy chest cold.

Rowe in Hospital

For the Tigers, the field consisted of Rowe, 'General' Alvin Crowder, Tommy Bridges, Elden Auker, and Indian Elon Hogsett, in that order, which is all there are. Rowe, the choice of the Tiger players despite the fact that young Paul Dean, the best pitcher of the series so far, beat him 4 to 3 in a madhouse battle yesterday, evening the series at three victories each, also was a hospital outpatient. So it was no wonder that the experts, who have seen all their calculations ripped apart like a circus strong man tearing up a deck of cards, were twittering merrily in the same revolving squirrel cage that harbors the rest of the proceedings.

The Rowe situation was the climax that finally unsettled even the sturdiest minds. After yesterday's 10 hit walloping, when the news still was fresh that Cochrane, from his hospital cot where a spiked kneecap and strained ligaments were being treated, wanted to try again to-day with the 22-year-old righthander, the bombshell word came that the Schoolboy was also a patient.

He went to the hospital in the evening complaining of pains in his pitching hand. It was x-rayed. There were no broken bones, but a bruise showed about the knuckles, and the diagnosis was 'muscular soreness.'

If the doctors loose Cochrane by game time, as they must, the hot tip was that Auker, former Kansas State football player with the truck underhand delivery, would start. Otherwise, with Ray Hayworth, substitute catcher, replacing Cochrane, Crowder was the people's choice.

P.C.I. GAINS EASY VICTORY

2ND STRAIGHT WIN.

Outplaying their opponents in every branch of the game, the Peterborough Collegiate rugby team gained a 23-0 victory over Belleville Collegiate's squad at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon in a Senior Central Ontario Interscholastic League game.

It was P.C.I.'s first home game, but their second straight win this season. Young's punting, the openfield and end runs of Jopling and McIntyre, and the forward passing of Marsh were bright spots in the winners' play. The whole squad gave a nice display, taking full advantage of every opening to pile up the score.

In the first half the superior punting of Young assisted P.C.I. materially and all scores were made from his toe. In the third quarter the winners notched 12 points. Wilson retrieved a Belleville fumble on Bellevill's 5-yard line, and Marsh went over for a try. Later, on a fake placement kick, Jopling threw a forward pass to Grose, who was inside the Belleville touchline.

QUINTE SQUAD EQUALS COUNT IN LATE GAME

Gardner and Gerow Are Point Scorers for Petes in First Quarter.

RICHARDSON STARS.

Local Eleven Shows Great Work in Holding Back Steamroller Attacks of Homesters.

Speed and cleverness were pitted against brawn and weight yesterday afternoon in Belleville when the Peterborough rugby team met the Belleville squad in its first intermediate O.R.F.H. game of the season.

Led by Jack Richardson, one of the fastest backfield players developed here in recent years, the Petes went out early and scored their points. For the remainder of the game they were busy trying to hold back the steamroller attacks of their opponents.

The game ended 6-6, each team securing a touchdown and a rouge. The great work of the Petes in holding the heavy Belleville squad to an even score by their stonewall defensive work and speedy attacks kept a large crowd in an uproar of excitement.

Locals Outweighed.

The Quinte crew outweighed the Petes at every point, a conservative estimate being 30 pounds per man. Along the line most of their players would tip the beam at 200 pounds. In trying to take full advantage of their superior poundage the Belleville team swung in a bucking, bruising type of play.

Although they were forced back repeatedly into the shadow of their own goalposts the Petes, on all but one occasion, dug in and held. In the heavy going every member of the squad worked like a trojan. Richardson gave a great display of open-field running, repeatedly running back kicks for gains and skirting the ends to push his team up the field. He was also outstanding for his work on secondary defence.

Jack Gardner did the booting for Peterborough and consistently outkicked Folwell, the much-heralded Belleville punter. Kirkwood's tackling was sensational. The whole backfield went nicely, and the line played like demons in trying to hold their own against their heavy opponents.

For Belleville, Covert and Broadbent were outstanding as line plungers, while Rigby and Folwell were very effective ball carriers on extension plays.

Take Early Lead.

Taking advantage of Belleville fumbles at the start of the game, the Petes were within scoring distance in the first three minutes. Finding it impossible to advance for a try, Gardner booted for a rouge, the Petes' tacklers swarming around Folwell, who caught the ball.

Play remained around midfield, Richardson running back a Belleville kick for a gain. Belleville advanced the sticks twice. Young caught Folwell's kick and ran it back. Young tossed a forward pass to Magee for a 25-yard gain. Gardner's punt was fumbled behind the Belleville touchdown and Gerow, racing in fast, fell on it for a touchdown, which was not converted.

After the kick-off Gardner made a 60-yard run and appeared headed for a touchdown when he was overtaken by Covert, who grassed Gardner from behind with a beautiful flying tackle.

Although Belleville were having the better of the heavy going, the Petes generally managed to break their kicks or stop the attack just as a touchdown seemed certain. At one stage Belleville made three consecutive first downs, only to lose position on an incompleted forward pass.

Homesters Tie Count.

The third quarter found the visitors again on the defensive. On another sustained bucking offence, Broadbent crashed over for a touchdown. Belleville succeeded in a forward, Rigby to Maraskas, and the pressure was resumed. After an exchange of punts and another advance Folwell booted for a rouge, tying the score.

Belleville resumed their plunging offence in the final quarter. A blocked Peterborough kick, which was recoveerd by Cole, gave Belleville possession on the Petes' 25-yard line. Belleville booted on the first down and the ball sailed deep behind the Petes' touchline, but Richardson took it neatly and pushing off tacklers ran it out 25 yards. Play was at centre field when the final whistle blew.

The teams:

Peterborough: Flying wing, Gardner; halves, Richardson, Young, Magee; quarter, Newson; snap, Sloan; insides, Francis and Farnall; middles, Gerow and Kirkwood; outsides, Weir and Reynolds; subs, Dinesen, Broadly, Mesley, Janeway, Spencely, Hewitt and Mitchell.

Belleville: Flying wing, Whytock; halves, J. Folwell, F. Folwell and Walters; quarter, Broadbent; snap, Grills; insides, Burdes, Holgate; middles, Rigby and White; outsides, Weller and Maraskas; subs, Covert, Gibb, Walbridge, Morgan, Cole, Long, Gold and Fardella.

Referee: H. Towsend, Belleville; umpire, S. Young, Peterborough.

Summary:

First Quarter

Peterborough 1—Gardner's rouge.

P.C.I., 1—Young's rouge.

P.C.I., 5—Grose's try.

Fourth Quarter:—

P.C.I., 1—Young's rouge.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball, Lacrosse, Soccer Softball, Bowling, etc.

By E.A.C.

That was the toughest kind of a rugby game in Belleville yesterday afternoon in which the Peterborough squad, getting their baptism in intermediate O.R.F.U. circles, found themselves battling a seasoned team of gridiron athletes who outweighed them all along the line. The Petes, after the first onslaught, felt that they were trying to hold a bunch of bucking baby tanks gone wild. But they dug in their toes and stayed in their holding on, gaining a 6-6 tie and earning it all the way.

• • • • • •

The light Peterborough squad certainly earned their spurs and the support of home fans in their initial effort. How they managed to hold out the tank-like attacks of the stampeding Belleville squad amazed a big crowd of fans. Again and again Belleville got their heavy machine into full motion and swept down the field like a tidal bore only to be stopped when it came to the last big effort of trying to crash the thin Peterborough line to score a touchdown. The Petes broke through to knock down kicks, intercept forward passes and bust up the cogs of the heavy machine in every way.

• • • • • •

Jack Richardson was the outstanding star of the battle. Belleville seldom made any gains on their kicks, Richardson usually taking the ball on the fly and zigg-zagging his way down the field to carry it back to close to the spot from where Folwell, the Belleville punter, had kicked it.

• • • • • •

The game showed plainly that the Peterborough squad have a smart backfield, a nice kicker in Gardner, and a bunch of gamecocks all along the line who never know when they have had enough. But if the team expects to get anywhere in its games against Belleville, much more weight will have to be added to that forward wall, as the Americans love to call it.

• • • • • •

A search has been made for the past week or more in an effort to secure heavier, bigger men for the front line. Charlie Carson stated last night that several "big fellas" have been located and will turn out this evening for practice.

• • • • • •

Not content with the quantity of material they had on hand from the championship collegiate team of last year, the Belleville management went rather far afield to secure several players. In their lineup yesterday were two huskies from Madoc and three strong-armed men from the air force at Trenton.

• • • • • •

It was a great display of smart rugby playing that Coach Bamforth's P.C.I. seniors gave at Riverside Park on Saturday afternoon in piling up their 23-0 victory over Belleville Collegiate. While the winners seemed to have little edge in the line play, they outsmarted their opponents continually and kept pecking away with small pointgetting until they ran up their big count. In the first half Belleville was held so closely that they did not once advance the yardsticks. Meanwhile the Garnet and Grey were using an aerial attack, taking full advantage of Young's high punts, to score points.

• • • • • •

The winners made few mistakes and in the third quarter really opened up to notch twelve points. A couple of forward passes on cleverly-masked faked plays, one from a placement kick, worked perfectly and showed that the team has been well coached.

• • • • • •

While the victory should add confidence to the Garnet and Grey squad the players should stick strictly to their knitting because Belleville, according to information, will be considerably strengthened when the teams clash again. It was learned that several of the Quinte stars were playing on the Crystalite ball team, and were not available for rugby. They will be now that the team has finally been put out after a long-drawn series with Toronto Hillcrests. P.C.I.'s next game is with Lindsay Collegiate's stalwart squad. Indications are that the Scugog school has a formidable aggregation.

• • • • • •

Congratulations are in order to Ernie Gibbard and his Napanee team for bringing the intermediate "A" O.B.A.A. championship to Central Ontario. One of the greatest enthusiasts of the diamond game in the province and a smart second sacker himself, Ernie Gibbard has built up a strong team. In defeating the Southampton Fishermen, Lefty Goldsmith and all, Napanee accomplished a big feat. Perhaps, by next season Gibbard will seek even higher honors and accept the invitation held out to him by the Central League to put his team in senior company. Walter Gerow, veteran coach of the Belleville Nationals, deserves a great deal of credit for the successful season of the Napanee team. This is Gerow's second year at Napanee. The second Gibbard team is still in the running for the Intermediate "B" championship.

• • • • • •

Stratford Nationals had the hitting punch that the Petes lacked and defeated Toronto G. and W. Greads in both games to win the senior O.B.A.A. championship. The Nationals kicked in with a flock of errors, something the Petes never did, but they had the old bats swinging to sure purpose when hits meant runs. It shows again that to win a team needs base hits.

CLARK UNITED DEFEATS SCOTS 2-1 IN SOCCER

Winners' Goals is Scored by Mantle From Spot Kick, Mayette, Scots' Counter.

CUP TIE EXHIBITION.

Clark United from Orono district were Caledonians' guests on Monday afternoon, in a soccer exhibition tussle and the former defeated the local team by two goals to one. Pat Mantle sent the winning counter into the back of the net with a terrific drive from a penalty kick. The visitors play a regular style of cup tie football but lack the combination finish that is productive of good soccer. They are in third position in the Bowmanville and District Soccer League which was won by Bowmanville this season.

After the game, the players were entertained at a banquet in the Moose Hall and later in the evening to a dance.

Visitors More Aggressive

In the early stages, Clark United forced the issue by a steady attack upon the Caledonian goal to find the full backs nullifying their efforts at the logical moment. They kept swinging the ball from wing to wing with Dr. Henry sending dangerous drives into goal where Tice, Caley goalie, blocked their progress. Mowry travelled along the wing to test Bannon, in goal, who sent Henry also down the wing and lifting the ball across the goal, Stobart letting drive with a low grounder that Tice threw out of danger but J. Osborne passed the ball in front of J. Kean who had no difficulty in registering. Regular cup tactics prevailed with the full backs dominating the issue until the arrival of the interval. Clark United 1, Caledonians 0.

Penalty Decides Issue

With greater vigor than ever shown in the first half, on resuming, the visiting half backs concentrating in sending the ball right upon the Scot's full backs to confine the activities to the Petes' territory. Dr. Henry accepted a pass along the wing from Davey. The inside man met the pass inside with a terrific drive that Webb accidently hit with his hand. The spot kick was taken by Pat Mantle who made no mistake with the kick. Carmichael, now acting as custodian, jumped out of the way of the ball, to let the ball bulge the net. Within the next few minutes, the Caley forwards played perfect combination right upon the visitors' goal where C. Mayette connected with a low drive. For the rest of the period, the visitors never faltered for a moment to bombard the Caley goal and peppered the citadel without success but run out winner by the score of two goals to one. Clark United 2, Caledonians 0.

Clark United—O. Bannon, goal; P. Mantle and K. Fraser, full backs; H. Davey, A. Wilbur and G. Ralph, halves; Dr. Henry, J. Kean, J. Stobart, R. Kean and J. Osborne, forwards; subs., S. Kean and J. Brett.

Coledonians—E. Tice, goal; H. Mann and A. O'Halloran, full backs; D. Whatman, J. Mayette and H. Webb, halves; D. Mowry, R. Carmichael, H. Walsh, F. Dyer and J. Gore, forwards, sub., C. Mayette.

C.G.E. BEATS CALEDONIANS LEAGUE MATCH

ELECTRICS 4, CALEYS 3.

Canadian General soccer team gained a lucky win on Saturday afternoon when they defeated the Caledonians four goals to three, in a league engagement at King Edward Park, before a meagre attendance. Mitchell scored the winnig tally from a penalty kick.

Caley's Lead at Interval.

Right from the kick-off, C.G.E. had the Caley custodian turn around the goalpost, a dangerous effort by Clark, Mann and Denisen put up a stubborn defence to hold the fast combination outside the goal area. Webb transferred the play into the C.G.E. territory where Bolton held his goal intact. Time and again, the Scots broke through their opposition to eventually gain the opening counter, Adkinson evaded the full back cleverly to centre the ball across to Gore ,who connected with a timely touch into goal. Within five minutes, Clark, C.G.E., had the count square again when Denisen misktcked to let his opposing pivot bulge the net away out of reach of Carmichael. Keen tactics prevailed in midfield with the halfbacks dominating the play until Adkinson outwitted his full back again, to gain a successful flag kick taken by the Caley left-winger who lifted the ball over an opponent's head to the foot of Gore, and with a gentle overhead touch put the ball inside the upright. Caledonians 2, Canadian General 1.

C. G. E. Forces Issue.

Within three minutes, C.G.E. had the equalizer in the net when Clark jumped in between the full backs to give the Caley custodian no chance to save. The Caleys bombarded Bolton's charge to find their steady attack meeting all kinds of tackling to offset the enthusiasm of their vigorous and proper combination to get two penalty kicks that was only productive of one counter. Gore was trusted with the first spot kick that he failed to drive properly, owing to the mud around the spot. Immediately Mitchell conceded another penalty to find Captain Harry Mann, beating Bolton with a low grounder. The C.G.E. replied with a bombardment to get a flag kick. Post slipped the ball out to Jones who drove the ball into the far corner. A return visit gave the Electrics the winning counter when Mann handled the ball within the dreaded area. Mitchell redeemed the spot kick that he gave away by bulging the rigging in below the bar. Canadian General 4, Caledonians 3.

Dizzy Kayoed By Ball While Cards Kayoed By Tigers

Here's remarkable action shot of actual knockout of Dizzy Dean, Cardinal pitching star, by a ball thrown by Billy Rogell, Tiger shortstop, who was attempting to intercept Pepper Martin at first base during the fourth inning of the fourth world series game in St. Louis, which was won by Detroit, 10-4. At the time of the accident Dizzy was running for Virgil Davis. Top photo shows Dizzy, at left, collapsing near second base. Lower photo shows Dizzy's mates carrying him from the field, unconscious. Later he revived. (Central Press photo).

SILVER SLIPPERS

CHAPTER 59

For two days snow had been coming down from the north, so that when at last the sun shone, the world was blanketed and blanched where the waters of the harbor and of the open sea spread blue in startling contrast to the prevailing whiteness.

Dilly, standing by the window of her cottage, surveyed the scene. "Has it really cleared?" she asked her William.

He shook his head. "More snow probably. It's thickening up already."

"Giles is coming over." Dilly said. "He telephoned he had a letter from Scripps. I told him to have supper with us. I'm having a bee-yutiful baked fish, William, and an apple pie."

"I'll have an appetite for them, after my day's work. Everything frozen — and your precious hens having to have their house heated . . ."

"Fowls have feathers to keep them warm."

"Oh, but you don't really mind, do you, William, putting in a stove? When it makes them so comfortable," her voice was coaxing.

"I don't mind anything you ask me to do," he bent and kissed her.

She sighed, contentedly. "We're happy, aren't we? Perhaps we do talk more about pies than poetry. But according to modern psychology a woman must express herself, and when you are on a peninsula with nothing but a lighthouse and some old biddies and a husband and a baby, about the only art by which you can release your frustrated craving for excitement is the culinary one. And being a good cook may, after all, mean as much to my particular population as free verse or a saxophone symphony may mean to Greenwich Village."

William kissed her again. "I'll bet they haven't anything prettier than you in the whole of New York."

She laughed and again smoothed his coat with a tender hand. "My very dearest dear," she said, soberly, "we have to love each other a lot in this shut-in world, don't we?"

He put a finger under her chin. "Sometimes you're bored?"

She nodded. "But only for a little minute. When I read things like Joan Dudley's going around the world . . . I . . . Oh, William, do you think you and I will ever go around the world?"

"We won't leave her. We will take her. William, some day we will charter a tramp steamer, and sail it ourselves. Perhaps we can take the hens . . ." She was laughing and lighted up. Herself again. That was Dilly. Making the best of her isolation. A gallant figure. Gay against all odds.

When her husband was gone, Dilly put her mind seriously on getting the supper. She stuffed the fish, made the pie, set the table, and when Giles arrived she was ready for him.

He brought her flowers. Sweet peas. Pink ones. "As pink as your cheeks, Dilly."

"Where did you get them?"

"In Granitehead, my dear. I saw them growing in a window."

She put them in the center of the table. "And now, read Scripps' letter. We'll have time before William comes."

Giles settled himself opposite her before the fire. "It is rather an amazing document," he said, "I simply couldn't resist sharing it with you."

"Dear old chap," said Scripps, "we have just had your letter. What a prince you are! To tell us that your home is ours for as long as we wish, and offering to share your book business with me or to set me up in anything else so that I can earn an income for Amelie.

"As if you hadn't helped enough! Without your generosity what would we have done, Amelie and I, in those dreadful days when we were like children lost in a dark wood—I without heart to do anything but hide in my cobbler's shop and Amelie living in a world of shadows?

"But we have thought it out this way, Giles. It is best for us to be on our own for a bit. We can thus get back to realities. To strive and plan and find our way to some sort of success. And this is what we have decided—there's an old man here who grows flowers for the Paris market. Amelie and I have helped him now and then—you should see her among the violets, picking them and putting them up in bunches and loving the fragrance and the beauty of the work. Old Jules needs help and we have suggested this to him: That we put in a little capital and our combined labor, and share the profits of the business with him. He is delighted, and I am going to ask of you the loan of a few hundreds, with the understanding that I shall pay it back as soon as possible. If you will do this, and come and spend a part of each year with us, our happiness will be complete. Nothing could be better for both Amelie and me than to have the work in the hothouses and out of doors and with her love of beauty satisfied, and with my ability to do the light tasks when my physical infirmities forbid heavy ones, we should find health and joy and an enduring interest. I know you will agree with me and understand.

"Amelie is more beautiful than ever. Old Jules adores her. He has named a rose for her—a gorgeous bloom—and she is as proud as if she had received a decoration from a king. So you see, we shall soon be settled in a home of our own, and you can think of us as busy and content, needing only your presence to round things out for us, Giles."

There was more after that, and when he had finished it and folded it Giles said: "It is splendid, isn't it? They have found themselves. A year ago who would have believed it?"

"That's the trouble with us all," said Dilly, earnestly, "we haven't faith that time will solve our problems, and so we worry. And are afraid."

"Are you ever afraid, my dear?"

"Sometimes. But the years are teaching me, and always when life gets too complicated, I tell William, and we work it out—together."

"Together . . ." a great wave of longing swept over Giles. To share his dreams with Joan, to have her by his side, his precious companion, his perfect comrade!

He could not speak of his loneliness, however, so he went back to Scripps' letter and he and Dilly talked of it, and then William came and supper was served, and it was while they were at supper that Dilly spoke of Joan's trip. "She will feel as if she were living in a fairy tale."

"She is probably not as happy as you are, Dilly."

"Why shouldn't she be?"

"She's gone through a year of great disillusionment."

"Where is Mr. Hallam now?"

"In New York, I think."

But Drew Hallam was not in New York. He was, indeed, at the very moment when Giles spoke of him, not a mile away as he rounded the point in Timothy Tucker's boat on the way to Armiger's island. It was freezing cold and the snow was coming down. He called himself a fool for coming. Yet anger and hate had driven him. He meant to tell Giles what he thought of him. A promise was a promise.

Timothy, having as usual other passengers to ferry across the harbor, landed his passenger and made off at once. "Telephone when you need me, and I'll come for you," he told Hallam.

As Hallam walked up the path the lighted windows of the long low house were veiled by the falling snow. The effect was unreal like a winter scene on a stage. As he reached the door and lifted the knocker, Drew saw himself in a sudden flash of sardonic humor, as an actor in a melodrama.

Margarida, answering the summons, said that Mr. Armiger was away, but would be back by nine. "Will you come in and wait?"

"Yes." He was shown at once into the living room. Jose brought a fresh log for the fire. It was not yet eight o'clock. "There aren't any evening papers," Margarida apologized. "Mr. Giles will bring them over."

"There are plenty of books. I shall find something . . ."

So the hospitable couple went away, and Drew sat by the fire staring about the room . . . So this was where Joan would come if she married Giles. To this house with its fine old furniture, its rich portraits, its mellow chintzes, its splendid books. It was the home of a gentleman, and Joan would love the life she would lead in it. Happiness for her was not in racketing about Europe, or in giving parties in Adelaide's grim palace on Charles street. Joan and Giles would travel, perhaps, but always they would come back to this serene harbor, safe from the storm and fret of life . . .

Beating the arm of his chair with a nervous fist, Drew reflected that he had never been safe from storm and fret . . . perhaps if he had . . . He rose and paced the room restlessly, then stopped and listened, as he heard a sound at the front door. Giles' voice. He looked at the clock. It was nine.

As Giles entered, the straight slim grace of him struck against Drew's heart. He said at once, "You didn't expect me?"

"No," curtly. "Margarida told me some one was waiting. Why have you come?"

"Because you went back on your word."

"What do you mean?"

"You said you'd keep away from Joan Dudley and you haven't."

"How do you know?"

"She told me. That she had seen you. I knew then you had broken your promise."

"I haven't broken it."

"You lie."

A slight pause in which Giles found himself breathing hard: "Do you expect me to resent that?" he asked finally.

"I don't expect you to take it lying down."

"I shan't. But I will tell you this. That I love Joan Dudley too much to engage in a senseless fight with a man who is my equal neither in honor nor in integrity. I gave you a promise in Spain to save her from humiliation. I have kept that promise. And that's the end of it."

"But she came here . . . and you made love to her . . ."

"Would you love her if she didn't have money?"

"You are making it very hard for me," Giles said, with sternness, "I rather think you are a bully and a coward. I don't know why you came, but the sooner you leave the better."

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Wednesday, October 10

A lively day with much of interest stirring, with trends in the direction of achievement and good fortune, is read from the dominant planetary intervention. In commerce, all pertaining to trade, writings, publicity and promotion favorable auspices are seen, but in finance there are signs calling for great wisdom and discretion as there is a menace of sudden losses or misfortune through speculation, gambling, litigation, indulgence, as well as entanglements of property through bequests or by ill-advised dealings with strangers. Sign papers cautiously.

If It Is Your Birthday

Those whose birthday it is may look for a lively and eventful year, with success and good fortune if affairs be discreetly and conservatively managed. All literary and commercial things should flourish, but finances are jeopardized by speculation, strange ventures, litigation and property or inheritance entanglements. Private affiliations may depress or give anxiety. Sign writings carefully.

A child born on this day may be lively, versatile, with keen mind, prone to deal with subtlety and shrewdness. Also fond of gambling and taking long chances.

The Vital Organs Depend on Nerve Force

Machinery is useless without power to run it,
And the machinery of the body is no exception.
The heart, the lungs, the stomach,
Falter and fail in their functions,
When the all important nerve force runs low,
Because it is the power
Which operates and controls the vital organs.
By creating new nerve force
Dr. Chase's Nerve Food
Restores vigor to the bodily organs.
Digestion improves, headaches disappear.
Soon you are sleeping and resting well,
And know again the joy of living.
Don't lose a single day in beginning the use
Of this time-proven restorative.

BETHANY.

Miss Isobel Sisson was hostess on Thursday evening to a bridal shower in honor of her cousin, Miss Viola Gray, a bride of the next month. Fifty-nine guests were present to tender their gifts and good wishes to the guest of honor.

Music and dancing formed the major part of the entertainment, which all enjoyed most thoroughly.

Nearly 1,550,000 bags of coffee were shipped from Colombia to the United States in the first six months of this year.

RICHARD WALSH SUFFERED ONLY MINOR INJURIES

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 9 (Examiner Correspondence)—Word received from Sudbury states that Richard Walsh, Hastings road, suffered only minor injuries, when the car in which he was driving went off the road near Wahnapitei, on Wednesday night, while his companion Alfred Kemp of Toronto sustained three fractured ribs. Both men were enroute to Schreiber to do some prospecting.

A DULL TUSSLE.

The Canadian General made definite assurance that they had the League championship in their possession when they held the Canada Packers to a scoreless tie on Monday afternoon before a good attendance of spectators. This puts the C.G.E. in the top position of the league.

Teams Shorthanded.

The C.G.E. were minus several players in the early stages, but Jones appeared after fifteen minutes' play, and Todd, C.P. completing the full eleven against the winners' eight. Colbran and Geo. Downer, C.P., broke through the opposition repeatedly to send lightning drives across Bolton's charge but the waiting touch was awanting. C.G.E. full backs held the forwards outside the danger zone, which allowed the custodian every freedom to clear his charge, but he was caught napping when A. Downer from twenty yards out compelled Bolton to jump up in below the crossbar to save a sure counter. Burgess intercepted a Colbran-McCracken attack to send Post along the wing, who left Earle in possession in front of goal to miss the mark by inches. Just before the interval, Stan. Clark outwitted the C.P. backs cleverly, but A. Downer arrived from behind to take the ball off his toe to save a tally against Packers. Half-time: No scoring.

Uninteresting Tussle

On resuming, it was evident that the Packers team were not anxious for the points through the non-appearance of Buchan at centre-half. Beautiful triangle plays by the Packers' right wing brought out many interesting tussles between the C.G. full backs and Packers' attack until Jones cleared in the nick of time. Post along with Burgess carried the ball into the Packers goal, where the goalie was lucky to save the former's effort. Both goals went under a series of bombardments without any tangible result, although McCracken should have registered from the opening made by Colbran. Kick and rush style prevailed until the end

Canadian General 0, Canada Packers 0.

C.G.E.—J. Bolton, goal; J. Mitchell and G. Blowers, full backs; E. Jones and A. Burgess, halves; F. Earle, S. Clark and V. Post, forwards.

Canada Packers—E. Rishea, goal; A. Downer and T. Foster, full backs; A. Downer, N. Downer and A. Bromley, halves; G. Colbran, W. McCracken, F. Todd, A. Todd and G. Downer, forwards.

NAPANEE BOY HURLER BESTS GOLDSMITH FOR 4-0 VICTORY

Intermediate "A" Baseball Honors to Rest in Eastern City as Result of Win.

STRATFORD WINS SENIOR.

(By the Canadian Press)

Stratford baseball fans today acclaimed their Nationals baseball squad as the senior amateur champions of the Province of Ontario, and to Ken Biddle, Nats southpaw hurler, went the hero's honors. Although he was rendered poor support, Biddle yesterday cooly cut down Toronto G. and W. Grads to decide the crown's resting place for another year.

8-3 Win On Saturday

Two straight victories brought the prize to Stratford. In the holiday battle the Nats emerged with a 5-4 win to add to their 8-3 victory that Pitcher Craig obtained in the game last Saturday after nine errors spoiled Nats' display. Toronto recorded only four but the mediocre display by his teammates only lent more fighting spirt to Biddle who dropped G. and W. with six hits, all singles.

Nationals slammed out 10 hits off Art Upper, Osborne taking a triple and Zulauf smashing a homer over right field fence. Eisen and Stokes got two apiece for Grads with Harper and Sone getting the others. Only one of the Grad runs was earned.

Napanee Takes Honors

The Intermediate "A" crown rested in Napanee today because of the twirling of George "Yudy" Blastetch, the boy who pitched Toronto St. Cyprians to a title. The right hander blanked Southampton and his great Lefty Goldsmith 4-0 in the deciding game yesterday.

Ten scattered hits were given by Blastetch and they were pop flys that the infield handled. When runs were needed Napanee managed to get to Goldsmith for hits that counted. Lefty allowed nine but the bunched doubles in the first, third, fourth and sixth innings were his undoing and the hits that spelled defeat for the two-time champions.

Penetanguishene Sailors won the fifth and deciding contest of the Intermediate "B" semi-finals with Meaford Black Sox, 9-3 and will now meet either Chatham of Milton, now fighting out the other semi-final, in the championship series. These teams fought 50 innings in their five-game struggle and each tallied 15 runs, something of a record in Ontario Baseball Amateur Association playdowns.

ST. JAMES' CHURCH OBSERVES TWENTY-SIXTH ANNIVERSARY

Rev. James Semple of Bridge Street Church Belleville, is Minister in Charge.

LARGE ATTENDANCES.

Sunday, October 7th, marked the twenty - sixth anniversary of St. James' United Church, when special services were held in honor of the auspicious occasion. Large congregations were present at all three services when the Rev. James Semple, B.A., S.T.B., Th.D., pastor of Bridge Street United Church, Belleville, was the minister in charge. Autumn leaves and flowers formed an effective decoration while the special program of Thanksgiving music also added to the success of the day.

Choosing a subject that is being widely discussed and one particularly appropriate for this anniversary time, Dr. Semple spoke of "The New Church in the New Day," illustrating it by several verses from Paul's letter to the Ephesians. "The new church must be a worshipping church," declared the speaker, in laying down some of its essential attributes. To achieve this first ideal we must improve our type of architecture until its beauty is more conducive to worship. A worshipping church must also be an open church, where people may have the opportunity of committing to God the burdens unbearable to them.

Three-fold Need.

A large electric sign appealed to the minister as representing a three-fold need of the new church, light, heat, and power. Christ is the light, the heat is the love which warms men's hearts, and the power is the Christian's mastery over fear and selfishness. It must also be a teaching church. It must teach God's relation to the universe, His will for society, for the distribution of wealth, for marriage and parenthood. The church must become a mind-forming society, for we must have light upon the perplexing problems of the day. The new church must exemplify what the Christian church really is. Jesus said to His disciples, "Ye are the salt"—the preserving element—and again, "Ye are the light." Every Christian church should be the salt and the light of its community. It is time that we learned to "live" our religion. Moreover, this new church should be one whose fellowship binds all humanity into one. And more than this—it should be made up of people who are seeking righteousness instead of safety. Safety first does not apply to the moral realm. For Jesus said, "Whosoever will save his life shall lose it." Youth must be the vital concern of the new church, maintained Dr. Semple. Every great movement of history has been led and dominated by youth. The vast majority of the disciples were young. Martin Luther began his work at thirty, Wesley at thirty-six, while more than half of the Pilgrim Fathers were young men. The average age of the eleven leaders of the French Revolution was but thirty-four years.

Enlarging upon this last great requisite of the new church, Dr. Semple continued the theme at the evening service. It was Victor Hugo who said that the eighteenth century had discovered man and the nineteenth century discovered woman. We are encouraged to believe that the twentieth century has discovered the boy and the girl and their vast potentialities for the Kingdom of God. Our Lord's life was a busy one, yet He always found time for boys and girls. No minister or official of the church can justify neglect of them. There are four things in the life of a child of which we must be cognisant—first, the child comes from a Christian institution, home. Many think that the modern home has ceased to function. The Romans failed to resist the barbarians because of corrupt home life and we, too, must give due thought to the paganism which is beating against our homes. In the second place, the child has a God-given Book for his teaching, and this is a very important factor in its life. Some think that the church and its Sacraments is the most essential, but we must put the child in the centre and build our new church around him, for the most important element in the child is its religious nature—the life that God gave. It is our business to develop this religious nature. To do this we must have first a right conception of the importance of the work—"where there is no vision the people perish." We must have the spirit of co-operation if we are to build the kingdom of God in the medium of youth. We must have the spirit of conquest. There is a glaring need for the laity of the church to take new interest in winning the young for Christ.

Then there is the need for the spirit of constancy. The people interested only on anniversary occasions are of little use to the church. If people would be as consistent in church work as they are in social life, the church would cease to be the ineffective force it now is. Without consecration we are lost in working successfully with youth, for consecration is the surrendering of oneself and all that one has, to God. The grandest contribution to life is to be a worker in the church with youth, for Jesus said: "Take heed that ye despise not one of my little ones, for of such is the kingdom of heaven."

A note of thanksgiving was sounded throughout the program of special music arranged for the day by Frank Stevens, the organist, which included anthems by the senior choir, "I will feed My Flock" (Simper) and "Sing Praises to God" (Meale). The junior choir's offerings were "Count your blessings" (Excell) and "'Tis Love" (Miles). The soloists of the day were Mrs. Arnold, whose number was "My Redeemer," and Mrs. E. Kitney, A.C.C.M., who sang "Sweet Peace, Gift of God's Love" (Bilkhorn).

HOLY NAME RALLY IS SET FOR SUNDAY

Bugle Band of the De La Salle Cadets Will Head the Parade.

The annual diocesan rally of the Holy Name Society will take place here next Sunday afternoon, and will be featured by a procession of the men from the various parishes of this district from Confederation Square to the Church of the Sacred Heart.

Among the parishes that will be represented in addition to the three in Peterborough, are Hastings, Norwood, Douro, Ennismore, Downeyville, Lindsay, Lakefield, Havelock and Victoria Road. Rev. V. J. McAuley of Ennismore, is diocesan director of the Society.

In his announcement of this event, which he referred to as a public demonstration of faith in the divinity of Jesus Christ and of honor to His name, Rev. J. J. O'Brien, pastor of the Church of the Sacred Heart, said that the procession would start from Confederation Square at three o'clock and would be headed by the De La Salle bugle band of one hundred and ten members, who will arrive in the city on the noon train. Mass for the young cadets will be celebrated by Rev. Father O'Brien in the new chapel at Mount St. Joseph.

MARMORA'S ANGLICAN CHURCH CELEBRATES DIAMOND JUBILEE

Bishop Lyons Conducts Confirmation Service in the Evening.

ALMS BASIN DEDICATED

MARMORA, Oct. 9.—(Examiner Correspondence)—Diamond jubilee services in connection with St. Paul's Anglican Church drew large congregations on Sunday, though a deviation from the original order was necessitated through a slight indisposition overtaking the lord bishop of the diocese, Right Rev. John Lyons, D.D. It had been intended to hold the confirmation service and to dedicate the new alms bason and altar vase in the morning, as well as to hold a celebration of holy communion. Upon request received from the bishop on Friday, the confirmation and dedicatory office were changed to follow shortened evensong. For the auspicious occasion the church was beautifully decorated with choicest blooms. Celebrations of holy communion were held by the rector rural dean, A. B. Caldwell, at 8 a.m. and 11 a.m. At the latter service he was assisted by Rev. T. H. H. Hall, of the Belleville mission and former rector of Rawdon, the neighboring parish. The choir ably repeated as the an them Caleb Simper's "Thou Visitest the Earth."

Rev. Hall Preaches.

Prior to delivering an eloquent sermon, Rev. T. H. H. Hall recalled the happy memories of old days when he had enjoyed association with the late Canon Harris. He owed much to Canon Harris. Whatever success he may have had in the ministry, he traced back to the night when in going to Bancroft to be its rector, the late Bishop Mills' advice had been taken, "Spend a night with Rev. Harris." It seemed on this particular morning he was occupying a space of holy land. "My voice seems to have left me entirely," he said, "when I think of that gentleman of God. Canon Harris was one of the old school, the gentlemen of God. His life breathes into mine as I think of him this morning."

Taking as his text, Phil. 1:3, "Your fellowship in the gospel from the first day," the preacher remarked that in what he had already said concerning the late Canon Harris he had paid respect to all former rectors of the parish. They all served to the best of their ability. Theirs had been the desire to greatly witness for Christ in the parish. They had been faithful soldiers of the cross of Christ. He would speak of the diocese also. For the first time a son of the diocese was its bishop. Many present rectors in the diocese were born in some part of the diocese. The late Archbishop Anderson of the United States was a son of the diocese. So also was Archbishop Du Pencier, of New Westminster. Then in the foreign mission field Archdeacon G. E. Simmons, D.D., of Honan China, was a son of the diocese, who after serving under Canon Harris had gone forth to witness there for Christ.

Continuing, he said: "The only thing which makes a church loveable and sacred is its love for the gospel of Christ. It was at Philippi that Paul first proclaimed the gospel. With Paul the thing that distinguished it most was its fellowship in Jesus Christ. In Phillipi there was a point of contact with Paul and his congregation. There should be a point of contact that means fellowship with the rector and his congregation. Paul had shown the deepest appreciation of the great spiritual forces which had brought him into their midst.

"It was not strange, therefore, that to the church at Phillipi Paul wrote his freest and most tender lessons. Had St. Paul's heart been opened the name written there would have been 'Phillipe.' Had the heart of Canon Harris been open the name read there would have been 'Marmora,' for the fellowship was there. That's what St. Paul wrote and continued to write, 'Your fellowship in the gospel.'"

Addressing the congregation, the preacher said: "You are at the opening of a new chapter in the history of the parish and in the life of the rector. I can think of no word in the Bible more suitable to bring before you now than those words, 'Your fellowship in the gospel.' That is the safety zone for you and your spirit life—Christ, your rector, your congregation, your place of worship. The gospel is not anything and it is not everything. It has a distinct, separate and glorious purpose. It is not a human discovery or product, a philosophy or a demonstration. It is a revelation from God alone of that great mystery to which mankind looked forward to until Christ came. It was hid from the world, but revealed through Christ. To have true fellowship in the gospel we must believe in its divine origin. There is a tendency to show how like the gospel is to human wisdom or authorship or science. Why has the world failed to carry on the secular business of the world? Because it has not adhered to the safety zone. Why has the League of Nations failed? Who did the nations take with them to their conferences? Was the church taken as a representative? No. It was thought that strong minds and intellects assembled together could bring about the peace and tranquility of the world. The League of Nations as a human organization has failed. If they had taken Jesus into their council chamber and given Him the chairmanship, or even a seat the League of Nations would have been the greatest thing the world has ever known. We have tried also to run our parishes without Christ. We have tried to dance or to please ourselves in some other way into Heaven. We have not brought Christ intimately and supremely into our houses."

Many past worshippers were to be seen in the congregation, and at the altar sixty-eight communicated, the service being fully choral. At the evening service twenty-two received the rite of confirmation. Assisting the bishop were Rural Dean A. B. Caldwell and Canon W. G. Swayne, of Bonarlaw.

Bishop Lyons chose as his text, "I will build my church and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." His lordship at the outset referred to his pleasure of being present on the occasion for congratulation and thanksgiving. The sixtieth anniversary, he said, was a thing for a just pride, when one could look back over the work of the congregation and think of those who through the years have done so much for the church and then realize that he had entered into the work and to share the experiences. Bishop Lyons recalled how he had been present at the 50th anniversary of St. Paul's and had preached at the morning service, while Bishop Bidwell had preached at the evening service. He felt that his text was very appropriate for the occasion. It had been a year of anniversaries for the church throughout Canada. Not only was the 150th anniversary of the coming of the United Empire Loyalists observed, but also the 150th anniversary of organized church services in the province of Ontario, and there were other anniversaries observed by parishes in the diocese.

"Never was our church more looked to for leadership than at the present time," declared the bishop. "Jesus has said, 'I will build my church.' We must speak of it in its widest sense. We should think of it as being greater than any fraternal society. All fraternal work receives its inspiration from the church of God. Had the church of God not continued its existence it is not likely fraternal societies would have come into existence. Their greatness must be attributed to that which they receive from the church of God. The church is known to be of divine origin and the great venture undertaken by the first Christians was amply justified by what they accomplished. The church did not begin to function until it received the power from on high. There is an analogy between the church and the human body God breathed into them. The real weakness of the church in whatever branch you may think of is from within."

The bishop next mentioned that the two outstanding notes of the recent General Synod were fellowship and unity, and addressed his closing words to the candidates, whom he termed a new company in the regiment of the church as represented in the congregation of St. Paul's.

Previous to the confirmation service the bishop dedicated a brass alms bason and vase which bore this inscription, "To the glory of God and in loving memory of Frances S. Jones, 1846-1927." The anthem was Bert Coupar's setting to "Holy Father, Cheer Our Way." The soprano solo was ably taken by Mrs. S. C. Boyd, who also joined with Mrs. S. B. Wright in a fine rendition of the duet part. Extra chairs had to be brought in to seat the very large congregation present.

Presentation Made.

At Sunday School on Sunday morning the presentation was made to Mrs. E. McCarey of an elegant floor lamp, the gift of the Sunday School, A.Y.P.A. and Careful Gleaners' Class, of which she is the immediate past teacher. The address was read by Miss Gertrude Lumsden and the presentation was made by Miss Hilda Bonter. Mrs. McCarey made suitable acknowledgement.

MONTREAL WOMAN SWEARS TO TRUTH OF STATEMENT

Suffered Chronic Constipation since 12 Years Old. Tells How She has at last Found Wonderful Relief. Thanks to Fruit-a-tives.

Mrs. Williamson, 7420 Bloomfield Ave., Montreal, does not want others to continue suffering from constipation as she used to do. That is why she generously consented to swear to the statement of her experience before a notary in order that you will be convinced of its absolute truth. Mrs Williamson's statement reads,—

"Since I was twelve years old, I was ill with chronic constipation. Finally I had my appendix removed but constipation still bothered me badly. I never felt good and could not do many things I wanted to.

Three years ago, I started taking Fruit-a-tives and I can truly say they gave me wonderful relief. Their mild, gentle action helped particularly during periods of menstruation when elimination was very difficult.

I don't know of anything that has done me more good than Fruit-a-tives. I am now able to enjoy life once more and I certainly urge anyone who has the same trouble I had to try Fruit-a-tives."

There's positive proof for you of what Fruit-a-tives can do. Remember Fruit-a-tives are really different. They are the famous remedy that for over a quarter of a century has brought lasting relief to thousands of men and women who suffered from constipation and kindred ills like indigestion, bad breath, sick-headaches. That is why, today, Fruit-a-tives is the largest selling remedy of its kind in Canada.

Remember, too, Fruit-a-tives do not contain phenolphthalein or any other coal-tar derivatives which may be dangerous.

Copy of Mrs. Williamson's sworn statement will be sent on request. Write Fruit-a-tives Limited, Ottawa, Canada.

Financial Racketeers Doomed

CABINET GIVES GODFREY FRESH POWERS TO ACT

Brokers', Salesmen's Fees Increased to Eliminate Department's Deficit.

HEPBURN HITS AT DREW.

Telephone Security Sales Banned to End "Boiler Room Dynamiting" of Public

TORONTO, Oct. 10.—(CP)—Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn today declared his Ontario government would "wage war without quarter through its Securities Commission on financial racketeers and all persons engaging in improper financial practices."

"To this end at today's council meeting new regulations were passed to strengthen the arm of Securities Commissioner Godfrey and to place his commission on a self-supporting basis," the premier said in a long statement.

"Last year administration of the Securities Act cost the treasury in excess of $7,000 by way of deficit and over $60,000 in all," said the statement. "It is estimated the deficit for the current year ending the 31st October will amount to $14,000. The first regulation approved to-day puts an end to these deficits. The registration fees of brokers and salesmen are substantially increased. Brokers will hereafter pay a fee of $100.00 instead of $25.00. Each branch brokerage office will pay an additional $50.00 fee. Securities' salesmen's licenses are increased from $5.00 to $10.00. The Ontario Securities Commission will no longer be a charge on the Ontario taxpayer.

Ban Phone Sales.

"The second regulation prohibits sales of securities by telephone. Since the prohibition of selling securities from door to door in June, 1933, there has grown up what are known as boiler rooms where batteries of telephones manned in part by high-powered American salesmen have been engaged to use the expression of the street, in "dynamiting" the public of Ontario. Millions of dollars, it is said, have been thus racketeered from investors in Ontario. This improper practice will be stopped forthwith by the new regulation which will be rigorously enforced.

Blow at Drew.

"It will be apparent that the new regulations constitute the most searching criticism of the administration of the Securities Act in the past. Even if Colonel Drew had not wilfully put an end to his career as Commissioner his laxity in allowing his department to become a burden on the taxpayer and

BEVERAGE ROOM HOURS SHORTER

London Hotelmen Told to Close 11 p.m. Week Days, 7 p.m. Saturdays.

PROTESTS RAISED.

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 10 (C.P.).—London hotelmen, holders of authorities for the sale of beer and wine, to-day received official notices from the Liquor Control Board that henosforth they are to close at 11 p.m. on week days and 7 p.m. on Saturdays.

Tuesday night the hotelmen appeared before the City Council to protest the order, and the council voted 12 to 1 to ask E. G. Odette, liquor control commissioner, to rescind the early closing order which he made on receiving a request from London City Council for such an order for the whole province.

Beverage rooms have been open from 10 a.m. to midnight every day in the week except Sunday, and beer and wine have been sold in dining-rooms during the same hours.

Vermilyea Murder Inquest Postponed

BELLEVILLE, Oct. 10 (C.P.). — The inquest into the death of Mrs. Nathaniel Vermilyea, victim of a hatchet killing which was to have been held on Thursday night, has been adjourned for one week, according to B. C. Donnan, K.C., Crown attorney.

He stated to-day he was not ready to proceed as the analysis of the blood stains found in the Walker House in Toronto and on the cushion of the taxicab, allegedly used by the slayer had not been completed. Some fifteen witnesses will be called when the inquest is heard.

An officer from this city will likely be sent to Ontario, California, to escort Harold Vermilyea under arrest there in connection with the crime, back to this city.

Canada Chief Radium Producer in Empire

Canada is now the chief producer of radium for the British Empire, and may, if all goes well, replace the Belgian Congo as world's greatest producer. Already the radium mines in Great Bear Lake have broken the monopoly held by the Belgian mine. The layout shows Alexis Pochon, chemist-in-chief of the Eldorado Mines, which has developed radium in Canada and has produced already more than five grams of the precious radio-active metal. Pochon is one of the world's foremost radium experts. Also shown is the entrance to one of the radium mines in the Great Bear Lake region of Northern Alberta.

RADIUM ORE IS BEING SHIPPED TO PORT HOPE

INACCESSIBLE COUNTRY.

Prospector's Chance Discovery Revealed World's Richest Deposits.

(By Charles Ross, Jr., Central Press Canadian Writer.)

PORT HOPE, Ont., Oct. 10.—A small refinery in this little town completes the last stage in the romantic story of the first radio production within the empire. Enough radium is refined here to potentially take care of the needs of the entire empire for many decades to come.

Behind this refinery lies a story of prospectors, engineers, airmen, geologists, dog teams, arctic pioneers, all in a search more romantic than the age-long search for gold, and more startling of achievement.

Discovery of pitchblende-carrying radium in unheard of quantities startled the world in 1930, when Gilbert LaBine, veteran Canadian prospector and geologist, led his half-frozen, snowblind, prospector-companion, Charles St. Paul, into the now famous Echo Bay, on the eastern shores of Great Bear Lake, within the arctic circle. While St. Paul rested his eyes in his agony, Labine made some excursions into the snow fields behind camp and in a wind-swept spot pounced upon a heavy, black ore. Pitchblende, he concluded. He was not sure. St. Paul would confirm his find and so Labine waited in fevered expectation for the sick man's eyes to mend. St. Paul crawled out to see the deposit when he was able. It was indeed pitchblende—but was it radio-active?

Samples of the ore were flown

FARMER KILLED BY OWN SHOTGUN

Struck in Abdomen as He Climbs Fence Chasing Thieves

RAIDING CHICKEN COOP.

CHATHAM, Ont., Oct. 10 (CP)—Reginald Grist, well known Harwich Township farmer, was killed instantly early to-day when the shot gun he was carrying was accidentally discharged as he was climbing over a fence.

Apparently Grist was awakened by a noise, which he thought was made by raiders on his chicken coop. Partly dressing he took his gun and went out to frighten the thieves. In climbing the fence one of the barrels of the gun discharged, the shot entering his abdomen, causing instant death.

The body was found by his son-in-law Harold Burke, with whom Grist resided. Coroner Dr. Hanks of Blenheim after investigating the circumstances, decided the shooting was accidental, and there will be no inquest.

Grist was 58 years of age and is survived by his widow and one daughter, Mrs. Burke.

ASSASSINATION ROUSES STORM IN FRENCH GOV'T

Seek to Place Responsibility for Failure to Protect King Alexander.

CONTINENT UNEASY.

Press Sees Crisis in Offing With 11 Year Old on Yugoslav Throne.

(By Stuart Moroney).

PARIS, Oct. 10 (A.P.). — The French Government was shaken today by political consequences of the Marseille assassinations, and a storm was brewing over responsibility for failure to protect King Alexander.

Premier Gaston Doumergue has temporarily taken over the foreign affairs political late of Louis Barthou determined that the latter's work for peace and security shall not be wasted.

King Alexanders old tutor, M. Da Voinovitch who said good bye to the King at Belgrade and then came to Paris, was outspoken on what he called the "police failure" to safeguard King Alexander. He said the King mixed freely with his own people, travelled often and only recently went to Sofia. "Yes in Marseille, which is known to be a hornet's nest full of gangsters, it is only by failure of the police that he could have been assassinated."

Albert Sarraut, as Minister of Interior, leads all police and directly commands the Surete Generale, or secret service specifically charged with King Alexander's protection. Some observers believed his resignation might be forced.

Interpretations have already been fyled in the Chamber of Deputies and some newspapers have been violently critical.

If Sarraut resigns there will be two vacancies in the cabinet, which is leading opponents to suggest that the time has come to overhaul the government of "tragically weakened authority."

World Views

Governmental and editorial opinion differed to-day as to the probable consequences of the assassination of King Alexander of Yugoslavia and Foreign Minister Louis Barthou of France at Marseille.

Officialcom, after first viewing with alarm the result of the assassin's gun, breathed more freely when it was reported the killer was a Yugoslavian. Sarajevo of 20 years ago was recalled and as quickly expunged from official statements.

But the press of Europe saw political crises in the offing, especially pointing out the unrest which must follow in Yugoslavia with an 11-year-old reigning through a regency.

Land Victims

LONDON.—The press saw a serious situation created by the assasinations but thought it might be mitigated somewhat as there was evidence the crime was due to domestic troubles and in nowise instigated by international antagonisms. The papers paid high tribute to both victims as of the first rank in their respective spheres whose removal was bound to have a profound effect—but what effect none predicted. The Times: "From the European standpoint the murder of King Alexander was all the more disastrous since he long mamintained a firm directing hand on the foreign policy of Yugoslavia."

Post: "There is no reason why

(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press)

MARSEILLES, France, Oct. 10.—(AP)—The savage assassination of Alexander, Yugoslavia's dictator-king, which took four other lives, sent the greatest chill of fear into European capitals today since the Great War.

The widowed Queen Marie arrived this morning by special train and fainted after throwing herself upon the body of King Alexander. She was carried into an anteroom to rest.

(Their 11-year-old son, Peter II, was proclaimed King by the Yugoslavian government to rule under a regency. He left his English boarding school this morning enroute to Belgrade and the troubled affairs of his country).

The death toll from Marseille's bloody yesterday afternoon reached five this morning. Mme. Dubrec, a widow who was wounded by bullet from the same gun which killed Alexander and Louis Barthou, Foreign Minister of France, died in a hospital.

The condition of 14 persons who were wounded when the 35-year-old fanatic opened fire yesterday upon the King's carriage, was improved. General Alfonse Joseph Georges of the French Superior War Council, said last night to be near death, was expected today to recover, along with the others.

A Czechoslovakian

Although Petrus Kaleman, the 35-year-old fanatic who killed King Alexander five minutes after the King's arrival on French soil, was first identified as a Yugoslavian secret police said his passport was issued by the Czechoslovakian consul at Zagreb. This indicated he was a Czechoslovakian, they asserted.

PARIS STARTS ROUNDUP OF SLAV REFUGEES, NATIONAL FUNERAL PLANNED FOR BARTHOU

Marseille

NEW YORK, Oct. 10 (CP)—The name of Marseille, the city in which King Alexander of Yugoslavia and Foreign Minister Louis Barthou of France were assassinated yesterday, is pronounced in two syllables: Mar-set.

Gazeteers are divided on the spelling. Lippincott's Gazeteer or the word writes Marseilles, with an "s," but others, including The Times Atlas Gazetter, favor the French spelling without the "S." Maps published in France by Taride, a popular authority, show the name without the "s."

ITALY WATCHES FOR OUTBREAK IN YUGOSLAVIA

Expect Serbs Will Take Revenge on Croatians for King's Murder.

NO TROOP MOVEMENTS.

ROME, Oct. 10. (AP).—Italy's major fears over results of the Marseille assassinations are of internal repercussions in Yugoslavia.

Anxiety was eased here to-day when reports described the assassin as a Croatian. This fact was considered to have removed the gravest chances of international complications.

But officials felt the situation within Yugoslavia might easily become serious and bears the closest watching. Premier Mussolini continued to keep in personal contact with developments but officials said any idea of an Italian troop movement to the Yugoslav border was fantastic—as long as there are no disturbances that might necessitate additional border policing.

Fears for internal peace in Yugoslavia arise from the fact that there is always bad feeling between Croatians and the Serbian ruling faction and some outburst might occur here.

Rome circles admitted the possibility of Serbian acts of revenge against Croatians, or efforts of the latter to strike for independence now that the strong arm of the Serbian dictator is gone.

Bennett Expresses Canada's Sympathy

LONDON, Oct. 10 (C.P. Cable).—Prime Minister R. B. Bennett, who leaves for Canada shortly, to-day te'egraphed condolences on behalf of Canada to France, grieving for her slain Foreign Minister, Louis Barthou. Flags were half-masted at Canada House, and at surrounding Canadian business houses in London.

It was Barthou who, on behalf of France, signed the recent supplementary Canadian-French trade agreement. Premier Bennett less than two weeks ago was in cordial conversation with him in Paris.

Premier Bennett's message follows:

"Please convey to the Government of France the deep regret of the Government and the people of Canada in the loss suffered by France and the whole of Europe in the death of M. Barthou, and add my sincerest personal sympathy in the loss of a statesman whose great abilities I have come to recognize and admire in the short period of our personal acquaintance."

TRUCK KILLS GIRL OF 6

TORONTO, Oct. 10. — (CP) — Christina Gore, six, was struck and fatally injured today by a truck in charge of Norman Curton who was not held.

BY JOHN EVANS

Copyright, 1934, by the A. P.

MARSEILLES, France, Oct. 10.—With the pomp of grief and the majesty of death, King Alexander of Yugoslavia was started back to his homeland today.

His body was borne through streets which yesterday reverberated successively to cheers, pistol shots, shrieks, and weeping.

At 4 p.m., exactly 24 hours after he had set foot in France on what was intended to be a gala visit of good will, the assassinated king was taken back to the Yugoslavian destroyer Dubrovnik which brought his majesty here.

Again today there were massed thousands of spectators, but their silent faces mirrored Europe's anxiety over what the assassination of the Yugoslavian king by a Croatian on French soil may mean.

France had hoped that Alexander's visit would be a long step toward a pact including Italy and sealing the peace of the Balkans for years to come. That was the dream of Louis Barthou, Foreign Minister of France, but all through the day the dead Barthou had lain in state beside Alexander.

Together they were shot down at 4:10 p.m. yesterday by Petrus Kalemen, a 35-year-old native of Zagreb, and they died only an hour apart. Kalemen, himself, was mortally injured by the police and the crowd.

Two Others Die.

Two other persons were fatally wounded in the burst of fire from Kalemen's pocket sub-machine gun and his auxiliary pistol and the replying shots of the police. Policeman Galli died last night and a spectator, Madame Dubrec, a widow, died to-day.

Fourteen other persons, including Alphonse Joseph Georges of the French Superior War Council, were wounded. General Georges, despite the severity of his wounds, showed signs of improvement to-day and physicians gave him an even chance for life.

President Albert Lebrun of France, shocked by the tragedy, was here with many Ministers of the Cabinet. He arranged that these

Local Hotels Given No Closing Orders

Although hotels in London, Ontario, have been ordered to close all beverage rooms at 7 o'clock on Saturday evenings by Commissioner E. G. Odette, no such order has yet been received by hotels in Peterborough, hotel men said to-day. Local hotels have been observing a 10 o'clock Saturday closing hour.

The order to London hotels followed a request to that effect by the London council. The council recommended that the earlier closing on Saturday be enforced throughout the province, but apparently no other communities are to be affected.

EXTORTION CASE ARRESTS GROW

Brother of Accused and Detective Are Held—Later Captured in Detroit.

IN CASE INVOLVING MR. A.

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 10 (CP) — Two more arrests were made in London's drive against an extortion ring. Gordon Erskine, whose name first came into the case at the preliminary hearing of joint charges against Vincent Foley, lawyer, and Mrs. Mae Turnbull, was arrested early this morning in Detroit by United States Police.

Erskine waived extradition and was brought back to London by Inspector Cousans of the Ontario Police and Detective Gavin Monahan, who is said to have been in Foley's employ. Erskine has been identified as the detective in the case involving Mr. "A." He is charged with:

"That between Jan. 1, 1932, and Sept. 11, 1934, with unlawful intent to extort or gain money did threaten to accuse "Mr. A" of indecent assault."

Erskine, it is believed, may give Crown evidence.

On a charge of wilfully attempting to obstruct justice Chester Taylor, brother of Frank Taylor, Jr., one of the accused in the extortion case, was placed under arrest also. He is charged with taking Erskine to the United States so he would not give evidence in the case of Rex vs. Turnbull and Foley.

PLAN RAISING SUNKEN VESSEL WAOME TO-DAY

Seek Bodies of Two Trapped When Craft Sank in Muskoka Lake.

HULK 150 FEET DOWN.

Captain Henshaw's Death Will be Investigated—Inquest To-day.

GRAVENHURST, Ont., Oct. 10 (CP) — An attempt to raise the steamer Waome, resting on the bottom of Lake Muskoka in 150 feet of water, will be made to-day. An inquest will also open to-day into the death of Captain C. W. Henshaw of the Waome, one of the three victims of the sinking which occurred during a storm on the lake last Saturday.

Bodies of two of the persons who went down with the boat are believed to be still in the craft. They are those of Arthur Thompson of Barlochan, mate aboard the Waome, and Rev. L. D. S. Coxson, retired missionary, who was on his way to Gravenhurst when huge waves and strong winds sent the steamer to the bottom.

The steamer is owned by the Muskoka Lake Navigation Company. A. Poland, diver, and a crew arrived here yesterday with equipment from Prescott, Ont., to be used in bringing the Waome to the surface.

Inquest To-day

Coroner Dr. L. McKay of Gravenhurst will preside at the inquest this afternoon into Captain Henshaw's death. With Robert Bonnis, fireman; Alvin Saulter, engineer; Reginald Leeder, cook, and George Harvie, pursuer, the captain attempted to swim ashore, but was overcome by exhaustion and sank, his body being found later, floating in a standing position. The other four managed to reach shore safely.

Fellow-captains who knew him during his 40 years' service on the Lakes, acted as pall-bearers yesterday at Captain Henshaw's funeral. Rev. James Gorwill of Gravenhurst conducted the funeral services at the captain's home in West Gravenhurst, and burial was made in Mickel Memorial Cemetery.

Citizens from various parts of the Muskoka country attended the funeral of the popular captain, who was well known to Canadian and United States visitors to the Muskoka district.

JACKIE COOGAN WORTH MILLION

Young Actor to Benefit Next Year by Trust Fund Parents Built.

BE 21—OCT. 26, 1935.

HOLLYWOOD, Calif., Oct. 10. — (AP)—A year and 16 days from today Jackie Coogan will become one of Hollywood's wealthiest young men.

Oct. 26, 1936, young Mr. Coogan will be 21 years old and at that time will come into technical possession of the huge trust fund — conservatively estimated at $1,000,000—established by his parents.

Today, however, his income is exactly $7 a week, in spite of the fact he was one of the world's most famous child actors and now is featured in an adult role in a so-called "horse opera" based on a Zane Grey novel. In this picture the now lanky Jackie Coogan portrays a hard-riding, pistol-toting cowpuncher.

A dozen years ago, when Jackie soared to film stardom, his parents began "salting away" the youngster's earnings in a trust fund. The fortune has grown by leaps and "bounds," due to careful investing.

Jackie, when he is 21, will be able to live in a manner befitting a young man of considerable means. The fortune will be his, but he'll be able to have outright only a part of the interest. When he is 55 years old, or thereabout, he can have the principal, which by that time probably will be several millions.

Meanwhile, however, Jackie is so poor that young ladies who accompany him to Hollywood functions frequently have to pay the check, or at least make it "Dutch."

Good Samaritan

MERIDIAN, Miss., Oct. 10. (C. P.)—A prisoner became a good Samaritan after a head-on collision brought injury to himself and five others.

The prisoner, George Brinson, 25, was handcuffed to Sheriff B. M. Stephenson when the crash occurred. He helped his injured captor unlock the steel bracelet, helped lift the sheriff from under their car and then carried him to a rescue car.

Brinson had been arrested on complaints that occupants of an automobile were "shooting up" passing cars.

ONTARIO TRIAL FOR VERMILYEA

Suspect Agrees to Return to Face Questioning in Mother's Murder.

ARRIVES NEXT WEEK.

BELLEVILLE, Ont., Oct. 10 (CP) Harold W. Vermilyea is expected to arrive in Belleville next week to stand trial for the murder of his 79-year-old mother, Mrs. Nathanial Vermilyea. The son, arrested in Ontario, Calif., where he has been living, has waived extradition and will be brought here by Inspector Hamar Gardiner of the Ontario Provincial Police.

Ontario Provincial Police had collected evidence to be used in extradition proceedings when it was announced last night the accused man would return voluntarily to face the charge of slaying his mother with a hatchet last Thursday night in Belleville. Mrs. Vermilyea was found slashed about the head and one hand almost severed, lying beside the home of her daughter, Mrs. J. A. Faulkner, wife of Hon. Dr. J. A. Faulkner, Ontario Minister of Health.

Vermilyea is a citrus grower in Ontario, Calif. Police allege he was in Belleville last Thursday, and that he made his way back to California by train to Chicago and then by plane to Los Angeles. They also state evidence to be used in his trial will include a cake of soap bearing the mark of a Toronto hotel where authorities claim he stayed while en route to Belleville.

Smith's Falls Pastor Chosen Moderator

SMITH' SFALLS, Ont., October 10 (C.P.). — Reports of the various committes and the question of increasing the powers of the body, today occupied the attention of delegates to the annual meeting of the Montreal and Ottawa Synod of the Presbyterian Church in Canada in session here.

The Synod yesterday unanimously chose Rev. Dr. Samuel Davies, pastor of Smith's Falls Westminster Church, as its Moderator succeeding Rev. Dr. J. D. Sanderson, of Beauharnois, Que., who is retiring.

A committee of 11 members was chosen yesterday to establish a laymen's executive in the Synod.

Former Lakefield Policeman Marries

(Special to The Examiner)

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—Harold J. Nelson, 31, a policeman and former resident of Lakefield, now of 226 Pape Street, Toronto, and Miss Marie Theresa McKinnon, 30, of Cochrane, Ont., were married here today in the Municipal Building where they obtained a marriage license. The ceremony took place in the City Chapel with Deputy City Clerk Philip A. Hines officiating.

Mr. Nelson, a son of Milton and Ethel Irwin Nelson, was born in Lakefield. Miss McKinnon was born in Walford, Ont., a daughter of Donald D. and Mary McKinnon.

FIRE DESTROYED SEASON'S CROP

MILL DESTROYED.

WARSAW, October 10 (Examiner Correspondence). — Fire early today destroyed the big steel barn on the farm of Donald Davis, just a short distance south-east of Warsaw Village. The blaze was first noticed at 3 o'clock by Mr. Davis. Although the fire call was put in and neighbors rallied quickly to the scene, nothing could be done to stop the complete destruction of the barn and its contents.

Mr. Davis rushed to the barn at the first alarm and succeeded in removing his horses. The fall season's hay and grain crop was destroyed. Only yesterday the farmer drew in his last load of buckwheat.

John Payne's threshing mill was in the barn awaiting the start of threshing to-day. The mill, a new one, was also lost in the blaze.

The barn was a new one, and is the third built on the farm in recent years. It was only partially covered by insurance.

Mr. Davis believes that some transient sleeping in the barn started the fire. Last evening when finishing his work, he shut the barn door, but this morning when the blaze was discovered the doors were open.

THREE DROWNED IN MARITIMES

Men Are Trapped as Car Plunges Off Bridge Near Charlottetown.

CAUSE UNKNOWN.

CHARLOTTETOWN, Oct. 10. — (CP)—Three men were drowned late last night when their automobile plunged into North Lake and pinned them beneath the surface.

The victims were identified as Pius McPhee, 35, Don McIsaac, 35, of St. Margaret's, and James McGregor, 40, a native of Cape Breton.

There were no other persons in the death car, and the accident was discovered by a passing motorist who saw the machine on its side in the water, below a bridge.

He reported the accident to the Royal Canadian Mounted Police, who recovered the three bodies in shallow water. Cause of the accident was not evident immediately and a coroner's inquest was to open today.

Canadian flour imported into Hongkong during the first six months of 1934 showed a considerable increase over the figure recorded for the corresponding period of 1933.

MERRITT CUP IS WON BY CAVALRY UNIT IN LONDON

Horse Soldier Must Concentrate Training on Reconnaissance Work.

OFFICERS RE-ELECTED.

Canadian Cavalry Association Closes Convention With Banquet.

Lieutenant-Colonel G. R. Pearkes, V.C., D.S.O., M.C., representing National Defence Headquarters at Ottawa, responding to the toast to "The Defence Forces of Canada" at the annual dinner of the Canadian Cavalry Association last night urged the need of preparedness for the next war which he predicted would occur within the next four years.

Pointing out that the principle function of the cavalry was that of reconnaissance, Colonel Pearkes urged the members of the association to concentrate their efforts and to direct their training towards that objective.

"I believe in the need of the horse soldier to-day. But you have got to wake up if you aim to live with the armies of the future," he stated in critical comment.

The toast to which Colonel Pearkes replied was proposed by Lieut-Colonel G. M. Endacott, V.D., of Vancouver, representing the Reserve of Officers of Western Canada.

The dinner providing the official closing item on the convention program was a colorful and well attended function held at Empress Hotel and presided over by Immediate Past President Colonel H. C. A. Hervey, V.D., of Midnapore, Alberta in the absence of President Brigadier-General J. B. White, D.S.O., E.D., who was called away from the convention by business early in the afternoon session.

KING'S MURDER SIGN OF TROUBLE

British Press Sees Complications as Firm Hand Removed in Balkans.

SHAKES PEACE HOPES.

LONDON, October 10 (C.P. Cable). —New complications in the tangled situation in the Balkans arising from the assassination of King Alexander of Yugoslavia along with French Foreign Minister Barthou, formed the theme of editorials in morning papers to-day. General tribute was paid to the King's patriotism and his efforts to achieve better understanding in Europe.

The Times says there were signs that Alexander's high personal character and devotion to duty had begun to win back many Croats whom his policy had alienated while the threatening reappearance of Germany and the threat to Austrian independence had rallied many doubters to the King's side. From the general European standpoint, the murder was all the more disastrous, says The Times since Alexander had long maintained a firm directing hand on the foreign policy of Yugoslavia.

The Daily Telegraph declares that Alexander's death at the beginning of important negotiations breaks hopes based on his courageous statesmanship that he would provide leadership towards a better understanding between France, Italy and Yugoslavia.

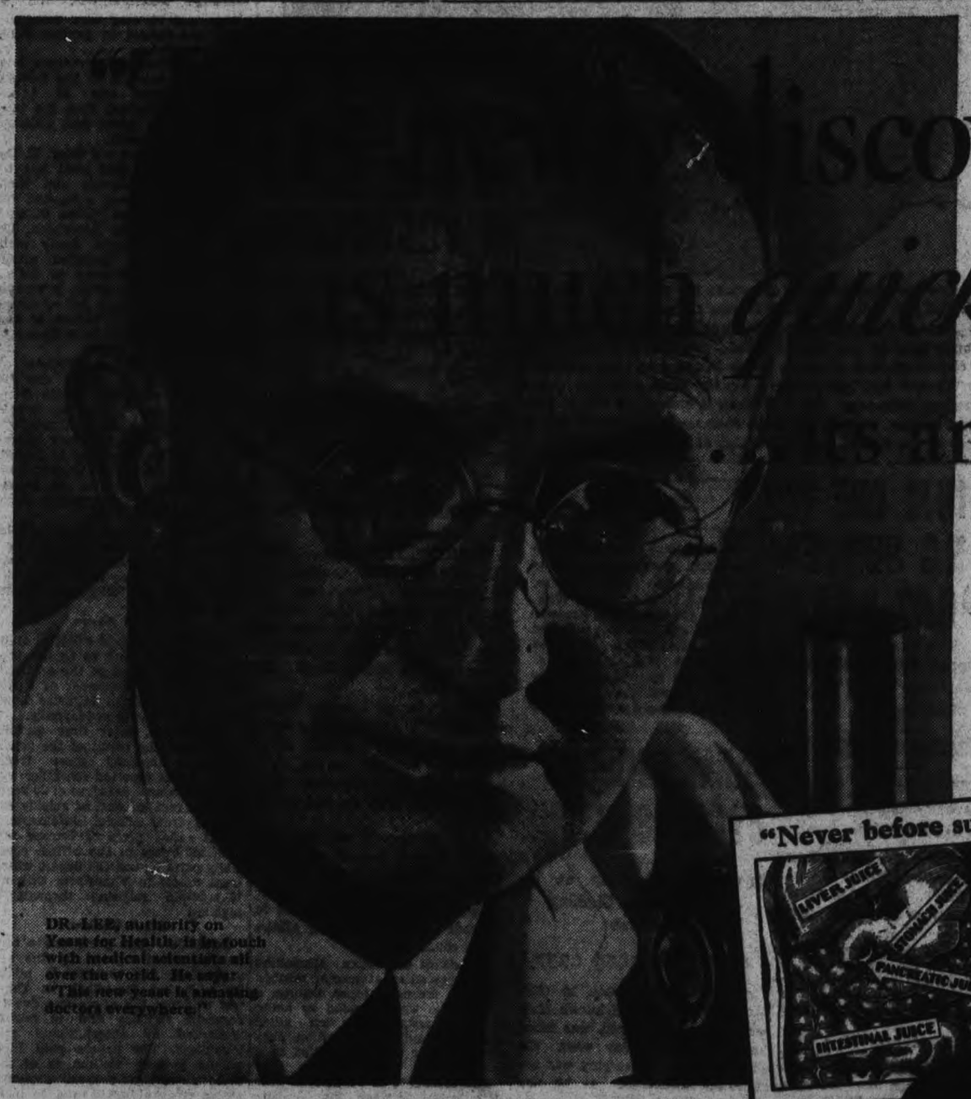
APSLEY

Mr. and Mrs. Wellington Lean entertained the members of the United Church choir and other friends at their home, "Pinecraft," on Wednesday evening in honor of the second wedding anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. R. G. Haslewood, their daughter. The evening was spent in games and other amusements, after which a dainty lunch was served by the hostess. Many appropriate gifts were received.

Among the guests were Mrs. A. W. Lean of Peterborough and Miss Mildred Hales of Forfar, aunts of Mrs. Haslewood.

Mr. and Mrs. Haslewood are leaving for Toronto shortly where Mr. Haslewood, who was a former minister here, will resume his studies at Emmanuel College.

Miss Pat Lang of Peterborough was the guest of Mrs. R. G. Haslewood last week.



...discovered Yeast ...acts quicker-acting ...amazing Doctors!"

reports DR. R. E. LEE
Director of Fleischmann Health Research

Corrects Constipation, Stomach and Skin Troubles FAR FASTER

IN 25 NOTED CLINICS all over the world now, "XR" Yeast was tested on hundreds of their "chronic" patients. "Constipation, indigestion, skin troubles corrected twice as fast," the doctors reported. "It is astonishing!"

Secret of new yeast's quicker action is its hormone-like* substances which make digestive juices flow fast and strengthen muscular action of the digestive tract... correcting chief cause of constipation, indigestion and related ailments. General "run-down" condition and common forms of skin troubles are usually relieved promptly as a result—in much shorter time than ever before with any yeast!

DR. ROBERT LATZEL, the noted clinic head, reports: "'XR' Yeast twice as quick-acting, due to amazing effect on digestive juices and muscles—by my own tests."

NEW, STRONGER "STRAIN" of Yeast, discovered in great medical college, rich in hormone-like* substances ... speeds digestive juices, muscles. (New Vitamin A combats colds!)

JUST ANNOUNCED, yet already the news has cheered millions ... has amazed doctors everywhere! Hundreds of questions have been asked. Below, Dr. Lee answers the questions asked most often:—

1. Just how is this new yeast different from the former Fleischmann's Yeast?

2. How was it Discovered ... by whom?

By a famous bacteriologist in a great medical college, who had been studying yeast for years! He was literally astonished by the far quicker action of this new yeast.

3. How do Physicians explain it?

As doctors now know, the chief reason most people get constipated, have stomach troubles and related ills is—their digestive juices and muscles have slowed up!

*This new, "XR" Yeast (that's the scientists' name for it) is exceedingly rich in hormone-like substances ("activators") which speed up these juices and muscles all through your digestive system amazingly!

4. Why does it correct Constipation and Indigestion so much faster?

Because it makes your digestive juices flow faster and muscles work harder all the way from the stomach on down! Food is more quickly softened, digested, passed along and out of your body. You soon can eat things you couldn't eat before—without experiencing that "stuffed" feeling, indigestion or constipation. Isn't that better than harsh cathartics? "XR" Yeast actually "normalizes" you.

5. Does the Skin clear quicker?

Yes! Skin troubles (usually) come from poisons that aren't thrown off by the intestines. "XR" Yeast corrects this self-poisoning—makes your blood purer—skin healthier. Pimples, boils, etc., should soon clear up.

6. Will "Run-down" feeling go?

Usually! Patients often feel better almost at once! You should start immediately to get more "good" from your food—have fewer headaches—better appetite—much more vigor.

After 40, especially, people need "XR" Yeast to correct the slowing of digestive secretions occurring rapidly after that age. It also helps in many cases of rheumatism, by correcting an often related ill—auto-intoxication in the body.

7. Will it help reduce Colds?

Yes—by "cleansing" your system and supplying newly-added "infection-preventing" Vitamin A. Fleischmann's "XR" Yeast is also rich in Vitamins B, D and G—four vitamins we all need!

EAT 2 CAKES EVERY DAY:—

... plain, or dissolved in one-third glass of water—preferably half an hour before meals. If you're taking cathartics, discontinue them gradually. Keep on with Fleischmann's "XR" Yeast after you've begun to get quick results, until you're thoroughly well. Begin now!

"THIS NEW YEAST is quicker," writes Miss Barbara Evans. "Some time ago I was 'run down' and nervous and Yeast helped me a lot. Lately I again lost my pep—tried the new, Fleischmann's "XR" Yeast. I felt better within two days. Look better, too."

WARRANT OUT FOR VERMILYEA

Ontario Asks British Consul in Los Angeles to Act at Once.

EXAMINE TAXI RUGS.

TORONTO, Oct. 10 (C.P.)—Under a provisional warrant charging murder, the Ontario Attorney General's Department will endeavor to bring Harold W. Vermilyea back from California to Ontario in connection with the killing of his mother at the Belleville home of her daughter, Mrs. W. J. Faulkner.

The department has requested the British Consul to obtain a provisional warrant on the murder charge in its application for extradition and asked to be notified if Vermilyea had waived his extradition rights.

Up to yesterday no further word had been received, according to Clifford Magone, extradition solicitor for the department.

Should Vermilyea refuse to waive extradition depositions will be taken here and forwarded to Los Angeles to start proceedings immediately, it was said.

Provincial Police, meanwhile, are continuing their investigations at this end and two motor rugs, belonging to the taxicab in which the man was believed to have travelled to and from Belleville, have been turned over to Dr. E. R. Frankish, medico-legal expert, for investigation for possible blood-stains.

Highlight Of The Vermilyea Hatchet Slaying Case In Belleville

While provincial and municipal police were searching throughout Ontario for Harold Vermilyea alleged hatchet slayer of his mother in Belleville, Ont., the wanted man, it is alleged, made a spectacular trip by taxi, train and fast aeroplane to his home in Ontario, Calif., in an effort to establish an alibi. (1) Police Chief Loch, of Ontario, Calif., LEFT, with Motorcycle Officer W. H. Hammond, who with Detective Arthur Axley, arrested Vermilyea in his California home. (2) Joe Bannis, Toronto taxi driver, who drove a man believed to be Vermilyea from Toronto to Belleville. (3) An all-metal twin motor Douglas air transport, the type of aeroplane in which Vermilyea is said to have travelled in his dash across the continent. (4) Melvin Watt, Hamilton hotel clerk, who is said to have identified Vermilyea as a man who stayed at the hotel. (5) The Ontario, California, home of Vermilyea. (6) David Danziger, Toronto taxi driver, who drove a man said to be Vermilyea, to Hamilton, Ont.

PULPWOOD CAMP STRIKE FEARED

175 Men Expected to Walk Out in Sault Ste. Marie Area.

ASK MORE PAY.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont. Oct. 10 (C.P.)—Fears of a general strike in pulpwood camps in the Sault area were held out yesterday following walk-out of 175 men who demanded higher wages and lower meal charges.

Seventy-five men walked out last week from the camps of A. Maki and L. Tauhti, while 110 are on strike from H. Hormavirta's camp at Sand Lake. Outside agitators were blamed for the trouble.

Most of the strikers drifted into the Sault over the week-end and they are holding meetings in the Finnish Hall. On Sunday 56 men from various camps met at Sand Lake to discuss a general strike but no decision was taken.

Workers at the Hormavirta camp, now closed, asked an increase from $2 to $2.50 per cord for pulp cutting and a 75 cent charge for meals a day instead of 85 cents. Men working on a monthly basis demanded an increase of $5. It was reported here none were earning less than $35 per month. The lowest wage paid to piece workers is said to be $4 per day, and some workers earn a good deal more.

YOUNG PETER II TO TAKE THRONE

Fourteen persons were wounded by the spray of bullets from Kaleman's gun. General Alfonse Joseph Georges of the French Superior War Council is near death. The others were less seriously hurt.

President Albert Lebrun and Premier Gaston Doumergue, who has taken over the slain Barthou's duties, were en route here to offer France's sympathy to Queen Marie.

Bloodiest in History.

He used a powerful automatic pistol which fired 10 shots at one pressure of the trigger when the burst died away King Alexander and Barthou were mortally wounded; a policeman who tried to save the King, and the assassin himself, were dead.

Kaleman had a bomb in his pocket in addition to the pistol. He had no chance to use it.

Two men found near him were arrested, and reports were circulated that five suspicious appearing men were seen armed, but police insisted Kaleman apparently acted alone.

While the King fell instantly, Barthou was able to leave the car. Then he fainted in the arms of a policeman and died an hour and a half later.

Surgeons revealed Barthou died believing King Alexander escaped injury. "Is the King hurt?" he asked. They told him no.

"I am so glad," Barthou murmured. "I am happy to know I was the only one wounded."

Fatal Traffic Jam.

Barthou's life might have been saved, the surgeon said, had the taxicab carrying him to the hospital escaped a traffic jam. He bled to death from a severed artery.

The assassin tried to shoot himself in the mouth, but sabre slashes and bullets from police beat him to it. He bore a tattooed death's head on his arm with the motto "Liberty or Death." A Yugo-lav identified it as the design of a Macedonian secret society.

All France was plunged into mourning, as the assassination hit French pride heavily. Not only was it the second political assassination in the country in the past two years but the French regarded King Alexander as a real friend and a guarantor of peace in the Balkans. (Paul Doumer, predecessor of Lebrun as President, was assassinated in 1932).

A Peace Union.

Among Barthou's fondest dreams was the one of bringing Italy and Yugoslavia closer together. It was in preparation for such an attempt that Alexander's visit here was arranged.

The late Foreign Minister was scheduled to visit Mussolini in late October or early November.

The assassination of the Balkan ruler 30 years after the Great War started through a similar event, made the French Government frankly anxious of the consequences.

It was believed that Kaleman was not on a list of "suspects" submitted by the Yugoslav Government before King Alexander's trip. In the first tense minutes when officials learned of the tragedy there was fear the killer may have been an Italian or Frenchman.

They admitted any spark might turn the Italo-Yugoslav hostility into an explosion.

Kaleman wore a suit containing a label of a Paris department store and no traces of his activities in Marseilles have been found. He was not registered at any hotel and it was believed he was sheltered by a friend here, whose identity is sought.

King Alexander was shot three times when Kaleman broke through police lines and leaped to the running board of the royal automobile shouting "Vive Le Roi!"

Queen's Health Saves Her

Queen Marie apparently escaped a similar fate only because the condition of her health forced her to travel to France by train instead of with the King, who came by warship.

An eyewitness said, "The procession had covered only 150 yards when I saw clearly on my right a man emerge from the cheering crowd on the sidewalk and leap with a single bound on the right footboard of the automobile.

"A series of sharp cracks followed and in the twinkling of an eye the scene of vibrant enthusiasm, so ordered and beautiful, had turned into a wild panic. People dashed from the official car or else hurled themselves upon it, seemingly gone mad.

"I saw a Colonel rain furious blows with his sabre upon a man struggling against the side of the car. I saw policemen rushing up with revolvers and firing at the man who now fired wildly into the surging crowd.

Crowd Leaps on Body

"I saw police showering blows upon a bleeding mass which no longer resembled a human being, and drag it off the square, while the crowd fell upon it, trampling it under-foot. . . .

"The King was still in the car. He had collapsed, motionless, his head on the seat. His body had slipped awkwardly to the floor."

In Scandinavian mythology, the Valkyries were the maidens, usually nine in number, who attend on Odin.

Campbellford Man Has Close Escape

Ernest Ferguson Uninjured When Frightened Horse Breaks Car Glass.

CAMPBELLFORD, October 10 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—That there are still some horses who object to motor cars was evidenced by Ernest Ferguson on Thanksgiving Day; in fact, this particular horse tried to jump right into his car, and succeeded in breaking the windshield, door handle, fenders, and causing approximately $50.00 damage, to say nothing of minor cuts from flying glass received by the occupants. Here is the story: Mr. Ferguson was driving at a moderate speed along King's Highway No. 2, about four miles east of Belleville, when a binder drawn by three horses approached from the opposite direction. The near horse suddenly reared up and attempted to demolish the motor car. After disentangling the animal, Mr. Ferguson was able to make home on his own steam, but his car will be laid up for a few days to undergo the necessary repairs.

Mr. Ferguson seems to live a charmed life. Only a year ago, he was struck by a train at a level crossing while driving on the Hastings Road, but was thrown clear of the wreckage, sustaining only slight body bruises. In Monday's mixup, he escaped without a scratch.

Fleetwood's Y.P.S. Organizes For Year

FLEETWOOD, October 10 (Examiner Correspondence). — The following officers were elected at a recent meeting of the Fleetwood Young People's Society held at the church for the purpose of reorganization for the fall and winter months: President, Harold Thwait; vice-president, Leonard Welsh; secretary, Margaret Armitage; treasurer, Thelma Davidson; organist, Ida Shea; assistant organist, Myra Cummiskey; convenors of various committees— Christian Fellowship, William Ridout, Myra Cummiskey; Missionary, Marion Davidson, Margaret Hart; Citizenship, Evelyn Tinney, Clarence Brown; Social and Literary, Edmund Staples, Fred Walker.

ROSENEATH CENTENARY CHURCH HOLDS ANNIVERSARY FESTIVAL

Splendid Sunday Services Are Followed by Supper and Program.

$90 PROCEEDS.

ROSENEATH, Oct. 10. (By Examiner Correspondent)—Centenary United Church held its anniversary on Sunday when Rev. J. F. Lane of Frankford conducted both services. Rev. L. W. Scott took Rev. Mr. Lane's work for the day.

At the morning service the choir sang "The Morning Draweth Nigh" and "Blessed Jesus Keep Me White". Mixed quartette, Misses Marguerite Burrison and Jessie Smith and Messrs. Thomas and Alvin Kelly.

Rev. Mr. Lane's text was "And Jesus answering said 'Were there not ten cleansed? but where are the nine'?" Speaking on Thanksgiving and the gratitude and honor we owe to the One who has been ever faithful in His promise by giving us seed time and harvest. Do we not neglect to return thanks for the many blessings we receive and how many are there that complain—sometimes about the bad weather or frost or seed. Are we ever satisfied or grateful to God for his blessings. Is this what a true Christian should do?

At the evening service the choir's selections were. "My Soul Shouts Glory", a mixed quartette composed of Miss Hilda Arthur, Miss Jessie Smith, Mr. Alvin Kelly and Mr. Thomas Kelly, sang "The Saviour With Me" and a solo "The Old Rugged Cross" by Miss Marguerite Burrison.

Rev. Mr. Lane delivered a splendid message from the words "I am the Good Shepherd", showing how, if we neglect to hear the Good Shepherd's voice, it is our responsibility and carelessness. He is ever ready with open doors to take us and forgive us our sins.

The excellent music provided by the choir added greatly to the cheerful note of the service.

Anniversary Supper

The anniversary supper was, as previous years, largely attended and merited unstinted praise.

Following a period for social intercourse, an appreciated program was given in the church with the pastor, Rev. L. W. Scott, presiding.

Mrs. L. W. Scott gave a song, "The Little Brown Owl" and later sang "A Fat Little Feller Wid His Mammy's Eyes." Other numbers were a solo by Luella Timlin "A Picture of Mother"; a cow-boy song by Milford Wellwood with guitar accompaniment; Miss Jessie Smith two solos with guitar. Rev. Duncan McTavish of Port Hope, the guest speaker, entertained his hearers with a talk in which humor, philosophy, bits of sadness and many original sayings were well mingled. His subject was "What Did You Make of It."

Rev. L. W. Scott delighted the audience with a recitation "St. Peter at the Gates."

Miss Hilda Arthur was the accompanist for the evening which was brought to a close with singing the National Anthem.

Proceeds of the anniversary services and supper amounted to a little over $90.

THOMAS NUGENT

(Examiner Correspondence)

YELVERTON, Oct. 10.—One of the oldest citizens of Manvers in the person of Thomas P. Nugent passed away on Friday at the home of his niece Mrs. Richard Wright, Yelverton. He was born in the Township of Manvers in 1855. In early manhood he went to Western, Ont, While living at Stratford he married Miss Annie Bean and moved to Council Bluffs, Iowa, U.S.A. at which place his wife died. In 1893 he married Mrs. Carrie Scott.

In 1906 the late Mr. Nugent identified himself with the American S. S. Union and with his wife and family of three sons moved to Logan where he gave devoted services as S. S. Missionary for Harrison County. About this period of life, his wife suffering a paralytic stroke which resulted in semi-invalidism for fourteen years, he was forced to withdraw from the work which he had learned to love. He still maintained a keen interest in Missions and for many years he supported a native missionary in South Africa and a second one in China. In April 1933 his wife passed away and in November of the same year he returned to native soil in Manvers after an absence of over fifty years. He visited childhood scenes and happily renewed former acquaintances for a brief period before illness seized him at the home of his niece, Mrs. Wright, where he passed away in his eightieth year.

Those left to mourn the loss of a loving father are two sons, E. S. Nugent of Woodbine, Iowa and P. A. Nugent, Council Bluffs, Iowa, besides a host of nieces and nephews, grandnieces and grandnephews in Ontario. A host of friends will cherish the memory of this devoted Christian.

Funeral services were held at the home of his niecce, Mrs. Wright at Yelverton, where he spent his last days on Saturday at 4.00 o'clock. The remains were forwarded from Lindsay on Saturday evening to his former home at Iowa.

ASSASSINATION ROUSES STORM

the crime should become the cause of international disturbance yet the dangers cannot be overlooked as the assassinations occurred at a moment when the international atmosphere was exceptionally charged with explosive matter."

Telegraph said: "Into whatever hands the power of Yugoslavia falls the country passes into a new crisis bereft of a capable sovereign. The tragedy is that the situation must affect all Europe."

The New Chronicle saw the murders as constituting "a very grave tragedy for all of Europe," while the Herald said: "It has all the elements of a dangerous situation."

Pope Sends Condolences

Vatican city — Pope Pius telegraphed condolences to the bereaved governments and families.

Vienna-Austria still in mourning for the late Chancellor Dollfuss ordered radio stations to cancel musical programs. The Croatian leader, August Kosbutilch said: "Only immediate action by the government in returning the power to the elected representatives of the people can prevent serious trouble. No Serbian domination in Croatia can last if peace is to be kept."

Rome—Officialdom described as "fantastic" rumors that an Italian troop movement toward the Yugoslave border was contemplated.

Twenty Years Ago

Populond' Italiu editorially compared the Marseille slayings with Sarajevo of 1914, saying: "Twenty yeas ago a cycle of European history began with a tragedy at Sarajevo. It was a racial defiance of Southern Slavs against an old empire, and from that defiance a tragic collision of nations had its origin. Now, twenty years later, we are confronted with another Slavic tragedy. . . . which throws a shadow of profound emotion over the Italian nation." The paper renders homage to King Alexander and paid high tribute to Barthou, whose forthcoming visit to Rome had excited keen interest.

BERLIN.—Chancellor Hitler sent personal condolences to Belgrade and Paris. Early newspapers which a few days ago attacked Barthou's Saar pronouncement and wondered what effect King Alexander's visit to France would have on German relations, expressed sympathy, and some viewed the result with alarm.

Complicate Situation

The Conservative Lokalanzeger declared the assassinations had "international political meaning," and several other papers maintained the tragedy had complicated the European situation. Local Anzeiger said: "Nobody in Europe or the whole world can yet predict the outcome of this bloody deed. Barthou worked against Germany all his life. . . . When death came this enmity was in abeyance however." Franz Von Papen's Germania said: "Assassin's bullets struck him down as he (Alexander) entered the borderland of European politics." Kreuz Zeitung: "The assassination will have a world-wide echo."

TO ENCOURAGE BUILDING.

The suggestion made by Attorney-General Roebuck that as a stimulus to construction new buildings should be exempt from taxation for a term of years, has resulted in a movement sponsored by the Re-employment Association of Ontario and other organizations to have such a policy put into effect.

A petition is being circulated to be sent to Premier Hepburn urging that the plight of the building industry receive the special attention of the Government, and that "if necessary a drastic emergency measure, such as an exemption from taxation for a term of years for all new buildings erected within the next three years, be enacted as soon as possible."

On behalf of this program it is pointed out that there are five times as many unemployed in the building and allied trades than in all other classes of unemployed, and that the volume of building in Ontario has fallen off 80 per cent. since 1929.

The proponents of the tax-exemption scheme declare that it is of paramount importance that building operations should be encouraged, in view of the vast amount of unemployment in the building trades, and that the surest way of bringing about the ending of bad times is to launch out on a construction program.

This, they declare, would not only take care of large numbers of unemployed in the building trades, but would put back to work many men formerly employed in factories where building material and machinery is manufactured.

The plan undoubtedly has a large measure of popular approval behind it—although it has opponents as well.

One authority declares that it is "the only constructive proposal for the encouraging of private enterprise, upon which all employment primarily depends, that has been suggested and that does not involve any expenditure of public money."

THE GREAT DEAN.

The "world" series, the annual classic between the champions of the National and American Leagues, finished yesterday with the St. Louis club, representing the National loop, winning a smashing victory over Detroit.

Canadians follow this yearly struggle with an interest as keen as their American cousins, and while fans who have never seen a big league contest are decidedly in the majority, that fact does not detract from the widespread excitement engendered by the meeting of the champions of the two major organizations.

While there is a general suspicion that the 1934 Cardinals and Tigers are by no means the greatest teams that have ever met in the world series, this year's clash was notable for the achievements of a remarkable pair of brothers, the Deans, who after pitching St. Louis into the National League championship by winning day after day in an exciting drive down the stretch, climaxed that feat by capturing two games each in the series.

The brothers Dean have been criticised—but not in St. Louis, it may be pointed out—for holding too exalted an opinion of their own pitching ability, but when two pitchers announce that they will each win two world series fixtures and then go out and do the trick in commanding fashion, there is nothing much for the public to do but accept them at their own valuation.

Such a feat would be remarkable under any circumstances, and it approaches the miracle rating when the Dean program for the last month is recalled to mind.

CANADA GOOD MODEL.

Why is it that Canada, with a system of crime-control which conforms to the basic law in the United States in every fundamental, keeps crime under control better than its neighbor to the south?

"It isn't our constitutional principles that are at fault," says Ernest Jerome Hopkins in the Rotarian Magazine. "Rather, it's our institutional sloppiness, plus our slow-footed refusal to avail ourselves of certain devices in police and court procedure, the worth of which has been abundantly established in our neighbor-nation, and which could readily be adopted or adapted by any American state."

Mr. Hopkins, who investigated conditions in Canada for the Wickersham Commission, points out the advantages of the uniform criminal code for all Canada, which is just the reverse of the chopped-up forty-eight-state system in the United States.

"We in the United States," he points out, "could have uniform laws, too, if—it's a big if—the states would all adopt the American Bar Association's Model Code of Criminal Procedure. The code is there—better than any existing code—but nothing is being done to put it over."

He points further to the selection of judges. The remark of one judge is typical of the Canadian attitude: "If I weren't life-appointed, hence politically independent, I wouldn't serve. Under any election system, those who had helped elect me would be around, demanding their price. If I were an elected judge, I couldn't be an honest man."

"Strong words," continues Mr. Hopkins, "but that seems the universal Canadian belief. They ascribe the breakdown of justice in the United States more to politics, specifically to the election of judges and prosecutors, than to anything else. For $9,000 a year, in Canada they find excellent men to serve in these positions of prestige, removed from life, embodiments of law. But then, their judges are 'somebody.' They have all but dictatorial powers on the bench. They can make rulings with firm authority, for the law itself is uniform and clear. They aren't mere umpires between warring attorneys."

Now that the 1934 world series is history that Christmas shopping talk begins to loom up on the horizon.

CANADA'S CENTRAL BANK.

Now that the $5,000,000 of shares of the Central Bank of Canada has been successfully floated, the newly established financial institution will soon be ready to begin operations.

An explanation of the functions of the new bank, as seen by the Alexander Hamilton Institute, should therefore be both helpful and timely.

They may be listed as follows: (1) to regulate the flow of currency and credit; (2) to maintain the gold reserves of the country; and (3) to regulate in the future the Canadian exchange in relation to other currencies.

The regulation of the flow of currency and credit will be carried out by the bank through the manipulation of the discount note, through open market operations and through consultation with the chartered banks.

Since the latter will borrow from the Central Bank only to meet marginal needs for credit, it is obvious that an increase or decrease in the discount rate of the Central Bank will have a decided effect upon the credit policies of the commercial banks of the country.

If, however, the discount rate should not be sufficient to regulate the volume of bank credit, the Central Bank can, through open market operations, broaden or narrow the credit base of the country. Open market purchases of Government securities by the Central Bank will invariably increase the cash resources of the commercial banks and will enable them to be more liberal with the extension of credit.

On the other hand, the sale of Government securities by the Central Bank will reduce the cash balances of the commercial banks, and might force them to call part of their loans or to liquidate some of their investments. The regulation of the new control of credit will be the main function of the bank.

Secondly, as the Institute points out, as soon as the bank begins to operate the Dominion Government, as well as the chartered banks, will deposit their gold with the Central Bank so that all the gold reserves of the country will be concentrated in one semi-public institution.

The regulation of the exchange is a matter of the future, and will depend upon the currency policies of the Dominion Government. Once, however, the Canadian dollar has been stabilized and linked to gold, it will be the duty of the Central Bank to maintain the stability of the Canadian dollar.

In contrast to a general belief, the new bank of Canada will not act as a commercial bank in competition with the chartered banks.

In the opinion of the Alexander Hamilton Institute, although Canada's banking system has worked satisfactory and bank failures have been practically unknown, the newly established bank of Canada "will undoubtedly further strengthen the banking structure of the country."

TRYING TO "BREAK" A PRISONER.

Police in United States follow a custom which is not used in this country. The plan is fairly well set forth in an extract from the news columns of the New York Times. Referring to progress made in the case against Hauptmann, suspect in the Lindbergh case, it says:

"The prisoner was kept in his cell in the Bronx County jail all day (Saturday). It was the first day since his arrest a week ago Wednesday that he had not been questioned by the investigators. Hauptmann has resisted all efforts of scores of questioners to break him down in a week and one-half, and it is now apparent that the authorities have virtually given up hope of getting a confession."

The system used in this country is different. If a man is placed under arrest and is questioned by the police he must first be warned that anything he says will or may be used as evidence against him when the case comes up for hearing in court. If the person arrested decides to say nothing and informs the police that such is his desire there is nothing which can be done about it. The magistrate will make certain that any statement used by police has been properly secured, and if there is departure from the rules the evidence cannot be considered.

A person who is questioned by police cannot be threatened, neither can any violence be used on him. It is not possible, either, to make a promise to him that if he tells the truth he will get off easy.

The plan followed in the case of Hauptmann is entirely foreign to anything known in British courts and British custom is used here. The man is considered innocent until his guilt has been established, and that guilt (or innocence) is decided upon the evidence presented.

In United States the aim of police is to secure from the accused person an admission of guilt before he is placed on trial. In dealing with Hauptmann it is reported in the Times that scores of investigators have been working on him for a week and a half, and their avowed intention is "to break him down." He is regarded as being guilty and the officers look upon it as their duty to make him sign a confession.

The system here is that evidence shall be gathered and presented in court in the regular way and a man's guilt or innocence shall then be determined.

Exactly what goes on in the "questionings" which extend for ten days or more, the public does not know. Now and then some person who passes through the performance tells of it and a wave of indignation sweeps the country. Then there is a demand for the abandonment of what they term "the third degree." There is latitude for police officers to deal with an arrested person in United States which would not be tolerated in Canada or in Britain, and torture has been resorted to in order to make a prisoner say he is guilty. The United States laws are supposed to be based on British procedure, but this extreme "questioning" is something which they have invented themselves. Certainly they never took that from the British code.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

It is to be hoped that the Ontario Government will respect Fire Prevention Week. There should be no firing during this important campaign.

The success of the 1934 Refunding Loan is assured. Canada will gain in many ways, and not the least important advantage is the fact that five million dollars a year in interest charges will be saved.

Most homes have fire hazards; many people are careless. In this combination of conditions is found the explanation for Canada's exceptionally high fire loss.

J. F. H. Wyse, general manager of the Ontario Safety League, sounds a timely note of warning to motorists in his reminder that at this season of the year there is an additional hazard caused by fallen leaves on city streets and country roads.

SCHOOL CARETAKER.

Mr. Editor,

Dear Sir,—I was more than surprised to read the account of the meeting of the Board of Education recently. Mr. Hancock may or may not have been justified in appointing a caretaker. But he was not justified in insulting the unemployed worker. What special type of man does Mr. Hancock think constitutes the unemployed? They are exactly the same as the employed excepting that they are more unfortunate. I have always given Mr. Hancock credit for at least average intelligence and the only reason I can think of, is, that he realizes that the man who has managed to exist on the meagre dole handed out by the Peterborough Relief Committee, is in such a weakened state mentally and physically, that he is not fit even to be a caretaker or janitor of a school.

Trusting you will find space for this letter.

I remain,

Yours very truly,
Geo. James.

HISTORY OF ONTARIO.

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Sir,—There seems to be a lot of unnecessary confusion in the public mind regarding the history of this province. Before 1763 Quebec extended from the Maritime Provinces (Acadia) west to Detroit and down to the Ohio River. British possessions in America were confined to Hudson Bay and the Atlantic states. In the treaty ceding Canada to England the latter came into possession of Quebec. Then the American revolution, which was climaxed by the treaty of 1783, took away from England all but a Quebec extending to and including Detroit and shorn of territory south of Lake Ontario. After 1783 refugees came flocking from across the line into what is now Ontario, and Pitt consented to the Constitutional Act by which Ontario was carved out of Quebec and given a government. As Quebec had been known as "Canada," Ontario was called "Upper Canada" and Quebec "Lower Canada" (often referred to as "Canada East" and "Canada West"). But after the rebellion Upper Canada and Lower Canada were united with separate local governments, and met first at Kingston, then at Montreal. This plan did not work, and England agreed to the union of all Canadian territories in a Dominion with local or provincial governments, and that was accomplished in 1867 and Upper Canada became known as Ontario.

J. H. BURNHAM.

THE WAY OUT

To the Editor of The Examiner,

Dear Sir,—There are two facts that tower in importance above many other present day questions, and should receive the serious consideration of the electors. The first big important fact is that the electors of this province, not once only, but several times gave huge majorities in favor of prohibition. It should be noted that the last time on which they did so was after the O.T.A. had been in force for about eight years, and we were all familiar with its good points, and also with its limitations. And with this knowledge and with our experience of the act, a great majority of the electors still supported it. The second big important fact is that we have not got the O.T.A. The question was asked do you want prohibition? The majority said yes, the minority said no. The noes have it. Now, Sir, I feel assured that your intelligent readers (and, of course, being a reader of The Examiner is an indication of intelligence) will agree that this is a most absurd and ridiculous position to be occupied by this large and wealthy province. Since when did the minority on this question acquire the right to impose their will on the majority? Well, Sir, of course we all know the reason that we are where we are. And it can be clearly set forth by quoting the famous expression that was first used by the late Hon. Thos. White, "The exigencies of party politics." Only for the "exigencies of party politics" the O.T.A. would never have been repealed, but it would have been strengthened and enforced and we would not have the L.C.A. or the beverage rooms. One does not require to have the brain of a Sir Isaac Newton to understand perfectly the reason of our present position. But the vital question is how can we pull out of the present ridiculous position? There is one way and only one. Let us learn from our previous experience. In the year 1914 we had a strong provincial government, closely allied with the liquor people. A member of the house suggested that they do something for temperance. The cabinet ministers leaned back in their chairs and laughed. They thought it an excellent joke that they who had been elected on a wet policy should then be asked to help the temperance cause. So they kept the bars open during the first two years of the war. But in 1916 the people became perfectly exasperated, and gave a great demonstration to Queen's Park, and demanded prohibition. Immediately the government stopped laughing and gave us the O.T.A. We are now in a very similar position. True we have not a war on our hands, but we have the depression, which is being greatly accentuated by the liquor traffic. If the people will now do what they did in 1916, history will repeat itself, and we will be given a referendum. And by a referendum I do not mean merely with reference to the beverage rooms, but on the whole liquor question.

Yours very truly,
J. C. Smith.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

LEDUC, ALBERTA.

Forty-five years ago Robert Taylor Telford became the first citizen of the community which afterwards became Leduc, when he settled on a homestead. He was followed soon after by George A. Liggins, and settling of the community proceeded apace.

The following year, 1890, the C.P.R. sub-divided a part of the section for a townsite for the Calgary and Edmonton railway, and the station at this point was named for Father Leduc, a famous pioneer missionary.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

I BUILT A BOAT.

I thought to myself: "I think I'll build a boat," and if I'd kept my thoughts to myself everything would have been all right . . . But I made the fatal mistake of saying (1) that I'd like to build a boat, and (2) that I thought I could build a boat and (3) that I WOULD build a boat.

After that, as anyone knows, I had to build it, and now I think that no man's life is really complete until he has built a boat and put it in the water and seen it perform . . . At that moment, if the boat is a success, his cup of joy is brimming and thinks he knows how Shakespeare felt when he finished "Hamlet", and Cortez when he conquered Mexico, and the Curies when they isolated Radium, and astronomers when they locate dark planets, and mothers when nice old ladies stop on the street and exclaim, "What a beautiful child!"

To be sure, I didn't know anything about boat building. I'd never made one. I'd never seen one made. But I did have two eyes and two hands and I could saw a board straight or even crooked and I could use a plane and I could dip a brush into a paint bucket and slather it on—and somehow or other, by trial and error, by mistake and correction, by despair and triumph I ought to be able to do what the rudest savage in the dawning of civilization was able to do.

So I built the boat. Just a little one. Of spruce and quarter-inch mahogany and oak and hundreds of little brass screws, and I calked it, and I put on a lot of bright green paint and some little brass letters for its name—and then I stood off and admired it modestly and called in my names and deprecated its beauty falsely and wallowed in their admiration and their surprise. I think I enjoyed their surprise even more than their praise—because nothing pleases the man who is sometimes amusingly called a brain worker more than to prove he can make things with his hands—if he wishes.

So there floats that little green boat, with brass fittings that I put on and the yellow paddle with the green stripes that I cut out of maple. And a little girl sits in it and she paddles all around the mountain lake and goes away out around the island as safe as she can be, and she thinks she's having a lovely time but she isn't having half as much fun as her father who made that boat with his own hands and is still wondering how he ever managed to do it and is already half-planning to build a finer, bigger one. (But this time he isn't talking out loud.)

Court Gives Valera Estate of $15,000

LONDON, October 9 (C.P.). — A Chancery Court's interpretation of the word "effects" in a will to-day gave President Eamon de Valera, of the Irish Free State the right to an entire estate at Brighton, valued at $15,000.

The estate had belonged to Miss Polly Mary Fitzpatrick, a recluse. A Probate Court last December gave De Valera the entire estate under the clause of a will awarding him "my house, furniture, and effects."

One of the heirs, all of whom were specifically disinherited by the will, appealed, seeking the award of money held in a bank account. The Chancery Court held that "effects" included this money.

De Valera planned to devote the money to a public trust similar to those to which Miss Fitzpatrick contributed during her lifetime.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Red Williams

"THE FATHERS IN CONFERENCE".

On this date seventy years ago (1864) the historic conference out of which evolved the Dominion of Canada commenced at Quebec. Few then realized its significance; now we know that it was the cradle of our confederation. There the Fathers of Confederation, the elder statesmen (and they were not so old at that, the average age being around 50) the ablest and wisest men of the provinces, evolved a new form of government. Thirty-three men, in three weeks, formed and adopted 72 resolutions and on these the British North America act was later based. They met on historic ground as has been pointed out by M. O. Hammond, the historian of the Toronto Globe, on the site of the Parliament buildings had stood the Bishop's Palace, home of Bishop Laval, in which in 1792 the first parliament of Canada (with the exception of those of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick) met. Down the hill, by the waterfront, Champlain had landed in 1608 and founded New France.

The Fathers were the first flowering of responsible government fitted by experience for their great task and responsibility. Sir E. P. Tache, premier of Canada, was chairman, but the guiding hands were younger men: John A. Macdonald, rising to the zenith of his power; George Brown, constructive and aggressive; Alexander T. Galt, a wizard in finance, a field with few trained men; Oliver Mowat, shrewd in politics and skillful in legal forms; Tupper and Tilley, controlling Maritime opinion; D'Arcy McGee, soon to be the tribune of union.

Arguments heard at Charlottetown were enlarged and reinforced and soon the main resolution, that a union be formed, was presented by Macdonald and Tilley and adopted. On finance and on the method of constituting the Senate whether by appointment or election, the conference was almost wrecked, but patience and conciliation brought solutions. All agreed on the principle of a strong central government, for at that very moment it was apparent civil war had come to the United States from too great exercise of "State rights".

And now 70 years later, we are to have a conference to amend their work. God grant that in the doing we shall not wreck the framework upon which the Fathers built so well!

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterboroughs Leading Handwriting Analyist for the Readers of The Examiner

Full name and address (complete) must be given in all samples sent in.

Marjorie E. Hall,
249 Park St., City.

Your handwriting represents friendliness and good humor. You are delightfully sympathetic and most intelligent.

You are artistic and interesting in many, many ways, because you can make a success of anything that you really make up your mind about.

You have the necessary requisites for business, such as clear-cut decisions, keen thinking, attention to routine or detail.

You should appreciate music, and be interested in out-of-door sports. Interest does not always mean participation. You are discriminating as to personal clothing, and dearly love to wear colors which appeal to your sense of harmony.

You have no very bad points, though you might think sarcasm is one of them, but when you do allow yourself to become sharp, you usually have a very good reason to be so.

The large and well-rounded capitals show excellent qualities, but I am afraid that other people reap the benefit from those traits, because it is decidedly characteristic of you to give too much to others.

You are ruled under the sign of Scorpio the Scorpion which is ruled by the planet Mars. January and July are your fortunate months and Tuesday is your most lucky day; and your most lucky number is nine.

George Vernon Butler,
Harwood, Ont.

The handwriting on your sample indicates a changeable nature. You are very much inclined to hurry over things, and therefore you are not often as accurate as you might wish to be.

Your capital letters show decided leaning toward the management of your own affairs. I do not think that you appreciate being told how, when or why, to do things.

The variable shape and size of the smaller letters represent reserve and a conservative propensity.

You should be loved for your good humor and ready wit, because one of your versatility is usually an optimist and genuine all round good sport, both morally and mentally.

The letters show that you are imaginative, but have sufficient willpower with which to enable you to overcome your imaginative ramblings.

Your terminals as illustrated in the sample show that you have a tendency to always endeavour to complete your work in all its finality, if you like your task.

Your birthsign is Taurus the Bull, ruled by Venus the goddess of Love. Friday is your lucky day and May and July, are the most fortunate months for this sign. Your fortunate number is eight.

Mae I. Lambert,
483 Bolivar St., City.

Your handwriting indicates that you are a creature of moods and subject to irritating influences at times, but the other side of your nature is fun-loving and kind.

You seem to want to express yourself in too many ways at once. This is because you have a deep-thinking, clever brain.

You are by no means stubborn, yet you create the appearance of being so. This is due to the fact that when you know you are right you adhere to your decision.

You have a way of making people surmise things about you. This creates an air of mystery and has a tendency to draw friends to you, because they are always looking for the hidden secret of your versatile personality. Secretiveness, with you, is an art.

In the business world you could be a success, especially if you were allowed to manage affairs in your own way. You are most dependable, trustworthy and jolly in your dealings with the type of people whom you meet on an every-day basis.

Your astrological sign is Capricorn the Goat, which is ruled by Saturn. Tuesday and Saturday are your most fortunate days and March and November the most fortunate months. The Ruby, Garnet or Moonstone are the correct jewels for people of your particular birthsign.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

No. 1 fresh butter gained ¾c to ⅞c at 30½c a pound. At the weekly auction, 459 boxes of No. 1 were at 30c, and 50 boxes of No. 2 at 29½c a pound. To retailers solids were 30½c to 31c and prints 31½c to 32c a pound. Receipts were 25 boxes.

Cheese was firm at 9¾c to 9¼c for No. 1 Quebec white, 10c to 10¼c for No. 1 colored; 9¾c to 10c for No. 1 Ontario white, and 10½c to 10¾c for No. 1 Ontario colored. At the auction 175 boxes of No. 1 Quebec white brought 9 5-16c and No. 1 colored 10c a pound. Receipts totalled 790 boxes.

Eggs were unchanged at 30c to 31c a dozen for A large, 26c to 29c for A medium, 21c to 23c for B and 19c to 20c for C; graded in carlots or less. Arrivals by rail were 564 cases.

New Brunswick Mountain potatoes were 45c to 50c and new Quebecs at 35c to 40c per 80-pound bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

In a listless trade, grain prices fluctuated nervously yesterday, closing at net gains for the day that ranged from fractions in wheat to more than a cent in corn, oats and rye.

The market undertone firmed noticeably following an opening dip that occurred when resting orders to sell were executed. Improved sentiment in wheat was attributed largely to a moderate rally at Liverpool, dry-weather complaints from the domestic wheat belt southwest, and failure of the Winnipeg market to reflect Monday's closing weakness here.

At the closing bell wheat was ¼c to ⅝c higher than Monday's finish. December, new, 96⅝c to 96⅞c, while corn was ⅝c to 1⅛c up; December, new, 74c to 74⅛c. Closing prices in wheat were about at the day's top, a cent higher than the early low figures. May at one time touched a high of 97⅛c a bushel.

WINNIPEG GRAIN

WINNIPEG, October 10.— Firmness at Liverpool, coupled with moderate export sales of Canadian wheat, enabled wheat futures prices to rally from early losses on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday. Values closed ⅝ cent lower, October at 77⅛c, December at 78⅛c and May at 83⅛c.

The effect of the export sales — estimated at more than 500 000 bushels — enabled futures to recover from opening declines of as much as one cent, and the presence of other buying and the stimulating tone of the Liverpool market, where prices closed ⅝d to ¾d higher; held values steady for the balance of the session.

Selling pressure, too, was light, despite country deliveries of 2,226,000 bushels of new-crop grain.

Some frost was reported from the northern regions of Argentina and it was feared considerable damage might have been done.

Export statistics for the week disclosed 11,761,000 bushels of wheat exported from all sources. North America shipped 4,364,000 bushels of this total.

Cash grains were fairly active, and most grades closed practically unchanged. Coarse grains held firm in narrow trading.

Hint Slain Woman Wife of Hunted Man

SOUTH BEND, Ind., October 10 (C.P.). — Efforts to determine whether the body of a woman found in St. Joseph's River was that of Mrs. Florence Goodrich, 25, missing with her husband, Merton, since September 20, when the mutilated body of Lillian Gallagher, 11, was found in their Detroit apartment, to-day awaited receipt from Detroit authorities of a dental description of Mrs. Goodrich.

The condition of the body was such that police believed identification would be possible in no other way. The victim had been strangled, and stuffed into her throat was a man's handkerchief with the initial "W." Goodrich was reported to have used the name "Ward" occasionally.

IMPERIAL OIL POPULAR ISSUE

FOLLOWS WALL STREET.

TORONTO, Oct. 10 (CP).—Influenced by the firmer tone on Wall Street today, trading on the industrial section of the Toronto Exchange recorded good volume and stocks sought a higher level, particularly the interlisteds. Led by a buying flurry which sent Nickel up about a point, the interlisteds showed strength. Imperial Oil and Brewing Common were also popular. Sales were in the neighborhood of the 20,000 share mark.

GOLDS DOMINATE MINING TRADING

Hollinger is Most Active of Higher-priced Issues, Shows Advance of 25 Points.

TORONTO, Oct. 10 (CP).—Gold stocks continued to dominate trading on the mining section of the Toronto Exchange today and prices generally showed a stronger tone. Hollinger was the most active of the higher-priced issues and recorded a price advance of about 25 points. McKenzie Red Lake, Siscoe and Sylvanite were prominent among the cheaper golds. Base metals, silvers and oils were quiet.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10 (AP).—Stocks pushed forward under a brisk demand today. Advances of 1 to 3 or more points were recorded over a wide front and included merchandising shares, rails and metals. The trend pointed steadily upward from the opening and late prices were around the day's highs. U.S. Smelting, Westinghouse, Air Brake and Case rose more than 3 each. U.S. Steel, American Telephone and Montgomery Ward were up 1 to 2. Transfers approximated 950,000 shares.

his lack of efficiency in not taking the only possible means to eradicate boiler rooms would have left the Attrney-General with no alternative but to ask for his resignation and the Government with no alternative but to dismiss him in the absence of his resignation. Not to have foreseen the inevitable consequences of prohibiting canvassing from door to door, namely, that the telephone would be employed to sell spurious securities is, in the ase of a highly paid public official, case of a highly paid public official, an act that can only be classed as gross negligence.

Licenses to Ex-Convicts.

"In connection with the use which Col. Drew has made of the case of an ex-convict whose license he has refused, it is noteworthy that during his administration of the Act, Col. Drew has granted securities licenses to the following ex-convicts;

Mr. 'A'—Convicted for conspiracy to defraud, sentenced to three years in Kingston penitentiary — subsequently registered as a salesman by Colonel Drew, Dec. 5, 1933.

Mr. 'B'—Convicted on charge of conspiracy, sentenced to 2½ years in Kingston penitentiary—subsequently registered as a salesman by Col. Drew, Jan. 12, 1934.

Mr. 'C'—Convicted on charge of conspiracy to defraud, sentenced to 2½ years in Kingston penitentiary —subsequently registered as a salesman, by Col. Drew, April 14, 1934.

Mr. .D'—Convicted on charge of conspiracy to defraud, sentenced to three years in Kingston penitentiary — subsequently registered as a salesman by Col. Drew Feb. 3, 1934.

Mr. 'E' convicted of theft of bonds. Sentenced to 18 months—subsequently registered as salesman by Col. Drew, March 2, 1934.

Mr. 'F'—Convicted of conversion. Sentenced to one year suspended sentence — subsequently registered as a salesman by Col. Drew May 3, 1934.

Mr. 'G'—Convicted of six charges of theft totalling $47,000 and sentenced to four years in Kingston penitentiary—subsequently registered as salesman by Col. Drew Oct. 2, 1933.

Mr. "H"—Convicted of obtaining signatures to promissory notes, by false pretenses. Sentenced to 2 months in jail. Registration as salesman, subsequently transferred by Col. Drew June 7, 1934.

Mr. "I"—Convicted of conspiracy to defraud and sentenced to three years in Kingston penitentiary—subsequently registered as a salesman by Col. Drew Nov. 14, 1934.

Mr. "J"—Convicted of charge of fraud and sentenced to one year subsequently registered as a salesman by Col. Drew Sept. 5, 1934."

Drew Speaks Out.

TORONTO, Oct. 10 (C.P.). — Lieut.-Col. George A. Drew, former Ontario securities commissioner, declared in an address to-day that "vicious abuses of public confidence which cannot be dealt with under any existing law" exist in Ontario.

The former commissioner said he had recommended to the administration in September that Orders-in-Council be passed restricting the use of the telephone by securities salesmen so that "boiler-room operators" could no longer annoy citizens. He said he suggested also providing prospectus information under the Companies Information Act similar to that required under the Dominion Companies Act.

"The present prospectus requirements in Ontario are woefully inadequate," he charged.

Assails Tipster Sheets.

He said the Province was "flooded" with tipsters' sheets in which worthless securities were associated with those of well-known reliability in order to foster the belief in the public mind that the worthless stocks were worth buying.

He also attacked three weekly publications which he described as a "more serious type of tipster sheet."

He claimed the publications were tipsters' sheets in that they opposed control of dealing exercised by the Stock Exchange and wished for uncontrolled trading."

He urged uniformity through Canada of company and securities, claiming many millions of dollars had been diverted from the country because their owners feared to invest under prevailing conditions in the Dominion. He declared almost $700,000,000 had been sent out of Canada during a period when the whole country was talking about mines "though what they really meant was that they were gambling in mining stocks."

TORONTO LIVESTOCK.

TORONTO, Oct. 10 (CP).—Hogs moved higher again on the Toronto Livestock Market this afternoon, gaining 10 cents after an unsettled opening to sell 45 cents higher for the week. Trading on the cattle division speeded up and the holdover of 2,000 was being cut down considerably. Prices held steady. Calves, sheep and lambs all held at yesterday's firm levels.

Receipts as reported by the Dominion Livestock Branch were: Cattle, 650; calves, 380; hogs, 630; sheep and lambs, 1,380.

Butcher cattle sold mostly at $2.50 to $3.75 with a few tops at $4.25. Common boners brought $1.80 to $2.25. Cows moved within a range of $1.00 for canners to $1.75 to $2.60 for butchers. A few good bulls sold from $2.25 to $2.50, while fed calves moved slowly at $4.50 to $7.00, according to quality. Stockers brought $2.00 to $3.00 per cwt.

After an unsettled opening in which packers' bids were at Tuesday's 35-cent higher level, the hog division gained 10 cents to sell at $7.10 f.o.b. for bacons, $7.45 off truck and $7.75 off car.

Lambs held yesterday's gain at $6.00 for good ewes and wethers and at $5.00 for bucks, culls and heavies. Sheep remained unchanged at $1.00 to $3.00 cwt., while calves sold at $5.00 to $6.00 for the bulk. Some choice vealers got up to $6.50 and $7.00. Grassers and heavies made $2.00 to $3.50.

LIVESTOCK QUOTATIONS.

Cattle, calf, sheep and lamb quotes remained unchanged.

Hogs, off car basis, selects, $1.00 premium; butchers, $1.00 discount; heavies, $1.50 discount; lights and feeders, $1.00 discount; sows, $4.85.

A Goat

BLAIR, Ont., October 10 (C. P.). — They're counting the damage here to-day following a rampage by Amos Reeves' billy goat.

He saw his shadow on the big kitchen window of the Reeves' home yesterday and immediately charged through the glass to land on all fours in the kitchen.

Next he made his daily visit to the schoolyard next door. Noticing an automobile, owned by the teacher, Miss Wreatha Laing, he climbed to the roof, but it wouldn't support his weight, and he crashed through.

Hunting for his goat, Reeves asked the teacher, "Who's got my goat?" and the reply was, "Your goat has got my goat."

RETURNS IN DEATH SHORT DAY AFTER

dignitaries should accompany the body of Barthou to Paris when the funeral train departed three hours after the Dubrovnik sailed for Yugoslavia.

Last Thoughts of Duty.

King Alexander's last thoughts were of his duty—the task which was his birthright.

"Preserve Franco-Yugoslav friendship," he muttered in a supreme effort before he lapsed into a coma to his friend and Foreign Minister, Bogoljub Jevtitch.

Barthou expired as he whispered, "I am so thirsty."

Like the King, however, Barthou thought of political consequences as he died. He inquired as to the King's condition while surgeons tried to save his life with a blood transfusion, and he sighed with relief when those who tried to save him told him Alexander lived He died without knowing the King had preceded him in death.

Love of France.

Alexander's dying request of his Foreign Minister was reinforced by the text of a speech which he had prepared for a reply to President Lebrun at a dinner planned in the Elysee Palace. In that speech he told the history of his father's, his own, and his people's love and admiration for France and concluded in what he would have called "one of the most solemn moments of my life" by saying the bonds of Yugoslavia and France could best be expressed by one word, "gratitude."

The King's consort, Queen Marie, daughter of the famous Dowager Queen Marie of Rumania, reached her husband's side as he lay in death in the Prefecture of Marseille.

She told the attentive mourners of her desires for her husband's burial. She suggested that he should be laid to rest in the uniform of a simple enlisted man of the Yugoslavian Army. But at last other advisers prevailed and she agreed that her husband should be buried in the field service uniform of a general of the Serbian Army—the army in which he fought in the Great War.

Honors for Barthou

PARIS, Oct. 10 (AP)—A national funeral will be held Saturday morning for Louis Barthou, slain French Foreign Minister.

Members of his family asked for a simple ceremony, but the Cabinet decided to-day a national expression of grief was proper and that the Barthou's wishes might be disregarded under the circumstances of his tragic death.

Roundup Starts

PARIS, Oct. 10 (AP)—Leaders of the Yugoslavian Separatist movement and refugees were rounded up by police to-day in a widespread search of Paris and suburbs for evidence that King Alexander's assassination was inspired by political enemies.

The home of dozens of Yugoslavs searched yielded photographs and documents which police are examining.

An undisclosed number of persons were held for questioning.

British Condolences

LONDON, Oct. 10 (CP Cable)—On the heels of His Majesty's message to the French President expressing horror at the assassination of Louis Barthou, the British Government to-day sent condolences to Belgrade on the death of King Alexander.

COURT IN MOURNING

LONDON, Oct. 10 (AP)—In respect to the memory of the late King Alexander of Yugoslavia, the Court of St. James will go in full mourning for a 12-day period ending October 22, it was officially announced to-day.

No International Trouble

PARIS, Oct. 10 (CP Cable). — The French press, expressing horror and indignation at the Marseilles assassinations, generally expressed the opinion to-day that there was no reason to fear international complications, since the assassin was known to be a "political maniac."

ALLOW BULL NETS.

PORT ERIE, Oct. 10.—(C.P.) — New York State, it was definitely learned to-day, will permit the use of bull nets on lower Lake Erie, for the remainder of the fishing season until Dec. 10, closing time. It is said an order is being mailed from Albany, N.Y., immediately.

BEST PLOWMEN OVER PROVINCE MATCHING SKILL

SEVEN CLASSES.

AGINCOURT, Ont., Oct. 10 (CP) More than 150 of Ontario's best plowmen were in action here to-day in the annual match staged by the Ontario Plowmen's Association. This year the event is being held on the farm of Frank P. O'Connor.

Entrants got away to a good start to-day. Each must plow one-quarter acre area in the alloted time of five hours. There are seven classes, providing competition for all-comers, for those who never plowed before and for boys under 18. Other classes include three-furrow and two-furrow tractors and for "green-horn" tractor operators. Results will not be known until late to-day.

Following are the judges: N. G. McLeod, Galt; W. L. Clark, Gormley, Ont.; W. A. Dickiescn, Rockwood, Ont.; L. H. Winslow, Ida, Ont.; Frank Laidlaw, Jarvis, Ont.; and James Cameron, Weston, Ont.

F. G. Fuller of London is president of the association and J. Lockie Wilson, Toronto, the managing director.

Choice of next year's meeting will be made at the annual meeting in February.

Various implement firms had exhibits at the scene of the match to-day and there were demonstrations by the Ontario Agricultural College and the Dominion Department of Agriculture.

Tourniquet Would Have Saved Barthou

MARSEILLE, Oct. 10 (A.P.).—Had proper care been given Foreign Minister Louis Barthou when he was felled by an assassin's bullet here yesterday his life would have been spared, surgeons said to-day.

A simple tourniquet, promptly applied, would have stopped the flow of blood they said.

The surgeons pointed out that Barthou, with a bone in his right arm shattered by a bullet, stepped unaided from the automobile in which King Alexander slumped, mouth open and eyes closed.

The Foreign Minister fell into the arms of Patrolman Marti, who dragged him to a taxicab and started for a hospital. Traffic jams delayed them, and Marti bound Barthou's arm with a handkerchief, but failing to apply it as a tourniquet, the surgeons said, cost the statesman his life.

HAVELOCK COUNCILLORS FAIL TO AGREE ON NEW RELIEF WORK

Program For Winter Months Goes Unsettled—Paving, Curbing Discussed.

TAX ARREARS DROP.

HAVELOCK, Oct. 10. (Examiner Correspondence). — The regular meeting of the village council was held in the council chambers on Monday evening with all the members present. Reeve Richard Sanderson presided.

The Rev. O. S. Riddick of Omemee wrote the council concerning purchase of tile for his summer lot at Round Lake. A letter from V. J. McElderry, barrister of Peterborough informed the council they should select a large number of jurors for different juries before October 10th. The insurance company carrying the village's liability risk sent along a claim form for the accidents in connection with Caroline Swayne, who issued a writ against th village last month.

Clerk H. B. Puffer read copies of letters he had forwarded to tardy tax-payers. A copy of a letter sent to W. J. Nobes in connection with the purchase of the two lots adjoining his property was read, but to date no reply had been received.

Mr. J. A. Ellis, chairman of the Unemployed Relief Board wrote the council regarding the supplying of school text books for families on relief. These are to be paid for in the usual way; but old books are to be utilized whenever possible.

On behalf of the Havelock Badminton Club, L. A. Gould, secretary treasurer, asked for a reduced rental rate of the town hall for the winter season. Mr. Gould suggested that two of the two hundred watt bulbs might be replaced by hundred watt lamps, this would reduce the lighting cost somewhat. A five hour test of the bulbs then being used had been made by Mr. Godin the hydro meter man and the cost of the juice for this period would be twenty-five cents. No action was taken in this connection. This was agreed upon.

On motion of councillors E. W. Seeney and Alfred Spencer the correspondence as read was ordered filed.

Fire Chief Roberts reported two fires during the current month. He had spent two days with investigators following the second fire, and although they were fairly certain the home had been burned, they had not yet been able to lay the blame on any person.

Police activities for the month were duly reported on and showed things in good condition. All tax bills had been distributed for the current years taxes and the arrears had been reduced considerably.

The paving of George street may be taken up with the Minister of Labour at a later date. But enquiries by unemployed taxpayers present brought the reply "not contemplating any big work just now. The council spent much time in trying to think up some good plan whereby the local unemployed might earn a living for the winter months. It was suggested that curbing might be laid along George street in preparation for the paving that will ultimately take place. Nothing definite in this respect was done.

Under unfinished business the sidewalk opposite Mr. Lancaster's home along the south side of Mathison street came up for much discussion. Two hundred feet or so is still in need of a cement surfacing. The unfinished walk near the home of Jas. L. H. Squire at the south end of Quebec street along the east side was also talked about, but nothing done. This would require about the same length of walk.

The few small accounts were ordered paid. The relief report was read showing slightly more than a hundred dollars for the past month's expanditure. This was read by J. Kinnaird, relief officer and the council moved a hearty vote of thanks along with the acceptance of the report.

The meeting then adjourned until the next regular meeting night or at the call of the chair.

Conquered Cruel RHEUMATISM Quickly—With T-R-C's

"I had to change my work owing to dreadful Rheumatism that started in my feet and later spread up through my body," writes Mr. Andrew Wilson, Ottawa. "I took many treatments of various kinds but still suffered. The pain was sharp like toothache. Confined to the house, I came on an advertisement for T-R-C's (Templeton's Rheumatic Capsules). I got relief from the first dose. I used them for a month and got back to work." Pain and Stiffness vanish when you use T-R-C's. No harmful drugs. T-R-C's give you quick, safe relief by entering your blood stream and helping drive out poisons located there. Great for Sciatica (stabbing hip pain), Neuralgia (including Tic Douloureux), Painful Neuritis, Lumbago (Lame Back), Headaches. 50c and $1 at your dealer's. 889

MERRITT CUP IS WON BY CAVALRY

Dickenson, Major T. Sanderson and Lieut. J. Bovaird were also recipients of individual miniature trophies.

With due military ceremony and dignity the Merritt Challenge Cup was filled to the brim with sparkling champagne and was passed around to be sipped as a stirrup cup by each of those present at the gathering.

Captain (Rev.) J. D. Paterson, chaplain of the 3rd Prince of Wales Canadian Dragoons, proposed the toast to "The Silent Army" which was responded to by a period of reverent silence.

"Our Sister Defence Associations" was the toast ably proposed by Past President Colonel R. M. Courtney, V.D., of Ottawa. The toast was responded to by Lieut-Colonel D. J. Lawrie, V.D., on behalf of the Canadian Artillery Association and by Lieut-Colonel J. A. Dewart, M.C., on behalf of the Canadian Machine Gun Association.

Altered Conditions

Brigadier W. B. Anderson proposed "The Canadian Cavalry Association," and Colonel the Honorable P. J. Montague, C.M.G., D.S.O., M.C., V.D., Judge of the King's Bench, Manitoba ably responded. Referring to the earlier remarks of Colonel Pearkes, the latter commented in replying to the toast, "in our branch of the service conditions have been considerably altered, and we must prepare to take our place in another war under altered conditions."

Colonel Montague spoke in appreciative terms of the splendid arrangements made by the officers of the host unit to the convention, and also remarked upon the honor of serving as an officer in His Majesty's service.

During dinner Reg Dyer's symphony orchestra stationed in the rotunda of the hotel presented a well appreciated musical program, and concluded the function with the playing of "Auld Lang Syne."

Officers Re-elected

Among the items of business transacted during the afternoon sessions in the Dragoons Mess, presided over by Colonel Hervey, was the re-election by acclamation of the entire slate of retiring officers. They were re-elected as follows: President, Brigadier-General J. B. White, D.S.O., E.D., Honorary, Lieutenant-Colonel 17th Duke of York's Royal Canadian Hussars; Honorary-Secretary, Lieut-Colonel E. A. Devitt, V.D., 4th Hussars; Honorary-Treasurer, Colonel F. B. Inkster, V.D., Officer Commanding 2nd Mounted Brigade; Auditor, Major J. W. Bain, Prescott; Council members (East and West) executive: Lieut-Colonel P. L. Johnston, D.C.M., 11th Hussars, Danville, Quebec and Major H. F. Smith, B. C. Hussars, Vancouver.

By a close ballot Vancouver was chosen as the place of the next annual meeting to be held on September 30 and October 1, 1935. Invitations were also voted on from Winnipeg and Regina.

Representatives of the C.C.A. to the Conference of Defence Associations to be held at Ottawa, were elected as follows: General White, Colonel Devitt, Colonel Courtney and Colonel Inkster.

Presentation to O.C. Dragoons

On behalf of the delegates to the convention Lieut-Colonel Claire H. Stuart, Officer Commanding the 3rd Prince of Wales Canadian Dragoons was presented at the afternoon meeting with a handsome silver trophy inscribed with the regimental crest, as a token of appreciation in which he and his brother officers were held for the work they had performed in making the convention the success it proved to be.

Mrs. Stuart was similarly presented with a bouquet of flowers by the president of the association during the course of the afternoon in acknowledgment of the contribution to the success of the function made by the ladies.

Other trophies presented were the Cavalry Signalling Challenge Cup which was accepted by Colonel Montague, O.C. 6th Mounted Brigade on behalf of the winners, the 12th Manitoba Mounted Rifles; and the Stockwell Challenge Cup accepted by Colonel Devitt on behalf of the 4th Hussars who have won the trophy two years in succession.

Life Memberships

On recommendation of Colonel Devitt, Brigadier Anderson, the District Officer Commanding was made a life member of the Cavalry Association. A similar honor was also conferred upon Lieut-Colonel C. B. Handcock, M.C., V.D., of London former O.C. 4th Hussars.

In his annual address to the association, the president expressed sincere appreciation of the hearty welcome and hospitality extended by the Mayor and citizens of Peterborough.

"I am very pleased indeed," General White stated, "to see such a large attendance at this our nineteenth annual general meeting. Every official delegate is present and every district is represented."

"As you all know, this is the first time the association has ever met in Peterborough, and as you have already participated in the hospitality of our genial hosts—the officers of the 3rd Prince of Wales Canadian Dragoons—I shall say no more in this connection just now. On behalf of the executive I welcome not only the delegates, but the representatives of Defence Headquarters, and those of the District Staff. I shall call upon Colonel Pearkes from N.D.H.Q. and Brigadier Anderson to say a few words."

Increased Interest

"It would seem from the number of officers present, who have come a distance at their own expense, that more and more interest is being taken in the work of the association."

The president congratulated the 1st Hussars on the winning of the Merritt Challenge Cup this year; and the 4th Hussars on winning the Stockwell Challenge Cup for machine gunnery.

In order to aid competitions to promote efficiency in cavalry regiments throughout the Dominion, the president offered to the executive a trophy, which he trusted would do much to attain the objective for which it was tendered.

Through Colonel Hervey, a former commanding officer of the 15th Canadian Light Horse, Calgary, the president, extended his congratulations to Major J. H. Beatty of that Regiment, on winning the Guides Challenge Cup. "This strenuous cross-country competition," he stated, "involved map-reading, jumping and horsemanship in general, was won this year by Major Beatty. Lieut-Colonel J. Fred Scott, his commanding officer, also secured one of the first five places, in open competition with officers of the permanent force—Land Strathcona's Horse, Royal Canadian Horse Artillery and Signals.

Luncheon at Kawartha

Following the morning business session the delegates were the guests of Brigadier-General White, the president at luncheon at Kawartha Golf and Country Club, where a toast to him—the only one with the exception to a toast to the King—was ably proposed by Lieut-Colonel Claire H. Stuart, O.C. of the 3rd Prince of Wales Canadian Dragoons.

Brigadier Anderson on behalf of Military District No. 3, which he commands extended a welcome to the delegates on behalf of the District and congratulated the officers of the 3rd Dragoons and the civic authorities on the splendid arrangements made for the accomodation and entertainment of the delegates.

FIRE PREVENTION BULLETIN

Fire Chief George Gimblett today issued an appeal for the elimination of fire hazards in basements. "It has been found that most residence fires start in the basements, usually from preventable causes," he stated in making the appeal. Fire starting in the cellar works its way up into the house through the partitions and may involve the whole house if not discovered almost immediately, he warned.

Possibly the chief source of trouble is the accumulation of old papers, rags and rubbish in basements, especially during the winter, the Chief said. Most householders allow this condition to develop unconsciously, postponing cleaning until the spring. A spark flying into the rubbish is apt to set it afire. If an oily rag or one smeared with paint happens to be in the pile, spontaneous ignition may result.

The Chief also condemned the practice of placing ashes in barrels or other wooden containers. Frequently the ashes are still hot, and the final result is the burning of the container and the spread of the fire. "Any metal receptacle will do for ashes but do not use anything wooden," he said.

Often during cold weather, blow torches, hot coals, burning paper or other dangerous devices are used to thaw out water pipes. The Chief's aversion to that practice was clearly evident. He pointed out that rags dipped in hot water and wrapped around the pipes were quite effective without any danger of an unseen spark flying into a crevice and causing fire in the partition or studding. He warned also against piling wood too close to the furnace or stove and against the building of wood partitions too close to heat sources.

"The Fire Department doesn't want to give the community the impression that it is composed of killjoys who wish to dictate how homes are to be managed," he concluded. "But we do wish to help the citizens in preventing fires in their homes and places of business. If at any time anyone is uncertain about something that might possibly be a fire hazard, we should be very glad to inspect the questionable conditions and suggest a remedy. Fires in basements are dangerous as they are apt to spread so fast as to cut off escape for occupants in a house. When fires break out we are always ready to fight them but we feel that we can serve the community even more by helping folks to prevent fire."

ROGERS-MAJESTIC CONTINUES BUSY

Sales for First Six Months of Current Year 2.41 Greater Than 1933.

One of the bright spots in Canadian industry at the present time is Rogers-Majestic Corporation Limited. It is reported by D. G. Mackenzie, Vice-President and General Manager, that sales for the first six months of the company's current fiscal year, to the end of September were 2.41 times that of the same period in 1933. In other words sales totalled 241 per cent. of the same period last year.

Continuing the progress that has been noted so far this year, Rogers-Majestic's sales in September totalled 290 per cent. of those during the same month of last year. The improved business the company is experiencing has resulted in an increase in the payroll from 700 to over 1000 employees, a new high in the history of Rogers-Majestic.

64 Aeroplanes Enter 11,000 Mile Flight to Australia

EIGHTY WORLD FAMOUS FLIERS TO RISK LIVES IN LONG FLIGHT

Sixty-four Aeroplanes to Race For Prize of $75,000.

11,000 MILES.

By FRANK CHAMBERLAIN.
Central Press Canadian Writer

TORONTO, Oct. 10.—Through the fogs of Europe and the sand-storms and milder monsoons of the East, aviators who have crossed oceans, spanned continents at amazing speeds, climbed over mountain tops and won races and set records of all sorts will wing their way on October 20 when aviation's greatest race, a perilous 11,000 mile aerial derby from London, Eng., to Melbourne, Australia, will offer prizes of $75,000 to the winners.

Sixty-four aeroplanes and more than 80 pilots are entered in the race from Great Britain, United States, France, Holland, Denmark, Italy, Portugal, Sweden, Germany, Australia, New Zealand, India and New Guinea. Canadian aviators are chagrined and bitterly disappointed that the Dominion will not be represented in the air derby, according to Capt. Earl Hand, of the Toronto Flying club. Inability to find sponsors who would guarantee the cost of entering a machine—some $30,000 or $40,000—was given by Captain Hand as the reason for Canada's failure to compete.

Three new types of aeroplanes are being built, one for the Mollisons (Amy and Jim), one for Bernard Rubin, and the third for Tom Campbell Black and C. W. A. Scott. The new type of aircraft is described as having "a long, slender fuselage, set on a low and tapered wing carrying two engines of the Gipsy VI. type set in the leading edge of the wing". When the landing wheels are retracted into the engine nacelles, the aeroplanes give the appearance of speed thoroughbreds. Scott holds that the guaranteed speed of the machine, 200 m.p.h., will be exceeded.

The race, a combination of speed and handicap events, is to start early in the morning of Oct. 20, from Milden Hall, the Royal Air Force aerodrome, in Suffolk, and is to culminate centenary celebrations which have been under way in Melbourne and Victoria. A candy merchant, Sir MacPherson Robertson, of Australia, is the sponsor of the contest which, according to air authorities, is bound to present thrilling hazards and risk the lives of many contestants.

Given an average speed of 200 miles an hour, an aeroplane might reach the winning post in three days, and still have allowed its pilot 12 hours on the ground in the course of the journey. The two limiting factors will be the power of endurance in hard-driven engines and the ability of the pilots to do without sleep and still remain efficient. The contestants may fly day and night if they care to—they may even arrange to refuel while in the air.

Five Stopping Points

Five stopping points have been arranged to break the journey—these averaging some 2,000 miles apart. They are, in order, Bagdad, Allahabad, Singapore, Darwin and Charleville. In addition to these points, there are optional landing places along the route, arranged principally for the aeroplanes flying under handicaps based on their wing areas, pay loads and horsepower.

Some of the world-known fliers who have entered in the flight include Col. Roscoe Turner, Clyde Pangborn, Wiley Post, Capt. Harry Lyon, Mrs. Louis Thaden, Ruth Nichols and Laura Ingalls. Of course, it wouldn't be an air meet without the Mollisons, so well known in Toronto following their ill-fated attempts to fly to Bagdad from Wasaga Beach. There are numerous women fliers in the race.

Aviation circles were disappointed when it was announced last week that Sir Charles Kingsford-Smith had withdrawn from the race. Sir Charles is known for his round-the-world flight in the "Southern Cross" in 1928. He has made several flights between England and Australia, and once made the trip in 7 days, 4 hours and 47 minutes. The record for the London to Australia flight is held by Lieut. Charles T. P. Ulm, who in 1933 flew the distance in 6 days 17 hours and 56 minutes.

Famous Britons Compete.

Britain's entries in the race include G. E. Lowdell, A. L. T. Naish, C. G. Davies, William Courtnay, D. E. Stodard, H. L. Brook, T. Campbell Black and S. Jackson. Even better known than these are the Mollisons, Col. J. C. Fitzmaurice and Mrs. Jessie M. Keith-Miller. Col. Fitzmaurice, former chief of the flying service of the Irish Free State, flew with Capt. Hermann Koehl and Baron von Huenefeld from Ireland to Greeley Island, in 1928, when The Star scooped the world by sending an aeroplane carrying Duke Schiller and Fred Griffin, Star writer, to the scene of their arrival. It was the first flight east to west over the Atlantic.

The Mollisons are a remarkable pair of fliers. Jim Mollison was the first aviator to fly the Atlantic solo from east to west, that flight being from Ireland to New Brunswick in 1932. The following year he and Mrs. Mollison flew from Wales to Bridgeport, Conn., thereby giving him the distinction of being the first man to fly the North Atlantic twice from east to west, and making Amy the first woman to have flown east to west over the Atlantic in an aeroplane. They, too, have made remarkable solo flights from England to Cape Town, Mrs. Mollison bettering her husband's time by more than 10 hours. She also made an amazing solo flight from England to Australia. Mollison has flown from Africa to Brazil.

It won't be Mrs. Keith Miller's first trip to Australia. She has done it before and has made numerous other long-distance flights. Charles W. A. Scott has made the trip before, too.

Nine Try for Speed

Nine of the aeroplanes entered in the race are in the speed event alone—for which the first prize is $50,000 and a gold cup; second prize $7,500, and third prize $2,500. Twenty-seven of the aeroplanes will contest the handicap prize alone, $10,000 for the winner and $5,000 for the runner-up.

Dust storms, sudden tropical typhoons, the far eastern monsoon, long desert and forest sections all provide perils for the aviators. Sir Alan J. Cobham will testify to that. He flew 25,000 miles from England to Australia and return, and had to overcome almost every kind of barrier, both natural and human. An Arab bullet killed his mechanic, Sergeant Elliott, near Basra. Monsoons held him in Siam for five days.

The twelve aeroplanes from the United States will represent nine different makes. There are six French entries, representing five different firms. New aircraft are being entered by the De Havilland and Airspeed firms in England. Wiley Post is named by many as the most likely of the winners, but all agree that anything might happen in such a flight.

It will be a world spectacle, marking another advance in man's effort to annihilate distance.

The Boss Pays

LOUISVILLE, Ky. Oct. 10. (CP). — Mrs. James Alvey of Chicago, Ky., didn't mind telling Judge Charles I. Dawson in federal court that she is the boss of their farm.

"I guess that's right," Alvey agreed.

Mrs. Alvey said her husband didn't know anything about a deal to rent a still on their place. Judge Dawson dismissed charges against Alvey, gave Mrs. Alvey fines of $600 and jail terms of seven months but probated sentence.

CHILDREN'S AID DIRECTORS MEET

Hon. G. N. Gordon, K.C., Asks to Resign From the Directorate.

Yesterday's meeting of the Board of Directors of the Children's Aid Society had a distinctly feminine flavor. Seven ladies arrived before the two men members showed up.

Mrs. J. S. Fanning was in the chair in the absence of the president, and other members present included: Mesdames J. J. Lynch, L. Yeates, H. W. Darcy, J. Welsh, E. F. Lawsence, N. Henry, C. Wright, also E. B. Fowler and H. B. Cowan.

J. Edgar gave the superintendent's report, as follows: Applications for children, 2; children brought to shelter (not wards), 6 (five of these were from Galway); wards placed out, 2; wards returned to shelter, 2; mileage covered, 650; parents or guardians prosecuted, 1; court attendance, 2; children sent to Industrial School, 1; children involved during the month, 30; places visited, Smith, Warkworth, Otonabee, Springville, Galway, Mimico, Ennismore, Douro and Hastings; mail received, 28; mail sent out, 79.

A letter was received from the Hon. G. N. Gordon, signifying his wish to resign from the directorate of the society, owing to lack of time to attend the meetings.

Mr. Edgar also reported that an account received some time ago from Nicholls Hospital for $6.75, including $5 for X-ray and plaster cast work, in connection with a ward's fractured arm, had been paid to the extent of $1.75, the society having never in the past been in the habit of paying for such items or use of the operating table at the hospital. The account was sent to the society once again, with a request that the $5 be paid.

E. B. Fowler, a member of the board, who is also a member of the Hospital Board, was of the opinion that the account should be paid. The matter was left over for further consideration at the next meeting.

The following accounts were passed: E. L. Payne, $1.24; H. W. Nigh, $7.80; J. H. Whatley, $2.65; Herbert Allen, $1.54; J. John, $2; W. S. Begue, $2.35; Bell Telephone Company, $9.20; Campbell's Dairy Products, $8.55; Fitzpatrick & Geraghty, $12.89; Peterborough Hardware, $2.56; Purity Bakeries, $6.01; Woolworth Company, $2.40; Darcy Foster, $30.42; J. H. Vance, $19.50; Dewart Bros., $1.80; R. Fair & Company, $3.51; A. McDonald Lumber Company, $3.18; R. J. Soden, 90 cents; Joseph Stewart, $2.50; John Edgar, $3.73; R. Hall, Ltd., $1.16; Canadian Department Stores, $35.09. Total, $150.98.

A donation of 20 loaves bread was acknowledged from Meagher and Pearcy.

CHANGES HIS MIND.

PITTSBURGH, Pa., Oct. 10 (CP). —Arrested after he admitted ownership of a still and moonshine found in his home, Michael Sapsara, 27, told Magistrate McNutt that his mother, Mrs. Julia Sapsara, 48, was the owner.

The son was freed. Mrs. Sapsara was arrested.

RADIUM ORE IS BEING SHIPPED TO PORT HOPE

Inaccessible Country

"Radium in the arctic!" But how to bring it to the world through 1,500 miles of virtually inaccessible arctic wastes! Aeroplanes could make the journey in eight to twelve hours. But could not take out sufficient ore to make such transportation economical. By canoe and scow, many portages, and fierce artic and sub-arctic storms must be overcome. The latter route lay west across Great Bear Lake on the arctic circle, and down Great Bear River to the mighty Mackenzie River, for a long struggle against its current, past Fort Simpson to Great Slave Lake, across this vast, turbulent inland sea to the Great Slave River, with again an upstream haul to Lake Athabasca and via the Athabasca River to Fort McMurray and the rail head. Hence to Edmonton by rail and on to eastern Canada, nearly five thousand miles in all.

Practically every pound of pitchblende finding its way to the present Port Hope radium laboratories makes this long, bitter voyage.

Preliminary refining is accomplished on the property, during three summer months, with machinery flown in piece by piece and assembled there. Hardy, courageous rivermen haul and paddle the ore in bags to the Mackenzie River scows.

Funds for the venture are supplied by Eldorado Gold Mines Ltd., a company controlled within the empire.

In the Toronto office of this company, Marcel Pochon, one of the world's great radium experts and chemist-in-chief to the company, outlined the background of this struggle for the world's most precious substance.

"It is a struggle, but for magnificent ends," said Mr. Pochon. "Our plant was constructed in the winter of 1932-33 and was in operation in January, 1933. The first radium was produced in May, 1933—just three years after the original arctic discovery of LaBine, and a feat of speed all on its own.

Only Pound in World

"Not only had the special machinery for refining to be brought overseas, but it had to be specially adapted to extraction not only of radium, but of silver, which is present in large quantities in the pitchblende. This process has been successfully developed in Port Hope for the first time in history. Otherwise the process is the same as that in the Belgian Congo and elsewhere."

Ponchon's story of the dramatic struggles undergone to bring the ore to the refinery strikingly highlighted the final result.

"To date we have produced five and one half grams of radium!" he said proudly.

"Five and a half grams." The writer made a hurried mental search and recalled a school-learnt table showing there to be 460 grams in a pound. "How much radium is there in the world today"? I countered.

"A fraction more than a pound," was the reply. "That is all."

"And the cost per gram?" "Fifty thousand dollars to $70,000."

The pitchblende from Great Bear Lake shows probably the highest radium content of any such ore known to exist, yet it took sixty-three tons of laboriously-transported ore to produce these few tiny pinheads of the precious substance.

At that they nearly lost it.

Only a limited number of claims a season may be staked on government ruling. Therefore, rich as the original claim site appeared to be, LaBine and St. Paul staked only two initial claims at Echo Bay.

Rivals on Claim

They left Echo Bay and pushed on, still prospecting, dragging their sleds across the ice of the lake, keeping their own counsel about pitchblendes and silver. By the time supplies arrived to refit them after their long full winter sojourn, the lake was alive with copper prospectors. They became desperately uneasy about their claim. In July salvation arrived in form of a free-lance pilot and an aeroplane, which they promptly hired for the journey back to Echo Bay.

As they poised in mid-air preliminary to the landing on the waters of the bay, their hearts almost stopped beating. From the very site of the find on which they had staked only the two small claims, arose the smoke of a rival camp fire.

"We're sunk!" exclaimed LaBine Very heartily now they wished they had staked the full claim when opportunity had faced them.

But the prospecting party did not seem to be in the high spirits expected of men who sit over a vast fortune in metal. They seemed depressed. "Nothing here," their spokesman said, "We're pushing on."

They had failed to recognize pitchblende, and regarded silver as small potatoes when faced with ore transportation from the arctic. To LaBine's incredulous delight the rival crew passed on. LaBine and St. Paul staked eight more claims.

CAPITALISTIC FIRMS PAVING WAY FOR THE C.C.F. DR. COTTON SAYS

Dr. Lorna Cotton Addresses C. C. F. Club in Place of Dr. Luke Tesky.

CO-OPERATIVE SCHEME.

"Canada Packers, Imperial Tobacco and the other great capitalist outfits to whom you were introduced during the Stevens probe are doing a great job for us. We love them! They are leading the people to the end of their patience with the laissez-faire capitalistic system. They are paving the way for our program."

This was the declaration of Dr. Lorna Cotton, president of the Peterborough C.C.F. Club, as she addressed the second of a series of fall and winter meetings at the Paragon Hall last night. In the absence of Dr. Luke Tesky, of Toronto, a member of the provincial executive, originally scheduled to speak but unavoidably detained, she uttered a plea for constructive thinking and the support of the C.C.F. program co-operative economic system. A group of forty men and women attended.

"The state to-day has three great powers within its confines," Dr. Cotton declared. "They are the forces of economics, of religion and of politics. These powers are now clashing. We must find the proper place for each of these powers and keep each in its place."

Evolution of the Evil.

Focusing her attention on the "economic force," she drew a graphic outline of the evolution of the so-called capitalistic system. With the arrival of the industrial revolution, industry came into being on a large scale. At first the capitalist was quite an innocent individual, owning his single factory or his single coal mine. But he soon saw the power he would have if he should get control of great groups of industries, mines, banks and other economic units. He did so. His control grew to what it is to-day—a tyranny, she declared.

"The slogan of the C.C.F. is not 'Down with capitalism,' as many persons think. Capitalism is not a thing which can be put down. The C.C.F. does not say 'Down with capitalism.' We say simply it is time we passed out of capitalism. We have outgrown capitalism and it is time we passed into a co-operative system.

Co-operative System.

"The C.C.F. program is designed to put this co-operative system into effect. And the amazing thing is that the co-operative system is the natural development. We are not proposing a revolution. We are proposing to let the economic system evolve from its present stage of capitalism into the new order which is naturally next in line."

The laissez-faire principle—hands off business—to which Mr. Bennett and Mr. King cling so tenaciously, is utterly impractical, the speaker declared. In all history the only periods in which the laissez-faire system has worked have been those periods when the demand for commodities was greater than the supply. To-day the supply is greater than the demand. The principle of hands-off-the-capitalist is worthless to-day. To make it work we should have to go back to the simple economic life lived by our forefathers three centuries ago. We are unwilling to do that, so we must scrap the laissez-faire principle, she asserted.

Power of Ballot.

Outlining the federal platform of the C.C.F., Dr. Cotton declared the C.C.F. is ready to wipe out capitalism and throw laissez-faire into the discard. "We are not proposing to do it by force. We are teaching the people the power of the ballot."

Chairman George Leader said the great majority of people are ignorant of the true objects and purposes of C.C.F. It was that ignorance which defeated the C.C.F. in the recent provincial election. Many voters had the ludicrous idea that the C.C.F. advocates confiscation of all property, that the C.C.F. is a Communist organization. The series of educational meetings which have been begun by the Peterborough C. C. F. Club are for the purpose of educating the public to the true facts, he said.

Canada was the largest supplier of fertilizers to Southern Rhodesia in 1933 and she was also the third principal supplier of foodstuffs during the same period.

LEAGUE OF NATIONS IS EMERGING FROM SHADOW OF FUTILITY WITH ADMISSION OF THE SOVIET UNION

Return to Days of Aristide Briand Are Seen by Van Paassen.

PESSIMISM GONE

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN
Central Press Canadian Writer

GENEVA, Oct. 10.—The League of Nations, so long the object of facile denunciation and criticism, is emerging from the sombre shadows of futility in which it has lain since the death of Aristide Briand. The great days of the past are back again. Even some of the veteran statesmen assembled here, of whom there were several who had grown pessimistic of late years, felt the invigorating repercussion of the historic event that was the entry of the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics into the international union. The chairmanship, too, this year was handled with a new authority, both vigorous and delicate, by Mr. Sandler, Sweden's foreign minister, a passionate friend of peace whose spirits were no doubt heightened a good deal by the announcement which came while the league was in session that the Socialist party, of which he is the leader in his country, had obtained a clear majority in the elections that were held in Sweden.

For about a week the outlook was puzzling. The moral atmosphere in the city of Calvin, which is also the city of Jean Jacques Rousseau, was electric with expectation. The strangest rumors were current. One moment the Journal de Geneva not long ago one of the staunchest upholders of Liberalism, but recently passed into the hands of a reactionary group, announced with great din that Litvinoff had mysteriously disappeared. Then it was said again that the prime minister of Canada had the intention of producing a sensation by renouncing Russia, and so splitting the British Empire vote.

Rumors Exploded

Another rumor on the morning of the historic event had it that hostilities had broken out in the Far East between Japan and the U.S.S.R. However, Maxim Litvinoff appeared in the dot. Mr. Bennett adhered strictly to the announcement he made on reaching Paris to the correspondent of the Chicago Tribune to the effect that he did not oppose the entry of the Soviets in the League of Nations, and Japan merely arrested a few more U.S.S.R. citizens employed on their country's own railway in Manchuria.

The days immediately preceding the entry of the Soviet Union into the league were also marked by a feverish propaganda on the part of the armament lobbyists, who had sandwichmen parade the streets of Geneva with signs saying that Communism meant the destruction of home, family and religion, and that Litvinoff's real name was Beer and that as such he was a fugitive from justice in France on a charge of counterfeiting. A mass meeting of reactionary and "white" Russian elements which was to have voiced a strong protest against the U.S.S.R.'s entry, was forbidden, however, by the Socialist president of the Canton of Geneva, M. Nicole.

May Move to Norway

Switzerland's official negative stand on the question of Russia's membership, voiced by M. Motta, the little republic's foreign minister, who held a childish speech in which he summed up all the alleged crimes of the Bolsheyiks, but carefully avoided reference to what may be called the police record of certain other states, has plunged the country in a grave state of apprehension now that Russia is a member.

It is feared by sections of the Swiss press that Russia in retaliation for Switzerland's opposition, as a member of the Council of the league, may propose the removal of the league's headquarters from Geneva to Norway or Denmark. Norway is indeed making a strong bid for the housing of the league secretariat and all the other departments by pointing out that the cost of living in Norway is but half of what it is in Geneva. A transfer of the league machinery, it is said, would result in an annual saving of 14 million gold francs or nearly three million dollars at the present rate of exchange.

When Litvinoff and his associates entered the hall a storm of applause broke out in which many visitors in the gallery joined. The president, Mr. Sandler, rose, as well as M Barthou of France, H. Titulescu of Roumania, Mr. Anthony Eden and Sir John Simon of Britain, as well as the delegates of Spain, Mexico, Norway, Denmark and Italy, Baron Aloisi.

Of Historic Importance

I noticed that several old-timers of the press, usually so hard-boiled and unconcerned, rose to their feet and joined in the tribute to the Bolsheviks. Everybody present, I dare say, sensed the historic importance of the moment, a state of 180 million inhabitants, whose influence extends over two continents, adding its great moral prestige and its unquestionably sincere desire for peace, to that of the other civilized nations. One could not help in that moment but regret the absence of a representative of those other great nations, Japan and Germany, whose very estrangement at this moment stood as a tacit reproach of their imperialist militarism. Many, no doubt, also deplored in that solemn hour the continued absence of the great republic in the mind of whose president, Woodrow Wilson, the league had its conception.

Headed by Maxim Litvinoff, the Russian delegates made an excellent impression. The people's commissar for foreign affairs was accompanied by Boris Stein, Soviet ambassador to Norway, and Alexander Rosenberg, charge d'affaires of the embassy in France since Ambassador Valentin Dovgalievsky's death.

Makes Sober Speech

The president, Mr. Sandler, welcomed them in a hearty speech, and when Litvinoff finally mounted the rostrum amidst a renewed outburst of applause, the assembly heard one of those sober and matter-of-fact speeches with an undercurrent of idealism, hope and optimism, for which the Russian leader is famous. Mr. Motta, the Swiss chief delegate's apprehension that the Russians would utilize the first opportunity they should get in putting over a lot of "atheistic and Communistic propaganda" did not materialize. Any other statesman with the grasp of world affairs that Litvinoff has could have held that speech.

Immediately after Litvinoff's address there was a recess during which many of those present took the opportunity of congratulating the Russian delegate on having led the negotiations leading to his country's admission to a successful conclusion.

One man, who kept his seat and who for a long time afterwards seemed to be sunk in deep reverie and meditation was Mr. Eamonn de Valera, president of the Irish Free State.

At the next session of the council of the league Mr. Litvinoff will act as president, it was unanimously decided. In other words, a Communist will succeed a Socialist in handling the debates of a body which some have called, slightingly a mere instrument of French and British imperialism.

To Attempt Channel Crossing On Foot

Emil Friedrich Walther, German inventor now residing in Windsor, Ont., startled the Montreal harbor board last week by demonstrating his ability to walk on water in his water shoes which he has just invented. He will sail this week for Europe in the Alaunia and intends to walk across the English Channel from Calais to Dover. He expects to do be able to do this in eight hours, maintaining a speed of about three miles an hour. Each shoe weighs about 55 pounds and contains carefully placed balances. He propels and balances himself by means of the bamboo poles.

PLANS ARE MADE TO PRODUCE PLAY

Warsaw Ladies' Guild Meets at Home of Mrs. Albert Cooper.

WARSAW, Oct. 9 (Examiner Correspondence).—Mr. and Mrs. Albert Cooper opened their home on Wednesday evening, October 3, to the members of the St. Mark's Ladies' Guild, of which there was a full number present. Rev. Mr. Bousfield and Mrs. Bousfield were present. The usual routine of the guild was followed, plans were made for the production of a play. After the business was over the company spent a happy social evening, and a splendid supper was served by the hostess, assisted by members of the guild.

United Church W.M.S.

A good representation of the United Church W.M.S. met at the parsonage on Thursday, October 4, in the afternoon. Mrs. Wilkinson presided. It was announced that the bale had been packed and sent. Those who wish to send books, magazines and picture cards are asked hereafter to have them sent separately from the clothing, the expense of sending is less.

Miss Mitchell, Field Secretary, will be in Warsaw United Church on Monday evening, November 5. All interested in mission work of any denomination, will be welcomed.

The Virginia Jubilee Singers will be in Warsaw United Church on Saturday evening, October 20, the proceeds to be divided equally between them and the W.M.S.

The singers will also assist in the praise service at the morning church service, which will be held on Sunday, October 21. Zion congregation will hold its anniversary service in the evening of October 21.

The November meeting of the W.M.S. will be in charge of "C" group on November 8, when the annual thankoffering will be given.

Mrs. Roland Payne and Mrs. Arthur Payne sang, "Speak a Good Word for Jesus".

Mrs. David Taylor read the W.M.S. financial report. Mrs. Arthur Edwards read a very interesting account of following our supplies to their destination. Miss Charlotte Dewart read a description of following our funds to the field, and Mrs. G. G. Taylor an account of the missionaries in their work.

Contrary to the general rule of reports, these papers, condensed from the general report and typed by Mrs. Wilkinson, were intensely interesting.

Mr. Copp, Inspector Public Schools, has kindly consented to give a talk on a few points bearing on school welfare and work on Thursday evening, October 11, in the Institute rooms.

Year's Programmes Are Given Approval

The Caledonian Club held the first business meeting of the fall season recently in the Woodmen of the World Hall. The president, A. D. Clark, presided over an encouraging attendance, and some new members were enrolled.

After the regular routine business, the social programs drawn up by the executive and constituting the balance of the year, were submitted to the members. Most of them were sanctioned, and promise attractive pastimes for the members.

This year marks the twenty-first anniversary of the club's inauguration, so next week a "coming of age" banquet will mark an event so important in the history of this social club. The present members anticipate a large gathering for this auspicious occasion, when they hope to meet many Scots who used to be active in the club in former years.

The first card party of the season will be on Friday, and will be in the form of a whist drive.

YUGOSLAVS ACT QUICKLY TO NIP ANY UPRISINGS

Prince Paul Will Head Regency Over Youthful King Peter.

COUNTRY QUIET.

Whole Nation Goes Into 30-day Period of Mourning.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Oct. 10 (A.P.).—Yugoslavia's Royal family bowed in grief on foreign soil today but the Government at home worked swiftly to insure a continuation of the monarchy.

In the early hours of the morning the Cabinet issued a proclamation making Crown Prince Peter, 11-year-old son of the slain Alexander, King under a regency. The National Congress was called into session to-morrow.

An oath of loyalty to the little King has already been taken by members of the Cabinet, the army and the navy.

The country was quiet, despite fears of disorders upon news that King Alexander's dictatorship was at an end. Many feared his death would be a signal for an uprising.

Prepare Measures.

A Government communique said it was "considering measures necessary in the interest of the state and people" growing from King Alexander's assassination but did not specify what the measures were.

Since Peter II. is a minor, he would occupy the throne under a regency.

A will of King Alexander, appointed his cousin, Prince Paul of Yugoslavia; former Minister of Education Stankovitch to the regency council.

Confusion and horror characterized the public's reception of the news of their King's death. It was withheld by official sources and the public only learned of the assassination at nearly 10 o'clock last night.

Flags were placed at half-staff, theatres were closed and a 30-day period of national mourning was proclaimed.

The Proclamation.

The text of the Government's proclamation making Peter King follows:

"To the Yugoslavian People, — Our great King Alexander fell heroically on October 9 at Marseille. He has sealed with his blood the work for peace which was his aim in life, and for which he went to Marseille and met his death in an allied land.

"By virtue of paragraph 306 of the constitution, Peter II. is now King, and the Government and the army and the navy have taken an oath of loyalty to him.

"By virtue of paragraph 45 the Cabinet is now governing the country. The National Congress has been called for the day after to-morrow.

"The King's last word gave a sacred trust, 'Guard Yugoslavia.' And the Government and the nation must be worthy of their King."

Magistrate's Court

A charge of reckless driving against Samuel Bridges, 298 Edinburgh street, was this morning dismissed without costs following hearing before Magistrate O. A. Langley, K.C. The defendant was represented by G. N. Gordon, K.C.

The complainant was Georgina Forsyth, 16, of 649 Downie street who laid the charge, following an accident on September 19 when she was struck from her bicycle at London and George streets intersection, when involved in a collision with a car driven by the defendant.

A local youth who pleaded guilty to theft of a bicycle was sentenced to 3-months in Ontario Reformatory with an indeterminate sentence of an additional 3-months.

Friendly Bible Class Welcomes Teacher

At the October meeting of the Women's Friendly Bible Class of St. John's Church, a hearty welcome was accorded the new teacher, Mrs. W. E. Massey-Cooke. There was a large attendance of members.

The president, Mrs. G. Pakenham, was in the chair. Reports showed good progress in the class work.

Arrangements were made for a new series of diminishing teas to be held during the season. Plans were also made for an Autumn tea to be held on October 18th in aid of the Class Memorial Fund, and for a Hallowe'en basket social and masquerade on October 23rd. The new bowling and social club has been started.

The meeting closed with prayer after which refreshments were served by Mrs. C. Barton and her helpers.

Booming Trade

CHICAGO, Oct. 10 (CP)—"Bootleggers are still selling 50 per cent of the alcoholic beverages consumed in the United States to-day," said Joseph Trimer, Chicago, chairman of the National Code authority for the alcoholic beverage wholesale industry.

Unless liquor taxes and license fees are reduced, he said he feared the legitimate liquor business will cease to exist.

NATION'S HEALTH UP TO OTTAWA

B. C. Minister Claims Thousands Flock to Province to Recuperate.

WOULD SHARE COSTS.

VANCOUVER, Oct. 10. (CP)—Revision of the British North American Act to make national health a federal responsibility has the support of Hon. G. M. Weir, British Columbia Minister of Education.

Reviewing general conditions to a meeting of social agencies last night, Mr. Weir disclosed the economic council, advisory body to the British Columbia government, was formulating a new policy to provide for unemployed youths in the province.

Urging revision of the B.N.A. Act respecting health, Mr. Weir declared British Columbia was becoming a convalescent hospital for invalids from all parts of Canada.

The province was paying $695,000 a year for health costs of people who had entered the province during the past three years.

"I maintain this is a federal responsibility," he added. "It is not equitable that we should pay the entire cost." He declared organized action under federal direction to fight "the great scourge of cancer, tuberculosis and venereal disease" was the first duty of Canada.

Dealing with the new policy for unemployed youths, he said the council would co-operate with 218 employers of labor to establish a system of agriculture and industrial apprenticeship to absorb young men at present unemployed.

By-Law Approval Is Given Lindsay Union

LINDSAY, Oct. 10 (Special to The Examiner).—The town council of Lindsay last night granted the request of the local branch of the Temperance Federation of Ontario to submit a by-law to the people at the coming January elections on the elimination of beer and wine beverage rooms in Lindsay. Mayor Armstrong, Aldermen Frost, Laidley, Tilly and Ferguson, voted for the request. Reeve Morrison, Deputy Reeve O'Reilly and Ald. Pickering voted against the request, believing that the Temperance Federation should secure a petition from the ratepayers asking for the vote.

Scout News

The 6th Peterborough (St. Peter's) Troop recently held their third meeting of the season under able leadership of Scoutmaster Ernest Wolff and Troop Leader Bill Flint. The meeting opened with flag break followed by an inspection and a game of scout baseball, and other entertaining and instructive activities.

The Beaver Patrol captured the while in a boxing glove relays the Beavers won one race while the combined teams of Chicks and Curlews won two races. Gerard Primeau presented his plans for a hike and the meeting closed after a minute's silence. Patrol leaders and seconds remained for the Court of Honor.

YOUNG PETER II LEAVES LONDON FOR HOME LAND

Eleven Year Old Monarch is Returning Home With Grandmother.

FIRST INTEREST, PEACE.

British Papers Appeal for Cool, Clear Reasoning at Present Time.

LONDON, Oct. 10. — C. P. Cable.)—Anxious cabinet ministers gathered in mourning garb at historic No. 10 Downing street; a bewildered but brave schoolboy raised by an assassin's bullet to perilous eminence of the Yugoslavian throne; on all sides a feeling of grave uncertainty, of tension.

That was a fleeting picture of London to-day in the wake of the Marseille assassinations. Appeal was widely made for sanity, for cool, clear reasoning. Yet, as in Paris, Berlin, Rome and Vienna, the reaction in old London to the murders of Marseille was one of dread lest the smouldering embers of Europ be fanned into war.

"Watch, lest the untold millions of this land pay for this villainy which threatens the peace of Europe," urged the Daily Express, Lord Beaverbrook's imperialistic organ.

"There are all the elements of a dangerous situation," said Labor's Daily Herald. "It is the first duty of European statesmanship to keep calm, to avoid fishing in troubled waters, to remember that the first interest of all peoples is peace.

"Overwhelming tragedies such as this have thrown nations into deep, intense emotion. In such emotion mad things have been done before —mad things that have multiplied death until, because one or two persons have been slain, millions have marched to destruction."

"Loathsome and unpardonable as this crime is," said the Morning Post, "the conseuences need not be serious if only cool heads are kept. Prima facie, there is no reason why it should become a cause of International disturbance, since all the circumstances point to purely domestic origins from within Yugoslavia."

BREAKING DOWN KING'S BASTION

PLAN ANNUAL MEETING

Century Old Landmark of Quebec Making Way for Reconstruction.

QUEBEC, Oct. 10 (CP)—Stone by stone the King's Bastion, which is part of the Citadel fortifications, is being torn down. This picturesque old structure, which dates back to the years between 1823 and 1832 and which cost the Imperial Government many millions of dollars, is in progress of reconstruction by laborers of the Citadel Unemployment Camp.

The Bastion is built of solid stone blocks which were towed down the river by barges and transported to the top of the cliff, 346 feet high, by a system much the same as the modern escalator. It is situated in the southern part of the Citadel and comprises the 550-foot embankment that makes up this section.

Visits of several British rulers, among them George V, along with the fact that every Governor-General since 1832 has at one time or another been there, lend the place an air of romance frequently associated with historical spots of the olden days. It was in this garrison that the mysterious society, "Les Chasseurs," was formed, and many are the lurid tales told of this secret organization.

The Weather

TORONTO, Oct. 10.—Synopsis: Pressure is high from the Great Lakes eastward and over the Western states, with low pressure covering north-western Canada. A disturbance is passing eastward from the Labrador coast and pressure continues relatively low southwestward of the Lower Lakes. Showers have occurred in some parts of East Maritimes though in other districts east from Alberta the weather has been fair. Temperature has been considerably above normal throughout the West.

Lower Lake Region: Moderate north-east winds; fair. Thursday—Moderate to fresh north-east winds; mostly cloudy, with not much change in temperature.

Georgian Bay: Moderate winds; fair to-day and Thursday; a little milder on Thursday.

Northern Ontario: South to south-west winds; mostly cloudy to-day and Thursday, with a few scattered showers or local snowflurries.

SCHOOL DAYS IN ENGLAND END FOR YOUTHFUL KING PETER II

TROUBLED RULE AHEAD.

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 10. (AP).—Peter Karageorge, 11 years old, tumbled into bed last night a carefree schoolboy at Sanroyd school. To-day he arose to learn he was King Peter II, ruler of Yugoslavia.

The news of his father's tragic death at Marseille, kept from him all last evening was imparted early this morning. Before Peter could realize the significance of the news he was enroute to Belgrade.

Last night the housemaster was notified to arouse Peter earlier than his dormitory mates. With sleep still in his eyes he was awakened, a message was whispered in his ear that urgent news awaited him in the headmaster's office.

Dressing hastily Peter followed the housemaster to the school office where his tutor C.C. Parrott and the headmaster were seated. Probably still wondering what school rules he had broken, the news was imparted that changed him from a school boy Prince to King Peter II.

No Time for Adieus

Breakfast was hastily served and without time even to bid his schoolmates adieu, Peter was enroute by motorcar for his country's legation here, his ultimate destination being Belgrade, a regency and eventually the throne of that troubled country his late father had ruled with dictatorial power.

Peter took along only one small brown suitcase, regulation equipment for boys at a preparatory school. He was dressed simply in a grey flannel suit and still wore his scholar's cap. His tutor and a special detective accompanied him.

As the automobile left the school grounds on which Peter yesterday played games with his mates, the new king looked straight ahead as though wondering what the future has in store for him.

11 On September 9

He had looked forward to that day as one he could spend with the father he loved affectionately But King Alexander was too busy with affairs of state and Peter, upon being informed he could not have an aeroplane or at least a motorcycle for his birthday is reported to have said: "It will be so much more fun when I am grown up because then I can do just as I wish lie papa does—shoot, and sail, and fly".

To-day the father who was too busy lies dead from an assassin's bullet—the son, only 11 years old, is king, with aeroplanes, motorcycles and a troubled kingdom as his legacy.

Judgment Delivered In O'Brien Action

TORONTO, Oct. 10.—Mrs. Allis Ann O'Brien is the owner of land and premises at 243 Engelburn avenue, Peterborough, and certain furniture and household effects assigned to her before her marriage, Mr. Justice Henderson finds in a judgment delivered at Osgoode Hall in an action that Mrs. O'Brien brought against her husband, Joseph A. O'Brien.

His Lordship dismisses Mrs. O'Brien's claim on behalf of herself and all other creditors of her husband for a declaration that a conveyance of four properties in Stratford by O'Brien to his sister Mary Veronica Cecilia O'Brien is null and void. The conveyance was made in 1928, "in consideration of natural love and affection and one dollar."

Noted Minister Compares Lenin With Christ

Returning from a visit to Russia, Bishop Willard Brewing, for 25 years pastor of the Christ Church Reformed Episcopal, Toronto, and latterly pastor of St. Andrew's Wesley United Church, Vancouver, is reported to have made the following statement with reference to conditions in Russia. Speaking of Lenin, "father of the Russian revolution," Bishop Brewing stated: "Among the children . . . he is a Saviour, a Messiah. Lenin is the greatest contestor for the world devotion inspired by Jesus of Nazareth in all history." The bishop found conditions in the Soviet very satisfactory, for the most part. The layout ABOVE shows: TOP, the empty tomb of Jesus of Nazareth in Jerusalem. BELOW, Lenin's tomb in Moscow. RIGHT, N. Lenin. LOWER RIGHT, Bishop Brewing.

Remarkable Photo How Bird Takes Off In Flight

A remarkable high-speed photograph of a mourning dove a moment after it was launched in flight. This photograph, made in 1.0,000th of a second, was taken by the Massachusetts Institute of Technology It reveals in detail the position of the primary and secondary feathers of the wings in a fast downward stroke as the dove sought to gain altitude. Note that the feathers overlay to prevent the passage of air through the wing. On an up-stroke the primary and secondary feathers are rotated slightly to allow air to pass through, thus reducing air resistance. The photograph was made by an unique electrical circuit which produces an instantaneous flash of great brilliancy.

By LILIAN CAMPBELL

ANNA MAY WONG, brilliant Chinese-American actress, has been the "toast of the town" in dash old London, and considered one of the world's best dressed women. She now is in Hollywood making pictures.

In the center of our illustration she is wearing a reversible ermine cape—one of the latest fashions originated by Hollywood fur artists. It is a three-quarter length, and is worn over a rich and lovely metal cloth evening gown.

No small part of the stunning effect of Miss Wong's appearance is contributed by her thick, glossy black hair. Two different coiffures are pictured. At top, left, is a front view, showing her natural widow's peak from which the jet black tresses sweep back to a coil low at the back of the neck, where they are adorned by a jeweled tiara, shown top, right. Long, dangling earrings match the tiara.

Equally effective is the braided coronet effect also charmingly worn by Anna May and shown below. In this coiffure the jeweled hair ornament is replaced by the braid of her own hair. The rest of the locks are combed straight back, as in the other style, and coiled low in her neck.

Women of Anna May's type may well study these coiffures. If they are wearing their hair in a mass of curls, as is popular to-day, they might try letting their hair grow and adopting a coiffure something like these, especially if their features are regular like Miss Wong's.

Serious illness of King Fuad is alarming Egyptian monarchists who fear his passing at this time would cause serious political disorders because of the inexperience of his 14-year-old heir, Prince Farouk.

Sweater Suit Liked

This is Kitty Carlisle, if you please, wearing a three-piece sweater suit.

Her skirt and raglan coat are in green-blue tweed, and the camel's hair sweater matches them in color.

The cute hat is a felt of the same shade, and is trimmed with a cocarde of ribbon which holds the sharply turned back brim in place.

Peeps a Vanderbilt

MRS. EMMA SULLIVAN KEISLICH

After telling of alleged revels of Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt in Paris and Biarritz, Mrs. Emma Sullivan Keislich is shown leaving the courtroom in New York city where Mrs. Vanderbilt sought to regain custody of her daughter, the heiress, Gloria. Mrs. Keislich, a nurse, told of visits by a Prince Hohenlohe to Mrs Vanderbilt's bedroom. The child recently has been cared for by Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, her aunt.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

In describing the process of inflammation, the commonest and most fundamental of all the disease processes of the body, we said that the most frequent cause of inflammation was infection—which means the invasion of the healthy tissues of the body by bacteria.

Infection, however, may assume many different forms. The simplest is the formation of an abscess in the skin. Germs may break through the healthy skin in various ways. They are constantly present on the surface of the skin, and if a cut occurs they enter this cut and begin to grow in the deeper tissues. The surrounding blood vessels dilate and bring a number of white cells, or leucocytes, to the spot. These are the soldiers of the body, always ready to repel invaders. They form a wall around the bacteria, engulf and destroy them, and in doing so they form a localized liquid mass of combined leucocytes and bacteria—a pocket of pus. When this comes to a head, breaks, and discharges on the surface of the body, or is opened by the surgeon, there remains behind a healthy granulation surface—the wall of the abscess, and the processes of healing go on as in a clean wound, as described yesterday.

But this process may not always go on as smoothly as this. The invading bacteria may be more formidable than in the simple case described above. They may resist destruction and, growing rapidly, break through the protective wall of leucocytes. This infiltrating body of destroyers may move widely under the skin, causing instead of a simple abscess, a carbuncle. In combating this the body develops a fever, and a fever is also a protective mechanism, because many germs do not thrive well at temperatures higher than normal body temperature.

But at times the bacteria may entirely escape from the defending army, travel along the lymphatic channels, so that lymph nodes in the vicinity of the infected area swell up.

They may do even worse and get out into the blood stream, light in some distant part of the body. A common place for such a landing is one of the bones, where the process of inflammation is gone through again in bony tissue—the condition called osteomyelitis.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

W. H. M.: "Is a ten-year-old child threatened living in the house with a patient with tuberculosis?"

Answer: In my opinion, decidedly so.

A Reader: "Is it harmful to continue eating two yeast cakes daily over a period of years?"

Answer: Probably not, but I wouldn't hurt to take a rest every now and then.

E. S. T.: "How early is it possible to tell if a woman is about to become a mother?"

Answer: By present-day laboratory methods it is possible to tell within the first few days of pregnancy.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

There are certain sure ways to get children to learn things. Teachers and parents who wish the best results in knowledge to those under their training do well to realize them. One is to arouse curiosity about the thing. The other is to awaken interest in a subject. These ways have one thing in common. They focus attention on the thing or things of importance. It is of small value to prod a child's mind. He has other things to think about besides those parents and teachers want him to consider. A child's mind is not inactive. It may be miles away from the subject that is in the mind of the instructor, but there is too much that is new and strange in the world in which the child finds himself for him to be unresponsive to them. The young minds need direction rather than stimulation.

* * * * * * *

How can a person succeed in directing such a mind into the channels wanted. This is not a question to be answered in a word, a paragraph, or even a book. But it can be done since fine teachers have the power. They quicken the mind, sometimes by bringing out odd bits of information which make a child wonder. His curiosity will help him to seek the knowledge, and when he pussues his studies on his own initiative it ceases to be irksome work. Explorers, and those who do research work, etc., find actual pleasure in discovering facts and gathering information. The fact that a tomato is a berry awakened one child's mind who later became a botanist.

* * * * * *

There are facts about figures which a fine teacher of mathematics can present to pupils to arouse their interest. History is full of strange events to draw attention to whatever portion of it is being studied. Biographies are baffling even to the most erudite students of human nature, who want to be acquainted with a great person. They can be stimulating and absorbing even to young pupils who have to learn about historic personalities.

* * * * * *

Parents can lend teachers their aid, by knowing what the children are studying. The game of authors, for instance, makes for the acquaintanceship of writers and their books. Very little folk can learn figures and how to count quickly by such games as parcheesi, dominoes, etc. Books written to suit ages of young folk and on subjects relating to studies, can be read aloud. These will be enjoyed especially if in story form. It is a mistake for parents to be openly prodding children's minds out of school hours, but they should be aware of opportunities to arouse interest in subjects without centering their thoughts too much on school duties.

Jean Detests Vivid Nail Polish But It's "As You Like It"—Gladys

Whether to use bright liquid polishes or not is, of course, a matter of personal preference. It was in Spain that the fad for colored polishes first originated. And it is in Spain that one usually finds these polishes used most skillfully. The liquid polishes, of course, are used just as commonly in this country as in Spain. But unfortunately, American women often forfeit half the beautifying effects of the liquid polishes because they are not very skilled in their usage.

If you generally employ a liquid nail polish in preference to a dry polish, always make sure that the surface of each of your nails is perfectly clean before you apply any of the liquid enamel. The presence of any foreign substance will mar the coating, and may cause the polish to crack and peel. Complete the filing and cleansing of your nails first, and remove any dead cuticle and any traces of old polish. Then grease your fingertips, scrub them, and dry them thoroughly. And to make sure that there is no least trace of any foreign matter present, buff your nails briskly with a clean, chamois buffer.

When applying the polish, the strokes of the brush should be made with the grain of the nail. The polish should be applied on the pink part of the nails only, and not on the half-moons. The brush should not be too dry, as this may cause a streaked effect. After the polish has been smoothly and evenly applied to each nail, the tips should be wiped free of enamel with a bit of gauze or cotton. When all the nails have been coated with the liquid polish, the polish should be permitted to dry thoroughly. And it is inadvisable to blow on the nails to help the drying along, as this may make the polish cloudy.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Weight

Ellen: I think that a girl 16 years of age and 5 feet 2 inches tall should weigh about 112 to 114 pounds.

Superfluous Hair

Polly: An effective bleach for superfluous hair can be made of two teaspoons of peroxide, and half a teaspoon of ordinary household ammonia. It does not tend to promote the growth of the hair.

Cosmetics

Barbara: You are a bit young to begin the daily use of cosmetics. Reliable brands of cosmetics, however, do not tend to prove harmful if the skin is properly cleansed after their use.

Reducing

Alice: My methods of reducing the thighs, hips and bust are too long to print in this brief space. They are, however, fully outlined in my booklet on "The New Figure".

Warts

James: Warts are caused by skin infection. It is dangerous to try to remove them yourself. Consult a reliable skin specialist about them.

Editor's Note: To obtain Miss Glad's pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" write, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, and ten cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

Written for General Press

CANADIAN TEAMS OF EIGHT

A league of teams of eight offers ideal opportunities for all sorts of duplicate contests. There should be more such leagues. Recently I credited the State of Maine with having the largest league of this kind. Evidently that applies only to the United States, as the following letter shows.

"The Manitoba Contract Bridge association, with headquarters in Winnipeg, is preparing to begin its second season of play and challenges any city on the continent of a quarter of a million population or under to duplicate its record in the year of its birth.

Organized last fall, it sponsored a league of teams of eight, numbering 20 clubs, which played a split schedule during the winter. In addition to this league competition the association promoted a city pairs championship, a provincial pairs championship, a city team of four, a provincial team of four, a ladies pair championship, an individual championship, the World Bridge Olympic, as well as weekly club events, such as minor and major pairs, and minor and major teams of four, ladies versus men, etc.

"The association, at present confined solely to Winnipeg, started the season without a cent in the treasury and finished with a small bank balance, after maintaining permanent club quarters throughout the winter, and winding up the season with a dinner and dance.

"The membership fee was only $1 per person, with card fees fixed at 10 cents per person per session. Entry fee for tournaments was set at 75 cents per person and all, with the exception of the individual championship, were open events.

"Membership in the association never exceeded 250, but officials hope to increase it greatly this coming year. The ultimate aim of the association is to interest other towns and cities in the province to form live associations and eventually stage provincial tournaments. The Mitchell and Howell movements were used in all tournaments with match point and cumulative scoring."

At my request, as a guide to others wishing to organize an association, the above details were kindly furnished by Mr. F. H. Williams, Magazine and Feature Editor, Winnipeg Free Press.

Household Hints

Menu Hint
Broiled Slice Ham
Candied Sweet Potatoes With Pineapple
Bran Muffins Cabbage-Apple Salad
Creamy Coconut Pie
Coffee

Pineapple is being more and more used in our menus. What once—not so many years ago either—was a luxury, now is a necessity. Pineapple is a delicious and healthful addition to our menus, and as it is not so very expensive, let us use it freely.

Today's Recipes

Candied Sweet Potatoes With Pineapple.—Eight cooked potatoes, eight slices pineapple, one-half cup brown sugar, one-half cup pineapple juice, one tablespoon butter, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon paprika. Mix sugar, pineapple juice and butter. Boil two minutes. Dip potatoes in this mixture and then arrange them on pineapple slices which have been placed in a shallow pan. Pour remaining syrup over top and sprinkle with salt and paprika. Bake 30 minutes in moderate oven (350 degrees). Baste potatoes several times with syrup in pan.

Bran Muffins.—Two tablespoons of shortening, one-fourth cup sugar, one egg, one cup sour milk, one cup bran, one cup flour, one teaspoon baking powder, one-half teaspoon soda, one-half teaspoon salt. Cream the shortening and sugar, add egg and beat thoroughly. Add sour milk and bran and let soak until most of the moisture is taken up. Sift flour with baking powder, soda and salt and add to first mixture, stirring only until flour disappears. Fill greased muffin tins two-thirds full and bake in a moderate oven (400 degrees Fahrenheit) for 20 to 25 minutes. Yield: Eight large or 12 small muffins.

If sweet milk is used instead of sour milk, omit the one-half teaspoon of soda and use three teaspoons baking powder. Raisins or dates may be added if desired. A small slice of apple, sprinkled with cinnamon and sugar, placed on top the muffin batter before baking, makes a delicious variation of the recipe.

Creamy Coconut Pie (with caramel flavor).—One cup dark brown sugar, one-third cup flour, one-eighth teaspoon salt, three egg yolks, two cups milk, one teaspoon vanilla, one tablespoon butter, one-half cup coconut, one baked pie shell. Blend sugar, flour and salt. Add yolks and milk. Cook in double boiler until thick and creamy. Stir frequently. Add vanilla, butter and coconut. Beat well, cool. Add one-third of the meringue. Mix lightly and pour into baked pie shell and cover with remaining meringue. Bake 12 minutes in slow oven.

Meringue.—Three egg whites, one-third cup sugar. Beat whites until stiff, add sugar and beat until creamy.

W. A. BRANCHES HOLD MEETINGS

Interesting Events Scheduled —Teen Age Branch Elects Its Officers.

Announcements of several interesting events were made at the October business meeting of the Afternoon branch of St. John's Women's Auxiliary, held in the parish house yesterday afternoon. These included a rummage sale, to be held on Thursday of this week in the Bell store, on Hunter street; the choir concert on October 16; the appearance of the Russian Choir, here on October 24, and a Hallowe'en tea and sale of home-made cooking and small articles at the residence of Mrs. D. B. Falkner, 438 Sheridan street, on Tuesday, October 30.

A report of the successful Mother and Daughter Banquet, held last week, was read and a vote of thanks passed to all who had contributed to the success of the affair, particularly to Miss Dorothy Worboy, whose talk on her work with the Saskatchewan Mission Van had given the members a new insight into Western conditions.

The annual meeting of the 'teen age branch of the Women's Auxiliary was held last evening. After considerable business had been transacted the following officers were elected:

President, Rosamund Castle; Vice-President, Gertrude Lemmings; Treasurer, Jean McIlwain; Secretary, Mary Carr; Extra Cent-a-Day Secretary, Phyllis Pitchford.

A vote of thanks to the past officers was seconded and the short service of the installation of the new officers was conducted by Mrs. F. D. Craig, the leader.

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

WITH THE closing of Long Branch this afternoon the fans won't have so many tracks to worry about, but they've got plenty of racing to concentrate on during the next week or two. Jamaica and Laurel are moving along in splendid fashion and Narragansett opened yesterday for a twenty-eight day session that should be unusual regardless of the sort of weather prevailing. Sportsman's Park is tapering off the Chicago season with a meeting which opened on Monday, and Dallas inaugurates the Texas season with a session which opens on this coming Saturday.

Condition books for the meeting at Dufferin Park, starting on Saturday were distributed among the horsemen by Racing Secretary W. R. Norvall. They seem to be suitable to all hands and a wonderful week of racing at the compact little half mile track is anticipated. Long Branch went over the top in a big way on Monday when over twelve thousands fans turned out on what resembled a mid-July afternoon. The weather was clear and warm and an ideal day for horse racing. One of those western horses which we told you to keep both eyes on closed the days program by winning and paying over sixty dollars and also shattered the track record in doing so. This maverick's name is Fair Mole.

WHEN DETROIT closed on Saturday last it marked a meeting that had operated for one hundred and twenty-three consecutive days. This is the longest meeting ever attempted on the American continent. They sure like their racing in the Motor City. Wedding Ring who now runs in the interests of Harry Hatch is a real smart race horse and can hold his own in any company. Conny Smythe's White Thorn broke down badly on Saturday during the running of the last race at Long Branch in which he was the public choice. He has been turned out and will do no more racing this year and maybe no more at all. It all depends on how he responds to treatment between now and next spring.

The Florida winter dates have been announced and the season will extend from December the fifteenth to the first of next April and which will embrace ninety-two days of racing divided between Hialeah and Tropical Park. During this period a total of $322,400 will be distributed in stakes and purses at Hialeah Park alone. The big event of this meeting being the Florida Derby which has been increased to $15,000 added value, with a stake race carded for every Saturday. As the horsemen look forward to this meeting, they think the depression is over, and we can't blame them.

BIRDS DEFEAT TORONTO 13-8 IN NINTH GAME

2ND STRAIGT TRIUMPH.

They started yesterday needing two victories to win the series. They won one, defeating the Birds, 5 to 1, behind great pitching by Gene Schott, in the afternoon game.

And they battled valiantly for the second game, but couldn't quite reach it—the Birds pounding out a 13-to-8 victory in the ninth and deciding contest of as hectic a junior classic as baseball has ever produced.

Birds Inspired by Cards

It was an inspired team that the Leafs were battling again last night. The Birds are a sort of kindergarten for the St. Louis Cardinals, and the papa Cardinals—with six former Red Birds on the team—had licked the Detroit Tigers in the deciding game of the big World Series in the afternoon, so the Birds just had to win last night.

It was the second consecutive victory for the Columbus Club in the minor league classic. Last year they won from Buffalo.

Manager Ike Boone used six Toronto pitchers last night in a vain effort to check the Birds. Al Hollingsworth, who started, was removed after the first inning in favor of "Steamer" Lucas, but the Toronto boy was not equal to the task. He was followed by Sheriff Blake, "Whitey" Hilcher, Jimmy Pattison and Keith Frazier. The Leafs got 13 hits off "Bear Tracks" Greer, who lasted until the third, and Ed. Heusser, the latter getting credit for the win, his second of the series. The Birds rapped out a total of 16 hits, Frazier being the only Toronto hurler to escape unscathed.

Six Hockey Players From The West Coming East For Professional Year

EDMONTON, October 10 (C. P.). — Six hockey players today were en route East in preparation for puckdom's big league season.

They were: Roger Jenkins, traded by the Chicago Black Hawks to Montreal Canadiens; Louis Trudel and Art Weibe, who are returning to the Hawks; Joe Brown, Edmonton Juniors, Neil and Mac Colville, along with Joe Brown, Edmonton Juniors, who are on their way to Winnipeg to join the New York Rangers' hockey school.

Jenkins has been in the National Hockey League for four years. Trudel and Weibe have been in major hockey for two years.

NAVIN FIELD, Detroit, Oct. 9.—Massed in solid lines along the runways and closely guarding the doors of the players' dressing-rooms, sixty grimly determined patrolmen gave Navin Field the appearance of a bank marked for a holdup yesterday as St. Louis Cardinals left the field after beating the Tigers for the world's baseball championship. The police guard was the result of Joe Medwick's altercation with Marvin Owen in the third inning.

A few minutes before the St. Louis players left the field the patrolmen formed a double line at the dressing-room door. At the instant the players came out the procession of bluecoats, shoving aside the curious, moved toward the nearest exit.

Judge Kenesaw Landis, the Baseball Commissioner, who benched Medwick after Owen had been spiked, said tonight he felt the Detroit fans had a thorough right to demonstrate as they did until the Card player had been banished. There was no indication that Landis planned any further action.

After the game Medwick said with feeling that the spiking of Owen was a pure accident.

The most impressive features of the grasshopper control campaign in the prairie provinces during the past season were the splendid co-operation of the farmers with the Dominion, Provincial and local authorities in carrying out the work, and their widespread recognition of the value of the control recommendations.

SCHOTT PITCHES LEAFS INTO TIE

Youthful Right Hander Downs Columbus Birds in Afternoon Game.

FINAL SCORE 5-1.

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 10—Gene Schott, tall right-hander, hurled a neat seven-hit game against Columbus Red Birds yesterday afternoon, pitching Toronto Maple Leafs back to even terms in the Little Series. Toronto won 5-1.

The ninth and deciding game in the series to determine the champion of minor leagues was ordered to be played last night.

Columbus used three hurlers to attempt to match Schott's skill. Klinger, who started, failed to last out the first inning, when the Leafs scored twice. Toronto got two more off Teachout in the second, and scored their fifth run in the seventh.

Terriers Prepared For Lacrosse Final

BARRIE, Ont., October 10 (C.P.). —Orillia Terriers were ready to-day to formaly annex the Canadian lacrosse championship for the first time and then perhaps jaunt West to show British Columbia the latest thing in indoor lacrosse tactics.

But the Mann Cup comes first.

The Terriers expect to capture the trophy here to-night by beating New Westminster Salmon Bellies for the third straight time, ending the series without the necessity of further struggling. They won the first game 21-8, and the second by 19-6. They are top-heavy favorites to make it three in a row.

Even the veteran Salmon Bellies are doubtful of their ability to stop the careening Eastern champions who have thoroughly outclassed the British Columbians at every point in the first two games. The challengers from the West are ready for to-night's all-important battle.

"DETROIT IS GREAT TEAM" SAYS FRISCH

Cardinal Pilot Receives Congratulations From Mickey Cochrane.

OWEN KEEPS MUM.

(By Charles Dunkley, A.P. Sports Writer.)

DETROIT, October 10. — Singing, shouting, and tossing their baseball equipment all around the room, the victorious St. Louis Cardinals indulged in a wild celebration when they reached their dressing-room after routing the Tigers to win the world's baseball championship yesterday.

Frankie Frisch, plucky little leader of the Cardinals, sweaty and his face streaked with dust, wandered around the room with an unread telegram in his hand, too dazed and speechless to say a word.

Suddenly he found a hand gripping his. It was that of Mickey Cochrane, manager of the losing Tigers.

Frisch Almost in Tears.

"Frankie, you beat us. Congratulations."

Frisch's throat was too choked to say a word. He slapped Cochrane on the back a half-dozen times and there was just a trace of a tear in his eyes.

"It was a tough series, and I'm glad it is over and I'm glad we won," Frisch said. "We beat a great ball team. Cochrane is a great manager. You can have all the .300 hitters, but I'll take that two-base hit I got in the third inning. That was a $1,000,000 hit to me."

Within a few seconds the room was like an insane asylum. The conquering Cardinals started singing and shouting and then grabbed their trainer, Dr. H. G. Weafer, throwing him under the showers, clothes and all.

Dean Provides Comedy.

Big "Dizzy" Dean was surrounded with every one of the Cardinals shaking his hand. He was wearing a white tropial sun helmet and carrying a big, rubber inflated tiger, painted yellow with brown stripes. Dean took the tail of the tiger in his teeth and shook it like a dog shakes a bone.

Frisch, referring to the violent demonstration which followed the incident between Joe Medwick, Cardinal left fielder, and Marvin Owen, Tiger third sacker, was inclined to pass it over "as one of those things."

"The kid wouldn't spike anybody," he said. "He was just sliding into third base."

The Tigers were a beaten lot of players when they came from the field. They seemed at first to be broken in spirit. Cochrane, their manager, sat down for a second and then, without saying a word, shouldered his way across the hall to enter the Cardinal house to congratulate Frisch.

"It wasn't our day," Cochrane commented. "It was the toughest series I've ever played in. Everything happened to us to-day."

Owen preferred not to discuss his run-in with Medwick.

"I was sorry to see the kid put out of the game," was all he would say.

CARDINAL VICTORY IS THIRD WIN FOR NATS IN FOUR YEARS

Big Time Underdog Wipes Out Humiliation Heaped on It by Yanks and Athletics.

TIGERS DOWN FIGHTING.

(By EDWARD J. NEIL).

DETROIT, Oct. 10. (AP). — The brothers Dean and the St. Louis Cardinals bestride the baseball world to-day like a Siamese twin Colossus, and so St. Louis rules the national pastime again for the third time in nine years.

Sharing in their world series glory is the entire National League, for years the underdog in the annual fall baseball battle. Not only did the big brother Dizzy and li'l brother Paul subdue the Detroit Tigers four times in seven games, but the senior circuit can boast its third conquest in four years, and consider wiped out forever the humiliation heaped on it by the Yankees and Athletics.

The Cards failed to wipe off the books the record rally of 10 runs in one inning the Athletics piled up on the Cubs in 1932, but they came close enough as they closed out the riotous seven game battle yesterday with big Dizzy's second victory, a shutout scored by the widest margin in series history, 11 to 0, effacing another National League record, Christy Mathewson's 9 to 0 whitewashing of the Athletics for the Giants of 1905.

They rammed home seven runs in the third, routing two pitchers who had beaten them earlier in the series, Elden Auker and the wobbly young giant Lynwood "Schoolboy" Rowe. They disposed of the Indian left Hander Elon "Big Chief" Hogsett, who had held them in subjection previously in relief roles. They subsided temporarily under the influence of Tommy Bridges, the slim curve ball artist who pitched the Tigers' third victory, but they broke out all over again in the sixth and seventh innings to complete a vengeful day with four more runs.

Medwick's brief clash with Marvin Owen, Detroit's third baseman, as the Cardinal slugger slid into third after tripling to far right center off Bridges, provided the spark for the outraged explosion.

Medwick boomed into third with plenty of gusto, and observers in the press box overhead, peering down intently, saw the third baseman flick his right foot quickly at Medwick's legs. The chunky Cardinal, a firebrand all through the series, still lying on the ground after his slide, promptly reared back with both feet, and lashed out with his spikes toward the upper part of Owen's body.

They were both very mad, but as they jumped for each other, Umpire Bill Klem, who was almost standing over the play, and Athletes from both sides, rushed in, pushed them in opposite directions, cooled them off, and the game went on.

PRINCE OF WALES TIES KING EDWARD

One Goal Each in Interesting Soccer School League Thursday.

Prince of Wales soccer team played a one-all tie with King Edward eleven, yesterday afternoon, in a public school soccer league engagement, on King Edward Park. The west-enders now take top position in the standing, although they have played one more game and the league reads thus:

	P	W	L	O	Pts
Prince of Wales	4	2	0	2	6
King Edward	3	2	0	1	5

The Prince of Wales custodian was outstanding, with Scumrik and Hollingsworth showing clever football. Mackness and Nokes were brilliant on King Edward attack, while Tarkington smart on defense as well as on the offensive.

Line-ups:

King Edward — W. Ferguson, goal; M. Grose and B. Howden, full backs; W. Harvey, N. Tarkington and H. Campbell, halves; A. Nokes, J. Mackness, S. Murduff, W. Anderson and R. Post, forwards; subs., E. Jobe and S. Henwood.

Prince of Wales—H. Jones, goal; A. Campbell and G. Curtain, full backs; D. Leal, S. Csumrik and A. Maldover, halves; B. Leal, T. McDonald, J. Hollingsworth, M. Williamson and R. Whatman, forwards; sub., N. Crouter and T. McMillan.

FRANK FRISCH IMPROVES FIVE FORMER MARKS

Cardinal Manager Has Completed His Eighth Series in Colorful Ball Career.

DEAN UP ON BATTING.

DETROIT, Oct. 10 (AP)—Seven new all-time World Series baseball records were set and nine others tied, in the process of the Cardinals' taming of the Tigers. Eleven records for a seven-game series were broken, with one equalled, making a grand total of 27 associated record performances.

Manager Frank Frisch of the new world champions led the record breakers of both clubs by improving on five of the marks previously credited to him. Completing his eighth series, Frisch holds the records for most games played, 50; most base hits, 56; most times at bat, 197; most singles, 45; and most doubles, 9. He equalled a sixth record by driving home three runs with a double in the final game.

Ervin (Pete) Fox, right-fielder of the Tigers, emerged with a record total of six two-baggers for a single series. This also put him in a tie with Babe Ruth for the most extra-base hits in one series. The Babe hit three doubles and three homers in 1926.

Dizzy Dean, who would rather talk about his hitting than his pitching, now shares two batting records with the big series' sluggers. Dizzy put himself into the "Little Red Book" not only by the mere fact of coming up to the plate twice in one inning yesterday, but by getting two base hits, a feat that only Ross Young, Jimmy Dykes, Jimmie Foxx and Al Simmons achieved before him. The margin of Dean's closing shutout victory, 11-0, is another one for the book.

Other records equalled: Most hits in one game, four, by Joe Medwick, Hank Greenberg and Jim Collins; most runs batted in during one game, four, by Billy Rogell; most errors by third baseman, one game, three by Martin, who also tied the series mark with a total of four miscues.

Highest Batting Average

For a seven-game series, the Cardinals posted the highest batting average on record—.273—besides driving in more runs; more men to bat; getting more base hits; more triples; more long hits, and posting a larger total-base figures. Combined, the two clubs exceeded former seven-game records for hits, runs batted in, triples and total long hits. The Cardinals equalled the record for total runs.

WINNERS RECEIVE $5,941.19 EACH

Medwick and Gehringer Were Batting Champions of 1934 Series.

DETROIT, Oct. 10.—The Cardinals did more than "hold that tiger." They slaughtered him on the final day. Their aim was so perfect that they scored 17 hits.

The series proved conclusively that the Dean Brothers are some ball team. Together they won 49 victories in the Cardinal pennant drive—"Dizzy" winning 30, and Paul bagging 19—and all four victories in the World Series. The Tigers earned only seven runs of "Dizzy" and "Daffy" in 44 innings.

"Ducky" Medwick of the Cards, and Charley Gehringer of the Tigers were the batting champions of the series, each collecting 11 hits in 29 times at bat. "Rip" Collins got 11 out of 31. The series record for hits is 12.

The Cardinals set a record for most times at bat for one time in a seven-game series, going up 262 times. The Giants in 1924, was 253. The shutout plastered on the Tigers by "Dizzy" Dean today, 11 to 0, also was the worst in series history.

Manager Frisch now holds four World Series records by wide margins. They are. Most World Series games, 50; most hits, 56; most times at bat, 197; and most singles, 45. He also has played in eight World Series, landing on the world's championship team four times.

The world's championship St. Louis Cardinals will receive $5,941.19 each as their share of the World Series receipts, while each of the vanquished Detroit Tigers will get $4,313.90.

Would hockey have a big revival here this winter if Irvin "Ace" Bailey came to Peterborough to live and volunteered to take over the duties of coach of the intermediate squad. Chorus answers emphatically, yes. Well, on a recent visit here "Ace" stated that he would like to make his home in Peterborough. "You probably don't realize what a splendid city Peterborough is. I do and there is no place in which I would rather live," he told a friend. He said that if he did come here he would like to interest himself in the coaching of the hockey team.

There is no one that citizens would welcome back so much as the same "Ace" Bailey, who through amateur and professional hockey career proved himself to be a thorough sportsman and a gentleman. Youngsters up at the Queen Mary school proved that they have not forgotten him, when during his stay here, he was out motoring with his young son and stopped near the school to watch the school soccer team at practice. It required only a glance by one kid and his "identity was known. "There's Ace Bailey," was the word that went around the school yard. One of the players booted the ball over to the car and "Ace" jumped out to kick it back. In a moment he was surrounded by the wide-eyed youngsters. Dozens of scribblers were produced as though by magic and "Ace" was kept busy writing his autograph.

The suggestion in this column a few days ago that perhaps Cliff Cadd was the top-ranking all-around athlete in these parts, seems to have created some comment. A husky gent walked in upon the writer yesterday and declared with emphasis that he begged to differ. Soothed and pacified by gentle words of encouragement, he later stated even more emphatically that "Red" Creighton gets the call for the mythical title of best all-around athlete. The sorrel-top's record was looked up, and he is certainly another athlete who spreads himself over the sport calendar. Robert, as "Red" was officially christened, is a peppery forward on the intermediate hockey team; the hawk-eyed net-minder of the intermediate lacrosse squad, and a member of the recently-formed intermediate rugby team. He regularly plays a fast game of soccer with the Caledonians, and is also a smart softball player. The gentleman who boosted him so enthusiastically is no relation of "Red"—just an admirer of the pepper pot.

Strikes and spares are soon again to become main topics of conversation as local bowlers get busy on the alleys. Leagues are being organized at all three of the city bowling spots and the boys are busy already getting in form for an active season.

* * * * * *

That demonstration the Detroit fans staged against Joe Medwick, left fielder of the Cards, after his altercation with Marvin Owen, Tiger third baseman, in the sixth innings yesterday is a black mark against the World Series. It would be difficult for such an incident as occurred when Medwick slid into the base to so arouse a Canadian crowd as to shower a player in any sport with ripe fruit and pop bottles. Such an occurrence is not infrequent in American ball parks.

* * * * * *

Judge Kenesaw Landis' decision removing Medwick from the game may have been a wise precaution under the circumstances, but his statement later that Detroit fans had a thorough right to adopt such tactics against the Card player is difficult to understand. If Landis wants more mob rule in baseball then such a statement will do its part to bring forth such results. Medwick declared that his spiking of Owen was entirely accidental. From this distance it appears that the Detroit fans when they saw their favorites being so badly humbled just "couldn't take it" and grabbed upon the incident to give vent to their general displeasure with the results of the game.

Columbus finally won the Little World Series from Ike Boone's battling Toronto Leafs, but this will do little to steal the glory that the Leafs have earned for themselves in the minds of ball fans of these parts. The upward surge of the Leafs was watched with keen interest by local fans. Too much credit for the success of the team can not be given Manager Boone, who fired his players with new strength and purpose. For the first time in years black figures instead of red may appear in the financial report of the Toronto club this season.

CHURCH LOOP RE-ORGANIZED

Age Limits Changed in Two Sections of Basketball League.

EXECUTIVE MEETS.

The annual meeting of the Church Basketball League was held in the Y.M.C.A. Gym. last night and attended by a fairly representative gathering of the city Sunday schools.

The executive for the coming season were elected, and considerable discussion took place in regard to changing the ages of the two sections. A meeting of the newly-elected executive committee was held after the general meeting and transacted extensive business.

This year's executive consists of J. C. McClenaghan, Boys' Department Secretary of the Y.M.C.A.; Don Charlton, Chairman of the Inter-Church Sports Committee of the Peterborough Boys' Work Board, who presided last night, and the three elected member, Walter Ward, Harry Walsh, and Nels Stanger. Harold Rehill, chairman of the league in its last three years since organization, withdrew from the league executive, due to his duties as president of the Peterborough Boys' Work Board. J. C. McClenaghan was elected chairman, and Don Charlton, secretary-treasurer for the coming season.

Age Limits Changed

The matter of changing age limits brought considerable discussion, the general gathering splitting on it. The executive, after weighing the matter thoroughly, decided unanimously on a change as being best for the league.

The Junior age limit was raised to under 20 by January 1st. Formerly it was under 19 by Oct. 15th. The Juvenile age limit was raised from under 16 by October 15th to under 17 by Jan. 1st. These changes are a difference of 9½ months, and bring the sections up to the standard as set by the Ontario Church Basketball Association. By these changes almost all of last year's players can again play in their same section.

A good season is assured. The Juvenile section will have St. Andrew's (last year's champs), St. John's, St. James', George Street, Trinity, and Knox, who put up a hot struggle last year. Murray Street are definitely in, and St. Paul's and Park Street are prospects.

Murray Street, who won the Junior section last year, are minus their big scorer (Cains), and will have to step to beat out George Street, St. James' and St. John's; Knox, Trinity, St. Paul's and All Saints' are also possible entries.

A rule introduced by the Boys' Work Board that players must stay out of Church basketball a year when changing Sunday schools, was adopted. This rule is in force in the Church Softball League, and will be proposed in the Church Hockey League.

The League will open its season on Saturday, October 20. Entries will be received by any member of the executive up until Tuesday, October 16, when the next executive meeting will be held. The entry fee will again be $1 per team, payable with entry.

This league, the only Church Basketball League in Eastern Ontario, looks forward to a good season with ten to fourteen evenly-matched teams.

SOMETHING MUST BE DONE ABOUT G. H. (BABE) RUTH

Hot Stove League Will Have Plenty to Worry About This Fall in Selecting Club For the Famous Bambino to Pilot in 1935 Race.

It was the consensus of opinion among baseball writers covering the world series that something must be done about Mr. G. H. "Babe" Ruth. It is essential that the Great Man remain in baseball, though his playing days are ended.

There were rumors that he would manage several teams. One group of writers insisted that the way had been cleared for him to become pilot of the Yankees. The Babe himself was non-committal when asked about his future.

The grapevine tip is that an announcement about the Babe will be forthcoming very soon.

One of the big subjects for the Hot Stove leagues will concern the Babe's possible managerial ability. (No. 1)—Is he a "smart guy?" (No. 2)—Or does his baseball wisdom consist of 99 parts sweat and one part knowledge? (No. 3)—Would he be able to handle men? The replies of this department are:

(No. 1)—Yes, he is a "smart guy." In all of his long career the Babe seldom has thrown to the wrong base. His all-around baseball ability has been overshadowed by his power at the plate. The Babe has a splendidly developed baseball instinct. He has profited by long experience (including that disciplinary incident several years ago when little Miller Huggins chased him right out of the park).

(No. 2)—No, the Babe's baseball wisdom does not consist of 99 parts power and one part intellect. The burden of the proof here rests on the affirmative. The Babe has not had many opportunities to display such strategy as baseball managing requires.

(No. 3)—Yes, the Babe would be able to handle men. On the bench, it seems to me, he would be an inspiration for his players to hustle, inasmuch as they'd be playing for one of the greatest ball players who ever lived, and, while the Babe is big-hearted and good-natured, he can be very firm when that quality is required.

The only difficulty this department apprehends about Babe as a manager is a slight confusion. The Babe doesn't keep track of players' names. He'd call them all George.

DEANS, DIZZY AND DAFFY PLAN TO JOIN BARNSTORMING TOUR

Famous Brothers Won All Four of St. Louis' Victories in World Series.

FRISCH AFTER SHUT EYE.

(By Paul Mickelson)

DETROIT, Oct. 10 (AP) — The Deans, Dizzy and Paul, are going to keep right on pitching.

While most of the World Series players packed their grips for a big rush to the wide open spaces to catch up on some long lost sleep or chase jack rabbits, wild boar or deer, Dizzy and Daffy still couldn't resist the lure of the diamond. They are preparing, to the amazement of even their own mates, to join a baseball barnstorming troupe.

"Shucks, Paul and me are just getting warmed up," boasted the famous Dizzy, who has pitched in "only" nine games—three of them World Series engagements—over the past 19 days. "I feel like I can throw baseballs all winter and then start right out on the 1935 season. So does Paul."

In Great Shape.

So, the two brothers, who won 49 games between them in the great Cardinal rush for the National League pennant and all four St. Louis victories in the World Series, are going to keep on throwing 'em. Dizzy didn't know exactly, but thought he and Paul would join the barnstormers in Chicago next Sunday.

Manager Frankie Frisch of the new world's champions, and Mickey Cochrane, pilot of the tamed Tigers, wanted nothing but sleep.

After Shut-Eye

"I'm going to stay in bed for five days," said Frisch, "am I tired."

"Me for some good shut-eye," Mickey said, "and then two weeks of golfing and hunting. After that, I'm going to Honolulu for three weeks' vacation."

HAVELOCK.

Mr. J. H. Harvey left last week to spend the winter months with his nephew, E. J. Moore, of Vancouver. Mr. Moore conducts a travel bureau service and Mr. Harvey intends spending some of his time browsing around Victoria across the bay.

Mr. and Mrs. L. A. Gould and family spent Thanksgiving with the former's father, Mr. John Gould, of Uxbridge.

Miss Lucy Wing, teacher at Vanscickle settlement, and formerly of town, spent the week-end and holiday with Ottawa friends.

SILVER SLIPPERS

By Temple Bailey

CHAPTER 60

Giles' head was high as he flung out his fearless challenge. The light of the fire showed his clear-cut features, ruffled hair, his brilliant scornful glance, and, more than all, that boyish grace of figure. Faintly Drew was aware of the thing which had stirred Joan to exultation . . . the king is dead . . . a prince reigns . . .

The thought maddened him, "If I can't have her, you shan't."

"Just what do you mean to do?"

"Make you keep your promise."

"I shall keep it. In a few days she leaves for a long journey. She will see many people, many men will fall in love with her. And how can I know she will come back to me? I must take my chance. I am taking it solely because of my promise to you. Do you think if it were not for that, I would let her go?"

He spoke the truth and Drew knew it. Then, without pause, Giles went on to say things which seemed incredible. "Look here, Hallam, we both love her. And perhaps all this is harder for you than for me—although heaven knows I find it hard enough. Perhaps some other man will win her and you and I will have to stand back and see her marry him. Well, then, let's not bring into it the sordidness of a stupid quarrel. She's so sweet . . . so dear . . . you know it . . . as I know it . . ."

A long silence, out of which Drew said, hoarsely, "You're right, I love her."

"Then make her happy."

"You mean I shall let her marry you?"

"Yes."

"You are asking a lot."

"I know."

Drew's face was as white as chalk. "I can't live without her. I don't want to live . . ." He got to his feet unsteadily, like a drunken man. "Where's your telephone?" he demanded. "I'll call her up."

Giles stood staring at him. "Call her?"

"Yes. Why not? I'll make a grand gesture. Give her to you . . ." His laugh was wild. "Where's your telephone?" he repeated, then saw it on the table and went toward it.

He asked for long distance, gave Joan's number, hung up the receiver and waited, and Giles on the hearth rug waited. Presently the bell rang and Drew answered it. "Joan? . . . This is Drew Hallam . . . I'm with Giles Armiger on his island . . . We're staging a great scene of renunciation . . . I'm to release him from his promise and let the two of you be happy ever after. And I'm to marry Rose . . . Will you wish me happiness . . . happiness, Joan?"

Giles took a step forward. He felt as if he must stop that tortured voice from speaking . . . that wild and tortured voice . . . But it went on. "So everything is . . . settled. Wedding bells for all of us—Nancy married, you and Giles married, Rose and I ——" he rang off suddenly, and stood swaying.

Giles went up to him and laid a hand on his shoulder, "My dear fellow."

Drew flung off the hand, "Don't. You'll make her happy, and I couldn't. But I hope the gods will rob me of life before her wedding day . . ."

"I didn't think," said small Priscilla, wistfully, "that you'd have a wedding without us."

"It was a very quiet wedding."

"Were there any bridesmaids?"

"Not a single one . . . and there wasn't any wedding cake . . . and there wasn't any wedding gown."

"Oh, I shouldn't think you could be married without a wedding gown, Joan."

"Well, I was, and there was no one to see me but Farley. And she nearly cried her eyes out."

Young John and Priscilla stared at her. "Wasn't it a happy wedding, Joan?"

"It was the happiest wedding in the whole wide world, but Farley cried because she was glad."

"If you didn't wear a wedding gown, what did you wear?"

"Giles?"

"Yes."

"And now you're going away with him. I should think you'd rather stay with us."

"Darling," Joan's arms went round the small girl with the shining eyes, "when a woman marries a man she goes with him everywhere—for better, for worse."

"Shall you like it?"

Joan kissed her, but said nothing. Like it? When her heart was singing!

She was walking with the children through the pine woods back of the house on the bluff. There had been a farewell feast at Penelope's, and presently she and Giles would be leaving for their long journey. She had chosen to have a few last moments alone with these little lovers of hers: "My dears," she said, as she finally took leave of them, "you mustn't forget me. And when I come back, you must both visit me on my island. It is a wonderful island like something in a book."

"A fairy book?" the shining child whispered.

"Yes," Joan kissed her again, and stood watching them and waving until they were out of sight.

As she turned to go back she saw Giles coming toward her. When he reached her, he tucked his arm in hers. "Let's walk a bit," he said, "I haven't had a minute alone with you since this morning."

There was a golden light in the wood, snow on the ground, and the trunks of the trees made black stripes against a deep blue sky. As they stood on the edge of the bluff, the sea stretched before them in a sapphire sheet. Yet the horizon line was blurred by an onward moving line of mist. The air was mild for a winter's day, and as they descended the hill, Joan unfastened the fur about her throat, "How warm it is," she said.

Giles carried her fur for her. "It gives me a queer feeling," he said, "looking after your belongings. I've your purse in one pocket, a pair of gloves in another, and this fur is like a part of you, with its fragrance."

Her breath was quick, "You see how soon you've begun to carry my burdens . . ."

The moor as they came to it was all mauve and silver shadows under the sun, "How beautiful it is," Joan said.

"Everything is beautiful," Giles lifted her hand to his lips, "but most of all the thought of the years together."

The years together! Herself and Giles! Joan could scarcely believe it true. There had been the night when she had been waked by the telephone. She had slept so soundly she was not sure the bell had rung. She sat up in bed and listened. The room was illumined only by a tiny lighted flower of rosy glass which glowed in the dimness. It was snowing heavily outside, and the world seemed wrapped in a spell of silence. Then the telephone rang again, and she rose and went to it.

Drew's voice came to her, that wild, ragged voice . . . telling her he was going to make her happy. That she was to marry Giles . . . that he was to marry Rose . . . Would she wish him happiness? Happiness?

As she talked she had had a shivering sense of fear. What was Drew doing there with Giles? And why had not Giles spoken instead of Drew?

Even the knowledge that she was free to marry her lover had not relieved the horror of the moment, so that when Drew rang off, she had stumbled across the rugs to the door which led to her maid's room, "Farley . . ."

The older woman came to her at once, "My lamb?"

"I——" Joan began to sob uncontrollably . . . found herself telling Farley all about it. "I don't understand . . . I am . . . frightened . . ."

Yet even this assurance had not brought serenity, and when she returned to her room Joan had been conscious of things happening far away from the shelter of her rose-lighted chamber—things desperate and desolate and despairing.

And even as she thought of it, another call had come for her over the telephone . . . Giles' voice . . . "Beloved . . ."

And now, leaning on her young husband's arm she said with a sigh, "Poor Drew."

"Why think of him?"

"If only he could be happy."

"He'll find a sort of happiness with Rose."

"Will he?"

"Yes. They are two of a kind. They'll play the game . . . gallantly, perhaps . . . who knows?"

As they stood looking out to sea the fog caught them, drifting at first in thin veils, then thickening, until at last they were shut away from all the world.

"Dear heart," Giles whispered, "we belonged to each other from the beginning, you know that?"

"Yes." Oh, how safe she felt . . . with Giles. His tenderness . . .

They turned presently and made their way upward through the spectral mists—mists which showed here and there a gleam of silver, as if a knight in armor rode among them, or a king . . . But Joan, unaware of that wistful escort, walked on, unconscious and serene. Life was before her. The future held no fears.

(The End.)

"WORN OUT" and WORRIED Not Just Sure What Was Wrong

Many women drag around each day, unable to do their housework—cranky with their children—not wanting to see friends—feeling miserable—yet not sick enough to go to bed. Some blame it on "nerves"—more likely their kidneys are out of order. When kidneys fail the system becomes clogged with impurities—headaches—backache, frequently follow. If you don't feel right, take Dodd's Kidney Pills, as thousands of others have done for three generations. Clear your system and give nature a chance to rebuild your health and energy. 43

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Thursday, October 11

While today may be fairly fortunate and interesting for those in employment, according to the lunar transits, yet there are many adverse conditions to be met with and much in the way of patience, perseverance, self-restraint and calm behavior in difficult situations to be exercised, and with cool judgment as well as wise counsel.

Those whose birthday it is are on the eve of a year calling for much wisdom, calm and controlled actions, as well as persistency, determination and application in order to combat adverse conditions which would only be aggravated by temper, quarrels, violence and passion.

A child born on this day may be steady and studious, but turbulent, rash and headstrong.

WRONG MAN

LONDON, Eng., Oct. 10. (CP)—"Thank you, Sir John," said press cameramen at Waterloo station after barraging their cameras on a tall man with features notably like those of Sir John Reith, Director-General of the British Broadcasting Corporation. He replied: "It's very kind of you, but I don't happen to be Sir John."

BILL DELANCEY ASSESSED $50

Charged With Umpire Klem of Using "Over-ripe Words" During World Series.

LATTER ALSO SHELLS OUT.

DETROIT, October 10 (C.P.). — Kenesaw Mountain Landis, baseball's High Commissioner, to-day imposed fines of $50 each on William J. Klem, senior umpire of the National League, and William Delancey, St. Louis Cardinal catcher, for the use of "over-ripe words" during the World Series.

A decision in the case of Joe Medwick, Cardinal outfielder, who was the central figure in the near-riot of Tuesday's final game, will be reserved for a few days, Judge Landis said.

COW, COLT, PHEASANTS SHOT—FARMERS AROUSED

BRANTFORD, Oct. 10. (CP). — Brantford township authorities been thoroughly aroused by the depredations of rifle-armed poachers, who are roaming through the county firing their weapons indiscriminately.

A report was received to-day that callous hunters had shot and killed a valuable pure bred jersey cow, owned by George Clark, Shellards Lane.

"We also have reports that pheasants are being shot in the township, particularly in the Cainsville region, by law-violating hunters" one of the township officials stated, in explaining that the whole matter had been turned over to the police with instructions to make every effort to bring the slayers before the courts.

The killing of the cow Sunday following quickly upon the shooting of a valuable three year old colt, owned by Walter Shellington of Hatchley.

WESTERNER CHARGES PRICES ARE BEING DELIBERATLY FORCED DOWN

PRODUCER SUFFERER

In the following article, Charles Clark, famed weekly newspaper editor of High River, Alta., gives a practical western view of Canada's marketing problem, for which the attempted solution is in recent federal legislation:

By CHARLES CLARK, Central Press Canadian Writer.

HIGH RIVER, Alta., Oct. 10. — Western people have followed with much interest the Natural Products Marketing Act. Although this probably will not be effective in regard to wheat, it is hoped that it may have some influence in raising the prices of other primary products.

It is quite possible that the phrase "the prices of primary products" has become threadbare and wearying to those who do not actually suffer from those starvation prices. The fact remains, however, that this is the vital factor underlying all dissatisfaction in the West. Every day, in every transaction, the primary producer of Alberta is irritated with the realization that he is the goat; that if there is any cut or any sacrifice the blow falls first—and sometimes last—and all the time upon the original grower. In fact, one is sometimes compelled to believe that in the manufacturing and processing of goods, the only element of no market value is the necessary raw material. Everyone else must get his cut.

For instance, the butchers in my town pay the farmer 1½ cents a pound for a hide, which means about 50 cents or 60 cents. In the store next door the shoemaker pays from $12 to $25 for this tanned hide. The processing is worth from 24 to 50 times as much as the product itself. When prices of leather goods rise, it is not the man with the hide to sell that enjoys any fair share of increased price. It is a long trail from what the farmer grows and sells, to what he has to buy back.

Heavy freight tolls are another thing that keep him enslaved. On every bushel of wheat that he ships from High River to Fort William the farmer pays 16.2 cents regardless of whether the wheat is worth 25 cents or $1.25. No "sahring" of price variations there. The toll is inexorable — 27 cents a hundredweight to Fort William, 20 cents a hundredweight to Vancouver. These rates were based on far different wheat prices than have prevailed in the last few years, and freight rates hit the Alberta farmer in his purchased goods. In fact, the freight rate from the east to Vancouver is cheaper than delivery at Calgary.

Reciprocity Lacking.

The difficulties of Alberta producers are partly geographical and partly artificial. He is at all times aware of the fact that he must sell the major portion of his wares on a world market, and, in his purchasing, is handicapped by the high tariffs protecting eastern Canadian manufactured goods, plus the freight charges involved in the long haul. There is too little reciprocity in his business. This point is illustrated by a British Columbia speaker who stated that British Columbia had sold little of its goods in eastern Canada, but had paid at least $25,000,000 more for its current motor cars bought from eastern Canada than had these been bought in Seattle.

It is the great hope of the West that the Natural Products Marketing Act will prove of benefit to live-stock growers. The cattle industry is our cherished pioneer industry, but it is in the most serious plight of any phase of agriculture. The most vital remedy which the new Act can bring to the livestock producer is to remove price fixing powers from the present control. In fact, this seems the only respect in which the Act can bring higher prices to the industry. The law of supply and demand does not function at present, and the prices of cattle are battered down relentlessly to the ruin of livestock men.

Control over prices may be illustrated by a recent incident in southern Alberta. News, emanating from one of the big agencies of Calgary, was spread through the farms and foothills that cows were selling for 1¼ cents and that a big rancher across the British Columbia border was prepared to turn off 600 cows at 1½ cents a pound. Naturally this spread panic among those who had to sell, but were holding out for a less ruinous price. A few of the ranchers were suspicious of the truth of this story and wired their fellow rancher in British Columbia. He indignantly denied the concocted yarn, stating that he would not consider selling at any such price. That story was invented for one purpose only—to depress prices.

Did the Calgary branch get its instructions to buy cattle from a still higher agency in the east? At any rate such prices and such methods are pauperizing one of Canada's most substantial industries.

British Control Cattle Prices.

It is one extraordinary feature of the cattle industry from the producer's viewpoint, that the British market controls domestic prices. This is not true of other goods sold abroad. The price of a Canadian binder in Great Britain does not set the price of binders in Canada. Why must such a rule operate in the cattle industry? Of our total production, less than five per cent. is shipped overseas, the rest is consumed domestically. Yet the meagre five per cent. sold on the consistently low market of Britain sets the price to the producer across Canada.

Incidentally, you all know the price you pay for a roast of beef or a good steak. Is it in keeping with these 1¼-cent prices to the producer? Who gets the spread? It has been authoritatively stated that prices could be raised three cents a pound more to the producers with no increase in price to consumer and still bring a fair profit to other elements of the industry.

Unless price-setting powers are taken out of the present control under the new marketing act, it will be ineffectual so far as the grower is concerned.

CARDINALS GIVEN WELCOME AT HOME

Brothers Dizzy and Daffy Dean Receive Ovation at St. Louis.

ST. LOUIS, Oct. 10 (AP) — A crowd of several thousand persons turned out to greet Dizzy and Paul Dean and the rest of the Cardinals as they returned from the World Series Wars this morning.

Mounted police and approximately 100 other officers struggled to keep the crowd back, without much success.

Within 15 minutes after the train pulled in, a victory parade, headed by Mayor Bernard F. Dinkmann, Breadon and Manager Frankie Frisch, got under way.

SUCCESSFUL ANNIVERSARY HELD IN LAKEFIELD UNITED CHURCH

Rev. T. E. Holling, D.D., Former Quinte Conference Head, Delivers Splendid Address.

LARGE CONGREGATION

LAKEFIELD, October 10. — The anniversary services in the Lakefield United Church were held on Sunday, both morning and evening, with large congregations, and hearty services. The choir under the direction of Mrs. H. E. Moore, gave several special numbers with pleasing effect, adding the high note of praise to the services. At the evening service the choir sang as an anthem, "Let all the Earth," with the theme of thanksgiving stressed, and after the sermon Mrs. MacMillen and Mr. Warren Payne sang an exquisite setting of "Abide with Me," as a duet.

Rev. R. Burton of St. Andrew's church and Rev. W. B. Walker of the Baptist church, assisted with the service, the evening service in both churches being waived in order to join the United church in its anniversary. The special preacher was Rev. T. E. Holling, D.D., former head of the Bay of Quinte Conference and a speaker of rare ability. A feature of the service which was most unique was the singing of two verses of a hymn, "Oh, Holy Spirit, Comforter," of which Dr. Holling is the author, by Dr. Holling, the remainder of the hymn being sung by the choir and congregation.

The pastor of the church, Rev. W. R. Archer, B. A., welcomed the visitors and the clergy and congregations of the Presbyterians and Baptist churches, who helped by their co-operation to make the anniversary a success.

The church was prettily decorated with flowers, greenery and vegetables, by the ladies, and spoke of the spirit of Thanksgiving.

REV. C. D. DANIEL IS GUEST SPEAKER

Peterborough Minister in Charge at Bailieboro Morning Anniversary Services.

Examiner Correspondence.

BAILIEBORO, October 10.—Rev. C. D. Daniel, of Mark street church, Peterborough, was guest speaker at the morning anniversary service of the United church. The anniversary occasion was the fifty-first birthday of the church.

Mr. Daniel was assisted by Rev. M. W. Leigh of Kingston, and a former pastor of the church.

The speaker chose as his subject: "Thankful for What?"

The evening service was conducted by Rev. A. L. Siscoe of Millbrook, who also preached a thanksgiving sermon, outlining clearly the many blessings that people of the province of Ontario enjoy compared with other provinces and countries in the world to-day.

Special music was prepared by the local choir. The anthems sung were "Holy, Holy, Holy," "Make a Joyful Noise unto the Lord," and "Oh Be Joyful in the Lord All ye Lands." A mixed quartette, with Mr. and Mrs. N. Thompson, Mrs. W. Bateman and Mr. E. White taking part, rendered two numbers: "Lead me Gently Home Father," and "Lead Kindly Light."

The church was beautifully decorated for the occasion and both services were largely attended, many being present from Otonabee, Peterborough, Plainville, Millbrook, Fraserville, Centreville and Bensfort.

The pastor Rev. E. M. Cook, took charge of the morning services at Mark street church, during the absence of their pastor, and preached anniversary evening service at Zion United church.

Quilting Bee

About forty ladies of the United church Sunday school gathered at the home of Mrs. Harry Barnard on Thursday last to hold a quilting bee and prepare quilts for the Western relief bale, which will shortly be forwarded to the stricken areas of Saskatchewan.

A most pleasant afternoon was spent and a supper and social hour brought the happy event to a close.

The ladies are planning another such afternoon together to prepare more clothes for the bale and an invitation was extended the group by Mrs. Harry Gainer to hold the next gathering at her home.

Spinal Meningitis Caused Child's Death

The death of Marilyn Jarvis, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Keith Jarvis, 266 King street, on September 27, was caused by spinal meningitis, belated information revealed to-day. At the time, the nature of the death was not made public.

The case was not of the communicable type of the disease, officials of the local Health Laboratory diagnosing it as streptococcic meningitis. First taking ill on September 21, the child was removed to the Isolation Hospital when the case was diagnosed as spinal meningitis on September 24. Pending laboratory tests to determine whether or not it was of the communicable type, precautions required by law were taken by officials. Death followed on September 27, three days after admission to the hospital.

The child, ten months of age, was interred in St. Peter's cemetery the day of its death.

Dr. G. Murray Fraser, Medical Officer of Health, said to-day that there is no spinal meningitis epidemic threat to the city at the present time. There have been no cases of meningococcic meningitis, the communicable type of the disease and the Jarvis case was the first spinal meningitis of any kind here in some months, he said.

TO guard your children against dangerous eyestrain—avoid inferior lamps. They often give far less light than their marking indicates. Play safe by choosing EDISON MAZDA Lamps. They ensure better light—better sight.

Ruth Hale Died in New York After Long Career as a Writer.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10 (C.P.) — Ruth Hale, former wife of Heywood Broun, well known critic of this city, died recently. She was only 18 when she was a staff writer on Hearst Publications Bureau in Washington. At 20 she was a reporter on the Washington Post.

In 1922 she founded the Stope League, which two years later boasted a membership of 5,000 married women in New York State alone who used their maiden names.

Prospective Mothers

WOMEN who suffer every month—who may have weakening drains, side ache or nervous headache, and those about to become mothers, will find Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription just what they need. Mrs. Ernest Stants of 178 Mohawk St., Brantford, Ont., says: "Before the birth of my little boy I felt miserable. I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and felt much stronger after I had taken it only a short time. It gave me the necessary strength. I gave birth to a fine, healthy boy, with very little suffering."

Short News Items Received By Examiner Over Direct C. P. Wire.

OTTAWA—After allowing for capital expenditure, the Central Canadian Exhibition Association broke practically even on the 1934 exhibition, it was reported today. Total receipts for the year were $89,626 as compared with $91,096 in 1933, while the expenditures were $104,356 against $95,367 last year.

BROCKVILLE—Acting upon a recommendation from the Retail Merchants Association, the Municipal Council last night decided to petition E. G. Odette, Ontario Liquor Board Commissioner, asking that earlier closing of beverage rooms go into effect here, the closing to be at 10 p.m. on week days other than Saturday when the hour of 7 p.m. was suggested.

NEW YORK—The Bronx County extortion case against Bruno Richard Hauptmann was removed from the trial calendar today, and the prisoner was immediately arrested on an extradition warrant calling for his removal to New Jersey to face a murder indictment in the Lindbergh kidnap case.

LONDON — Prime Minister R. B. Bennett of Canada, who sails for home tomorrow, today had lunch at No. 10 Downing street with Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald and others, including J. H. Thomas, secretary for dominions. Previously the Canadian premier had had consultations with most members of the cabinet, acquainting himself with British governmental policies.

SYDNEY, Australia — A Japanese ship was seized by Australian authorities in New Guinea yesterday and her crew of 25 was arrested on charges of shell poaching. Authorities said poachers have been increasingly active throughout Western Pacific Islands recently, resulting in the establishment of seaplane patrols by Australia. Should Japan protest the arrests possible diplomatic complications are foreseen by observers.

SOUTH BAY, Ont.—Feeding on the wild rice beds that cover the Gull Bar shoal of the False Duck Island, thousands of wild ducks are disporting about the feeding grounds here in Prince Edward county. Duck hunters have so far been unable to shoot any of the flock.

HAMILTON.— Hamilton's burglar, who ransacks houses, steals what he wishes, and avoids the police with consistent success, made a night of it and robbed three dwellings at some hour prior to dawn to-day.

SIMCOE, Ont.—Edward Dickson, 20, who was remanded a week ago after pleading guilty to an attempt while armed to rob the Canadian Bank of Commerce here was sentenced by Magistrate Cross this morning to 18 months determinate and 18 months indeterminate.

ST. CATHARINES.—Proprietors of the City Hotel, charged with selling beer to minors, were convicted and fined $25 and costs.
The case arose out of the arrest of three 'teen age girls early on the morning of September 24. Charges against the girls were not pressed.

LONDON, Ont.—Dr. Herbert Little, prominent Montreal physician, and brother of Senator E. S. Little, dropped dead in a London restaurant this afternoon.

LONDON.— Scotland Yard officers visited a cinema in the west end to-day to see a film of the assassination of King Alexander and French Foreign Minister Louis Barthou which just reached England.
It was understood the detectives were eager to find out whether they could recognise any International police characters among the crowd when the crime was committed. If they made any identifications they were silent about it.

EAST WINDSOR.— Echoes of the assassinatinon of King Alexander of Yugoslavia were heard in East Windsor, home of many European nationalities, early this afternoon. A delegation from the Yukoslavian Canadian Club waited upon Mayor Ted Fontaine demanding that he prevent a demonstration alleged to be planend by Croatian residents of this manufacturing city. They declared that they would, if necessary, use fore to prevent any Croatian gathering.

THREAT OF WAR GROWS OMINOUS ACROSS EUROPE

French Nab 2 Alleged Pals of Alexander's Assassin—Of Italian Birth.

(By the Canadian Press)

The European situation took on an ominous tinge today, with anti-Italian disturbances in Yugoslavia and identification of alleged accomplices of the Marseille assassin as Italians.

Two suspects arrested while trying to flee from France into Switzerland, with passports showing birth in what is now Italian territory, were accused of being companions of Petrus Kalemen—the assassin of uncertain birth who slew Alexander of Yugoslavia and Louis Barthou, French foreign minister.

Italy and Yugoslavia have been increasingly embittered since the Nazi putsch in Austria, when movements of Italian troops to the Austrian border were countered with Yugoslav concentrations. (Italy and Yugoslavia border ... head of the Adriatic, and ... border Austria.)

Yugoslav sympathies have been turning towards Germany ever since Italy and Germany split over Austria. The traditional enemity between Italy and Yugoslavia has been revived until partisans of both sides were systematically hurling insults at each other.

Press Stirs Trouble

Patriotic sentiment in both countries has been stirred on by an embittered press campaign and even virulent speeches from wireless stations in the past few weeks. The respective fighting qualities of the two races for hundreds of years back has particularly been the subject of recriminations.

The slaying of Yugoslavia's monarch and of France's foreign minister could hardly have occurred at a more unfortunate time—on the eve of a visit to Paris which the French diplomat fervently believed would bring renewed friendship between France and Yugoslavia, and eventually pave the way for settlement of the differences between Italy and Yugoslavia.

WILL IS DRAWN BY VERMILYEA

Drawing Up of Document Causes Special Guard to be Placed at Cell.

WILL TALK IN CANADA.

LOS ANGELES, October 11 (C. P.). — A veil of silence to-day surrounded any connection Harold W. Vermilyea may or may not have with the brutal slaying of his 72-year-old mother, Mrs. Nathaniel Vermilyea, near her Belleville, Ont., home last week.

Under arrest here on a provisional warrant charging him with the unexplained axe-murder of his mother, Vermilyea, fruit farmer of Ontario, Calif., was quoted by Marshal Bob Clark as declaring he would tell his story when he reached Canada.

The 48-year-old prisoner steadfastly declined to answer questions, Clark said. He waived extradition, and will be returned to the scene of the crime by Inspector Homar K. Gardiner of the Ontario Police.

Wishing "to get my affairs in order before I go to Canada," Vermilyea drew up a will in Los Angeles Jail. Since then a special guard has watched over him closely. He will be permitted to see his daughter Aurelia 18 and son Thos 13, before leaving for the Dominion.

Fatal Play

HARRISVILLE, W.Va., Oct. 11 (CP)—Orville Knott's ability as a squirrel decoy led to his death.

Police reported that Knott, 30, of Fairmont, W.Va., member of a party of hunters, hid behind a bush on the George T. Layfield farm, chattered like a squirrel, and was accidentally shot to death by Ernest Hashman, also of Fairmont.

SOCIETY BEAUTY IS KIDNAPPED IN LOUISVILLE

$50,000 RANSOM ASKED.

Husband, Oil Magnate, Finds Maid Bound—Note Threatens Brother.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 11 (AP) —Fears that Mrs. Alice Stoll, young society matron might die in a kidnapper's hands was based, it was learned to-day, not only on the fact that she was beaten with an iron pipe until blood came, but that she was suffering from a severe cold that had required a physician.

From members of the family of ... E. Stoll, oil company vice-president, police learned the 28-year-old former Bryn Mawr student and Junior League member, was ill when a white-faced man kidnapped her late yesterday for $50,000 ransom.

To-day Major William Schmidt, night Chief of Police, said the young woman had a high temperature yesterday afternoon when an unidentified man got into the Stoll home by a ruse, subdued her and her maid, Ann Woolet, and forced Mrs. Stoll to leave with him in an automobile. The Stoll family physician, however, said her temperature was not abnormally high.

Ready to Pay

The Stoll family and that of William S. Speed, retired capitalist, her father, announced from the start they were ready to pay the ransom and to-day Mr. Stoll reiterated:

"We are not so much interested now in the capture of the kidnapper as we are in the return of Alice. All we want is to get her back alive."

Taciturn Department of Justice men directing their work, city and county officers joined two state police forces in weaving a band about this area, hoping to trap the man and his victim.

But splotches of blood, the cultured wording of the threatening ransom note and the fallible memory of an almost hysterical maid were all the sleuths had to go on for hours after the kidnapping.

Arrives To Repair 'Phone

The victim was seized in her home on Lime Kiln Lane, in the fashionable but remote Upper River Road section of Louisville, eight miles from the city proper. The kidnapper came about 3 o'clock Wednesday afternoon, saying he had come to repair the telephone, which had been giving trouble.

Ann Woolet, 24-year-old maid, whose husband is a caretaker on the Stoll estate, admitted him. She said he "looked and acted like a fiend." He "fooled around with the wires" she said and then ripped away the connection. Mrs. Stoll, who had been ill several days, came down stairs when she heard the noise.

The man menaced Mrs. Woolet with a gun, forced her to tape the hands of her mistress. Then he tied the maid to a chair, gagged her

SALESMAN SAYS HE IS MISSING AMBROSE SMALL

Toronto Relatives of Missing Theatre Millionaire Deny Story.

DESCRIPTIONS DIFFER.

Prisoner In Michigan Jail For Selling Alberta Homestead Lots Without License.

KALAMAZOO, Mich., Oct. 11.—(CP).—Brief sensation aroused in Kalamazoo to-day when an arrested stock salesman claimed he was Ambrose J. Small, Toronto millionaire who vanished mysteriously 14 years ago, subsided this afternoon when relatives of Small at Toronto discounted his story and Toronto police said he failed to answer Small's description.

The man held in Kalamazoo county jail on a 10-day sentence for stock-selling without license and also known as Charles E. Morris, named a number of relatives of the missing man, some of them correctly. He said he owned theatre buildings across Canada and had leased them to a United States motion picture firm. He claimed he had been "dodging Canadian authorities for years."

Capt. Ralph W. Chapman of Kalamazoo police, said the arrested man's description failed to tally with that of Small as issued 14 years ago when $50,000 reward was offered, except in age. The man was three or four inches taller than Small, who was 53 years old in 1920, and had grey-brown eyes whereas Small's eyes were blue. His complexion was rated medium, Small's sallow.

Differences

The man, who was also known as Charles E. Morris, did not answer the description of Small as

U.S. Orders Meisner Deported To Ontario

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (A.P.).— The United States Labor Department to-day ordered the deportation of David Meisner, a Canadian, now held in Detroit for being in the United States illegally. He is wanted by Ontario police in connection with the kidnapping of John S. Labatt, London, Ont., brewer.

The grounds for deportation given by the Labor Department were that Meisner had been convicted of attempted robbery and impersonating an officer before he came into the United States, that he was physically defective at the time of his entry and was a person likely to become a public charge.

Edwin Price of Lowhill left his 26-months-old baby Dorothy at a hospital for special treatment. Several weeks later the parents were handed a baby which they suspected was not theirs.

A fortnight later hospital attendants took the baby back as anther set of parents were claiming her. A different baby, also named Dorothy Price, was offered to the Prices, who refused to accept it, and are now without any baby at all.

SMALL CHILD IS SCALDED, DIES

Stove Collapses Upsetting Kettle of Boiling Water on Boy.

PARENTS PRESENT.

A scalding received while at play on the floor of his home ended fatally for little Robert Brown, 3-year-old son of Mr. and Mrs. Roy Brown, 176 Adaline Street. The child died in Nichols Hospital yesterday afternoon despite every effort of physicians to save his life.

The tragic accident took place on Monday afternoon. Playing with a pail of sand on the kitchen floor, the little lad was talking happily to himself when the stove, a small coal-burning kitchen model, toppled over without warning. Boiling water from a full kettle was dashed over him. The mother, who witnessed the occurrence from the other side of the room, and Mr. Brown, listening to the World Series game over a radio in the front of the house, ran to his side, but the fatal injuries had been inflicted.

Three Doctors Called.

Dr. G. Murray Fraser, M.O.H., answering an emergency call, ordered removal to the hospital. The efforts of Dr. S. Y. Walsh and Dr. Ray Scott in a long vigil over the slowly sinking child proved unavailing.

T little brother of the scalded boy narrowly missed the same fate. He was entering the kitchen just as the stove toppled over and escaped the boiling water by inches.

The dead child was born in this city on September 3, 1931. Seven brothers, Ernest, Clifford, Leslie, Billie, Kenneth, Raymore, and Jackie, all at home, survive him.

The funeral will be held on Saturday afternoon at 3:00 o'clock proceeding from the home to Little Lake Cemetery. Rev. A. E. Moorhouse will officiate.

SAVING DEPOSIT INTEREST IS CUT TO 2 PER CENT

Includes Accounts With Chartered Banks, Post Office, Ontario Gov't.

EFFECTIVE NOV. 1.

OTTAWA, Oct. 11. (CP).—Interest paid on savings deposits will be reduced to two percent as from Nov. 1, 1934, by all chartered banks in Canada, the Dominion Government post-office savings banks and the Ontario Government savings office, Finance Minister E. N. Rhodes announced to-day.

A similar reduction will be made effective by all other banks on Dec. 1, and the Minister intimated that a number of the important loan and trust companies in Ontario will reduce by one half of one percent the rate of interest which they at present pay on savings deposition such reductions to be effective from Jan. 2.

On May 1, 1933, the savings deposit interest rate was reduced by the chartered banks and similar institutions from three percent to two and one half.

Rhodes Statement.

Announcement of the interest reduction was accompanied by a statement from the Minister, which was, in part, as follows:

"During the last two or three years the Government has sponsored the movement for reduction in interest rates by normal economic processes. It will be recalled that the Dominion Government joined in a resolution passed by the Ottawa conference in the summer or 1932, which recommended the creation and maintenance, within the limits of sound finance, of such conditions as will assist in the revival of enterprise and trade and stated that among these conditions are low rates of interest and abundance of short-term money."

In making the announcement Mr. Rhodes expressed great gratification that financial institutions accepting deposits had decided to take this step and stressed its importance from the point of view of the general national welfare. He pointed out that the lowering of interest rates was a natural development in keeping with a similar movement in other countries and that it would have an important effect in stimulating business recovery by encouraging the employment of capital for productive enterprise. One immediate important result would be the stimulus given to the investment market and the consequent lightening of the burden of debt charges upon public bodies.

NAPANEE MEN RECEIVE NOTES ASKING $50,000

POLICE TRAP FAILS.

NAPANEE, Ont., Oct. 11 (CP)— An unknown extortioner identified only as "Ill-Fingered Abe" was sought to-day as the author of three notes addressed to two prominent Napanee men. Sums totalling $50,000 were demanded in the notes.

John G. Daly, prominent merchant and ex-Mayor Arthur Kimmerley were recipients of the notes. One missive received by Daly carried a threat of death for failure to comply with its demands.

Beyond the signature, similar to that used by the writer of the ransom notes in the Labatt case, police were without clues in the case. The notes were received some days ago but were only made public yesterday. When John Labatt, London, Ont., brewer, was kidnapped, notes demanding ransom of $50,000 were signed "Three-Fingered Abe."

The first note, addressed to Daly, demanded $20,000, Scrawled in pencil on a sheet of cheap notepaper, it instructed Daly to leave the money in a rock cut by a railway bridge at the town limits. It warned against notifying police.

Kimmerley got the second note, scribbled likewise on cheap paper and demanding $30,000. The money was to be left in the same place. Both men were told they were being watched

Police Set Trap

Believing the author a crank, Daly said nothing about it. But when he got a second note, instructing him to toss the money out of his car as he drove past the cemetery gate, he informed police.

At the time set by the extortioner, Daly drove past the cemetery while police lay in ambush, hoping to trap the culprit. He did not carry any package of money, however. Apparently the extortionist had become frightened and they saw no trace of him.

The district Provincial Police Officer and Chief Constable Watts of Napanee had no comment to make on the case. They declined to remark on the similarity between the name used by the extorionist and that of the ransom note writer in the Labatt case.

Born in Peterborough, Ont., Johnston started railway work with the old Grand Trunk Pacific Railway. He joined the C.P.R., and after being married at Bancroft, Ont., was transferred to Kenora, where he lived 20 years. He came to Winnipeg 13 years ago.

HALIFAX BLAZE AND EXPLOSION CLAIMS 6 LIVES

Two Mothers, Four Children Are Trapped in Sleep—Dynamite Blamed.

TORONTO MAN VICTIM.

Hull Grandmother, Little Girl Perish—Youth Dies Trying Rescue.

By the Canadian Press

HALIFAX, Oct. 11. — (CP)—Robert Cruse, one of two persons who escaped death in an explosion and fire here today, declared that only yesterday an unnamed man had threatened to "get even" with the owner of the building destroyed this morning with the loss of six lives.

Cruse told newspapermen of his conversation with the unidentified man as he lay on a hospital cot, not knowing as yet that his wife and two children had perished in the explosion.

Death by explosion and fire struck at three points in Eastern Canada today, leaving in charred embers the bodies of at least 10 persons.

An aged grandmother, two mothers, five children and two men were the known dead in tragic blazes at South Hull, Halifax and Toronto.

From the smoking debris of a Halifax building wrecked by explosion six bodies were recovered. Mrs. Robert Cruse and Mrs. Daniel Dudas died there, with the two small children of Robert Cruse and Peter and Sonny Dudas. It was thought possible an employee of Dudas might also have been killed, but the body was not found.

3 Die in South Hull

In South Hull 79-year-old Mrs. Moise Fayette, four-year-old Thelma Hutchinson and Donat Gunville, 24, were the victims as fire destroyed the Fayette home. Gunville lost his life attempting to save the others.

Mrs. Yvonne Hutchison, mother of the dead child, had a narrow escape from losing her own life. Awakened by shouts from the outside and a pounding on her bedroom door, she took the child in her arms, blinded by smoke and almost overcome, she dropped Thelma. A son, David, 6 years old, was rescued by the mother who found him while searching in the blazing interior for her four-year-old daughter.

Toronto Man Trapped

Crippled Thomas Adams, 35, was found dead in the smoke-filled Toronto cottage where he lived alone.

Halifax Tragedy

Searchers in Halifax to-day found the body of Mrs. Daniel Dudas, sixth known victim of an explosion and fire that levelled a three-storey building here early this morning, firemen continued digging through the debris for the body of a man believed buried in the fallen timbers.

The dead were:

Mrs. Daniel Dudas, wife of the owner of the building; one-year-old Peter Dudas and Sonny Dudas five, her children; Mrs. Robert Cruse, wife of an unemployed laborer; her two children, Kathleen and Joseph Cruse.

Only two persons in the building escaped death. Daniel Cruse, asleep in his home on the second floor, was blown clear across the street and picked up unconscious. He was taken to hospital with a good chance for recovery.

Neighbors found seven-year-old Edna Dudas wandering about the street in her night clothes, unable to explain how she had left the building uninjured and calling for "Mamma and Peter."

QUEEN HURRIED THROUGH PARIS TO GREET PETER

President's Wife Substitutes in Official Auto as Plot Feared on Marie.

LEAVE TO-NIGHT FOR HOME.

Best Detectives of France Tracing Alexander's Assassin's Connections.

BY RICHARD G. MASSOCK
(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press)

PARIS, Oct. 11.—Queen Marie of Yugoslavia, like the boy-king Peter II, was smuggled into Paris today and taken secretly through the streets to avoid an attempt on her life.

When Marie arrived from Marseille for a reunion in tragedy with her son Mme. Albert Lebrun, wife of the president of France, was substituted for her.

Heavily veiled, Mme. Lebrun sat beside the president in an automobile that headed procession from the station and crowds thought she was the widowed queen.

Queen Marie remained in the train, which arrived at 9:20 a.m. for half an hour, and then was taken swiftly, under heavy guard, to the Yugoslav legation, where she joined her son.

Leave For Home Tonight

Marie and her son will leave Paris tonight for Belgrade, where the parliament met today to approve a proclamation making him king.

The schedule of the presidential train from Marseille was changed at Avignon, where it was sidetracked. A regular train sent ahead in case there had been sabotage. The queen, meanwhile, moved into another car of the special train.

At Paris, she waited inside until the crowd around the station had dispersed.

Greets Mother, Sister.

Fifteen minutes after the Presidential party had gone, Marie's mother, the Dowager-Queen Marie of Rumania and her sister, Princess Ileana, arrived and greeted the widow.

Leaning heavily on her mother's arm, she walked through a guarded passage to an automobile after the police had cleared the way.

While Peter and Marie met here for the first time since he entered an English boarding school several weeks ago, the Yugoslav destroyer Dubrovnik steamed through the Mediterranean with King Alexander's body in a flag-draped casket on the afterdeck.

Eight Warships in Escort.

It will arrive in Split, Yugoslav port on the Adriatic, on Friday. Two French cruisers and six destroyers form an escort of honor for the dead King.

Also arriving from Marseilles was the body of the elderly French Foreign Minister, Louis Barthou, a victim of the same pistol that killed Alexander on Tuesday.

A national funeral will be held Saturday for Barthou, who died just before the apparent fruition of his scheme to assure peace in troubled Europe.

Best Detectives on Trail.

The best detectives in France were given the task of finding supposed accomplices of Petrus Kalemen, the fanatic who spread death and terror at Marseille. Two suspects were arrested at Annemasse, near the Swiss border. Police believed an international band of terrorists plotted Alexander's death.

Kalemen, they said, used a forged Czechoslovakian passport.

Every effort is being made to determine Kalemen's antecedents. Police said he belonged to a secret Macedonian revolutionary society.

Raids have been made by police in various cities of France on homes of Balkan suspects in an attempt to find clues leading them to Kalemen, a victim with five others of his own fanaticism.

The 'planes were wheeled from their hangars at Zemum, just across the river.

NORWOOD FAIR ACCLAIMED BEST IN MANY YEARS

ANNUAL BABY SHOW.

NORWOOD, Oct. 11.—The East Peterborough Agricultural Society's Fall Fair had all the signs of a money crowd here yesterday afternoon, and after the turnstiles were tied up for another year along about four o'clock, the accounting staff came out of a checking huddle with the information that a preliminary survey of the financial returns showed an appreciable increase over the 1933 total. And, a big list of concessions promised more "velvet" for the treasury.

So, Norwood's 66th Fair goes into the record as a substantial success, in spite of the retreating depression, to the credit and comfort of the President Gilbert, J. Elmhurst, and his associate directors. All the elements of that success turned up promptly and abundantly with their contribution—weather, crowd, exhibits, concessions, midway, band, horse races, hot dogs, the old army game of Crown and Anchor in a numerous invasion, several sideshows and, so on all down the familiar line.

One of the visitors was heard to express his reasoned opinion is a remark: "This is the best fair I was ever at. I met more friends today than I ever thought I had." Apparently the social aspect of such occasional opportunities of renewing old and recent acquaintances is a perennial attraction, bringing thousand of people together from the nearby counties. And with the completion of the two nearby highways, presumably by next summer, the one east from Peterborough and the other from Campbellford to Havelock, Norwood's Fair should have no misgivings about its future.

SUDDEN BLAST TRAPS VICTIMS

Blamed On Dynamite

Believed to have been caused by dynamite in the cellar, the Halifax explosion rocked the north end of the city, awakened the resident and reminded them of the great Halifax explosion of 1917 which claimed 1,635 lives.

Flames shot 100 feet in the air, then the building collapsed like a pack of cards. The fire spread rapidly and firemen were forced to battle for three hours before rescue operations could be undertaken.

Shortly before six o'clock the body of one of the Cruse children was found in its crib deep under the debris. Belief was expressed that it had smothered to death, and a policeman reported having heard a baby's cry shortly after arriving on the scene.

The bodies of Mrs. Cruse and her other child were found together half an hour later, and the charred bodies of the Dudas children were removed before seven o'clock.

No trace of the man employed by Mr. Dudas had been found an hour later, and police were endeavoring to confirm a report that he was not in the building at the time of the explosion.

Suspect Dynamite

Mr. Dudas, whose grocery occupied the first floor of the building, was in the Annapolis Valley on a buying trip at the time. Police had one report that the explosion had been caused by dynamite he left in the cellar after blasting operations two years ago, and another that gasoline was responsible.

Several houses in the vicinity of the Dudas building were damaged by the blast. A general alarm failed at first because the falling beams carried away connecting wires and put the alarm system out of commission.

When the city's entire force of firefighters arrived the ruins were in flames. After a three-hour battle they succeeded in controlling the fire, but were held at bay in some sections by smoke and terrific heat.

One hour before the first body was located the ambulance had already departed, hope of finding any of the occupants alive having been abandoned.

Cars Are Damaged Hastings Smashup

(Examiner Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 11.—Hastings Road, just two miles east of the village of Hastings was the scene of another car crash on Wednesday when a car owned and driven by Samuel Dudley of Colborne and a car driven by Roy W. Bell, owned by Mrs. Mary Attwood of Campbellford met at a bad turn in the road. Mr. Bell was on his way to Norwood Fair, while Mr. Dudley was proceeding to Campbellford. Both cars were badly damaged, but the occupants escaped injury.

In one day recently Justice Crossman, in London, granted 90 divorces.

"I like Muffets"

"Muffets? Simply topping and it's no end amazing how they keep a chap full of the old vim and vigour—bah Jove!"

"Nothing like Muffets to keep you up to scout health standards—boy, they're swell—it's a good turn to recommend them to anyone."

"I eat Muffets every morning because I like them and they help keep me courteous and pleasant all day. Wish more of my customers would start the day right, too."

An extra Muffet Feature

Muffets are the only whole wheat biscuits irradiated for Sunshine Vitamin "D" Potent (No. 281136). Sufficient quantities of this vitamin are needed to health. Ask your doctor.

Everybody likes Muffets

Muffets are ribbons of all-Canadian whole wheat . . . wound round and round . . . then toasted to a rich-flavoured crispness. A new process has made possible these new improved wheat ribbons that crumble easily . . . break readily.

BUILD SEADROMES FOR CITY PLANES

New York Men Who Regularly Fly to Work Get Bases in Harbor.

NEW YORK, October 10 (C.P.).—Success of New York's sky harbors is such that a third floating dock for seaplanes is now under construction and will be anchored in the East River opposite the foot of Thirty-First Street to take care of mid-town traffic.

The first floating seaplane base, privately built and owned, has been functioning in the Hudson River, uptown, since early in the season. The second was built by the city as an unemployment relief work and was recently inaugurated at the foot of Wall Street, where it has been doing a good business for the city ever since. The third is now being built in the Brooklyn Navy Yard.

Commuters with planes of their own or holders of commuters' tickets for one of the regular planes operating up Long Island Sound land at the Wall Street base. The plane rides up to a turntable and is lightly swung up on the 168-ton barge-like dock, where the passengers step off. Only half a minute is required to unload and launch the seaplane back into the river.

The bases are also proving valuable for the maintenance of shuttle services between Manhattan and Floyd Bennett Field, terminus of the regular long-distance air lines.

Group Meets At Home Of Mrs. E. A. Stinson

The opening meeting for the season of Group E of the W.M.S. of George Street United Church was held at the home of the leader, Mrs. E. A. Stinson, Brock street.

The devotional exercises were taken by Mesdames Cunningham and McLean, while Mrs. Harvey gave a chapter from the Study Book and Mrs. Stinson read a letter from Miss Coon, a missionary in China. Mrs. S. Wildman sang and dainty refreshments were served by the hostess.

A feature of the Thanksgiving services in the United Church on Sunday evening was junior choir, ten girls wearing white surplices, and four boys or young men, under the leadership of Mrs. George Taylor.

They led in the services of prayer and instead of an anthem sang "We Thank Thee, Our Father", and each girl held a display of the garden or of the field.

Rev. Mr. Nellis preached a sermon which appealed to his listeners in the Presbyterian Church on Sunday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. Maitland Gardner spent Sunday at Mrs. Gardner's father's home.

Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Douglas and Rodney returned from their trip to Chicago on Saturday. They spent some time at the World's Fair.

Mr. Jack Lillie spent Sunday with Mrs. Lillie at Mrs. Lillie's parents' home.

Mr. and Mrs. Charles Bowen, Alec, Mrs. Lillie and son, spent Thanksgiving Day with friends in Lakefield.

Miss Florence Tedford was home on the week-end and holiday.

Hector Munro, spent the week-end holiday with his parents, Dr. and Mrs. Munro.

Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Stark, Toronto, spent the week-end and Thanksgiving Day with the latter's parents, Mr. and Mrs. David Payne.

Kenneth Jakins visited his grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Newall for the holidays.

Miss Florence Bibby went to Woodville for a few days, and then to her home in Campbellford for a few days before she returns to Warsaw.

Mr. and Mrs. McGee, from near Hastings, spent Thanksgiving Day with Mr. and Mrs. U. B. McIlvena.

U.S. WHEAT CROP.

WASHINGTON, Oct. 11 (A.P.).—The United States wheat crop was estimated to-day at 496,982,000 bushels for this year by the Department of Agriculture, which also reported the indicated corn crop at 1,416,772,000 bushels, showing the ravages of this year's severe drought.

MORE WORK IN BUSH

NORTH BAY, Ont., Oct. 11.—(CP). Approximately 700 more men are working in the bush in this district to-day than at this time last year. In the territory served by Provincial Sanitary Inspector J. Richardson, of North Bay, 1,716 men are now engaged in bush operation. At this time in 1933 the number was about 1,000.

LEGION WILL HOLD ZONE RALLY IN CITY

Capt. B. W. Allen, President of Ottawa Branch, Will be Principal Speaker.

(Examiner Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 11—Comrade N. A. MacColl, representative of Zone 15 B.E.S.L. Canadian Legion, announces that a monster zone rally, will be held at Legion Hall, Peterborough on the evening of Friday, October 19, at 8 p.m. The pricipal speaker will be Capt. Ben. W. Allen, president of the Ottawa Branch, who has done great work for ex-service men in that City, and was recently appointed Campaign Manager (by the Dominion President) of the Vimy Ridge Re-union slated for 1936. Capt. W. C. C. Innes, vice chairman of the Ontario Provincial Command, and campaign manager of the Poppy committee will also address the gathering. This zone comprises Peterborough, Lakefield, Bancroft, Cobourg, Colborne, Brighton and Campbellford, and already many wires have been received stating that members will attend 100 per cent. This will be an open meeting for all ex-service men regardless as to whether they are members of the Legion — as important veteran problems will be brought up for discussion.

An elaborate funeral will be given Alexander. He will be placed in the sarcophagus he completed only a few weeks ago, an indication that he had a premonition of death.

For two days Alexander will lie in state here. Then, after consecration services at the National Cathedral, the body will be borne to the Royal Memorial Church at Topolo, where the sarcophagus is, beside that of his father, King Peter. Topolo is Alexander's native city.

Alexander took especial pride in his sepulchre. It is built of varicolored marble and mosaic in Serbo-Byzantine style. A large dome, crossing four smaller domes, surmounts it. Figures of the Madonna and of Christ are above the sarcophagus.

Efforts to trace Peter Kalemen, Alexander's slayer, in this country have failed.

The government opposes any efforts to place blame on other nations for Alexander's death.

Thousands of black flags flutter from buildings and homes throughout the nation, as it mourns the dead king. Public entertainments have been cancelled.

No More Piles

Doctor's Prescription Does the Work.

Few Pile sufferers know that the cause of Piles is internal—bad circulation of blood in the lower bowel.

This is the scientific truth about Piles—the real reason why salves and suppositories so often may not give lasting relief and why cutting sometimes removes the pile tumor but leaves its exciting cause which may create a recurrence.

Your itching, bleeding or protruding Piles will only go when you actually remove the cause. For this an internal medicine should be used HEM-ROID, the prescription of Dr. J. S. Leonhardt, sold by good druggists everywhere, succeeds because it stimulates the circulation, and acts to relieve congestion.

So isn't it better, when salves fail and before considering operation to try this internal remedy when McDermid & Jury and Boyd's Drug Store invites every Pile sufferer to try HEM-ROID with money-back if not joyfully satisfied with the help one bottle gives.

ing mention for the progress that has been made in a little more than two years. The twenty-one members on the stand yesterday are nearly all school boys who have been taught by Mr. Renaud. They made a very favorable impression, playing with essential harmony and presenting a varied entertainment of selections, including numbers from operatic scores.

Peterborough County livestock breeders carried off a generous share of the prize money. Among those who exhibited were Col. R. E. Birdsall and Son in the Hereford class; Wm. Elmhirst and Son in Shorthorns; and G. A. Brethen with Holsteins. Their ribbon, in each case, included the prizes for the best herds in their respective classes. A. E. Hubble of Havelock was represented in the Jersey ring.

Other cattle exhibitors were: Fred Rutherford of Bonarlaw who had the Ayrshire class all to himself; Malcolm Bailey of Uxbridge, with no competition in the Aberdeen-Angus; Charlton Grigg of Roseneath with Shorthorns; Garnet Kerr of Campbellford, Jerseys; Mitchell Bros. of Norham, and Allan Linton, Cobourg, with Herefords; Merrills Bros., of Dartford, Holsteins.

The horse ring was the centre of attraction for hundreds of spectators, with spirited competition in all classes.

Dr. Arthur Johnston of Peterborough judged the light horses; A. E. Webster of Oakville, the heavy horses; Charles Westlake of Peterborough, beef cattle; Alex Hume of Menie, dairy cattle; Walter Oke of Peterborough, roots and vegetables; C. H. Williamson, Peterborough, flowers; and G. A. Gillespie, Peterborough, dairy products.

Among those who were noticed during the afternoon was Ed. Hawthorne of Peterborough, Honorary President of the Fair; and Dr. A. T. Embury, M.P. for Peterborough-Hastings, was down from Bancroft.

The Winning Babies

The results in the competition for better babies were as follows: Best baby, one to twelve months—1, Roselyn Ann McInroy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford McInroy, Bonarlaw; 2, Ronald Stewart Stillman, Campbellford; 3, Beverley K. McCoy, Deloro, and Barbara J. Kinshella (tied for third) daughter of Mrs. H. Kinshella, Douro.

Babies, twelve to twenty-four months.—1, Marilyn D. McInroy, Bonarlaw; 2, Ronald L. Fife, son of Mr. and Mrs. Clifford Fife, Norwood; Gordon A. Johnston, son of Major and Mrs. Johnston, 157 Morrow street, Peterborough.

SHORTER HOURS LIKELY.

The announcement made by E. G. Odette, Ontario's Liquor Commissioner, yesterday that when the new authorities for the sale of beer are issued at the end of this month new opening and closing hours will be established, will meet with widespread approval.

As The Examiner declared a few days ago in commenting upon the shortening of hours of sale by the voluntary action of hotelkeepers in various Ontario centres, this question should not be left to the judgment of beverage room proprietors, but should be decided bythe Government itself.

This is going to be done, according to Mr. Odette's statement, and at present an extensive survey is being made throughout the province with a view to obtaining information as to the selling hours favored by popular opinion. When this information has been obtained the Commissioner will name the new hours and "take the responsibility for the whole thing."

We are satisfied that this is the proper course, and we are equally confident that Mr. Odette will find that the present hours are regarded by most people as too long and that the public would favor earlier closing during the week and the elimination of sale after 7 or 8 o'clock on Saturday nights.

In any event, it is satisfactory to learn that the Commissioner has decided that the present system needs some alterations, and that he is prepared to make them when the new licenses are issued.

A shortening of the hours of sale will, it is believed, be inevitable in view of Mr. Odette's promise to abide by public opinion in making his decision.

CONDEMN WORKERS' UNITY LEAGUE.

The Examiner has found it necessary on several occasions to point out the Communistic nature of the Workers' Unity League and to denounce that organization as inimical to the public interest.

It is worthy of note that the grand jury at the York General Sessions has been moved to soundly condemn the League in its presentment.

The York County grand jurors in their report declare that "a certain element referred to as the Workers' Unity League is exercising an influence which we believe is detrimental to the public welfare.

"The League referred to," continues the presentment, "appears to employ a gang whose sole work is to intimidate and inflict damage by violence against the person or property of any citizen whom they may consider in opposition to their own views or failing to carry out the orders of this organization. We feel strongly that the civil authorities should be given power to deal firmly with such bodies, making the official personally responsible, together with the culprits, for acts of violence indictable under the Criminal Code."

It is to be hoped that a copy of this presentment will go forward to J. F. Marsh, Ontario's new Deputy Minister of Labor, who only a few days ago said there was nothing illegal about the Workers' Unity League and that it would be recognized as a trades union when the industrial codes and minimum wage legislation is drafted.

If those measures include the recognition of the Workers' Unity League, the whole scheme is likely to be wrecked, for, as the York jurors say, the League's influence is "detrimental to the public welfare."

BUSINESS MOVES UPWARD.

From three different but authoritative sources come gratifying assurances that business conditions in Canada are definitely and steadily improving.

At the first of this month, according to the McConnell and Fergusson monthly index of business conditions, business in the Dominion was 30.3 per cent. below normal, and this represented a gain of 1.6 points over the August showing and an improvement of 8.6 points over the same month a year ago. Each of the four factors comprising the index, freight loadings, construction contract awards, bank debits and electric power production, moved upward.

The Alexander Hamilton Institute reports that the general business expansion, which began last year, showed further progress in August, and that the index of Canadian trade activity rose to 76.4 in that month, a new peak for the recovery movement.

At the peak of business activity in 1929 the index was 136.9, and the deflation which followed dropped the index to a low of 47.6 in April, 1933.

Since then general business has increased by 58.4 per cent. and has recovered slightly over 30 per cent. of the loss during the depression years, with a further gain considered certain when the September figures are available.

Trade figures published by the Dominion Bureau of Statistics tell the same heartening story. They show that for the first eight months of this year Canada's total trade was $740,000,000, which represents an increase of 18.2 per cent. over the same period last year and 35.1 per cent. better than two years ago.

Exports and imports both show substantial gains, and as a contemporary points out, these increases mean that Canada has more money to spend and is spending more money.

A SURPRISING ATTITUDE.

The most surprising feature of the demonstration staged by Detroit fans against Medwick, the St. Louis outfielder, in the final game of the world series is the fact that Judge Landis, baseball's czar, has seen fit to express the opinion that the conduct of the turbulent crowd was justified.

That's a surprising attitude for the commissioner to take, and there is danger that it will be viewed as an official intimation to disorderly fans that all they need to do to get rid of a visiting player they have a grudge against is to throw pop bottles and oranges at him and refuse to allow the game to go on until the offender is removed.

There were four umpires in charge of Tuesday's game. If Medwick in his slide into third was guilty of rough-house in the these officials had the authority to order his retirement from the game. Their failure to do so is fairly substantial proof that the St. Louis player had committed no offence against the baseball code.

Even if he had done so, however, it is difficult to follow the reasoning that led Judge Landis to declare that the mob in the bleachers was justified in taking the law into its own hands.

No matter what the provocation mob law cannot be condoned, and to have the supreme ruler of baseball publicly state that there was justification for the bombardment of Medwick is encouraging a lawless spirit that if permitted to continue could do a great deal of damage to professional baseball.

The near-riot was a disgraceful episode and should have earned the vigorous condemnation of baseball rulers.

WORKING WITHOUT WEARINESS.

Mayor Stewart of Toronto had two callers, Pundit Banna Singh and Mokam Singh, Brahmins, who were on a good-will visit to Toronto. Nor were they like other callers. They desired no Mary Pickford parade, but rather would they bestow something of worth and value upon his worship. They would teach him how to work almost incessantly without weariness, but first Mr. Stewart would have to understand a new philosophy of life. That sounded rather formidable and the mayor suggested they might call again when he was not so busy.

Working without growing weary sounds attractive. We did not know there were folk, Brahmins or otherwise, who had found out how to do the thing. People who work grow weary, and the better and the harder they work the more weary they become. We hold to the belief that when a person writes something which is worth while he is more tired at the completion than if he has turned out something of lesser worth. When a speaker makes a great address he is more fatigued than if he had been merely killing time with poor material. Goodness has gone out of him, he has given up something or burned up more energy than usual. We cannot quote authorities to uphold such a belief, but we are certain it is so.

If the Brahmin good-will folk can overcome that feeling of weariness which is the running partner of a good day's work, Mayor Stewart should be interested. But, of course, there might be something in the new philosophy of life which goes with it at which the mayor of Toronto would make a face.—Stratford Beacon-Herald.

THIS IN A WESTERN TOWN!

Those who think of Western Canada as beaten to its knees are not keeping up with developments in that part of the Dominion. There are areas where a succession of droughts has caused great hardship, but there are other and more numerous sections in which crops were good, money is plentiful, and they are talking prosperity again.

Scenes in Portage la Prairie, as described by the Winnipeg Free Press, illustrate this fact. On Saturdays the farmers drive in from all directions and the town presents "the appearance of a boom camp in the gold country on payday," with everybody spending money. On one Saturday so many farmers turned up with cheques that one bank paid out $10,000 in a short session, another almost as much, and at noon "there wasn't a single dollar bill to be had from any bank in the city," while "one bank was down to $40 in cash."

And the money was passed along. "As soon," says the Free Press, "as John Farmer got his crop payment he marched promptly over to John Grocer and John Hardwareman and paid them what he owed." They in turn pass along the money to their creditors, and business benefits all down the line.

Portage la Prairie is not exceptional. There are great areas in all three provinces which have had fair crops, prices are better than a year ago, and costs of production were at a minimum, so that the profit to the man with grain is a fair one. The effect is that the West is able to keep pace with the general improvement in the Canadian economic picture.—Ottawa Journal.

A GREAT OLD WAR CRY.

It is hardly possible to pay close attention to all the addresses which have been delivered in the five campaigns going on in Ontario in recent days. Passing over a good deal of the trash which likened Premier Bennett to Mussolini or Hitler and Mr. King, leader of the Liberals, to one who spent most of his hours in bed during his term of office, we noticed where a number of speakers had stated they were fighting the "battles of the people." In one form or another they said that many times. They seemed to be certain that there were forces which had laid heavy hand on "the people" and the heavy hands had to be taken off. In almost every case where we saw such reference it was noticed that the exact method by which the battles were to be fought was not stated in detail. Much was left to the imagination.

It would be interesting to know just how this battle was being fought or is to be fought. As far as laws go we all have to observe them, and we all have to pay taxes or rent. When we enter a store the man behind the counter, who is an invisible collector for the Government, charges the same price to all his customers and he collects the same rate in sales tax, tariff and so on.

As long as we have heard political speeches we have also heard this plea about fighting the battle for the people, and apparently the struggle was on forty years ago and it is on to-day. The idea of fighting on behalf of the people is a good one; it sounds brave and has a ring of the crusading days in it. The flat part is that it has more of an airing during the days of a campaign than it ever gets in actual application. —Stratford Beacon-Herald.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

One most effective contribution that can be made to the success of Fire Prevention Week is the cleaning of chimneys and stovepipes. This is a simple precaution that should be followed generally.

Holders of Victory Bonds who have not yet converted them have still a chance to do so. They would be well advised to consider the advantages offered by the new loan.

The enumeration of voters throughout Canada will amount almost to a new census. Let us hope that the work will be done efficiently and accurately.

The C.C.F. platform would find no friends in the British Labor party, which by an overwhelming majority recently rejected socialist proposals made by a minority radical group.

Only 12 of the 57 member nations of the League of Nations have paid their dues in full, which puts the League on the same basis as other less pretentious organizations all over the world.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

KILLARNEY, MANITOBA.

It is not difficult to guess the source of the name "Killarney". Quite obviously it was bestowed by an Irishman, and equally apparent is the fact that it must have been inspired by some similarity to the famous Lakes of Killarney in Ireland.

To John Sidney O'Brian, fresh from the auld sod, there was but one suitable name for the embryo town adjoining the lovely little lake nestled between hills, on the one side and a wooded shore on the other. Hence the lake became Killarney Lake, supplanting the former name of Oak Lake, bestowed by a surveyor, and the settlement was named Killarney.

So far as local history is concerned, it appears that in 1882, O'Brien finally succeeded in having the town and the lake labelled with the same name.

DARK CLOUDS

Even in evil, that dark cloud which hangs over the creation, we discern rays of light and hope, and gradually come to see in suffering and temptation proofs and instruments of the sublimist purposes of wisdom and love.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

THE TELEPHONE CALL

I write this humbly. Please believe that there is no other impulse in me but a profound wonder at the significance and the far-reaching effect of our casually considered actions upon the lives of other human beings . . . I hesitated for weeks before I decided to write this article, because I was afraid somebody might accuse me of egotism if I wrote.

But I must risk that and tell about a telephone call that came to me one morning at my desk . . . I have come to believe it should be told.

The bell rang and I took the receiver from the hook. It was a man's voice, manly but slightly unsteady. And began to tell me that he had almost telephoned me in the middle of the night before . . . He'd been most unhappy. Things hadn't been going very well with him. He hadn't known which way toturn. Long ago his father had killed himself and he himself had begun to think of suicide. Last night he had made up his mind to do it . . . But before he died, he decided to destroy all marks of identification in his room, on his clothes. Turning out his pockets he came upon an article I had written, that he cut out and saved . . . He read it and he decided not to kill himself . . . And he didn't think he ever would do it now . . . He'd gotten past that danger . . . And he wanted to thank me because he wanted me to know what I'd done for him . . . No, he didn't wish to give me his name, and he hardly thought he'd ever come into the office to see me . . . What was the article about? Well, it wasn't so much the subject as the spirit of it, my point of view, that turned away from death and back to life again.

That's all. I don't know who he is nor where he lives, nor what he looks like, nor how he has fared in life since that day, but sometimes the thought comes to me that a man walks the streets of my city who believes that I saved his life—and though he thanked me once he may curse me some day for my unintended interference . . . We walk a devious path through life, and in our wanderings we touch many a life unknown to us. Some gesture, some tone of voice, some unconsidered action may swing another life down to misery or up to ecstasy and man may know the full extent of all that he does or is . . . And when I think of that friend of mine in his dark night fumbling through his pockets and coming upon a scrap of writing made by me and reading it and deciding to live a little longer, a feeling comes upon me such as almost brings me to my knees . . . Sometimes it seems most unfair and sometimes it seems a precious privilege.

ADVERTISE IN THE EXAMINER

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

FENIAN FOOLISHNESS

On this date, in 1884, half a century ago, the legislative building at Quebec was badly damaged by an explosion, believed to be from dynamite and said to have been the work of emissaries of the Fenian Brotherhood in New York who imagined that by throwing fear into the French Canadians they could weaken their allegiance to Britain. But they did not know their Canadians. The result was exactly the opposite of that wished for.

It was a curious commentary upon the imaginings of the conspirators in New York that they should have chosen for their target a legislative building which housed the one parliament in the British empire which had more often expressed sympathy with the Irish cause than any other. Time and again, before and after, the Quebec Assembly placed itself on record as in favor of the granting of home rule to Ireland; and it is no wonder that French Canadian spokesmen declared: "If this is Irish gratitude for what we have done, it is strange repayment!"

It may as well be added that at the time there were allegations in Quebec that the outrage was the work of Orangemen or their sympathizers as retaliation for the resolutions passed by the Assembly; but this was soon disproved if proof were wanted, for whatever else the Orangemen may have done when excited they never resorted to dynamite. They preferred fists and clubs. Anyway the secret service traced the plotters to New York, but no attempt was ever made to have them arrested. What good would it have done?

Popular Astronomy

Autumn Constellations

BY H. W. L. MAHOOD

On the 23rd of September the Sun is perpendicular over the equator. On that date the night and day are of equal length all over the Earth. A similar phenomena occurs on the 21st of March. Gently the length of day and night changes from longest to shortest. Thus begins our life to its strongest, and then comes the gently diminishing experiencing of lessening resources. The nature world is so human-like.

At 9:30 p.m. take a look at the sky, low down in the west. Hercules is there struggling to stay within our sight a while longer. The brilliant Lyra is as loath to leave us. Down there at the disappearing point this glorious cluster still lingers. Above our heads the splendid Northern Cross is just a little west of the zenith. During the early night time these wondrous sky constellations seem to have a voice. Not to every one will the same thoughts arise. Thomson's Seasons will be entrancing perusal these autumn days and nights.

Away over in the north-west, Bootes and a bit of the Northern Crown can be dimly seen. Be sharp on the spot at 9:30 p.m. if you wish to say "Good night" to this group. Change your stance a little. Over there in the south-west three stars of the Flying Eagle are still in full view. The three for the shining "shaft of Altair". Now take a good look directly west. Away down there at the horizon are Ophiuchus and his Serpent.

We have just missed seeing the Serpent. A trail of light can be faintly seen in the extreme south-west. But Archer is still in the field of vision. As you closely watch this constellation the movement can be detected by the naked eye. Select another group of stars not far distant. Then watch the change in position of Archer as it nears the horizon. Take a long, last look and say "Good Night" to your friends, the stars.

Character From Handwriting

By BLANCHE A. DRAPER

A Feature Conducted by Peterborough's Leading Handwriting Analyist for the Readers of The Examiner

Full name and address (complete) must be given in all samples sent in.

Helen Cherney,
216 Reid St., City.

Your handwriting illustrates you as temperamental and easily excited. You are apt to rush into things, and then you think the whole world has gone wrong.

However, I do not seem to think that you are quite mature enough as yet to have set any definite objective before you, but if you have, or when you do, try something in a thinking line, for your mind is mentally keen, this splendid characteristic can be developed to a far greater extent than it is now, and could lead to office work or banking. Many women enjoy working at figures, in banks or law offices.

There is every reason to believe that you will be a successful person some day, and I am sure that you will do the very best that is in your power to advance yourself along the road upwards toward progress.

Your 't' bars are not all forceful, but that also can be made more so as you obtain your objective in life.

There is a slight inclination to be too reserved, noted in the formations of your smaller letters which no doubt will have bashfulness to account for.

Your sign of Cancer the Crab is ruled by the Moon. Your most fortunate months are February and September, and Monday is your lucky day. Your luckiest number is five.

Robert Taylor,
R. R. No. 2, Indian River, Ont.

The handwriting as delineated on your sample for analysis represents versatility. You are undecided and changeable.

You seem to want your own way, but yet you do not appear to have quite sufficient will-power to enable you to exercise your wish.

You are imaginative, and could develop this talent into something really worth while if you cared to do so, either in creative art or writing.

There is a nervous tendency noted in the manner in which your letters vary in size and pressure; this has a propensity to make reservedness and shyness.

However, you are kindhearted and sympathetic, so should have no difficulty in making devoted friends. You are energetic but not forceful. You have talent but do not express it.

Try telling yourself that you can be successful if you wish, and I think you will find joy and happiness follow as a natural sequence.

Your sign is Gemini the Twins, which is ruled by Mercury. Friday is your lucky day and April and August are your most fortunate months.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 93c to 95c; oats, 33c to 34c; barley, 46c to 48c; corn, 94c to 96c; rye, 55c to 56c; buckwheat, 47c to 49c; malting barley, 66c to 69c.

CHICAGO GRAIN

Buoyantly advancing, with more activity than for a long time past, wheat scored a maximum gain of 3¼ cents a bushel yesterday.

With foreign as well as domestic mills brisk buyers of wheat futures in Chicago, indications were also that a big export business in Canadian wheat was under way from both the Atlantic Coast and the Pacific. Much notice, too, was taken of Washington reports that the Administration was seeking a general higher price level, and that although there was no intention of permitting runaway price, there was nevertheless no immediate intention of putting on brakes.

Wheat closed firm, 2½c to 3¼c above Tuesday's finish. Dec. new, 99½c to 99¾c; corn, 1½c to 1¾c up; Dec. new, 75¾c to 75¾c; oats, 1¾c to 2¼c advanced, and barley up 3c to 5c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE

Egg prices advanced on the Montreal produce and dairy market yesterday with butter slightly lower and cheese unchanged.

Graded shipments of eggs in carlots or less were 31c to 32c a dozen for A-large, 29c to 30c for A-medium and 27c to 28c for A-pullets, up a cent. B grade were firm at 21c to 22c, and C gained ½c at 19½c to 20c. Receipts were 3,311 boxes.

Fresh No. 1 butter, in carlots or less, eased ¼c at 29c to 29¼c a pound. No. 1 storage sold at 19¾c to 20c. Solids were 21c and prints 22c a pound to retailers. Arrivals were 740 boxes.

Cheese was steady at 9¾c to 10c for No. 1 Ontario White, 10¾c to 10¾c for No. 1 Ontario colored, 9¾c to 9½c for No. 1 Quebec White and 9¾c to 10c for No. 1 Quebec colored. A total of 3,900 boxes arrived.

New Quebec potatoes were 35c to 40c per 80-pound bag, while New Brunswick, new Mountains, were 45c to 50c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, October 11. — Grains stepped along lively on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday backed by the support of the best export sales of Canadian wheat in days and strength in outside markets. At the close wheat futures prices were 2½c to 3¼c higher.

Announcement that 1,000 000 bushels of wheat had been sold for shipment abroad induced other buying, and values traded buoyantly for the entire session. Easing off near the finish as some profit-taking entered the pit, the October future ended at 80¼c. December 81c to 81¼c, and May 85¾c.

Yesterday's session was one of the most cheerful in days, with prices at Liverpool advancing ¾d to 1¼d, 3-cent gains marked up at Chicago, and indications of an improved export situation for Canadian wheat apparent, trading was active throughout.

Trade observers stressed the fact the market had now recovered most of the 5-cent loss suffered on October 2, and this without any indication the Government agency was supporting prices.

A reflection on the improved export demand, cash grains traded actively, with spreads closing as much as half a cent better on higher grades of wheat. Coarse grains futures also were brisk.

Woman Diver Seeks Sunken Walnut Cargo

LEAMINGTON, Oct. 10 (C.P.)— Recovery of a cargo of white oak and black walnut, lost when the schooner New Brunswick was sunk near Point Pelee some 75 years ago, is the plan of Mrs. Maragret Campbell Goodman of Brooklyn, N.Y.

Mrs. Goodman, with two airplane pilots and other assistants, is now preparing to scout for the sunken craft as soon as air conditions are favorable.

The cargo of 110,000 cubic feet of timber is said to be worth a small fortune now.

The vessel, owned by Newton Everts of Chatham, was enroute from Wallaceburg to Montreal when lost in a gale. Mrs. Goodman is said to be the world's only woman deep-sea diver and in 1917 she raised the Pewabic sunk in Lake Huron in 1865 with a cargo of copper.

ALL YUGOSLAVIA SWEARS FEALTY TO KING PETER

Only Spoken Pledges Break Silence of Sadness at National Assembly.

DEPUTIES CHEER PAUL.

BY CHARLES MEISTER
(Copyright, 1934, by The Associated Press).

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Oct. 11 The boy Crown Prince Peter was proclaimed King of Yugoslavia today by both houses of parliament sitting as a national assembly.

In a scene of sadness, and silence, broken only by the spoken pledges, the members sitting as a national assembly took the oaths to make the 11-year-old son of the slain Alexander King Peter the Second.

Each member took the oath individually to support the King's constitution and the law of the land.

A solemn scene was presented as the pale, nervous Prince Paul, Alexanders cousin and head of the newly-appointed regency, looked down from the royal enclosure at hundreds of sad-visaged deputies, as each raised his right hand and with the left on the Bible pledged himself to the new regime.

Prince Paul himself dramatically won the heart of parliament by a simple laconic speech.

After swearing faithfully to serve his country and to preserve the unity of its people, he said:

"Thank you for your confidence in me. I think you have not made a mistake in me."

The deputies then broke into prolonged and excited cheers such as have seldom been won by carefully worded orations in the parliament where the ceremony took place.

Re-assured by Prince.

The Senators and Deputies, still feeling the shock of Alexander's assassination at Marseille, obviously were reassured by the Prince's words, and the sincerity of a mild-mannered man who simply and courageously accepted a grave responsibility he never sought.

All were aware Prince Paul is much more the scholar and the art lover, than the politician. Clad in a colonel's uniform, adorned by the red sash of the Order of Saint Sava, the shy prince lacked the smart military appearance and bearing which always characterized King Alexander.

He repeated the oath to support King and constitution after the President, in a clear confident voice. While the other two members of the Regency Council were signing the oath on black-bordered paper, Paul moved about the platform as if suffering from stage fright.

Market Closing On All Exchanges

WALL STREET.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11 (A.P.). — Stocks pushed higher to-day with another sharp increase in trading volume. Advances ranged from fractions to around 2 points and included virtually every section of the list. Metals were particularly firm. Homestake rose 20 points, while U.S. Smelting advanced about 4. American Tobacco B, Cerro de Pasco, American Smelting, American Telephone, General Motors and Santa Fe were up around 1 to 2. Transfers approximated 1,400,000 shares.

Rush Point

Miss Clara Menzies arranged the program for the regular League meeting held at the White church Thursday evening. Rev. Mr. Kemp conducted the devotional exercises.

The following teachers visited the local school on Thursday forenoon: Miss Anderson of Round Lake, Mrs. Sleep of South Lake, Miss Helen Buchanan of McCill's and Mr. Tom Rowson of Victoria.

Mr. Gerald Buchanan, teacher of the local school, attended the Teachers' Convention at Norwood the first of the week.

A party of young people from Toronto spent a delightful week-end holiday at the Round Lake residence of Mr. and Mrs. J. W. Seeney. The party included their daughter, Miss Myrtle Seeney, of the T. Eaton Co. staff, Miss Hazel Wiley, Miss Rosamary Kiriy and Messrs. Matt Ward, Ed. Reid and Fred Browers.

The school children here were given a holiday on Wednesday because of the local Fair at Norwood. A large number of people from Rush Point and vicinity attended the Fair.

WOMAN FACES PERJURY

DETROIT, Mich, Oct. 11 (CP)— Mrs. Fannie Verna Hedrick, of Windsor, was to-day arraigned on a charge of perjury laid by Circuit Judge Homer Ferguson, from whom she obtained a divorce from her husband, Roy Hedrick, of Essex, Ont., on August 21.

The woman is charged with having falsely claimed residence in Detroit and with having concealed the fact that she had two children. Divorce was granted on grounds of desertion, with which Hedrick now in turn charges his former wife.

GOD'S LAKE GOLD MINES

TORONTO, Ont., Oct. 11—R. J. Jowsey, president of God's Lake Gold Mines Ltd., who has just returned from a visit to the property in Manitoba, added his denial to that of the head office officials yesterday when confronted with the published reports that a 100 ton unit was under consideration for the property. The report, contained in a Winnipeg interview with Mr. Jowsey, caused some uneasiness among stockholders, who were under the impression that the company's plans for a mill, if any, were on a 300 ton basis.

"All I said was that we had enough ore already developed in the central ore shoot to feed a 100 ton mill for one year," said Mr. Jowsey. There has been no change in the company's original plans he added, and no decision has yet been made as to the size of the mill. Mine developments to date have exceeded expectations from diamond drilling. Meanwhile the company is proceeding with plans to develop it's own power on Kanuchuan Rapids, where a force of sixty men is engaged in preliminary construction work.

SPRINGER STURGEON GOLD MINES

Springer Sturgeon, it is reported has successfully completed financing with it's stock issue oversubscribed and preparations are now being made for a comprehensive program of development.

NORTH TIBLEMONT

A crew of men and an engineer will leave this week for the Tiblemont Township properties of North Tiblemont Gold Mines where a program of diamond drilling will be carried out. In this connection a contract has been let to the Alexandria Diamond Drilling Company and drilling operations will be commenced at once.

GRAIN

WINNIPEG, Oct. 11.—Good buying by exporters and southern interests and strength in Chicago and a surprising lack of selling pressure all made for strong markets. Country deliveries are increasing but farmers are showing less disposition to sell and hedges are light. Price stimulation talk from Washington and uneasy political atmosphere in Europe also contributed. Market looks higher at close but would wait further developments before buying.

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—Wheat firmer on stronger foreign markets due to better demand and uncertainty outcome European political developments. There was a better milling demand, cash strong, receipts light and dry weather in southwest. Offerings light and futures sensitive to constructive news owing to their discount. Corn firm on evening up preceding government report.

McMillan Mines

It is officially learned that McMillan will pour another brick next week. The mill is currently handling over 100 tons daily and on Monday will be stepped up to 125 tons.

Sullivan Consolidated

According to an official statement issued yesterday by Sullivan Cons. Mines Ltd. production of gold bullion since Hydro Electric power was installed from Aug. 25th to Sept. 30th has been $31,000. The mill is running at capacity with a production of about $1,000 per day and a recovery of 99 per cent, the report adds. It is further stated "with the new hoist and compressor the program of development is extensive and the 50 ton mill, which is running at capacity, is paying for all operating and development costs as well as adding to the reserve every month. Important indications have been obtained by diamond drill on the 150, 250 and 350 foot levels. On the 250 foot level assays run between $10 and $30 per ton on a section of 90 feet of core. Very interesting intersections have also been located on the 150 and 350 foot levels and the development work on the 150 foot level has extended the present ore body over a length of 100 feet, showing a width of 20 to 30 feet with a gold content of .70 oz. or about $24 per ton.

HEAVY DEMAND IN THE SILVERS

SENIOR GOLDS SLOW.

TORONTO, Oct. 11. (CP). Mining shares carried through to a higher close to-day with buying unusually heavy in the silver shares and some of the secondary golds. The boost in the price of metal in London tilted Eldorado, Bear Exploration, Castle and other silver shares upward and they closed at the best level in several weeks. Senior golds continued slow but strong and the base metals lagged.

Germany is extending its trade control system.

Everyone who sells milk in London hereafter must be licensed.

FIRE SURVIVOR CRIES FOR WIFE, DEAD CHILDREN

Halifax Man is Hurled From Blazing House While Family Trapped.

ONE BODY MISSING.

HALIFAX, Oct. 11 (C.P.).—"My family are all dead."

Through lips seared by flame, Robert Cruse uttered the agonized cry as he lay on a hospital cot today, one of two persons who escaped the death that claimed six other lives in an early morning explosion.

All the way to the hospital he had screamed for his wife and his two children, Joseph and Kathleen, trapped beneath the flaming wreckage of their three-storey home. Not long after he reached hospital, their bodies were taken from the debris, charred and crushed.

Cruse had escaped death, though shot through a second floor window and across the street by the violence of the explosion that wrecked the home. Near him rescuers found seven-year-old Edna Dudas, the only other person known to have escaped death in the explosion and fire.

She was unhurt, but she could not tell how she had got out of the blazing building. "Mamma and Peter are in there," she sobbed, but she would say no more. Her mother, Mrs. Daniel Dudas, was still buried in the smouldering wreckage, but Peter's body had been taken out.

Find Baby First.

The searchers found it first, still in the wicker basket in which he had been put to sleep last night. Wails of the 1½-year-old boy had led firemen to the spot. But it took time to dig through the fallen timbers and Peter was dead when they reached him, seared and blackened by flames. One arm was flung over the edge of his basket, as though he had tried to climb out.

He was the youngest of a family of three. In their home on the ground floor of the doomed building Mrs. Dudas was awaiting the birth of her fourth child when the house, rocked by a mysterious blast, collapsed in an inferno of flames.

Upstairs, Cruse's wife awaited her third child. Neighbors thought they heard her calling for help as fire raced through the shattered structure. "Where are you; oh my God, where are you?" was the cry that reached Gordon Oldham as he raced to the spot from his home nearby. But, like the children, Mrs. Cruse was dead when firemen finally reached her.

THREAT OF WAR

assassinated, starting the Great War.

The rioters were angered by the assassination of their King Alexander.

Police finally dispersed them, but only with difficulty and after they had also stoned the Croatian Society building.

Mob Grows Ugly

LJUBLJANA, Yugoslavia, Oct. 11. —(AP)—Anti-Italian riots broke out here today after a meeting at which speakers alleged all attempts against King Alexander's life including that made at Zagreb last March had been financed and prepared in Italy.

Speakers at the meeting drew deductions that it was probable the assassination by Petrus Kalemen was inspired by the same source.

Later the crowd attempted to attack the Italian Consulate but police intervened and prevented it.

WATCHING IL DUCE.

PARIS, October 11 (A.P.). — French and Yugoslav officials said to-day they were confident Premier Mussolini of Italy would ignore momentary outbursts of anti-Italian hostility in Yugoslavia and that the danger was remote of international complications resulting from the assassination of King Alexander of Yugoslavia.

It was admitted that Italian-Yugoslav friction was feared, but hope was expressed that it would be averted.

UNCERTAIN SITUATION.

ROME, October 11 (A.P.).—Italian newspapers printed disquieting reports from Yugoslavia to-day.

Il Tevere headlines said, "An uncertain situation in Yugoslavia following an uprising of Croats." Il Piccolo reported an anti-Italian demonstration was held in Belgrade.

In an editorial Il Tevere said: "The personal dictatorship of Alexander was the iron hand that pressed into unity political formation divers and recalcitrant nationalities. With the supreme custodian of that formation gone, the danger of disintegration is not imaginary."

The Italian Navy will send a light cruiser flying an admiral's flag and a squadron of destroyers to escort the body of King Alexander when it passes through the Strait of Messina. The ships will accompany the Yugoslavian destroyer Dubrovnik as far as the end of Italian territorial waters.

Natives of Italian Towns.

PARIS, Oct. 11 (A.P.).—Passports carried by two suspects arrested as accomplices of Petrus Kalemen, the assassin of King Alexander of Yugoslavia and Louis Barthou of France, showed them natives of Italian towns which were in Austrian territory before the war.

The two suspects are Wladislav Benes and Yaroslav Novack.

According to their passports, of apparent Czechoslovakian issuance, Benes was born at Zara, Italy, in 1903, and Novack at Goritza, Italy, in 1900.

Both passports were issued by the Czechoslovakian Consulate at Trieste, according to the stamps on them.

A third suspect, who got away, was Sylvester Chalny, but before he escaped police took from him an automatic pistol clip which corresponded to that found in Kalemen's sub-machine gun.

Girl Victim Dies.

MARSEILLE, France, Oct. 11. — (A.P.).—Yolande Parisis, a 14-year-old girl wounded by stray bullets in Tuesday's assassinations, died today, bringing the total number of deaths to six.

Minister Resigns.

PARIS, Oct. 11 (C.P.-Havas).—Albert Sarraut, French Minister of the Interior, resigned late to-day.

M. Bethoin, director of the Surete Nationale, and M. Jouhanhaud, Prefect of the Bouches Du Rhone Department, in which Prefecture Marseille is located, were dismissed.

DOMINION LOAN OVERSUBSCRIBED

Expected Announcement of Date for Closing of Books Will Be Made To-day.

OTTAWA, Oct. 11 (CP)—Announcement is expected late today from Finance Minister E. N. Rhodes, of the time of closing the books on the $250,000 Dominion Government 1934 Refunding Loan, and it is understood that the issue has been substantially over-subscribed.

No official figures for totals have been made in the past two days pending receipt of last minutes conversions and none will be given until final announcement is made.

Capt. Eden Leaves To Tour Scandinavia

BY GEORGE HAMBLETON
Canadian Press Staff Writer

LONDON, Oct. 11.—(C. P. Cable) — Captain Anthony Eden, Lord Privy Seal and British government diplomatist, left London today on a goodwill tour of Scandinavia.

The purposes of his visit are to stimulate closer trade relations between Britain and the Scandinavian countries, already reflected in increasing trade returns, and to exchange views on disarmament.

His visit was first proposed by the Swedish government, of which the Briton will be a guest from Oct. 14 to 16. He will be the guest of the Danish government from tomorrow to Saturday. After visiting Denmark and Sweden he goes to Norway for two days.

Captain Eden took no officials with him, proceeding from London direct to Copenhagen.

OTTAWA. — Further information relative to proposed work on the Trans-Canada highway is being awaited from the provinces before completion of the new Dominion-Ontario relief agreement, it was learned to-day. Terms of the agreement, however, are expected to be arranged definitely shortly. It will cover relief in Ontario as between the Dominion and the province up to March 31.

given out by Toronto police in 1920 when $50,000 reward was offered for information as to his whereabouts.

Kalamazoo police described the man as 67 years old, height 5 feet 9½ inches, weight 190 pounds, grey-brown eyes, medium complexion, grey hair. The height figures were taken "under the stick" police said when questioned as to first height figures at 5 feet 11 inches.

The description of Small in Toronto police circular of June 1, 1920, was: Age, 53 years; height, 5 feet 6 or 7 inches; weight, 135 to 140 pounds, blue eyes, sallow complexion, brown hair, moustache streaked with gray, hair receding on temples, very quick in his momements.

The man held at Kalamazoo, who said he owned a ranch near Banff, Alta., and theatres at various Canadian cities from Toronto to Vancouver, said he had been in telephone communication with A. J. Holmes, his nephew, at Toronto. The missing Ambrose Small had a nephew of that name.

The stock salesman further claimed he had a sister Florence Small "in New York in charge of one of his theatres and a half-brother Lester Small in Liverpool Canada, as well as a sister Mrs. Maude J. Hayes of Monson, Indiana."

Believed Impostor.

TORONTO, Oct. 11 (C.P.).—Miss Florence Small, sister of the missing Toronto theatre magnate, to-day said the man held at Kalamazoo and claiming to be her brother, was probably a man by the name of Morris who had previously posed as her brother. The man held at Kalamazoo was also known as Chas. E. Morris.

Miss Small said there had been no word from Kalamazoo in the present instance, but there had been correspondence at times regarding some such man in that part of the country during the last three or four years.

The man had represented himself as Ambrose Small, and a lawyer named Morris had written regarding him. Photographs and other evidence proved the man was not the missing Ambrose J. Small of Toronto.

Miss Small called to the telephone Mr. Patrick Sullivan, who said they had learned of the man posing as Small, and believed to be the same one held in Kalamazoo, had been in an institution for mental cases.

They thought he knew the names and business conpections of the Small family through having read newspaper stories.

Ambrose Small had no sister named Mrs. Maude J. Hayes, of Monson, Ind., and no half-brother in Liverpool, as the Kalamazoo man claimed. Patrick said the description of the man was not at all like that of A. J. Small.

A. J. Holmes, Toronto barrister, whose office said he was a nephew of A. J. Small, was out of town. "Morris" claimed he had been in communication with Mr. Holmes.

Havelock

At the regular meeting of the Havelock Albions on Thursday evening last week Irish members and all showed total disregard for any superstitions surrounding the number "13." A list of thirteen new members was brought up for approval and passed without a single dissenting voice.

A most enjoyable cottage party was held at Young's Point, Belmont Lake on Friday evening last week, when Roger Young was at home to a few of his friends. Dancing and cards in the spacious cottage was enjoyed into the wee sma' hours. Others wiled away the pleasant hours by the cosy fireplace when story telling from as far away as the far-off West Virginia was another favorite pastime. Mr. E. Walter Van Steenburgh and Miss Lena Buchanan carried off the honors in the progressive card games. While Mrs. Van Steenburgh took home the consolation triphy. The latter was selected the "spotter" in the prize waltz. Miss Iva Smith and Mr. J. R. Bedford, Jr., were the lucky winners.

The Albion club's "Friday Nite Dance" was as usual a huge success last week. As the winter season approaches they seem to be gaining in popularity. Hutchinson's orchestra has been playing for them.

Havelock Dorcas Rebeccas held their annual Thanksgiving dance in the town hall on Monday evening this week. The decorations were carried out in colors appropriate to the season. A large number of young and old enjoyed themselves immensely.

Weddings

BRUYEA—DUFF

WARKWORTH, Oct. 11. (Examiner Correspondence)—St. Jerome's Catholic Church, Warkworth, was filled at nine-thirty Saturday morning, October 6th, for a lovely Autumn wedding of Mary Katherine, only daughter of Edward Duff and the late Mrs. Duff to Michael Frederick Bruyea, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. B. Bruyea, Wooler.

To the strains of Mendelssohn's wedding march the bride entered the church with her father. The bride was lovely in a brown triple sheer crepe frock falling in graceful long lines to her ankles. Sleeves long tight fitted while neck was plain with a large bertha collar of brown chiffon velvet caught in front by a wide girdle. Her hat was a small brown turban, the only ornament being a small beige pom pom on side back. She carried a bouquet of Madame Butterfly roses, baby's breath and fern.

Mary Collins of Campbellford was bridesmaid. She wore a dress of brown triple sheer crepe and large brimmed hat and brown kid pumps. Her bouquet was Madame Butterfly roses, baby's breath and fern.

Little Patricia Duff, niece of the bride was flower girl and wore a dainty ruffled white voile dress and a bandeau of orange blossoms and carried a basket of Sunburst roses.

The groom was supported by his brother, Edmund Bruyea, Wooler, as best man, Messrs. Paul and John Gorman, cousins of the bride as ushers.

Rev. Father J. B. Ferguson performed the ceremony, with Rev. Father K. Corkery of Wooler, assisting.

Miss Carrie Gallagher presided at the organ and Mrs. Elmo Ingram sang "Ave Maria."

The altar was tastefully decorated with autumn flowers and ferns and the guest pews with white satin bows and streamers.

Immediately after the nuptial mass the wedding party motored to the bride's home in Wilson Settlement where fifty guests sat down to a sumptuous dinner, served by Misses Margaret and Reta Gorman, Orpah Wood and Josie Quinlivan, Mrs. Leigh Isaac and Mrs. W. Remington. The tables were prettily decorated with pink and white bows and streamers caught in the centre with a large white bell.

During the luncheon hour music was supplied by Mrs. Elmo Ingram and Miss Helen Gorman.

The groom's gift to the bride was a cheque, to the bridesmaid an onyx set initialed ring, to the best man a cigarette lighter and case, to the ushers initialed sterling silver tie clips.

Amid showers of confetti and good wishes the bridal couple left by motor for Toronto, Cleveland and other United States points. For travelling the bride was attired with moleskin collar and brown accessories. On their return they will reside at Wooler.

The out-of-town guests were Mr. and Mrs. Paul Bruyea, Mrs. Empy, Miss Elma Gallagher, Miss Bessie Bruyea, R.N., Mr., Gerald Patterson, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Bruyea of Oshawa; Mr. and Mrs. John Roach, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Smith and Mrs. Pat Collins of Campbellford and Mrs. Turley, Frankford.

STEWART—RYAN

MARMORA, Oct. 11. (By Examiner Correspondent). — The Church of the Sacred Heart, Marmora, was the scene of a pretty wedding on Monday morning when Mary Anastatia, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Ryan became the bride of John Stewart, son of Mr. and Mrs. J. Stewart of Madoc. Rev. Father J. J. Keeley officiated.

To the strains of Lohengrin's Wedding March played by Miss Rita Deacon, the bride who was given in marriage by Mr. William Stewart, entered the church, becomingly attired in a white silk lace gown ankle length and wearing a pretty bridal veil caught at the sides with orange blossoms. She also wore white gloves and shoes and carried yellow carnations. Miss Rose Ryan, sister of the bride as bridesmaid, was gaintily attired in pale pink georgette crepe with silk lace bolero, black felt hat and accessories to match. Her bouquet was of ophelia roses.

The groom was supported by his nephew, Doran Stewart of Madoc.

At the offertory Mr. Harold Auger sang two appropriate solos. "On This Day, O Beautiful Mother," and "After Communion." Miss Genevieve Shannon very sweetly rendered "I Am My Love's".

Following the ceremony a dainty wedding breakfast was served at the home of the brides parents, to the immediate relatives and friends after which the happy couple left on a honeymoon to points west. On their return they will reside at Madoc.

The bride for fourteen years has been on the Bell Telephone staff at Marmora and attained to a high degree of popularity. A wide circle of friends unite in wishing Mr. and Mrs. Stewart many years of happy wedded life.

John Citizen talks to John Citizen about Converting His Victory Bonds

"WELL, John, I see that the Government wants us to convert our Victory Bonds. Are you going to convert yours?"

"I have already converted them into the 15-year 3½% Bonds of the Refunding Loan."

"You have? What made you do that? Don't you think you might have done better?"

"No, I don't."

"Why not?"

"For the very good reason that I have been in and out of lots of investments and speculations since 1919, and some of them have given me plenty of worry. But I have never lost a wink of sleep over my Dominion of Canada Bonds."

"That may be, but there is a big difference between 5½% and current interest rates."

"That's true. But in the past few years the losses I have made in buying investments with my mind more on high return than safety have been just too bad. If I had been content to invest all my surplus in Dominion of Canada Bonds at even less than 3%, I would have been money ahead. Haven't you, yourself, lost any capital through unwise investments?"

"I'll say I have . . . but still——"

"Still nothing, John. I've learned from hard experience that if my principal isn't safe then I haven't made a good investment."

"Well, how do you account for the difference between 5½% and a yield of 3.81%?"

"Easily enough. Compare conditions in 1919 with what they are today. In 1919 money rates were war-time rates. All nations were bidding for capital. Canada, Great Britain, the United States and other countries were obliged to pay abnormally high rates for loans. Today, money is much cheaper. I was reading, for instance, that Canada had borrowed money at 2% in New York for a short term, and in London at less than 3½% for a long term."

"That's right—I remember seeing that."

"Well, doesn't that show how good Canada's credit is? The way I look at it is that if Canada can borrow money abroad at these rates then it is up to us to show that we have as much faith in Canada as British and United States investors. Then there is another thing: I understand that Canada has already saved over $9,000,000 a year in interest charges by refunding previous war loans; and another $5,000,000 a year will be saved when this Loan has been refunded."

"There is something in that, but why only 3.81%?"

"Because that is the rate at which Dominion Bonds are now selling in the open market. That is the rate at which our Insurance Companies and other experienced investors are willing to buy them. If to get safety they are willing to accept these rates, then I ought to be satisfied. I would rather have 3.81% and be safe than go after twice as much and be nervous about the safety of my principal.

"After all, Canada has done pretty well in paying 5½% for fifteen years. So, now, we can afford to do a bit in return. I think it is up to everybody to get behind this Loan and make it a success. A successful Loan is bound to help business."

"Well, John, I hadn't thought the matter out to quite that extent but I guess you are right. I shall convert my Bonds too."

King Edward School Graduating Class is Honored.

VIEWS OF PARENTS.

The presentation of Entrance certificates to twenty-nine of the pupils of the King George school was an interesting event of Tuesday evening.

Inspector Mowat, making the presentations, said: "The aim of all teachers is to average 80 per cent. of any school to pass the Entrance examinations. As a rule, when a child receives his Entrance certificate, he has completed an eight-year course.

"During the past four years, by careful study, a substantial sum has been saved by the Board and everything has been done to keep down expenses without impairing the needs of the children. Our city teachers are a fine group. They have received cuts in salaries and took them graciously, not one making a complaint.

"Many parents wish their children to take a two year Technical course before going on to the Academic.

"I came to present the certificates and wish the boys and girls every success. May you go on to make this country a better and happier place in which to live."

The principal, F. E. Kerr, remarked that the Entrance class of one year ago was one of the easiest ever taught by him. He said that four of his former pupils, two from King George and two from the Prince of Wales school, made a good percentage last year and sometimes led their forms, perhaps because they chose the course best adapted to them and also because they were good workers.

J. R. Marshall, representing the Board of Education, spoke of the fine equipment of the city schools and the money spent for that purpose so that the pupils may make the best use of their time.

"We should remember that we are training future generations and it is not wise to save on essentials. The Board has tried to save the citizens' money and at the same time refrain from crippling the needs of the pupils."

Views of Parents.

W. Gamble spoke for the parents, advising the children to show respect for their teachers, who "take more interest in their pupils than any of us realize." He also advised the boys and girls to make a start in public activities.

F. E. Kerr took charge of the meeting after the business session, when Mrs. G. Groombridge, the president, was in the chair.

Vocal solos were rendered by Miss Phyllis Starr and W. Gamble, with accompaniments played by Mesdames Starr and Gamble. Miss Queenie Hope recited, "Higher Education" and "Bringing in the Wood," and brief speeches were made by Alice Laing and Fred Vivash.

It was decided to hold a tea on Thursday afternoon, October 25th, at the home of Mrs. E. Wand, with admission a plain cup and saucer, or silver collection.

At the close of the meeting, refreshments were served to the parents and friends and members of the Entrance class.

Long Floating Panels Rule The Mode

By LISBETH

Milady's bound to be a vamp this season in long, slinky flowing lines that arrest the eye and soothe the esthetic sense.

Of course these floating panels are only for formal wear, excepting —and it's a good sized exception— for the boudoir. Intimate apparel, in the realm of nightgowns and lounging robes, goes very, very flowing and trailing indeed.

Kitty Carlisle, motion picture player, shows the type of thing we mean as she poses at the left of our picture. She is wearing a Hollywood-created frock, designed by Travis Banton. The fabric is mossy crepe in grayish blue, and an interesting feature is the use of circular capes over each shoulder, while long sweeping panels form trains.

Sophisticated and colorful are the words to describe the gown worn by the exotic Peggy Fears, right. The frock is a Canton crepe in a floral design, the colors embracing coral, emerald, sky blue and white, with sequins accenting the colors. Every flower is worked out in glistening sequins, the flower created in the glistening whimsies in its own color, and in the center of alternating flowers a tear-drop emerald is suspended.

The belt is entirely of sequins, repeating the hues of the gown. With the form-fitting frock Miss Fears wears a waist-length jacket, with scarf and sash closing. It is made of the same fabric as the dress.

The jewels she wears with this gown consist of four bracelets and three clips set with emeralds and diamonds. This costume is part of Miss Fears' own elaborate wardrobe.

Now for the intimate hours there is a suspender-back night slip of lustrous white satin, shown worn by Mona Barrie, center. It is tied in the center of the bodice and covered with a corsage of lingerie roses. The detachable belt fastens with a butterfly clip.

The trailing robe which she wears over the gown is of pale aquamarine chiffon, with voluminous sleeves tied at each wrist, and a circular cut flounce borders the trailing hem.

SHOCK TO MISSIONARY.

WINDSOR, Oct. 10.—(C. P.)—News of the assassination of King Alexander of Jugo-Slavia came as a particular shock to Miss Nellie Forman of East Windsor.

Miss Forman, a missionary for the United church, was present at the marriage of King Alexander and Princess Marie of Rumania, and one of her most cherished possessions is a picture of the event.

SOCIETY BEAUTY IS KIDNAPPED

and told Mrs. Stoll he was going to kidnap her.

They talked about the matter for some time. Mrs. Stoll offered the man a cheque if he would let her go. He replied by hitting her on the head with a piece of iron pipe. Her head was cut and began to bleed, but the maid said she was not unconscious.

Allowing her a checked blue and white coat to cover her negligee, the kidnapper then forced his victim to go with him. Mrs. Woolet caught a glimpse of his car. He said: "If Berry comes, I'll kill him," the maid declared.

The man was in the house about an hour and a half in all. The two women were alone. All the time help was nearby if they had been able to summon it. Frank Hardin, 55, negro hired man on the place, was working in a nearby field. He had a rifle, as sheep-killing dogs have been giving trouble.

The Stoll's 140-pound Great Dane "Bruno" played nearby.

Hardin said he saw the kidnapper drive up to the house, but suspected nothing wrong.

Stoll Arrives.

The kidnapping was discovered by Mr. Stoll when he went home at 5.30 last night. He telephoned the police from a neighbor's home.

Mrs. Stoll is a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William S. Speed, of a family prominent in Kentucky, for generations. Her husband is vice-president of the Stoll Oil Refining Company, which produces and refines oil and operates a chain of oil stations in Louisville. She is a niece of Frederic M. Sackett, former Senator and Ambassador to Germany in the Hoover administratin. The families are regarded as among the wealthiest in this section.

Finds Note On Bed

Having telephoned, Stoll returned home and on his wife's bed on the second floor found the kidnap note in a sealed envelope. The authorities refused to tell what it said. But major William Schmidt, night chief of police, revealed that it was perfectly typed on two sheets of legal cap mostly in black but in some parts in red ink.

The Warning.

It was understood the note first warned the family not to notify Federal officers, and that it went on to point out three other cases where Federal oficers had been called in to solve kidnapping, and families had to pay the ransom money demanded. The note also was understood to have advised the family to contact certain individuals of national importance. No intimation of their names was forthcoming. Toward its close the note, it was reported, referred to the fact that the gardener, Fowler Woolet, husband of Mrs. Stoll's maid, was away and that the kidnapper would have to hurry.

The note was directed to "Stoll". It contained abuse of the family and a hint that Mr. Stoll's brother, William A. Stoll would "be next." Schmidt said there were no misspelled words, that the typing was neat and the diction good.

"It's my opinion that the man who wrote the note was an educated man" Schmidt added.

There was a typed demand for $30,000 ransom. That was scratched out and $50,000 inserted.

Mrs. Woolet described the kidnapper as 30 or 35 years old, weighing about 150 pounds, with dark hair, slicked back and dark complexion.

The stoll family was ready to deal with the kidnappers. Berry Stoll issued a statement saying he had "just found the note regarding the ransom and that arrangements are being made accordingly". There was no hint what these arrangements were. Schmidt said the note promised the kidnappers would contact the family "within five days."

BELLHOP'S BEATS NOBLEMAN'S LIFE

Hollywood Man With Lucky Break Returns From Europe to Tell Tale.

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 10 (C.P.) — A bellhop in America lives better than a nobleman abroad, R. D. Cremona, local bellhop who has just returned from a trip to Europe where he took possession of a $1,000,000 inheritance, told the manager of the hotel here in which he used to work. The former employee was guest in the most luxurious suite the house possessed.

Cremona's inheritance, fittingly enough, came to him in the form of a string of hotels in a number of cities of the continent. Accompanied by his wife, a former waitress, he visited those cities to look them over.

In discussing the wretched plight of the European nobleman, Cremona said: "Living conditions are about years behind the times, and most of those guys don't know it."

"ONE OF THE SECRETS OF FRENCH COOKERY" says Mary Blake

Carnation CANADIAN PRODUCT STERILIZED UNSWEETENED EVAPORATED MILK NEW ECONOMY at TODAY'S PRICE

"HOW tempting a most ordinary food is made by the addition of an attractive sauce—one that is smooth and creamy, with delicate flavours well blended! The generous use of a variety of sauces is, to be sure, one of the secrets of French cookery," says Mary Blake in her famous book "100 Glorified Recipes".

And she might have added that the secret of a fine cream sauce is the use of Carnation Milk. Try the cream sauce recipe given here—for vegetables, fish, meats. Notice how smooth it is—how delicious—and how easy to make. Carnation Milk brings these results in all cooking where it is used because it is concentrated until it is twice as rich as bottle milk and because it is homogenized so that every drop is equally creamy. And you save money by using Carnation at to-day's price.

FIRE PREVENTION BULLETIN

This is Fire Prevention Week—Do Your Part to Reduce Peterborough's Fire Losses

Fire Chief George Gimblett today issued an appeal for smokers to exercise more care in the disposal of matches and cigar and cigarette stubs. He also advised smokers to refrain from smoking in bed. "Smoking," he pointed out, "is a comfort and pleasure to a great many persons. But, if the smoker is not careful he may start a fire which will be decidedly uncomfortable and costly."

Carelessly discarded matches and stubs cause many fires in offices, homes, factories, along highways and in the country every year, according to the chief. One way to be certain that the match you toss away is not burning is to snap it between your fingers before letting it go. "If every Canadian were to make this a habit," declared the Chief, "our national fire loss would be smaller by thousands of dollars every year."

No cigarette or cigar stubbs should be thrown away without being absolutely cold. If you are out of doors, grind the stub carefully under your foot. Nearly every home where there are smokers has its quota of scorched tables and window sills, carpets and furniture. Much publicity has been given at times to the money spent every year in this country on tobacco. If the cost of replacing articles ruined by the careless use of that tobacco were figured in, the annual smoking expense would truly be staggering.

"Smoking in bed is perhaps the most dangerous use of tobacco," Chief Gimblett said. "It is responsible for the death and injury of hundreds annually." The Chief pointed out that a sleepy man in bed with a cigarette is very likely to wake up shortly to find himself in the middle of a brisk blaze. Not only men are offenders in this connection—ladies also like to smoke in bed and usually with the same consequences.

The Chief urged motorists to extinguish cigarette stubs entirely before tossing them out of moving cars. Only a slight breeze is required to spread fire from a smoldering butt. By the time such fires are started, the motorist may be miles away and the fire may cause great destruction before discovered.

"Enjoy your smoking but smoke with consideration," the Chief said. "It is a pleasant habit, but one that has a large potential fire hazard. Only a little care is necessary to prevent fires caused by matches and smoking."

Avoid Embarrassment of FALSE TEETH Dropping or Slipping

Don't be embarrassed again by having your false teeth slip or drop when you eat, talk, laugh, or sneeze. Just sprinkle a little FASTEETH on your plates. This new, extremely fine powder gives a wonderful sense of comfort and security. No gummy, gooey taste or feeling. Get FASTEETH to-day at any drug-store.

PRESBYTERIAN SYNOD DEMANDS INCREASED EXECUTIVE POWERS

Financial Affairs of Church Cited as Chief Reason for Request.

SPLIT THREATENED.

SMITH'S FALLS, Ont., Oct. 11 (CP)—Increased powers in the executive and administrative workings of the church were asked yesterday by the Montreal and Ottawa Synod of the Presbyterian Church in Canada in annual session here. The financial affairs of the church were cited as one of the cheif reasons for seeking this widened authority.

Over-riding the opposition raised by some delegates, one of whom termed the move as "likely to split the church," the Synod adopted a lengthy resolution. This provided that all subscriptions to the budget as paid to the treasurer or secretary of the Synod "shall be used in the absolute and uncontrolled discretion of the Synod for the general work of the church," after providing for local requirements.

The intention was, according to the resolution, "to promote the work of the church as heretofore carried on and at the same time to give this Synod the power to impose in its absolute discretion such conditions as it may deem proper to effectively safeguard the credit of our church." The resolution further provided for the appointment of an executive committee comprising 20 members for this purpose and that the regulation come into effect July 1, 1935.

Finances Unsatisfactory.

Reasons for the step as given in the resolution were that church finances were in an unsatisfactory state and there had been a tendency on the part of officers of the Church to present to the General Assembly financial reports which were altogether too optimistic. It was declared that the General Assembly was an unwieldy administrative unit in matters financial as it met but once each.

The territorial jurisdiction of the Synod was also termed too extensive, resulting in an enormous waste of money in transportation, delegated arriving from such far removed points as Vancouver and Halifax, in isolated units, void of common plan and thus unable to give due and proper consideration to matters brought to their attention.

While moving for enlarged powers of Synod the resolution nevertheless expressed recognition of the General Assembly as the supreme court of the Church and placed on record its complete submission thereto in all matters pertaining to worship, doctrine and church government which did not infringe on the financial liberty of church members, congregations or inferior courts.

LINDSAY MAKER WINS SILVER CUP

Kawartha Butter Club Holds Successful Meeting in Lindsay.

CONTEST WINNERS.

The monthly meeting of the Kawartha Butter Club held at Lindsay last evening was attended by a good representation of buttermakers from Lindsay, Lakefield, Bobcaygeon, Whitby and Peterborough. C. R. Kennedy of Silverwood's Peterborough Dairy presided in his capacity as chairman of the club and announced that the next meeting was to be held at Peterborough on November 14.

The silver trophy competed for monthly was won by William Dunlop of Lindsay, who took first place in the cream and butter scoring competition. Thomas Jackson, Campbell's Dairy, Peterborough, was second, with Kenneth Murray of Centre Smith in third place.

The judging was performed by C. A. Davey, inspector of dairying for Peterborough and district and by Creighton Chambers, inspector of Belleville district. An interesting address on the tonic "How Quality of Salt Affects Butter Consumption" was given by Mr. Dunlop, superintendent of Lindsay Creamery.

Sweden expects bumper crops this year.

Six Homeless Children

Here are six lovely, bright, healthy children—just the kind that could fill many a childless home with happiness and life, and who would like an opportunity to do so, as they are without homes of their own. They are without a mother's or father's love, and were it not for the tender care of the management of the Children's Aid Shelter they would be destitute indeed. The Peterborough Children's Aid Society has placed hundreds of children in Christian homes just as homes will be found in due course for these six little ones. Would you not like to take one or more? If so, send your application to Box 1063, Peterborough, Ont. From left to right (back row) they are; Walter 9 years, Rose 7 years, Fred 9 years. Front row: Margaret 3 years, Kenneth 2½ years, Irene 4 years. All are in good health and bright. Saturday will be tag day for the Peterborough Children's Aid Society. You can help on this good work by making as generous a contribution as your means permit.

OTONABEE COUPLE 50 YEARS MARRIED

Family Reunion Marks Golden Anniversary of Mr. and Mrs. John O. Tate.

On October 8, 1884, at the home of the bride's parents, the late Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stewart, Otonabee, John A. Tate and Emma Stewart were united in marriage, the Rev. Dr. Torrance of Peterborough, officiating.

On Monday, Thanksgiving Day, a family re-union celebrated the Golden Wedding of Mr. and Mrs. Tate at the homestead, now occupied by their son, Harold. It is significant to note that Mr. Tate was born at this residence and with the bride of 1884, continued to make it their home for thirty-seven years until their retirement in Centreville thirteen years ago.

A pleasing feature of the occasion was the presence of the bridesmaid, Mrs. George Darke, of Lindsay and of the groomsman, Robert Tate, of Toronto. Their eldest son, Norman, of The Pas, Manitoba, was unable to join the family on Monday. There were present: Mr. and Mrs. John Tate, Mr. and Mrs. George Darke, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Tate, Wm. McCamus and son, Harold; Mr. and Mrs. Earl Huggins and Neil; Mr. and Mrs Harold Tate, Robens and Alvin Tate.

TERRORIST GANG TRACKED DOWN FRENCH BORDER

Police Nab Two Suspected of Aiding in Plot Fatal to King Alexander.

THIRD ESCAPES.

Cabinet Shake-up Likely Over Police Failure to Prevent Assassinations.

(By Richard G. Massock. Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press)

PARIS, Oct. 11.—France's police, stung by the assassination on French soil of King Alexander of Yugoslavia and Louis Barthou, Foreign Minister of France, arrested two alleged terrorists, shot it out with a third who escaped, and hunted intently for two more accomplices to-day.

The terrorist gang, they said, was affiliated with Petrus Kalemen, the assassin of Marseille.

France prepared to bury her beloved statesman, Barthou, even as she guarded zealously the safety of the new King of Yugoslavia, 11-year-old Peter II, and his mother, the widowed Queen Marie. Madame LeBrun, the wife of the President of France, offered herself as pledge of Queen Marie's safety for, disguised with a heavy veil, she rode through the streets of Paris in an automobile with her husband, sitting in the place of honor that that spectators might think she was the Yugoslavian Queen.

Queen Marie, meanwhile, was smuggled from the Marseille train to the Yugoslav Legation, where she joined her son.

Cabinet Shakeup?

A shakeup of the French Cabinet appeared increasingly probable as the public denunciation of police failures arose to a storm of protests. Newspapers and members of Parliament widely demanded the resignation of Albert Sarraut, Minister of the Interior.

The double assassination—which resulted in the death of five other persons as well—caused a swirl of criticism of the paucity of police protection, and that whirlwind was supplemented by the fact that Fontainebleau police let three suspects get away from them. The fact that two of these suspects were recaptured was only a slight relief to the police.

The police at Fontainbleau arrested a man named Silvester Chalny at the local railroad station. It was Chalny, authorities said, who accompanied Kalemen to Marseille.

Chalny slipped out of their hands, however, and ran into the forest there. Policemen shot at him but he made his getaway. A posse was summoned to comb the woods.

The Fontainbleau police also had two other suspects in their hands yesterday but they, too, got away. They were seized to-day, however, at Thonon just as they were attempting to cross Lake Geneva to either Geneva or Lausanne.

Kalemen's Companions

The two men arrested gave their names as Wladislav Benes and Yaroslav Novak. Police said they believed they were the same pair who accompanied Kalemen to Paris, previous to the fatal trip to Marseille.

Chalny, Benes and Novak were sitting in the railroad station in Fontainbleau last night, awaiting a train. The police picked them up and began to search Chalny. They extracted from his pocekts a ticket to Evian and then he suddenly broke loose, ran across the tracks, jumped a fence and disappeared into the darkness.

The other two men ran away in the resultant confusion, jumped a moving train, and eventually gained the frontier, where they were arrested.

In his flight, Chalny dropped his pocketbook. The gendarmes opened it and found inside a passport bearing his name and which, like that of Kalemen, purported to have been issued by the Czechoslovakian Consulate at Zagreb. It gave Chalny's residence at Praha and, like that of Kalemen, bore a visa showing his entrance into France Sept. 28 through Vallorbe on the Swiss frontier.

Warned by Belgium

Meanwhile, police said they were hunting for two other men, Nikomir Nalis, a terrorist agitator and suspected leader of the band, and Egon Kramer, who accompanied Kalemen to Aix-en-Provence, en route to Marseille. The Marseille police were advised by the Belgian police two weeks ago that Nalis had passed through Belgium on the way to France, apparently with the intention of murdering Alexander.

The Marseille police, who said Nalis was convicted of robbery there on December 12, 1933, were unable to pick up his trail although a warning was spread among all the local police of France. They learned, however, that Kalemen with "a mysterious thin-haired foreigner" had a noisy dispute with a cafe waiter on September 29 in Marseille over their inability to understand each other. The waiter and a Paris architect recognized Kalemen's photograph as that of one of the men.

Thought Plot Set for Paris.

The seeming laxity in the protection of Alexander at Marseille was attributed in informed quarters to the authorities' belief that any attempt on the King's life would be made in Paris. Elaborate precautions had been taken to safeguard him after his arrival in the capital. No attack was expected in Maseille.

The terrorist gang, according to the police theory, herad of the plans for protection in Paris, hastily changed the scene of attack to Marseille, and sent Kalemen there.

LIFE OF PARLIAMENT EXTENDED.

WELLINGTON, N.Z., Oct. 11.—(C. P. Cable Via Reuters).—The Legislative Council to-day passed final stages of the bill extending the maximum life of the Parliament of New Zealand to four years, instead of three. The measure has now been approved in both houses.

The term in Australia is still three years.

Jamaica expects to produce nearly 7,000,000,000 pounds of coffee this season.

To Vanderbilt Child Solomonic Choice Up

CADET BAND TO VISIT CITY

De La Salle Bugle Band Will Head Holy Name Society.

SUNDAY, OCTOBER 14.

The Holy Name rally on October 14th will be featured by the first appearance, locally, of the De La Salle Bugle Band from Toronto. This organization is composed of the students and the alumni of De La Salle "Oaklands," a private preparatory and high school under the direction of the Christian Brothers. The school, now in its fourth year, has an enrollment of about 400 students, most of whom belonging to the Cadet Corps. The Cadet Corps and the Band were re-organized and equipped with new uniforms four years ago. Since then the two organizations have won many flattering tributes from the press both in Toronto and elsewhere.

During the past summer the band took part in the military tournament at the Coliseum in connection with the Toronto centenary celebrations. There were engagements also at Port Credit, Newmarket and Jackson's Point. A years ago, the unit went to Lindsay for a Holy Name rally. On this occasion both clergy and laity expressed themselves most enthusiastically on the fine bearing and the precision of the Band members.

The unit is in charge of Rev. Brother Joseph, F.S.C., who is acting Principal of De La Salle "Oaklands" during the illness of Rev Brother Alfred, F.S.C., LL.D. Brother Joseph is aided by Rev. Brother Anselm, F.S.C. The instructors of the band are: Drum-Major John Jackson and Drum-Major William Jordan, formerly of the 48th Highlanders, Toronto. They are ably assisted by Quartermaster Gerard Quinn and Quartermaster Percy McGillivray.

Two years ago the Cadet Corps and Band visited Hamilton. On that occasion the local papers spoke very highly of the unit. The following quotation is taken from the account in the Hamilton Herald:

"The snappy De La Salle Cadet Corps of Toronto, 350 strong, captured the admiration of downtown Hamilton last evening, when accompanied by its bugle band. It visited the Royal Hamilton Light Infantry under Lieut.-Col. C. W. G. Gibson, M.C., V.D., A.D.C. It paraded with the Royals, on the march out, and afterwards gave a smart exhibition of drill at the Armouries. The boys arrived from Toronto, the cadets wearing their soldierly blue uniforms, and the bugle band being attired in blue uniforms and blue cloaks.

Led by the R.H.L.I. bugle and brass bands, resplendent in their scarlet review uniforms and led by the R.H.L.I., in khaki, the cadets paraded at 8.15 o'clock and participated in a route march to the cenotaph. There a wreath was deposited on behalf of the Corps by Cadet Lieut. Frank Hall in memory of those who had given their lives in the war. "Last Post" was sounded by the Cadet buglers."

POLICEMEN'S BALL BE BIG SOCIAL EVENT

Be Held in Legion Hall on Friday, October 26.

Plans are going ahead swiftly to make the second annual policeman's Ball at the Legion Hall on the evening of October 26, one of the big social events of the season. The services of an excellent orchestra are being secured for the dancers, while bridge and euchre are also included on the program. Tickets may be obtained from any member of the police force. Purpose of the ball is to raise funds for the Policemen's Benevolent Association. Those wishing to play cards are asked to bring their own cards.

Miscellaneous Bale Prepared By Society

A small bale of miscellaneous articles was packed by members of St. George's Woman's Auxiliary, at their regular meeting in the church basement on Tuesday afternoon. The opening devotional period and business session was conducted by Mrs. W. H. Andrews, acting president. The Scripture portion was read by Mrs. J. Huxley, and treasurer's and secretary's reports were given by Mrs. W. McElwain. A very interesting letter was read from the board representatives in Toronto, and matters pertaining to the recent Deanery meeting were discussed.

The Little Helpers' party, sponsored by the Senior Branch, was arranged to take place on October 23rd.

The bale which has been under the supervision of the Dorcas Secretary, Mrs. W. J. Downer, contained two quilts and a nice assortment of useful garments, mostly woollen articles and warm underwear. This has been dispatched to the W. A. House, Toronto, for distribution in the northern or western missions.

Following the packing of the bale, the members enjoyed a social time together, during which afternoon tea was served.

What is Heating Value?

The heating value of fuel is the amount of heat delivered as against relative costs. Official tests have proved that Genuine Scotch Anthracite delivers a maximum amount of heat per ton. Because of the high carbon content it is long burning, even heating and quick lighting. There are no clinkers and little ash—clean and easily handled. Order Genuine Scotch Anthracite, a British product, for real economy, comfort and convenience.

LONDON NAVAL CONFERENCE IS SCORED BY SIR ROGER KEYES

Also Britain's Representations to the Cartier Celebration.

LACKING IN CRUISERS

By Central Press Canadian.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10.—The bigger the boat the bigger the show and, being a show of particular historical significance to the French, it was apparently a case of their providing the larger show!

At least that is the inference drawn from the critical remarks passed by Sir Roger Keyes, admiral of the fleet of Dover patrol and Zeebrugge fame, just before he sailed to England the other day.

Admiral Keyes, who was an official delegate to the Jacques Cartier celebration in Gaspe, Canada, asserted that the French government had sent to the celebration the destroyer Vaquelin, a ship of 2,441 tons.

"The best we could do for naval representation," he said, "was the destroyer Saguenay, which deplaces only 1,320 tons."

Scores Treaty.

Breaking his silence observed earlier during his visit, Sir Roger characterized the London naval conference as unsatisfactory.

"The London conference gave a chance for France and Italy to walk out and take advantage of the situation, leaving the rest of us in a queer position," he said. "The French have gone ahead and built destroyer leaders that are vastly superior to ours, while we have bound ourselves to the London conference rules."

Sir Roger said that the British navy would be lacking in cruisers by the end of 1935 when at least fourteen of the 50 cruisers allotted by the London conference would be "fit for the scrap heap."

"I believe that every country has a right to have sufficient cruisers to guard its possessions and trade-routes," he declared.

"I realize the value of aeroplanes in attacks on capital ships," Sir Roger said, "but I firmly believe that the battleship is just as vulnerable to submarine dangers as to attack from the air."

SPICY GINGERBREAD

Cream ½ cup Domestic or Excelsen Shortening and ½ cup High Park butter and add ½ cup brown sugar gradually, then add ½ cup molasses and 2 beaten eggs.

Mix and sift 2½ cups Crown of Gold flour, ½ teaspoon baking powder, 2 teaspoons soda, 2 teaspoons ginger, 1½ teaspoon cinnamon, ½ teaspoon cloves, ½ teaspoon nutmeg and add to first mixture.

Add one cup of boiling water and beat until well blended.

Pour into greased pan and bake in a moderate oven (350° F) for 45 minutes.

This is delicious served as a pudding with marshmallow sauce, or it may be iced when cool with an orange icing.

PLANNED ECONOMY IMPOSSIBLE WITH CAPITALISTIC CONDITIONS

So Joseph V. Stalin, Soviet Chief, Tells H. G. Wells, British Author.

REVOLT ONLY SOLUTION.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10 (C.P.)—In a copyrighted cable from Moscow to The New York Herald Tribune yesterday, Joseph V. Stalin, head of the Union of Soviet Republics, is reported to have told H. G. Wells, British author, that planned economy is impossible "under conditions of capitalism."

From a three-hour interview, a stenographic acount of which was made available to-day, Stalin is quoted as follows:

"When I speak of the impossibility of realization of the principle of a planned economy on the basis of capitalism, I do not belittle the personal qualities of President Roosevelt, his initiative, courage and decisiveness.

"Undoubtedly, of all the leaders of the present capitalist world, he is the most powerful figure. But as soon as he proceeds to undertake anything seriously threatening the foundations of capitalism he will suffer utter defeat. If President Roosevelt should actually try to satisfy the interests of the proletarian class at the expense of the capitalists, the latter will put another president in his place."

Propertied Class

"In capitalist countries we have, on the one hand, a propertied class who own the banks, factories, mines and means of transport, and who see nothing but their own interests and are striving for profits. On the other hand there is the class of the poor and exploited, who have nothing and are compelled to live by selling their labor power to the capitalists, who find it impossible to satisfy the most elementary requirements of that class.

"The interests of the poor are different from those of the rich. So far as I can see, Mr. Roosevelt cannot find a path toward a reconciliation."

The ideas, put forward by Mr. Wells, of possibility of remodelling society in the interest of the masses by socially-minded capitalists and the technical intelligensia was rejected by Stalin, who asserted that the goal could be reached only by a proletarian revolution.

"Society," he said, "is fundamentally divided into exploiters and exploited, and any effort to reconcile their interests is impossible."

Episcopalians Rally In Atlantic City

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., Oct. 11.—(AP)—American Episcopal leaders here for their 51st triennial convention turned their attention to the accumulated church problems of the past three years.

The age-old controversy of "high church" vs. "low church" possible changes in the ecclesiastic laws relating to marriage and divorce, and most pressing of all, the problem of financial support for the domestic and foreign missions, loomed large on the convention agenda.

A $252,000 gift, the first organized effort by American laymen to increase mission support, was announced last night by the new national "every man's committee" headed by Charles P. Taft.

IN MEMORIAM
LUSTIC—In loving memory of my dear mother, Maude Lustic, who died Oct. 11th, 1933.
I often stand beside your grave
And treasure it with care;
I who loved you sadly miss you
As it dawns another year.
When days are dark and friends are few,
It is then, how I think of you.
Friends are friends if they are true,
But I lost my best friend when I lost you.
—Her daughter, Irene.

IN MEMORIAM
LUSTIC—In loving memory of our dear mother and wife, Mrs. William Lustic, who passed away October 11th, 1933.
The flowing stream of life rolls on,
But still the vacant chair
Recalls the love, the voice, the smile
Of her who once sat there.
Her life was one long sacrifice,
Her heart was true and tender;
She toiled so hard for those she loved,
Then left us to remember.
—Sadly missed by her loving husband and family.

MACHINE CANNOT BE RENOUNCED WITHOUT BLOW AT CIVILIZATION

Must be Disciplined to Serve Men Not Take Away Joy of Work Says Marconi.

AT SCIENTISTS' RALLY.

NAPLES, Italy, Oct. 11. (AP)—Guglielmo Marconi, inventor of the wireless, in his presidential message to the 23rd annual meeting of the Italian Association for the Advancement of Science to-day said humanity cannot renounce the machine "without walking backward along the march of civilization."

A slight illness prevented Marconi from delivering the message in person.

"It is discipline of the machine we must obtain," he asserted, "so it will serve men and not take away from them the joy of work.

"Only organized scientific research is in a position to produce this admirable result. It is my profound conviction it must strive to develop agriculture to create new industries and new motives of work.

The inventor's message told several hundred of the best known Italian scientists "we are at a turn in the history of humanity. A thousand indications show that economic relationships are changing. One epoch is finished and a new one begins.

"Whatever will be the economic layout that we are approaching, it is certain it will be profoundly different from that which regulated the life of men at the time we were born."

CALL OF OUTSIDE FOR YUKONERS PROVES FAINTER THIS SEASON

Easier, Cheaper Travel Facilities Increase in Mining Provide Reason.

NEW DAWSON AIR FIELD.

DAWSON, Y.T., Oct. 11.—(C.P.)—The call of the "outside" is fainter this year, and the winter population of Dawson and the Yukon interior will be much larger during the coming season of long nights than for some time past.

Easier and cheaper facilities for moving about the country and for getting out when necessary, and greater activity in mining and associated industries, furnish the reasons.

With departure of the setamer Keno from Dawson for Whitehorse, Yukon river navigation has ended. But airplanes and a mail stage line will operate.

The Dominion government is completing a large landing field outside the fog area with a runway 2,000 feet long by 400 feet wide, enabling the largest planes to land on wheels at any time of the year. Passenger fares either way between Dawson and Whitehorse are offered at $100. The 'planes make the distance in three hours. The mail stage will carry passengers over the same route for $50, including meals and bed. The stages, aided by special automobiles and other equipment, will make the trip in three days with night and day travelling.

BELMONT MAN DIES IN NORWOOD

Kenneth Burgess Collapses While Attending Norwood Fair.

IN GOOD HEALTH.

NORWOOD, October 11—Stricken with a heart attack while walking in front of Webb's Garage, Kenneth Burgess, 72, died within a few minute yesterday afternoon shortly after four o'clock.

Mr. Burgess had attended the Norwood Fair, and appeared to be in good health. During the afternoon he had been chatting with his son-in-law, William Thompson of Westwood, and at that time, it is reported, there was no warning sign of the seizure that overcame him after he left the Fair Grounds to walk down town.

Until about four years ago Mr. Burgess had been actively engaged a a farmer in Belmont Township, near Trent River. Since moving to Norwood he had lived with his sister, Miss Edit hBurges. He is also survived by his daughter, Mrs. Thompson of Westwood.

The funeral will take place here on Friday afternoon at 2 o'clock to Norwood Cemetery.

AT PLOWING MATCH.
Several local motor parties left this morning for the International plowing match at Frank P. O'Conor's farm north of Toronto. Among those attending are Mayor Denne, W. G. Morrow, John Gillespie, R. M. Glover, G. A. Gillespie and Jas. Juby.

Obituary

JOSEPH C. HUGHES.
The death took place in St. John, N.B., of Joseph C. Hughes. Remains will arrive in Peterborough on Friday evening and the funeral will be held from the residence of his brother, W. Chris. Hughes, 14 Charles street, Peterborough, on Saturday, Oct. 13th, 1934, at 2 o'clock p.m. Interment Little Lake Cemetery.

HUGH BAILEY
The funeral was held on Monday morning last of Hugh Bailey who passed away at his residence, 409 Bethune street at the age of 65 years. Requiem Mass was celebrated at St. Peter's Cathedral by the Rev. Fr. Grant, while the funeral sermon was preached by the Rev. Paul Costello. Committal prayers at the graveside in St. Peter's cemetery where interment was made were recited by Rev. Dr. V. J. Masterson.

The late Mr. Bailey who was born near Marmora had spent the greater part of his life in this district. Surviving him are his wife; three daughters, Mrs. Carl Condon and Miss Eva Bailey of Thorold; Mrs. Fred Johnston of Madoc and one son, Edward Bailey of Marmora.

Among those present at the funeral from out of town were: Mr. Edward Bailey, Marmora; Mr. and Mrs. Carl Condon, and Miss Eva Bailey, Thorold; Mr. and Mrs. Johnston, Mr. James Bailey and family, and Mr. Charles Bailey, brothers of the deceased; Mrs. Edward Flynn, Mrs. Theresa Warne, Mr. William Flynn and Mr. John Flynn, all of Marmora.

Pall bearers were, Messrs. William Gollogher, Lawrence Maher, Richard Sullivan, Alphonse Madden, Charles Quinlan, Edward Thebault.

Queen's Players Face Banishment For Year

KINGSTON, Ont., Oct. 11.— (C. P.)—Four members of the Queen's University Senior Intercollegiate football team may play their last game for the Tricolor when they go to Montreal to meet McGill Saturday, unless they change their attitude to the student court ban on fraternities, it was stated here to-day.

The four, "How" Hamlin, Bill Glass, Frank Earle and Colin Dafoe, are members of a fraternity and the ruling of the Alma Mater Society is the constitution of this body banning membership in fraternities must be upheld. Included among 30 students charged with being members of an International fraternity are these four players and "Red" McNicholl, who is in hospital with scarlet fever.

The penalty, if found guilty, is that offending students are barred from participation in the political, social and athletic life of the University for at least one year.

Stuart G. Pirie, son of Mr. and Mrs. G. Pirie of 186 Prince street, left the city last night for the scene of the gold mining rush in Northern Ontario, having been transferred in the service of the Canadian National Telegraphs, as telegraph operator at Jellico. Mr. Pirie had been in the uptown office of the C.N.R. here since leaving school, and in later years had been out at various points in the province as holiday relief operator.

PHEASANT SEEN IN CITY.
Word comes from neighboring communities of pheasants so tame this year that they are associating freely with barnyard fowl. And to-day confirming evidence of the tameness of the game birds comes from a resident of this city.

Stepping out to the back of his house at noon, L. V. Wood, 174 Westcott Street, spied a fine specimen strutting on his back lawn. The bird was beautifully colored. It seemed to be little disturbed by the presence of a human, Mr. Wood reports.

Train Jumps Tracks Five Lives Are Lost

GOTTENBERG, Iowa, Oct. 11.—(A.P.)—The engineer, fireman and three passengers on a Milwaukee train were killed and an undetermined number of passengers injured when the train left the tracks one-half mile south of here today.

The train, speeding northward toward Milwaukee, left the tracks on a curve and toppled off a small bridge into a creek. The engine exploded.

The cab and tender were torn from the engine and the three coaches were smashed.

Home and School Association News

DISTRICT CONFRENCE

To members of the various Home and School Associations of the city, an interesting event of the week will be the Friday conference, to be held in the lecture hall of Murray Street Baptist Church, which will represent the first meeting of its kind in Peterborough to be held under the auspices of the Federation of Home and School Associations of the province of Ontario.

A large representation is anticipated from the eight associations of the city and about forty ladies are expected from Lindsay. Federation officers who will be present will include the president, Mrs. R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa, a vice president, Mrs. A. B. Silcox of Toronto, the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. H. Maltby of Toronto, and Mrs. E. E. Reece, principal of Birchcliff School, Toronto, who will conduct the conference.

Mrs. W. R. Morris of Peterborough, who is past president of the Federation, will preside for the opening session, which commences at half past two o'clock and continues to half past five.

Speakers in the afternoon will be Mrs. McLaughlin, the Rev. Dr. C. V. McLean and Inspector Alex Mowat.

A banquet will be held at six o'clock, presided over by Mrs. E. Wand, president of the local Home and School Council.

Speakers will be Inspector R. F. Downey and Mrs. G. K. Tyler.

The committee in charge of arrangements includes the convenor, Mrs. E. Telford, president of the Queen Alexandra Home and School Association, Mrs. J. E. Middleton, president of the Queen Mary Home and School Association, and Mrs. J. Kingsbury.

TWINS NOT ALIKE IN FOOT TRICKS

One Roller Skated at Year Old, But His Brother a Prodigy on Tricycle.

NEW YORK, Oct. 10 (C.P.) — Judging by the experiences of Johnny and Jimmy, twins who are growing up in a scientific playroom here, the right age to take up roller skating is about seven months.

Johnny was a good roller skater about the time he was celebrating his first birthday. Jimmy confined himself to more natural courses concerning roller skates, such as biting them, until he was 22 months old. Then he tried to use the skates for getting around, but his efforts cost him a great series of ingenious spills, and two months of application brought little progress.

What scientific observers want to know is whether the highly trained Johnny has any real advantage over Jimmy, who just grew up like Topsy while his little brother was learning a series of astounding feats. Johnny seems no brighter at solving problems the pair are made to work out in the play, and when they started even at riding the tricycle, Jimmy learned to pedal like a champion of the six-day meets while his precocious brother was still crying for his skates.

GIRL'S "DISHPAN HANDS" MAY BE MADE BEAUTIFUL

Joan Blondell and her Pekingese.

"I don't mean to boast," writes a young southern lass, "but I have always possessed very beautiful hands. Prize winners, they were, on one occasion. But being young and foolish, I fell in love and got married. And now my poor paddies look like what the ad-writers so charmingly call 'dishpan hands'. Dishwashing just doesn't agree with my hands at all. Could you suggest any method of hand treatment for me?" . . .

This complaint, of course, is by no means an unusual one. There are many young housewives who find it difficult to keep their hands presentable and lovely. But it really can be done. The most difficult part for the average housewife is keeping her hands soft and smooth, especially during the wintertime. For the frequent dabbling of the hands in water tends to extract a good deal of the natural oil from the skin. And the cold tends to dry and chap the hands.

Of course, the average housewife has to use water quite a bit in the course of her day's work. Dishwashing, laundering and housecleaning all demand the use of water. But the little housewife really doesn't need to allow her hands to come into direct contact with the water. And if she follows the plan I am outlining below, I can guarantee that her hands will remain soft, smooth and white all year around.

Before making any use of water, the housewife should smooth some camphor ice on her hands and massage it thoroughly into the skin. Then she should don a pair of rubber gloves over the camphor ice and proceed with her work. The rubber gloves won't interfere with her efficiency at all, either, if she procures the thin variety.

After completing her work, the housewife should remove her gloves and cleanse her hands with a pure, bland soap and tepid water. And after the cleansing, she should massage a good, bleaching hand lotion into the skin of her hands. This procedure will counteract any chapping or roughening, and will keep the hands soft and smooth despite the wear and tear of housework.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES

Eyeshadow

Patsy: You may use the blue, blue-gray or gray eyeshadow cream. The blue is best for evening wear only, while the blue-gray and gray may be worn for both daytime and evening wear.

Rouge

Dolly: If your face is round and full, blend your rouge in toward your nose. This will create the illusion that the centers of your cheeks are closer together, and will thus reduce the apparent width of your face.

Brown Spots

Helen: To eradicate brown spots, so-called liver spots, apply a solution of hyposulphate of soda and water. Use, however, only one part of the chemical to eight parts of water.

Editor's Note: To obtain Miss Glad's pamphlets on "The New Figure" and "Beauty Culture" write, care of this paper, enclosing a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, and ten cents in coin for each, to cover cost of printing and handling.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

In the side show at the circus the other day I saw the Indigo Man, interesting from a medical standpoint, as are all the curiosities in such exhibits.

The skin of the Indigo Man was of a metallic, bluish, chocolate color. He might have been mistaken for a dark negro, except for his very aquiline nose. I fell into conversation with him. He said that he had an accident some years ago, and after he recovered he presented this appearance. The doctors found that his heart was pushed over to the right side of his body: perhaps this was the result of the accident. They ascribed the color to the change in circulation which followed this dislocation of the heart.

He said perhaps he had been given silver nitrate, or bismuth while he was in the hospital, but he wasn't sure.

Changes in the heart will cause a blue discoloration to the skin, but the heart conditions which do so are usually of a different kind than the heart on the right side (cor dextra). They are congenital malformations in most instances, which can be detected at birth—blue babies.

Heart on the right side occurs in a small proportion of the population, but does no harm. In examining large numbers of draft troops during the war, the condition turned up with fair regularity. The owners of the right-sided hearts suffered no ill effects from them, and in many cases did not know any abnormal condition existed.

Discoloration of the skin of the blue metallic shade usually results from the use of silver salts for purposes of medical treatment. It has been reported from the use of argyrol as a nasal douche. The silver is absorbed in the blood and deposited in the skin.

Silver used to be used as a treatment for epilepsy.

In one of the wholesome novels of Wilkie Collins the plot revolves around a blind heroine who is loved by an unfortunate young man who has epilepsy. He thinks that this is a bar to his marriage, until he is told of the cure by silver. The only drawback is that the silver will produce the dark discoloration of his skin.

However, since his intended wife is blind, she will never see him, and he undertakes the treatment. As the story develops his complexion assumes its ghastly shade, and then he finds, on consultation with a great oculist, that his sweetheart's sight can be restored.

The rest of the story is devoted to the struggle within himself to allow his beloved one to have her sight restored, and perhaps find then that his appearance is too repugnant for her to endure marriage.

Silver is no longer used, however, in the treatment of epilepsy.

QUESTIONS FROM READERS

Answer: (1) Sometimes they do—the asthmatic child often outgrows his asthma—i. e., loses sensitiveness to certain foods. (2) Not all cases.

FIFTIETH ANNIVERSARY HELD FOR BETHESDA UNITED CHURCH

Rev. George Williams, B.A., Delivers Inspiring Address at Service.

MISSION WORK IN CHINA

IVANHOE, Oct. 11.—On Sunday, October 7, 1934, Bethesda United Church celebrated their 50th anniversary. The church, which was decorated by C.G.I.T. and Trail Rangers, looked very pretty with autumn leaves and the altar a profusion of ferns.

The choir sang in the morning the anthem, "Ye Gates, Lift Up Your Heads" and Clayton Tummon sang "Three Meetings With My Saviour", the accompaniment being played by Mrs. Clayton Tummon. Organist for both morning and evening, Miss M. Lackey.

Rev. H. H. Lackey, B.A., B.D., introduced the speaker for the day, Rev. George Williams, who gave a very wonderful and inspiring sermon on "Re-thinking the Church". He spoke of some of his work while a missionary in Formosa and China. He closed his address with a plea for the church to send out more preachers; more missionaries in the next 50 years than what we have in the past.

Evening service: Choir sand anthem, "Fear Not, Oh Hand" and Mrs. Fred Bayliss and James McMillen sang a duet, "Unanswered Yet".

Rev. Lackey called on all those who were present at dedication of church to stand. Twelve responded.

Rev. Mr. Williams again preached a wonderful sermon on "The Abundant Life".

Successful Supper

On Monday evening a fowl supper was served by the Ladies' Association in the basement of the church. Over 300 people gathered for the supper and program.

A splendid program was as follows: Community singing led by Mr. Morris George, with Miss Lackey at the piano; instrumental, Miss Hilda Kilpatrick; solo, Clayton Tummon; recitation, Miss Gray; solo, Percy Ray; address, Dr. Semple, of Bridge St. United Church, Belleville; Hawaiian guitar and solo, Mr. Frank Palmer; recitation, Miss Gray; address, Rev. Fraser former pastor; Hawaiian guitar and solo, Frank Palmer.

The birthday cake which was donated by Mrs. Henry Mullett, had 50 candles and all those present at the dedication of the church were asked to come forward, the men to light the candles, the ladies to blow them out. Then the cake was taken to the basement and cut. While this was being done, Mr. McGuire, a former resident of this district, gave a talk and one of the oldest ladies in the district, Mrs. Alfred Holland, gave a short history of the church which was enjoyed by all.

The entertainment was brought to a close by all singing the doxology.

Communion Is Given To 75,000 Children

BUENOS AIRES, October 11 (C. P.). — More than 75,000 children congregated to-day for Communion before th e105-foot cross in Palermo Park, centre of the 32nd International Eucharistic Congress.

Four cardinals, one at an altar on each side of the base of the giant cross, were to officiate at the Communion service in which 250 priests assembled to distribute the Communion.

Services were held in all Buenos Aires churches this morning, with each of the more than 30 foreign nationalities represented in the congress meeting in a separate church for national services.

SLENDERLY SMART

In metal striped woolen, in brown and gold, as pictured with plain velvet rever and buttons, it's stunning.

It can also be dark green, dark red or black, which incidentally, shot with metal threads in cross-cross plaids, dots or stripes, are especially lovely in either woolen or silk.

It is exceedingly lovely too carried out in plain silk, marocain crepe, sheer wool crepe and new lightweight velveteen.

The wrapped diagonal bodice, so one-sided about its rever, pin tucked fitted beltless waistline, with bias lines that mark the hips, render this model a particularly happy one for the fuller figure.

Style No. 3327 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48 inches bust. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39-inch material with ¾ yard of 35-inch contrasting.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox

Keeping children well shod is one of the problems of parents. Apart from the cost which may be considerable, there is the still more important matter of suiting the shoe to the foot. Adults who have trouble with their feet realize that shoes have a great deal to do with it. A child cannot know about such things. What he wants is new shoes and some children are too easily satisfied. There are few things which please a little child's vanity more than to display on his feet a pair of new shoes. It is an event to be taken to the shoe store and have the sole attention of salesperson and parent while various pairs of shoes are tried on, and discussed. Sometimes he feels rather out of it, although the shoes are to be worn by him, for convers ation quite over his head will go on about the shoes, and why they do or do not fit. All the time he is conscious of the ones which he likes the best, and often insists on having a hearing.

* * * * * * *

While it is a wise thing to buy children's shoes rather big for them, it is unwise to get them too large. The shoes will not support the foot in just the right places. The instep of the shoes may come too near the ball of the foot, and the width will permit the toes to rub against the inside of the shoe. Adults find that corns are made worse, if not actually caused, by wearing shoes that are too large, as well as those too small.

* * * * * * *

The bones of a child's foot are still in a somewhat formative stage and they should not be forced into strained positions lest they become slightly deformed, not enough to show, but enough to give trouble later on.

* * * * * * *

The matter of high and low heels is one that should be taken into account in misses' and adult's shoes. It is now recognized that not every foot is best fitted with low heels. Some feet need high heels. But the reverse is more likely to be true, as more feet need low-heeled shoes than high. However one woman I know had constant trouble with her feet and finally went to a famous orthoepedic doctor. He put her into fairly high-heeled shoes and she found that her "sensible" shoes had never been kind for her feet. Part of her trouble was immediately relieved by the higher heels. However a very small tapering heel which is sometimes excellent for a dancing shoe should not be for walking shoes. While regulation walking shoes do not have them, very often one sees adults, young persons especially, wearing them on the street. Trouble is in the offing for women who ware such heels at such a time. The type of shoe should suit its use.

HOW MANY TRICKS CAN SOUTH WIN?

I understand that South did not do as well as he might have done with his cards. He played the hand for 4-spades. The opening lead was the K of clubs. How many tricks should he have won against the best subsequent play of opponents?

	♠ Q ♥ K Q J 6 5 2 ♦ Q J 7 ♣ A 8 4
♠ 3 2 ♥ A 10 7 ♦ K 6 4 ♣ K Q J 10 9	W. N. E. S.	♠ 9 7 4 ♥ 9 8 ♦ 9 8 2 ♣ 7 6 5 3 2
	♠ A K J 10 8 6 5 ♥ 4 3 ♦ A 10 5 3 ♣ None

Bidding went: South, 1-spade; West, 2-clubs; North, 2-hearts; South, 3-spades, to force; North, 4-spades.

The natural impulse of a player sitting South is to win the opening lead of the K of clubs, with dummy's ace, to discard a diamond. That does not seem to be the safest play on second thought. The declarer should not lose more than a single diamond trick in any event, and the discard does him no good. His plan should be to rid himself of all diamonds except the ace, so that he may make a small slam, if possible. The only feasible method of accomplishing this purpose appears to be to establish dummy's hearts while the ace of clubs and the diamond honors held between the two hands seem to best protect him from loss of more than a single trick, unless East happens to hold the ace of hearts, so that a return diamond lead will go through the declarer.

Have South ruff a club, to save dummy's ace. Dummy's Q of spades will win the second trick. Ruff the last low club held by dummy, to regain declarer's hand. Take two rounds of winning trumps, to deprive opponents of a dangerous spade.

Lead a heart at the sixth trick. What shall West do? If West passes the trick, dummy will keep on leading hearts until the ace falls, provided West does not wait beyond the second heart lead, as then the declarer will lead dummy's Q of diamonds, winning a small slam in any event, by giving West one diamond trick.

Of course West can deliberately discard his ace of hearts upon the third lead of trumps, but that will result in giving South a grand slam. West may as well take the first heart trick. No return lead by West will prevent a small slam. Dummy's hearts are established, affording South 4 discards, if he wants that number. Whether West leads back a heart, diamond or club, the remaining tricks must be won by the declaring side. The hand is sufficiently simple to yield any careful player a small slam as declarer.

Today's Recipes

Brazilian Loaf.—Chop or grind fine enough Brazil nuts to make one cup, add two cups of soft bread crumbs, one-half cup of finely chopped celery, one-fourth cup of shredded green pepper, one tablespoon minced parsley, one cup of cold mashed potatoes, and two well-beaten eggs; season with one teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon each of pepper and paprika. Mix all well, make into a loaf, place in a greased pan and bake 35 to 40 minutes. Serve with tomato sauce or cream sauce.

FACTS AND FANCIES

Preserved Citron Melon

Five melons, five cups sugar, one cup water, two lemons, ginger root. Peel melons, cut into slices and boil until tender in the syrup. Add the juice of the two lemons and the grated rind of one to the mixture. A little ginger, too, may be added. Cook until thick, about twenty minutes. Turn into sterile jars and seal.

WILLING TO SUPPORT ANY UNION OUTLAWING WAR, SAYS LITVINOFF

Gives Reasons for U.S.S.R. Entering League After Criticizing It.

MUST SAVE WORKERS

By PIERRE VAN PAASSEN
Central Press Canadian Writer

GENEVA, Oct. 11.—"Why does the Soviet Union enter the League of Nations after all these years of its existence and after all the adverse criticism heaped on the Geneva body by the Bolshevik chiefs?" This was the first question I asked Maxim Litvinoff, people's commissar for foreign afairs of the U.S.S.R. and his country's chief delegate to the international body. It was, not an easy matter to corner the Russian delegate for this interview, but in the end, I hope, it was well worth practicing a little patience in the hotel lobby, a matter of six or seven hours a day for four days running. At least I had an opportunity of reading the six heavy volumes which a friend from Zurich had sent me.

"The answer to the first part of your question lies in Stalin's declaration," M. Litvinoff replied. "Stalin said that so long as the league can but offer the slightest obstacle to war and render its outbreak just just a little more difficult and on the other hand facilitate the work of peace in the least way, we are not against the League of Nations. As to the second part of your question," went on Litvinoff, "we think that the league on the whole has of late shown a disposition to work for peace. There are many states who do not want war. We are with them! We don't want war, either, under any circumstances!"

"Does the Soviet Union's entry mean that you have changed or modified your attitude on the subject of socialism for other countries?"

Same Socialist Attitude

"Not in the least," came back Litvinoff. "We are the most conservative people in the world on that point. In the U.S.S.R. we pursue our old policy: build socialism. Our attitude towards capitalism remains the same. We know, I do not need to argue the point, I think, that capitalism engenders war, breeds war, because it carries the germs of war in its own bosom with its anarchic system of production, its lawless and ruthless competition and its inherent need to discover and conquer ever new or wider markets."

"There are some critics," I said, who affirm that the U.S.S.R. has come into the league solely out of fear of Japan, the fear to be conquered by Japan. Will you say anything on that point?"

"That is not a very intelligent criticism, if you ask me," M. Litvinoff replied, 'for do not the same critics warn the world very often that a new war will inevitably produce new revolutions? And do they really think that we are afraid to see a revolution occur elsewhere? No, we are neither afraid of the power you mention, nor of a revolution in any other country. Our army is first-class, our chemical industry is perfect, our aviation is not bad and we have plenty of men with brains who would bring an attack against us to nought and turn it into a smashing victory for the peoples of the U.S.S.R. Moreover, we have many friends in this world, very many friends. We can count on them. They will not let us down!"

"You mean the working-class organizations in the various countries?"

Fervent Desire for Peace

"Precisely. They and the intellectuals," he retorted. "You must not forget," he went on, "that the U.S.S.R. represents an immense power, extending over two continents and has a population of 160 million souls, with an annual increase of three millions. Our people are animated by a will of steel to maintain peace. We will leave nothing untried, literally nothing, to prevent the ghastly catastrophe which is, alas, in preparation. This has been realized by an increasing number of statesmen and that is why we were invited to join the league, to help in the preservation of peace. I draw your attention to the attitude of certain powers, who have withdrawn from the league precisely at the moment when the peace of the world is so gravely menaced, and I ask you in all sincerity to contrast their attitude with that of the U.S.S.R. which joins the league right now when it knows the cause of peace is seriously compromised."

"M. Litvinoff," I said, "you just mentioned that the outbreak of a war would in all likelihood — and you are not the only person to feel this, for one of the most conservative journals in France said the same thing a few days ago — the outbreak of war will be followed by revolution, and that you, as Communists, naturally favor the extension of the revolution to other countries, and yet you work for the maintenance of peace, is that not a contradiction, an anomaly?"

"It would be," said Litvinoff, "if we did not believe that a new war would plunge the whole of mankind into such atrocious suffering that we will leave no effort untried to prevent it. We know who would be the heaviest sufferers in a war, as they always have been, namely the workers."

Thinking of Workers

"It is therefore your concern for the workers of the world that animates you in your drive for peace?"

"Yes, and our desire to work out our own destiny unhampered. I do not hide that a war would seriously interfere with our Socialist program. We do not like manufacturing armaments and turning our industry into such a crazy and inhuman direction. We regret that we must waste time and treasures on guns and tanks and bombing planes and we are ready any day, any hour, to scrap our whole army, send every man home and destroy all our war material the moment others agree to do so at the same time."

"You made that proposal once or twice at the disarmament conference, didn't you?"

"Yes, but it was rejected. It was considered unpractical," he shrugged his shoulders...."So we'll have to go on for a while yet to burden the people with the staggering load of militarism. That's practical, I suppose!"

U.S.S.R. is Only Propaganda

"They say the Soviets have come to Geneva to foster Communist propaganda, a sort of Horse of Troy business, a clever way of sneaking in the red philosophy. How about that?"

"We have diplomatic relations with many countries and nowhere do we engage in propaganda or interfere in the slightest in the affairs of the countries. The proof is that we are there, in England, America, Germany, Poland, Italy, the Scandinavian countries, China, Japan, Turkey and many others. Our propaganda, our only propaganda, is the existence of the U.S.S.R. where we build a new world, a better world, a decent human world. The further we get on the way the more the attacks against us multiply. If we were nothing, if we were just muddlers, the capitalists could laugh at us and retain their peace of mind. But we are a great big something, something that has never before been in this world. That worries them. And we are growing every day. We don't mind their attacks though. The dogs bark but the caravan goes its way!"

Baby Bovines Come Six At a Time On This Farm

Here we have sextuplets, if you please. Perhaps the three cows on the farm of Joseph Baker, near Delaware, O., read newspaper stories of the Dionne quintuplets and organized to beat that record. Each of the three give birth to twins at the same time. All the twins were marketed.

INJURED IN FALL

PRESCOTT, Ont., Oct. 10.—(CP)—Vernon Waggoner, 22, of Collingwood, Ont., member of the crew of the Steamer Delaware in port here was seriously injured today when he fell 16 feet into the hatch of the steamer. He was removed to the general hospital Brockville when an X-ray was taken revealing a punctured lung, broken ribs and other injuries.

BEHIND the Scenes in HOLLYWOOD

By HARRISON CARROLL

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 9. — Hollywood's latest party gag is to present each incoming guest with an official form, releasing the host from responsibility for anything that might happen during the evening. Jack Oakie thought up the idea and had an attorney draw up the form. Guests are handed mimeographed copies and are requested to affix their signatures.

The routine drew a big laugh from Hollywood, which is still buzzing over the one-punch battle between John Monk Saunders and Herbert Marshall at the Ernst Lubitsch party for Max Reinhardt.

ANIMAL ACTORS rise in value just like human ones after appearing in a successful picture. When Metro-goldwyn-Mayer hired a little Spaniel named Flush to work with Norma Shearer in "The Barretts of Wimpole Street", the dog's owner valued it at $65. Enthusiastic reports on the film already have boosted this to $1,500.

SALLY BLANE still has the shivers from the experience.

R-K-O officials were puzzled when black spots showed up on the rushes for the picture, "The Silver Streak". A hasty inspection showed no defect in the studio projection machine, the raw film or the camera that photographed the scene.

The spots were still an unexplained mystery when the company prepared to resume filming on location the next day. Just by chance, Sally Blane happened to peer into the camera blimp. She gasped and fainted.

Hurrying to her aid, the crew discovered a poisonous black widow crawling out of the blimp.

Cameraman J. Roy Hunt now believes that the spider was responsible for the black spots in the film . . . and shudders to think how often he had his face close to the venomous intruder.

KNICK-KNACKS—

Can there be another rift between Sylvia Sidney and B. P. Schulberg? The producer was at the Colony club without her for Gene Austin's opening, and was paying marked attention to Gertrude Michel. . . . Astrid Alwyn and Al Kingston, the agent, were very much tete-a-tete at the same spot. . . . It's all over between Willy Castello and Irene Coleman. She's gone back to the old boy friend, Barkley Johnson, refrigerator company official. . . . Ruth Cummings' novel, "Song of the Flesh", soon will be on the stands. She's a niece of Louis B. Mayer. . . . In case Ginger Rogers wants to know, John Paddy Carstairs writes in to say that the Maharaja of Rajpipla is a well-known figure in London society circles, famed for his house parties and for after-theatre suppers at the Embassy club, Ciros and the Cafe de Paris. . . . But Carstairs never heard of the Prince of Rajpipla, who is supposed to have written that proposal of marriage to the star.

A BLUSTERING pirate with blood in his eye and friendship in his heart, and a young boy in the midst of the greatest adventure of his life—these are the characters brought vividly to the screne by Wallace Beery and Jackie Cooper in "Treasure Island," Robert Louis Stevenson's famous pirate story, which opens to-day at the Capitol Theatre.

Also commendable in their minor roles are little Cora Sue Collins, William V. Mong, Charles McNaughton and Dorthoy Peterson.

THINK LOSS OF SIXPENCE ONE REASON FOR SUICIDE

Smiling Bridesmaid One Day Lies Cold in Death the Next

VISCOUNT PEEL'S KIN

Newbury.—It is believed that a brainstorm led to the suicide of Miss Mary Peel, the wealthy twenty-two-year-old society girl, who shot herself with her brother's sporting gun. She was a neurotic of such an extreme type that any excitement might send her into a state of despair.

Information gathered suggests that three things—trivial to a normal girl—contributed to Mary Peel's suicide: She was excited by a visit to Russia, the fact that she was a bridesmaid at a fashionable wedding and she was upset at losing sixpence on the golf links and being unable to pay her green fee.

She was the grand-daughter of the first Viscount Peel. Her mother died in 1912, and her father, the Rev. Hon. Maurice Peel, was killed while serving as a chaplain during the war.

House of "Death"

She was adopted by her uncle and aunt, Colonel the Hon. Sidney Peel and Lady Delia Peel.

It was at their home, Little Park, Brimpton, near Newbury, that she committed suicide.

She had been a smiling bridesmaid at the Peterborough wedding of Miss Jane Ferguson and Mr. William Fellowes.

She returned home, and in the dead of night, when the household was sleeping, crept downstairs in her nightdress, found her brother's gun, and shot herself in a cloakroom.

As soon as her death became known in the village, people began to recall previous tragedies that have occurred in the house.

"It is a bad house," was the generally expressed opinion.

"It certainly has been an unlucky house," Rev. T. L. Patton, rector of Brimpton, said. "Mr. Martin, the previous tenant, had only been there a short time when he died. Previously Admiral Sir Arthur Fanshawe occupied the place. Lady Fanshawe died from a most painful disease, and, during Sir Arthur's tenancy, his butler committed suicide there."

'DEAD' WOMAN GREETS UNDERTAKER AT DOOR

Obit. Written, Flowers Sent Following Telegraphed Hoax

Hull.—A cruel hoax on a widow and one of her daughters, which led to an undertaker going to Wembley to make arrangements for the latter's funeral only to find her alive and well, was described by the undertaker, E. W. Annison.

The widow is Mrs. Bramley, of Bilton. She has been ill since her husband died two months ago, and went to Bridlington accompanied by one of her daughters.

After she had gone her son, who had remained alone at Bilton, received a telegram from London, it is stated, purporting to give the news that his other sister, Mrs. Dorothy Hill, of Wembley, had died, and requesting that arrangements should be made for her burial at Bilton.

The son consulted the husband of his other sister at Bridlington, and instructions were given to Mr. Annison's firm.

Mr. Annison said that he left with a hearse and a shell for Wembley, and Mrs. Hill's brother-in-law was to follow.

Mother Griefstricken

Meantime the news of her daughter's supposed death was broken to Mrs. Bramley, and she returned to Bilton almost prostrate with grief.

"When I arrived at Wembley," stated Mr. Annison, "the door was opened by a tall young woman. I sympathized with her, and spoke as tactfully as I could about my visit."

"I do not understand you," said the woman. "Why, I am Mrs. Dorothy Hill."

While they were trying to understand each other, the woman's brother-in-law arrived with a tribute of flowers. He was staggered and Mrs. Hill was just as dumbfounded.

The undertaker had arranged to take measurements and telephone them through to Hull so that the coffin would be ready. Instead he sent a telegram which stated, "Coffin not required."

Mrs. Hill wired to her family, giving them the most joyful news they have had for a long time. Meantime an obituary notice had been sent to a newspaper.

Mrs. Hill is stated to have telephoned to Scotland Yard while Mr. Annison was in her house, and detectives were soon on the scene.

Mrs. Hill, who is 31, has been able to supply them with the name of a man who is believed to have sent the telegram announcing her death.

PROSPECTIVE HEIRESS MUST GO TO PRISON

Girl, Convicted of Theft, Will Receive $200,000

London.—A girl of 16, who will receive $200,000 when she is 21, unsuccessfully appealed at London sessions against a sentence of six months' imprisonment in the second division.

The sentence was passed at the Westminster police court on the girl, Esmie Mary Dorothy Sibley, for obtaining by false pretences a yard of tweed, a bottle of gin, cut flowers, two pairs of hose, a set of linen mats and two bottles of perfume and attempting to obtain by false pretences two bottles of sherry.

During the police court hearing counsel said the girl was a ward in

DAN CUPID USES POST AND CABLE

Man in Shanghai Woos and Wins English Girl

Princes Riseborough.—They began their courtship by post just over three years ago—an Englishman in far-off Shanghai and a girl in England.

They saw each other for the first time when he came home on leave recently. Now they are married.

Three years ago a friend showed Stanley Cummins, a policeman in Shanghai, a picture of Miss Mary Rogers, of Queen's Rd. Mr. Cummins wrote to her. She wrote back. And from that time they corresponded regularly.

When Mr. Cummins' leave fell due recently he cabled a proposal of marriage. Miss Rogers cabled back "Yes."

MOTORISTS FORGET HORNS FOR A NIGHT

Quiet Reigns as Drivers, With Odd Exception, Obey "Hootless" Order

London.—Every built-up area in Great Britain became a "silence zone" one night recently, when the minister of transport's order forbidding the use of motor-horns between 11.30 p.m. and 7 a.m. came into effect.

The extension to the whole of the country follows the successful experiment in London inaugurated during August.

Built-up areas consist of roads on which a system of street lamps placed not more than 200 yards apart is provided.

Reports from newspaper correspondents in many parts of the country showed that practically everywhere the new regulation was observed.

Motorists were not only silent (with one or two exceptions), but proceeded with great caution. A few typical examples of how the order was observed:

Oxford—Not a single instance of hooting, although traffic was busy.

At Carfax just before 11.30 one motorist hooted loudly — perhaps for fun.

Bath—A complete success. Long before 11.30 p.m. hooters ceased to be sounded.

The police kept observations, and these will be tabulated. Offenders will receive a warning, and flagrant disobedience will lead to prosecution.

Exeter—All motorists observed the regulations.

Brighton and Hove—From 10.30 p.m. onwards there was scarcely a hoot, and when "zero" hour came there were no hoots at all except one—when a pedestrian stepped off the curb in front of a car.

Bristol—A motor horn broke the silence at 11.32 p.m. The driver was stopped by a policeman and cautioned. Other cars were silent.

Gloucester—Not a single horn was heard; general tendency to change to lower gear at corners.

Maidenhead—Horns were sounded very loudly as a salute to the new regulations. The regulation is regarded as a joke.

Deal.—A married woman who could not swim a stroke saved the adopted daughter of her mother from drowning here.

The child recovered. Her first words to her mother were: "Where is my spade and pail? Have they been lost in the naughty sea?"

GIRL HAS 67 SHEEP KNOWS ALL BY BLEAT

Everywhere That Eileen Goes, Favorite Lamb Is Sure To Follow

Hereford.—Miss Eileen Rossiter of Glen Alva, Ewyas Harold, has established a flock of registered Clun Forest sheep and in a few years has made such a name for herself that she is regarded as an authority and has been called on to act as judge at a show.

She bought her first registered Cluns when she was 16, began showing when she was 18, and now has a flock of 67 pedigree animals, including important prize-winners. She does all the work without help, including buying and selling, lambing down the ewes and clipping and preparing the animals for shows.

A lamb that she bred won the first prize at the Royal Show for T. E. Gwillim of Ffostill, near Talgarth, and at the Craven Arms Show Miss Rossiter gained the championship with her lamb, Glen Delight, the Royal winner being reserve.

Miss Rossiter wears shorts when she is working with her sheep, because, she says, "they are much more convenient and very much more comfortable."

One yearling, a particular favorite, which Miss Rossiter has refused to sell time after time, follows her about like a dog.

She knows all her sheep so well that she can even recognize them by their voices. When she calls they come scampering to her.

"The only thing I dislike," Miss Rossiter told a reporter, "is that I cannot keep all my sheep. We get so fond of each other that I hate to part with any of them. But I went into sheep-breeding as a business and, of course, they have to go. People tell me they cannot understand why I think so much of my sheep, because they are such silly animals. Actually, sheep are not silly. Well-bred sheep seem to have more intelligence than many human beings."

SPEED UP AIR-MAIL BY USE OF AUTOGIRO

Post-Office to Build Aerodrome on Roof of Own Building

London.—The post-office, assisted by engineering specialists, is planning to build London's first city aerodrome.

Preliminary details are now being gone into for a roof-top landing ground over the big sorting centre at Mount Pleasant, E.C.

The plans follow G.P.O. experiments with an autogiro over Mount Pleasant early last month.

Very soon the post-office will have to extend the floor space of Mount Pleasant and the only way is upwards.

The roof-top of the new storey will bring the landing-ground well above the roof-tops of surrounding buildings and will provide an area of 100 yards square—plenty of room for the operation of the modern type of autogiro.

The plans are part of the big post-office scheme to cut out the enormous waste of time in mails being sent from the centre of London by road to the nearest aerodrome.

By G.P.O. van the mails take about an hour. By autogiro the journey can be covered in ten minutes.

Autogiro experts have gone carefully into the question of danger to surrounding buildings and they are convinced that, operated under strictly controlled conditions, the possibility of an accident is remote.

GIVES WIFE ISLAND AS BIRTHDAY 'GIFT'

Steel Magnate Buys Former Retreat of Monks

Pembroke.—L. D. Whitehead, the Monmouthshire steel magnate, has bought a 600-acre island off the southwest coast of Wales as a birthday gift for his wife.

"It is the Isle of Ramsey—"The Isle of the 20,000 Saints." Only two people live on it, a farmer and his mother.

A thousand years ago the isle was inhabited by large numbers of monks. Now it is to be preserved as a bird sanctuary.

MONSTERS IN PACIFIC?

Zane Grey Estimates "Creature" To Be 50 Feet Long

Wellington. — Passengers in the liner Maunganui, which arrived here from San Francisco, said the ship had twice struck objects which were believed to be marine monsters.

Zane Grey, the novelist, estimated that one of the creatures was about 50 feet long and 10 feet across the nose. The Maunganui had to go astern to free itself from the carcass, which slid down into the depths.

'NOTHING TO LIVE FOR' GIRL WRITES IN BLOOD

Message Scrawled on Wall Near Suicide's Body

Woking.—"Nothing to live for" were the words, scrawled in blood, found on the wall of a waitingroom at the station.

Lying on the floor was the body of Anne Shippey, a 21-year-old nurse, of Brindoyer, Horsell Birch. By her side was a short sharp-pointed table knofe.

The girl's throat was cut, and it is thought that she wrote the words before collapsing. The words "to live" were smudged and almost unreadable.

SHEFFIELD BARS SUNDAY GOLF

Sheffield, Eng. — City council, for the fifth time in a few years, has voted against allowing Sunday golf on the municipal golf courses.

ANGRY LIONS TRY TO CLAW PARACHUTIST ON TOP OF DEN

Airman, Saved, Murmurs "Gee Whiz," Asks to See Monkeys

KEEPER TO RESCUE

Surrey. — Roaring angry lions sprang to meet a London parachutist who fell on top of their cage at Chessington zoo.

Scores of horrified visitors stood before the cage, powerless to help him as he sprawled across the steel bars through which the bellowing lions tried to thrust their claws at every leap.

Finally, the lions' trainer, Hans Brick, entered the cage and kept the beasts at bay in a corner while the parachutist reached safety.

Ben H. Turner of New Malden was the parachutist.

He had jumped from an aeroplane flying over a new landing-ground at Leatherhead, adjoining the zoo, and hoped to be the first person to land by parachute on the new ground. Instead, he was the first person to drop on a lions' den.

As he fell on the cage his parachute apparatus became entangled with the bars.

He could not reach a place of safety without exposing himself still more to the risk of coming within range of the claws of the lions, which had not been fed.

Fearing he might stumble nearer the animals, he remained perfectly still at the highest point of the cage, where the bars were too close together to allow the clutching paws to penetrate, until help arrived.

Held Beasts At Bay

A ladder was brought for him to reach the ground, while the trainer kept the beasts in a far corner.

A member of the zoo staff said: "Several of us thought the parachute was missing the field and was coming over the zoo, and we were watching him closely. When he landed on top of the lions' cage we rushed to the spot and saw the lions attempting to reach him through the top of the bars. It was fortunate for Mr. Turner that the keeper was near. No one else would have dared to enter the cage."

Another witness said: "The lions were leaping high into the air and dashing their paws against the top of the cage. Two women could not stand the sight and were led away to another part of the grounds."

When Mr. Turner's feet touched the ground he had a final look at the lions, murmured, "Gee whizz!" and asked to be shown the monkeys.

LOVERS "MAKE UP" AFTER 50 YEARS

Engaged Couple, Who Drifted Apart, Are Wed

Wrentham. — Sweethearts who broke off their engagement fifty years ago have just been married. The bridegroom, John Hall, a farm laborer, aged 72; his bride, Mrs. Reeves, of Croydon, aged 70.

In those far-off days the two courted for five years, but they drifted apart because Mr. Hall did not want to leave his native village and his fiancee wanted "to see the world."

Mr. Hall has been married twice before; Mrs. Reeves once.

MAN HAS 22 ALIASES

Scotland Yard Seeks Self-styled "Captain"

London.—Scotland Yard last night began a great hunt for the man with 22 aliases.

Posing as Commander Burgess, Captain Lewis, Captain Crawley and various other people, he has, in London and the provinces, swindled the public out of thousands of pounds through bogus offers of employment and through arranging the purchase and sale of motor cars.

IDEAL BUTLER SERVES ONE FAMILY 70 YEARS

Active at 94, He "Buttles" From Early Till Late

Windsor.—The "ideal butler" looks the part. He will be 94, "if God spares me," he says, next month, and for nearly 70 years he has been with the family of Lady Edward Spencer-Churchill.

He has just gained for his employer the Daily Express prize for the ideal servant.

He does not wish his name to be disclosed. He has nieces. One is a clergyman's wife, others are tutors.

"There is nothing dishonorable in being a butler to a splendid family," he says, "but perhaps my nieces would not like it to be known that their uncle is a servant."

He has snow-white hair—what is left of it—and there is white hair round his wrinkled chin. He is bent, but active. He gets up at 8 o'clock in the morning; seldom retires before 11 o'clock.

QUIZ CANADIAN DOCTOR ON HIS QUALIFICATION

Certified Child Died From Mumps—Did Not Suspect Diphtheria

Llanelly (Carmarthenshire). — A doctor—said to be a Canadian—who certified that a child suffering from diphtheria died from mumps and chickenpox, was asked about his degree, at the inquest.

Edward Hopkins, a tin worker, said that after Dr. Manning Smith had certified that his son, Dennis, died from mumps, he insisted on a post-mortem examination.

Dr. Manning Smith said he did not suspect diphtheria, but was now prepared to accept it as the finding of the autopsy.

Answering Rowe Harding, who represented a group of Llanelly doctors, Dr. Smith said he held a Canadian degree.

Mr. Harding: That has not the same significance as an English degree.

The coroner: We are not here to ventilate quarrels between doctors.

Mr. Harding: We are here to do our duty, and I am going to suggest that the doctor has been guilty of gross negligence.

A. G. Brown (for Dr. Smith): We shall deny that.

Had No Swab

Mr. Harding: This case has taken an unpleasant turn, and I am instructed in the public interest to put these questions.

Dr. Smith said he did not take a swab because he did not have one.

Mr. Harding: Do you think you are justified in setting yourself up as a doctor without even having the ordinary material a doctor should have?

Dr. Smith said he had a swab on the night before the child's death, and he intended to use it on his next visit.

Mr. Harding: Deaths from mumps are practically unknown.

Dr. Smith: Very rare.

Mr. Harding: And within ten days, you have certified two deaths from mumps?

Mr. Brown: This is resolving itself into a vendetta.

Mr. Harding: We are investigating the competence of this man who has come among us.

The coroner: I do not allow speeches here, and I must call the next witness.

Dr. T. I. Williams, who performed the autopsy, said he found no evidence of mumps or chickenpox. Death was due to diphtheria.

The jury returned a verdict that the child died from diphtheria, and added that, in their opinion, the doctor should have exercised greater precautionary measures in diagnosing the case.

GOING TO KISS HIS MOTHER CHILD FINDS HER SHOT DEAD

Believe Unrequited Love Cause of Two Deaths

BARONESS A VICTIM

Cahors.—Unrequited love is believed to have been the cause of a tragedy at the Chateau Aynac, in which one of the victims was a member of a leading French aristocratic family.

She was the Baroness de Seven, daughter of the late Princess Elizabeth de Wagram.

The other victim was Raoul Magnac, an electrician, who is believed to have been an incurable consumptive.

The tragedy was discovered when Guy de Seven, eldest son of the baroness, went to the bedroom to kis shis mother good-morning.

He found her stretched across her bed, a bullet wound in her temple. On the floor was the body of Magnac with a bullet wound in the head and a revolver clutched in his hand.

The three-year-old daughter of the baroness, who slept in the same room, was repeating over and over again: "That man has killed mamma. That man has killed mamma."

Magnac, who was 30 years old, had been in a hospital for treatment for tuberculosis, and it is there that he met the baroness, who was training as an amateur nurse.

When the baroness wanted a radio set installed in the chateau, she remembered Magnac was an electrician, and gave him the job to help him earn his living.

Shots were heard during the night by servants, but as there were men shooting quail nearby no notice was taken of them.

POPES' COACHMAN SERVES 70 YEARS

Retires at 90 After Driving for Five Pontiffs

Rome.—After more than seventy years of service, during which he has driven the coaches of five popes, Rinaldo Jacchini, chief coachman of the Vatican stables, full of memories and years, is to be retired. In a few months he will celebrate his ninetieth birthday and he expects to live to be 100.

The son of a Vatican coachman, Rinaldo entered the service of Pope Pius IX when he was 16 as a postilion. Four years later he became a full-fledged coachman. Among the popes he has served are: Pius IX, Leo XIII, Pius X, Benedict XV and Pius XI.

His first and last masters are the only ones ever to have left the Vatican gardens after they became popes. "They were all kind masters," he recalls, "especially Pope Pius X, who each day after his promenade would say: 'Addio, Rinaldo, grazie.'"

OCCUPANT LEAPS ERE 'PLANE STRIKES WALL

St. Andrews.—Two naval airmen leaped from a blazing aeroplane which crashed into a wall at Kingsbarn. They were Lieutenant Carden and Leading Telegraphist Taylor.

Taylor jumped out just before the aeroplane—a large torpedo bomber—hit the wall. Lieut. Carden struggled clear of the wreckage after the crash, just as flames shot from the petrol tank.

SEEN IN NEWSREEL POLICE ARREST MEN

Visit to Theatre Proves Boon To Searchers For Alleged Swindlers

Madrid.—A news film shown in a cinema has led to the arrest in Italy of two men in connection with a swindle, involving over $200,000, of which the Bank of Spain was the victim.

The fraud was discovered when it was found that five consecutive cheques bearing the signature of a marchioness had been forged and cashed over the counter at the bank.

When the bank sent the marchioness her passbook in the usual way she discovered that she had been debited with the amount of the cheques of which she knew nothing.

An assistant cashier at the bank informed the police that he could recognize the man who had cashed the first cheque.

A detective then accompanied the cashier to the leading Madrid social centres, theatres, cinemas and cabarets in the hope of coming across the man.

Recently, while the cashier was in a Madrid cinema, he suddenly whispered to the detective accompanying him, "There he is!"

The cashier had recognized the man's face among the people appearing in a news film of the Barcelona race course paddock.

After the public show ended, the management was requested to screen the news film again privately, the show being attended by the chief of police and the examining magistrate. The police were struck by the fact that the man recognized by the cashier appeared in the news film, together with a nephew of the marchioness.

The man was also identified by a police inspector as an Italian known to the Spanish police as an undesirable, who was once expelled from the country.

The two men were traced to a Milan hotel, and Spanish detectives flew there and arrested them.

YOUTHS RUN FARM WITH NO ANIMALS

Produce Nut-Flavored Cereal From Huge Wheat Crops

South Creake.—Two young men are running a thousand-acre farm in North Norfolk, on which there are neither horse, cattle, nor sheep.

All their work is done by machinery—and it pays.

There are 650 acres of wheat—an area as large as many Canadian farms. They grow 500 tons of wheat a year.

The farmers are two brothers, S. E. and J. F. [illegible]ley. They come of an engineering family, but, realising that that trade was crowded, they turned to agriculture.

A grain-drying plant which they have erected on the farm can dry two tons of wheat in an hour. It is the only one of its kind in the country, for it uses nothing but dry air.

Then these enterprising engineer farmers decided to make a breakfast cereal with English wheat.

Others said it could not be done. The brothers persevered and found it could—and the cereal has a nutty flavor which has caught on. The capacity of the factory was doubled, and even now the factory works twenty-four hours to the day.

ONCE BEAUTIFUL MANNEQUIN LANGUISHES IN PRISON CELL

Mme. Stavisky, Widow of Arch-Swindler, Longs For Trial

KNITS FOR PITTANCE

Paris.—In a cell of the women's prison of La Petite Roquette sits a woman stitching incessantly.

Once she was one of the loveliest mannequins in Paris. She became one of the most famous beauties in France.

But now she is haggard and worn. Her hands twitch at the sheets which she hems and stitches all day long for sale in the big Paris stores.

High above her head burns a light which is never allowed to go out—such as is usually only in murderers' cells.

Yet this young woman has not been condemned to death. She has not even been convicted of any crime.

For six weary months she has lain in prison waiting for trial.

The woman is Arlette Stavisky, tragic widow of the arch swindler whose frauds nearly ruined France.

She was arrested in March this year and taken from her two little children.

"Papa is in America, and Mama is in hospital with a bad leg," eight-year-old Claude and four-year-old Michelin will tell you. And their devoted old nurse will turn away her head to hide her tears.

Several times Mme. Stavisky has asked to be released on bail or to be brought to trial. Each time her request has been refused.

When first brought to prison Mme. Stavisky was put to work sewing sheets and embroidering pillow cases. She earned sufficient to buy little luxuries from the canteen. But had times have hit prisons just like the outside world. The Paris shops which used to buy up prison productions began to take very little. Arlette Stavisky was taken back to her cell.

She earns almost nothing, and lives on the prison fare given to criminals.

GOLD, HEALTH GONE MAN SHOOTS SELF

London.—A man who made a fortune in gold prospecting in Alaska and Northern Canada, lost half of it in the Wall Street crash in 1931, and when he found he was suffering from an incurable disease came home to England to die, was found shot in his bedroom recently.

He was Charles Banting, of Larch Rd., Cricklewood, N.W.

As a boy of 15 he left England to go prospecting for gold and was extremely lucky, amassing a fortune while in his early 20's.

SHEIK "GRABS" BRIDE FROM DESERT SCHOOL

London.—Fuad Bey Hamza, who negotiated the recent treaty between Ibn Saud and the Yemen, arrived in London recently on honeymoon tour with his beautiful bride of 20.

"I snatched her from school," he said. "She is eager to see the sights of London, such as the Tower."

"Polygamy still prevails in the desert," he said. "It seems natural there, and is sanctioned by law. But I do not follow it myself."

PRINCESS MARINA'S KIN TO RECEIVE FORTUNE

Aunt of Prince George's Fiancee Wins Ten-Year Lawsuit

Belgrade.—An unexpected piece of good fortune has just come to the family of Princess Marina of Greece, whose engagement to Prince George has been announced.

Vast stores of priceless family treasure in gold and silver, saved from Russia after the revolution by General Wrangel's forces, are to be handed back, after ten years of litigation, to their rightful owner, the princess' aunt, Grand Duchess Marie-Gorgievna, whose first husband, the Grand Duke George of Russia, was killed by the Bolsheviats in 1919.

The treasure, which is contained in more than 900 chests, is lying in the strong rooms of the Jugoslav ministry of finance. It includes three iron-bound wooden boxes in which is a unique collection of Russian gold coins loaned before the war by the Grand Duke George, a keen numismatist, for exhibition at the Imperial Romanoff Museum in St. Petersburg (now Petrograd).

A special meeting of the Jugoslav cabinet last month confirmed Grand Duchess Marie's claim, and it only remains now for the state commission controlling White Russian treasure here to carry out the cabinet's decision.

The grand duchess, who is 58, is represented here by Prince Paul of Jugoslavia's physician, Dr. Svetosav Moschanin. She now lives in Rome with her second husband, M. Pericles Joannides, a Greek subject.

She has two daughters, Princess Nina and Princess Xenia, aged 33 and 31. Princess Nina married Prince Paul Tchavtchavadze in London in 1922 and Princess Xenia married William Leeds, an American millionaire, in Paris the previous year.

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

WHEN THE curtain was rung down last evening at Long Branch it finished the racing season in Canada as far as mile tracks are concerned. It was a banner meeting in every respect and as we predicted at the beginning, several track records were broken. Today is a busy day around there with everybody getting away. Some vanning over to Dufferin, some shipping south and some going into winter quarters.

Conny Smythe uncovered a speed merchant at New York last Saturday, when his good Display colt, Direct Hit came down in front in the opening race at Jamaica. Conny also got better than nine to one from the New York bookmakers and no wonder he is going around these days with the smile that won't come off. Much more will be heard from this colt later as he possesses plenty of class.

WHEN THEY open at Dufferin there will be a horse by the name of Newe Alta in one of the races. This one came from Western Canada and has been running on half mile tracks all summer. He is in grand shape and only last Monday at Long Branch finished a bang up second to Our Trouble, and in another jump or two would have been the winner.

Over twenty thousands fans witnessed the closing days racing at Rockingham the other day and under disagreeable weather conditions at that. This near Boston track sure does pack them in. Roy Waldron who used to be a leading trainer on our tracks a couple of years ago is now confining his efforts to tracks around New York. He is still meeting with much success and is planning a winter campaign in Florida. More about his stable later.

Canada's Pro Hockey Future Safe, Says Patrick

Hockey Replacing Other Winter Sports

Canada will never have to take a back seat in professional hockey in the big cities in the United States, according to no less personage than Lester Patrick, himself a Canadian. Patrick has probably done more to put hockey across in the United States than any other single individual. To him hockey is now the major winter sport in the big cities across the border and is replacing other sports as a drawing card.

"BACKBONE OF THE ICE GAME" IN OPINION OF HOCKEY COACH

New York Rangers' Mentor Also Sees Further Gain Across the Line.

LEAFS WELL UP

(By L. S. B. Shapiro, Central Press Canadian Sports Writer.)

NEW YORK, October 11. — The game of professional hockey is getting bigger and bigger with every passing year in United States: the day of fabulous gate receipt and more United States cities in the big leagues is just around the corner. Canada's representation of Toronto and Montreal will never be frozen out by the growth of hockey finance as Ottawa was. Authority for the statement is Lester Patrick, grey-thatched master-mind of New York Rangers, one of the big money teams of all time, and probably the keenest observer of the game that hockey has ever known.

Bun Cook

To be frank, I was just a little worried over Canada's prospects in the bigtime. Both Maroons and Canadiens in Montreal lost money last year; Toronto made money, but has had an amazingly powerful drawing card in its Leafs of recent years; Ottawa was definitely frozen out—it is almost safe to say for all time. If, as is generally admitted, hockey is just beginnig to take hold in the United States, will Toronto and Montreal be able to stay in the same league with such potential moneymakers as teams in New York, Boston, Chicago, Detroit and possibly Philadelphia, with their big arenas and amazing financial resources?

I popped the question to Lester as we sat in his office in Madison Square Garden the other day. He had begun his old sermon about "hockey in the United States has only been scratched on the surface," when I rudely interrupted him.

Hockey Comes Natural.

"I've heard that before, Lester, but if hockey has only been scratched on the surface here, doesn't it seem conceivable that Montreal and Toronto will be frozen out just as Ottawa has been?"

"No." Lester's jaw snapped quickly and he stuck out his lower lip in a fine display of facial emphasis. "Toronto and Montreal will always be in the big time. In the first place, United States franchise holders will never want to lose the international angle to the race. It's too valuable at the box office. Then you've got to figure this: There's a difference between gate receipts and profits. I think it costs us more to operate a club in the States than it does in Toronto and Montreal, and besides, the cost of building a strong team is greater, too. Those Canadian cities are in the heart of hockey production. Good players develop in the same rinks where pro. teams play."

Always Support Winners.

"Toronto ,on the record of its attendance, its handsome rink and its strong team is definitely a big time city as long as hockey flourishes. The French - Canadian team in Montreal has a big enough following to assure it support in any kind of company. The English-speaking element in Montreal has shown that it will support a strong team handsomely. As long as they have a contending team, Maroons have nothing to worry about."

"But I tell you that hockey in the States has merely been scratched on the surface." I mentioned a faint recollection of having heard that remark before, but Lester didn't stop. He just glared. I looked at those broad shoulders, cocked my good ear and listened.

Sunday Hockey in New York.

"Look at what has been done in New York in less than ten years. I'm not sure of the figures, but I think we outdrew boxing by a good margin last season. Take amateur hockey on Sunday afternoons here. Three years ago, if we had a thousand people in the Garden we considered ourselves lucky. Last season we averaged 8,000 people for Sunday afternoon hockey in the Garden. And you must remember this: The great majority of people here have never seen a hockey game. We are getting more new fans every season.

"Other American cities are showing the same development. Take Cleveland and Buffalo. They are big league cities. Pittsburg will probably be back in the league soon, and Philadelphia is still a possibility. I tell you, the game is just beginning here.

"But you needn't worry about Toronto and Montreal. They're the backbone of the game."

The weeping philosopher was an appellation occasionally given to the Greek philosopher Heraclitus.

Record-Breaking Try

NEW YORK, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Luigi Beccali, Italian Olympic champion at 1,500 metres whose effort to lower the world record for that distance at Boston last week failed, is slated for another shot at Bill Bonthron's mark of 3:48 8-10 at the Yankee stadium tomorrow.

Beccali heads a team of 30 Italian athletes which will encounter a picked American squad in an international meet. Because no top-flight opponents could be found to oppose him, Beccali will run from scratch and give handicaps to Bill Ray and John Thompson of Manhattan College and John Grady of Columbia.

TERRIERS TAKE IMPRESSIVE WIN IN SENIOR FINAL

Bill Wilkes Leads Marksmen in Eastern 13-6 Victory Over West.

FOR MANN TROPHY.

BARRIE, Oct. 11. (CP). — The Mann Cup moved from Hamilton to Orillia last night, still out of reach of New Westminster's veteran Salmonbellies. Orillia's Terriers defeated the British Columbia challengers, 13 to 6, here last night for their third straight triumph in the five-game Canadian lacrosse title series.

It was a doughty, dogged brigade that fell before the superior speed and craft of the Eastern champions in the third game, but there wasn't enough all-around wallop in the Salmonbellies' camp to force the series into a fourth game. The Terriers won the first game, 1 to 8, and the second by 19 to 6.

Orillia started fast, and finished faster last night. In between these brilliant scoring streaks they were held even by a grim determined defense that yielded little. The Terriers scored the first four goals of the game and the last three. When it came to defenses, the Eastern titleholders had adequate equipment.

Losers Try Hard

While they were racing triumphantly into a four-goal lead in the opening eight minutes, booming shots on the New Westminster goal to virtually drive away any lingering Western hope of victory, the Salmonbellies were attempting to collect their forces. They finally succeeded, making a battle of it.

TORONTO CLUB GETS 2 PLAYERS

Pitcher Kelly and Infielder Chapman Taken From Southern League.

VIA DRAFT ROUTE.

DURHAM, N.C., Oct. 11. — The drafting season for the Class AA baseball leagues got under way yesterday with Toronto of the International League drawing on the Southern League for two players, Pitcher Harry Kelley of Atlanta and Infielder Calvin Chapman of Memphis.

The announcement was made by headquarters here of the National Association of Professional Baseball Leagues.

Kelley, a veteran who has given a decade of service to the Southern loop, has been one of the league's most dependable pitchers. He won 23 and lost 11 for Memphis and Atlanta during the past season. Chapman, a young infielder, batted .304 for Memphis.

"OBY" O'BRIEN TO TRY OUT FOR PLACE WITH BOSTON

TORONTO, Oct. 11.—Frank 'Oby' O'Brien, smart wingman with West Toronto Nationals seniors of the Ontario Hockey Association and British Consols of the Mercantile League last season, announced yesterday he will try out with Boston Bruins of the National Hockey League at their Quebec training camp this fall. O'Brien will leave for the Bruins' camp early next week. He was rated one of the fastest players in the O.H.A. last winter, weighs 170 pounds and is a left-winger.

STILL AN EXPERT.

KINGSVILLE.—Eighty-one years of life hang lightly on the shoulders of A. E. Pulford of this town. As an example of his "experienced youth," he has recently completed making a farm wagon for James Augustine. The vehicle is all hand carved except the wheel hubs and is of oak. Both men are very proud of the result of Mr. Pulford's work, which shows the experience gained in years in the trade.

BIG TIME HOCKEY PASTIME OPENS 4 WEEKS FROM TO-DAY

Toronto and St. Louis Will be Popular Centres on November 8th.

48 GAMES TO A CLUB

By WALLACE WARD
Canadian Press Sports Writer

MONTREAL, Oct. 11 (C.P.)—Big league hockey will glide smoothly into the major sports spotlight four weeks from to-day. The National Hockey League campaign for the winter opens Nov. 8 in St. Louis and Toronto. The 48-game schedule for each of the nine clubs, three in Canada and six in the United States, was made public here today by Frank Calder, league president.

The Ottawa team of last year appears in new guise, having been bodily transferred to St. Louis. Otherwise the line-up of the major professional circuit remains unchanged. Each club will play 24 games on home ice and 24 away in the long grind towards the league playdowns and the Stanley Cup series for the world championship.

Charting the long schedule which finishes on March 19, 1935, the league governors arranged an attractive introduction for St. Louis fans. The St. Louis club has been allotted three straight home games to start the first National Hockey League season in that city.

The gala opening is set for Thursday night, Nov. 8, when the St. Louis team, resplendent in new uniforms, usher major league hockey into St. Louis with the world champion Chicago Black Hawks as their opponents. Two days later, Saturday night, Nov. 10, St. Louis receive New York Rangers and on the following Tuesday, November 13, they play host to the sturdy Montreal Maroons.

Bruins at Toronto

The season opens in Canada at Toronto on Thursday, Nov. 8, when Boston Bruins, with Frank Patrick replacing Art Ross on the bench, play the Leafs. Toronto fans see another game Saturday night, Nov. 10, when Montreal Canadiens invade Toronto ice. Next night Bruins shift to Detroit for the opening there against the Red Wings.

The Montreal premiere is set for Thursday, Nov. 15, when the Maroons make the long train jump back from St. Louis to meet Chicago Hawks here in the Forum. Toronto Maple Leafs open the New York season the same night against New York Americans in Madison Square Gardens. Boston crowds see their first game Saturday night, Nov. 17, with the St. Louis club as visitors. Meanwhile Detroit Wings face Montreal Canadiens at the Forum here in the French-Canadian club's first home game. Sunday, Nov. 18, the Hawks, Stanley Cup champions, go back to Chicago to receive Toronto Maple Leafs in the first game of the season there. Rangers hold their first home game in New York against St. Louis the same night.

Hallahan-Malone Mooted For Trade

CHICAGO, Oct. 11.—(AP)—Bill Hallahan, who lost a tough decision to "Schoolboy" Rowe in the world series last week, may come to Chicago Cubs from the world champion Cardinals in a deal involving Pat Malone.

Manager Charlie Grimm of the Cubs is eager to obtain a reliable hurler, and Frankie Frisch of the Cardinals is said to have expressed a desire to have Malone in a Cardinal uniform, even to the point of giving up Hallahan.

Malone was on the block before the late season started, but no deal could be arranged. After an indifferent start he finished with a record of 14 victories and seven defeats. However, he was used little during the last month of the season, because, it was said, of a disagreement with Grimm. Hallahan won eight games and lost 12 during the regular season.

FOXX' INJURIES ARE NOT SERIOUS

Baseball Star to Remain in Winnipeg Hospital for Few Days, However.

WINNIPEG, Oct. 11. — Jimmy Foxx, first baseman of the Philadelphia Athletics of the American Baseball League, remained in hospital yesterday and probably will not be released for two or three days.

Foxx, injured in an exhibition game here Monday, was suffering from slight concussion, but was not seriously injured ,his physician said.

Hospital authorities previously had said Foxx had been released and was on his way to Regina to rejoin the other members of the Major League barnstorming team now touring the West.

His physician declared Foxx would rejoin his team.

ANOTHER GRIDIRON DEATH

WAVERLY, Ala., Oct. 11.—(AP)—Woodrow Mooney, aged 18, was dead yesterday of an injury received in a football game between the high school elevens. Mooney's neck was broken when he was tackled by three opposing players.

CENTRAL DRAWS WITH QUEEN MARY

Nieman Was Beat With Shot —Mortimer Gained Equalizer With Penalty.

Yesterday afternoon, Central and Queen Mary battled to a one-all tie in the Public School Soccer League at Nicholls Oval. The result is an excellent criterion of the run of play. Mortimer missed a penalty but made amend in the next effort.

Central Dominates.

Central set a steady pace in the early stages to bombard the Queen Mary citadel, to miss the upright by inches. Queen Mary carried the attack right upon Bartlett's charge who made a spectacular save when Mortimer shot the ball into goal. For a long period Central hovered around the Queen Mary goal to test out the ability of the custodian who had to admit defeat when the ball went in between his arm for a Central count. They still added more vigor to their front attack to confine the activities in Queen Mary territory until the interval. Central 1, Queen Mary 0.

Mortimer Equalizes.

On resuming, Central broke away on the right wing to leave Innes in possession of the ball who made Queen Mary goalie stop a rocket drive on the goal line. Robson, full back, Queen Mary, held the opposition in check with his clever punting and intercepting dangerous raids or coming out of the scrimmages with the ball. From one of his clearances Mortimer outwitted the full backs who were too far up the field. He carried the ball into the goal area where he was brought down in the penalty territory. Mortimer's shot was saved by Bartlett. On the next visit Ascott brought the ball down with his hand in the same place. Mortimer registered with a low grounder. Queen Mary 1, Central 1.

Queen Mary — A. Neiman, goal; J. Robson and S. Botnick, backs; R. Crary, E. Routley, and O. Keller, halves; J. McGregor, C. Nicholls, D. Mortimer, J. Merritt, and E. Hamilton, forwards.

PREXY J. T. BRAUND THANKS MEMBERS FOR CO-OPERATION

Several Important Matters Up For Discussion at Club's Annual Dinner.

SATURDAY BOWLING.

As a fitting conclusion to another successful season, the sixth annual dinner of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club was held last evening in the club house.

While the chief purpose of the dinner was to tie more closely the bonds of goodfellowship and sportsmanship that prevails among the club membership and to present prizes to those who had earned awards in the various club competitions throughout, still the informal meeting that followed was most significant in that it gave another example of how vitally interested the bowlers generally are in the continued success and future progress of the club.

President J. T. Braund was chairman of the dinner and meeting and his request for suggestions brought forth many, which he said would certainly receive the attention of the Board and various club committees.

Approximately 50 men sat down to the splendid dinner provided by the ladies of the club.

In his address, Mr. Braund referred to the death during the year of four most respected membess of the club. He expressed his thanks to the various committees which had all so ably performed their duties and so co-operated in making the season one of the most successful in the club's history. He spoke of the "harmony that prevailed" among the club members throughout the season and the splendid co-operation given by every member.

Reports Read.

Reports of the chairman of committees were presented: Stanley Lowe making the report for the Games' Committee; Robert Hendry for the House and Friday Night Committees; and Cecil Williamson for the Greens' Committee. All these reports were well received and President Braund, B. Chesler, vice-president, and individual members of the club expressed their praise of the great work carried on by the committee chairmen.

The need for continued club loyalty was stressed by J. H. Sedgwick, chairman of the Ladies' Committee. Mr. Sedgwick stated that the ladies had had a most successful year, chiefly because he had let them manage their own affairs and they had done so most capably.

Urges Loyalty.

Some members of the club, Mr. Sedgwick stated, did not understand or fully appreciate the grave responsibilities borne by the club board, and the necessity for care in handling the club's finances. He urged that continued loyalty be tendered the directorate.

Herb Martin, hard-working editor of the club's bowling news which appears daily in The Examiner, made an address in his own inimitable manner in which he stressed the "things I am thankful for." President Braund praised the work of Mr. Martin and Fred Braund for the splendid manner in which they had operated the draw in the club's big open tournament which had attracted 52 rinks from throughout Ontario.

Roy Disney, of Lindsay, but former secretary of the club for several years, expressed his pleasure at being present at the dinner and his warm regard for the club.

W. J. Oke informed the club that Cecil Williamson had planted flowers about the grounds and the "directors never received his bill."

Wants New Time.

John Penrose, one of the oldest bowlers in the city, spoke of the sportsmanship in bowling as played on the club's greens. W. J. Arthur Fair urged that the club should sponsor another municipal vote on Daylight Saving Time.

During the open discussion, views were aired on the desirability of Saturday afternoon bowling, the advisability of purchasing a power roller for the greens, and means of securing some revenue from the club house during the winter.

Prizes were then presented to the various winners. In the following list all winners received silver cups suitably engraved, except those in which other prizes are set forth.

TILDEN PICKS PERRY FOURTH NET RANKINGS

Bunny Austin is Better Player on His Ability, Says U. S. Star.

VON CRAMM IS FIRST.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11. (CP).—There was considerable eyebrow raising in tennis circles to-day following the naming by William Tatum Tilden, 2nd of the world's first 10 racquet wielders with England's Fred Perry no better than fourth on the list.

Fred Perry

It may have been that he had just made what he called the worst crossing he ever had experienced, or it may have been just an old habit of giving the amateur tennis world a tossing around, but as soon as Tilden arrived from Europe yesterday he began shattering a lot of accepted standards.

He was asked if he thought Perry, Davis Cup ace, Wimbledon champion and winner of the United States singles title for the second successive year, was the greatest amateur player in the world.

"On his record, yes; on his ability, no," he said in a positive manner. 'I consider Bunny Austin a better player than Perry. And I think there are two other better—Baron Godfrey Von Cramm of Germany, for one, and Jack Crawford of Australia, for another."

After recovering from this shock the interviewer suggested Tilden rank the world's amateurs, not on their records, but simply on their ability as he viewed it.

"Von Cramm, first; Crawford, second; Austin, third, and Perry, fourth," he said without hesitation. Then he continued: "Sidney Wood, of the United States, fifth; Vivian McGrath, Australia, sixth, and Christian Boussus, France, seventh. How many do you want, 10? All right, Wilmer Allison, United States, eighth; Frank Shields, United States ninth, and Roderick Menzel of Czechoslovakia, tenth, any more?"

That seemed quite enough.

Soccer Notes

The draw for the Father Phalen Charity Cup resulted as follows: Lindsay vs. Packers, on Saturday, October 13; referee, F. Dyer. Caledonians vs. C.G.E., on Saturday, October 20; referee, A. Frick. Final, Saturday, Oct. 27, referee, W. Harrington.

The local secretary has notified the Bay of Quinte league officials that the Canadian General are the Peterborough champions, and that they are willing to play them on Saturday in Trenton for the district championship.

A communication from Deloro executive has intimated that they would not participate in the Charity Cup games. They stated that the roads are unfit to travel upon and would not desire any local team to travel to meet the Smelters.

The local executive has declared the league finished and intimated that the C.G.E. are again champions. All the teams are entitled to the guarantee fee refund of five dollars.

The prizes awarded in the McMaster benefit game were: Sweater, Mrs. C. Hall; J. E. McCusher, pie plate; E. Tice, pipe; E. Rigby, roast; J. O'Brien, 1 lb. tea; A. Wilson, two tickets Capital Theatre; W. Townsley, two tickets Regent Theatre; No. 726, ham.

The Canada Packers are holding a dance in Moose Hall on Tuesday evening, Nov. 6th, for the purpose of raising funds to meet current expenses of the club.

A special meeting of all Caledonian players and executive will be held in Duffus rooms on Friday evening at [illegible] o'clock.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball, Lacrosse, Soccer Softball, Bowling, etc.

By E.A.O.

If all sports in the city were as carefully directed by as enterprising and business-like a group of men as those that direct the affairs of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club and were tendered the same loyal support by members and players, then it might be safely said that the sport millennium had arrived. The bowling club is a credit to the city and its greens and tennis courts form one of the city's chief beauty spots. As J. H. Sedgwick stated last evening in addressing the club's annual dinner: "Our club house and general plant is a dream come true, but it became real only through the hard work and careful planning of our Board of Directors."

* * * * * * *

Despite the heavy financial burden, due to the cost of such a magnificent plant, the club is steadily forging ahead. Its membership is increasing and the city's fame as a bowling centre has spread to all sections of the province. Although the club is feeling the pinch of the depression, as perhaps few other sport organizations in the city have felt it, still its members and executive are not discouraged. During the meeting last night in which discussion was thrown wide open there was no criticism or bickering.

The Y.M.C.A. Swimming Club has been going great guns under the coaching of Ross Thompson, formerly a star member of Toronto Varsity Swimming Club. Much interest has centred around the new kicking boards and with the aid of these devices the swimmers have shown marked improvement. It is the aim of the club to promote swimming generally and also to form a representative team for outside competition. An important meeting in this connection will be held next Monday evening at 7.30 at the "Y", and members interested in swimming are urged to be on hand for the election of an executive.

Rugby fans are going to witness a bargain bill on Saturday when they will be able to see a doubleheader at Riverside Park for the price of one admission. And what a doubleheader! At 1.45 Coach Bamforth's P.C.I. seniors will clash with their chief contenders for honors of their Interscholastic league, the Lindsay Collegiate squad. At 3.30 the fast-stepping Peterborough intermediates will step out upon the gridiron with the tank-like corps of athletes that form the Belleville intermediate rugby squad.

* * * * * * *

Either one of these games would attract a large crowd but placed together on the same bill they should pack Riverside Park. It will be one of the most colorful days of rugby activity seen here in years. The importance of both games to the clubs concerned can not be over-stated. P.C.I. and Lindsay are tied for the leadership of their league with two victories apiece and no defeats. It will be a real testing-time for both fast young squads and Coach Bamforth is bending all his efforts to have his Garnet and Grey gridders right on their mettle and full of dash for the big contest.

* * * * * * *

Everyone knows by this time the titanic struggle the intermediate Petes had in Belleville on Monday with the huge Quinte City squad. With a speedy offensive and a bull-dog defensive the Petes held the steam-roller attacks of the brawny Belleville machine to well-earned 6-6 tie. Since that initial melee the Petes have added more weight to their line and have been practising hard to get even better perfection into their speedy half-line attacks. Hugh Waddell and Bernard Ashmore have been bowling things over in their line-work in practice this week, while Jack Hope's kicking has been sensational. If Hope maintains the kick ability he has shown in practice, he will probably get the call for that duty in Saturday's big game.

* * * * * * *

It was announced today that players on the intermediate team have picked a name for the squad—the Brooks-Carson Beagles. Lou Brooks is the man who made the team possible by the interest and financial support he has given it, while Charlie Carson has worked diligently as manager rounding up players and looking into every other detail.

The P.C.I. Field Day of track and field events for boys and girls are to be held tomorrow afternoon at Exhibition Park. The program has been carefully planned and should attract the interests of spectators. It gets underway sharp at 1.30 and will continue until 5 o'clock. Such field days used to be annual events at P.C.I., but they were discontinued several years. Now that an effort is being made to revive the field day, the loyal support of the student body and citizens generally should be given to make the program a complete success. Two members of the Collegiate staff, Miss D. Brisbin and H. A. Craig, have given much work to the organizing of this sport day.

P. C. I. JUNIORS LOSE EXHIBITION

Lakefield High School Football Squad Triumphs on Local Grounds.

FINAL SCORE 27-4

Wednesday afternoon the Lakefield High School rugby team journeyed to Peterborough and played an exhibition game with the P.C.I. Juniors at Riverside Park. The final score was 27-4 for Lakefield.

The visitors won the toss and kicked off with the wind; P.C.I. returned the ball with some nice field running. The first quarter turned out to be the fastest of the game, with P.C.I. opening the scoring by getting one point on a rouge. Lakefield quickly retaliated and scored a touch. The kick was not converted.

Play in the first half was up and down the field, with P.C.I. making their gains on passes and kicks. Lakefield used their weight to advantage and gained yards on plunges time after time. The score at half time was 16-1 for Lakefield.

Lakefield High School came back in the last half to score on two touches and one convert for 11 points. P.C.I. earned three points in the last quarter by scoring on a drop kick.

The Nichols brothers and White of Lakefield went best for the visitors, making continual gains. For P.C.I., Jopling and Legon showed up well, with Ash, the home kicker, getting away some nice punts which helped considerably. The teams:—

CENTRAL DRAWS WITH QUEEN MARY

Nieman Was Beat With Shot —Mortimer Gained Equalizer With Penalty.

Yesterday afternoon, Central and Queen Mary battled to a one-all tie in the Public School Soccer League at Nicholls Oval. The result is an excellent criterion of the run of play. Mortimer missed a penalty but made amend in the next effort.

Central Dominates.

Central set a steady pace in the early stages to bombard the Queen Mary citadel, to miss the upright by inches, Queen Mary carried the attack right upon Bartlett's charge who made a spectacular save when Mortimer shot the ball into goal. For a long period Central hovered around the Queen Mary goal to test out the ability of the custodian who had to admit defeat when the ball went in between his arm for a Central count. They still added more vigor to their front attack to confine the activities in Queen Mary territory unti the interval. Central 1, Queen Mary 0.

Mortimer Equalizes.

On resuming, Central broke away on the right wing to leave Innes in possession of the ball who made Queen Mary goalie stop a rocket drive on the goal line. Robson, full back, Queen Mary, held the opposition in check with his clever punting and intercepting dangerous raids or coming out of the scrimmages with the ball. From one of his clearances Mortimer outwitted the full backs who were too far up the field. He carried the ball into the goal area where he was brought down in the penalty territory. Mortimer's shot was saved by Bartlett. On the next visit Ascott brought the ball down with his hand in the same place. Mortimer regis'ered with a low grounder. Queen Mary 1, Central 1.

Queen Mary — A. Neiman, goal; J. Robson and S. Botnick, backs; R. Crary, E. Routley, and O. Keller, halves; J. McGregor, C. Nicholls, D. Mortimer, J. Merritt, and E. Hamilton, forwards.

Police Escort Medwick Off Field

Joe Medwick, left fielder of the St. Louis Cardinals, is shown being escorted off the field after his conference with Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw M. Landis during the sixth inning of the seventh and final game of the world's series, played in Detroit. The baseball commissioner saw fit to banish from the game, for the first time in world's series history, a player, that a rioting, pop bottle-throwing crowd might cease its tumult and let the game go on. —Central Press photo.

PREXY J. T. BRAUND THANKS MEMBERS FOR CO-OPERATION

Several Important Matters Up For Discussion at Club's Annual Dinner.

SATURDAY BOWLING.

As a fitting conclusion to another successful season, the sixth annual dinner of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club was held last evening in the club house.

While the chief purpose of the dinner was to tie more closely the bonds of goodfellowship and sportsmanship that prevails among the club membership and to present prizes to those who had earned awards in the various club competitions throughout, still the informal meeting that followed was most significant in that it gave another example of how vitally interested the bowlers generally are in the continued success and future progress of the club.

President J. T. Braund was chairman of the dinner and meeting and his request for suggestions brought forth many, which he said would certainly receive the attention of the Board and various club committees.

Approximately 50 men sat down to the splendid dinner provided by the ladies of the club.

In his address, Mr. Braund referred to the death during the year of four most respected members of the club. He expressed his thanks to the various committees which had all so ably performed their duties and so co-operated in making the season one of the most successful in the club's history. He spoke of the "harmony that prevailed" among the club members throughout the season and the splendid co-operation given by every member.

Reports Read.

Reports of the chairman of committees were presented: Stanley Lowe making the report for the Games' Committee; Robert Hendry for the House and Friday Night Committees; and Cecil Williamson for the Greens' Committee. All these reports were well received and President Braund, B. Chesler, vice-president, and individual members of the club expressed their praise of the great work carried on by the committee chairmen.

The need for continued club loyalty was stressed by J. H. Sedgwick, chairman of the Ladies' Committee. Mr. Sedgwick stated that the ladies had had a most successful year, chiefly because he had let them manage their own affairs and they had done so most capably.

Urges Loyalty.

Some members of the club, Mr. Sedgwick stated, did not understand or fully appreciate the grave responsibilities borne by the club board, and the necessity for care in handling the club's finances. He urged that continued loyalty be tendered the directorate.

Herb Martin, hard-working editor of the club's bowling news which appears daily in The Examiner, made an address in his own inimitable manner in which he stressed the "things I am thankful for." President Braund praised the work of Mr. Martin and Fred Braund for the splendid manner in which they had operated the draw in the club's big open tournament which had attracted 52 rinks from throughout Ontario.

Roy Disney, of Lindsay, but former secretary of the club for several years, expressed his pleasure at being present at the dinner and his warm regard for the club.

W. J. Oke informed the club that Cecil Williamson had planted flowers about the grounds and the "directors never received his bill."

Wants New Time.

John Penrose, one of the oldest bowlers in the city, spoke of the sportsmanship in bowling as played on the club's greens. W. J. Arthur Fair urged that the club should sponsor another municipal vote on Daylight Saving Time.

During the open discussion, views were aired on the desirability of Saturday afternoon bowling, the advisability of purchasing a power roller for the greens, and means of securing some revenue from the club house during the winter.

Prizes were then presented to the various winners. In the following list all winners received silver cups suitably engraved, except those in which other prizes are set forth.

TILDEN PICKS PERRY FOURTH NET RANKINGS

Bunny Austin is Better Player on His Ability, Says U. S. Star.

VON CRAMM IS FIRST.

NEW YORK, Oct. 11. (CP).—There was considerable eyebrow raising in tennis circles to-day following the naming by William Tatum Tilden, 2nd of the world's first 10 racquet wielders with England's Fred Perry no better than fourth on the list.

Fred Perry

It may have been that he had just made what he called the worst crossing he ever had experienced, or it may have been just an old habit of giving the amateur tennis world a tossing around, but as soon as Tilden arrived from Europe yesterday he began shattering a lot of accepted standards.

He was asked if he thought Perry, Davis Cup ace, Wimbledon champion and winner of the United States singles title for the second successive year, was the greatest amateur player in the world.

"On his record, yes; on his ability, no," he said in a positive manner. "I consider Bunny Austin a better player than Perry. And I think there are two other better—Baron Godfrey Von Cramm of Germany, for one, and Jack Crawford of Australia, for another."

After recovering from this shock the interviewer suggested Tilden rank the world's amateurs, not on their records, but simply on their ability as he viewed it.

"Von Cramm, first; Crawford, second; Austin, third, and Perry, fourth," he said without hesitation. Then he continued: "Sidney Wood, of the United States, fifth; Vivian McGrath, Australia, sixth, and Christian Boussus, France, seventh. How many do you want, 10? All right, Wilmer Allison, United States, eighth; Frank Shields, United States ninth, and Roderick Menzel of Czechoslovakia, tenth, any more?"

That seemed quite enough.

The draw for the Father Phalen Charity Cup resulted as follows: Lindsay vs. Packers, on Saturday, October 13; referee, F. Dyer. Caledonians vs. C.G.E., on Saturday, October 20; referee, A. Frick. Final, Saturday, Oct. 27, referee, W. Harrington.

The local secretary has notified the Bay of Quinte league officials that the Canadian General are the Peterborough champions, and that they are willing to play them on Saturday in Trenton for the district championship.

A communication from Deloro executive has intimated that they would not participate in the Charity Cup games. They stated that the roads are unfit to travel upon and would not desire any local team to travel to meet the Smelters.

The local executive has declared the league finished and intimated that the C.G.E. are again champions. All the teams are entitled to the guarantee fee refund of five dollars.

The prizes awarded in the McMaster benefit game were: Sweater, Mrs. C. Hall; J. E. McCusher, pie plate; E. Tice, pipe; E. Rigby, roast; J. O'Brien, 1 lb. tea; A. Wilson, two tickets Capital Theatre; W. Townsley, two tickets Regent Theatre; No. 736, ham.

The Canada Packers are holding a dance in Moose Hall on Tuesday evening, Nov. 6th, for the purpose of raising funds to meet current expenses of the club.

A special meeting of all Caledonian players and executive will be held in Duffus rooms on Friday evening at 8 o'clock.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball, Lacrosse, Soccer Softball, Bowling, etc.

By E.A.O.

If all sports in the city were as carefully directed by as enterprising and business-like a group of men as those that direct the affairs of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club and were tendered the same loyal support by members and players, then it might be safely said that the sport millennium had arrived. The bowling club is a credit to the city and its greens and tennis courts form one of the city's chief beauty spots. As J. H. Sedgwick stated last evening in addressing the club's annual dinner: "Our club house and general plant is a dream come true, but it became real only through the hard work and careful planning of our Board of Directors."

• • • • • •

Despite the heavy financial burden, due to the cost of such a magnificent plant, the club is steadily forging ahead. Its membership is increasing and the city's fame as a bowling centre has spread to all sections of the province. Although the club is feeling the pinch of the depression, as perhaps few other sport organizations in the city have felt it, still its members and executive are not discouraged. During the meeting last night in which discussion was thrown wide open there was no criticism or bickering.

• • • • • •

The Y.M.C.A. Swimming Club has been going great guns under the coaching of Ross Thompson, formerly a star member of Toronto Varsity Swimming Club. Much interest has centred around the new kicking boards and with the aid of these devices the swimmers have shown marked improvement. It is the aim of the club to promote swimming generally and also to form a representative team for outside competition. An important meeting in this connection will be held next Monday evening at 7.30 at the "Y", and members interested in swimming are urged to be on hand for the election of an executive.

Ball fans are promised much entertainment at Bailieboro this Saturday afternoon when the Bailieboro Athletic Association holds its annual baseball tournament. Among the teams competing for the major award are the Cognawagas, Alderville Indian team and the Bailieboro team. Fans will see the former Bailieboro battery of Archie Deyell and Wood in action. The program gets underway at 1.30.

Schoolboy Rowe will join the benedicts today, marrying Edna Mary Skinner, his Arkansas sweetheart, at Detroit. Rowe had a date yesterday with his fiance at the courthouse where they were to seek a special license for the marriage. He was called away to Flint and couldn't keep the appointment, but today the ceremony will take place, court officials putting aside rules that might create a delay.

• • • • • •

Rugby fans are going to witness a bargain bill on Saturday when they will be able to see a doubleheader at Riverside Park for the price of one admission. And what a doubleheader! At 1.45 Coach Bamforth's P.C.I. seniors will clash with their chief contenders for honors of their Interscholastic league, the Lindsay Collegiate squad. At 3.30 the fast-stepping Peterborough intermediates will step out upon the gridiron with the tank-like corps of athletes that form the Belleville intermediate rugby squad.

• • • • • •

Either one of these games would attract a large crowd but placed together on the same bill they should pack Riverside Park. It will be one of the most colorful days of rugby activity seen here in years. The importance of both games to the clubs concerned can not be over-stated. P.C.I. and Lindsay are tied for the leadership of their league with two victories apiece and no defeats. It will be a real testing-time for both fast young squads and Coach Bamforth is bending all his efforts to have his Garnet and Grey gridders right on their mettle and full of dash for the big contest.

• • • • • •

Everyone knows by this time the titanic struggle the intermediate Petes had in Belleville on Monday with the huge Quinte City squad. With a speedy offensive and a bull-dog defensive the Petes held the steam-roller attacks of the brawny Belleville machine to well-earned 6-6 tie. Since that initial melee the Petes have added more weight to their line and have been practising hard to get even better perfection into their speedy half-line attacks. Hugh Waddell and Bernard Ashmore have been bowling things over in their line-work in practice this week, while Jack Hope's kicking has been sensational. If Hope maintains the kick ability he has shown in practice, he will probably get the call for that duty in Saturday's big game.

• • • • • •

It was announced today that players on the intermediate team have picked a name for the squad—the Brooks-Carson Beagles. Lou Brooks is the man who made the team possible by the interest and financial support he has given it, while Charlie Carson has worked diligently as manager rounding up players and looking into every other detail.

• • • • • •

The P.C.I. Field Day of track and field events for boys and girls are to be held tomorrow afternoon at Exhibition Park. The program has been carefully planned and should attract the interests of spectators. It gets underway sharp at 1.30 and will continue until 5 o'clock. Such field days used to be annual events at P.C.I., but they were discontinued several years. Now that an effort is being made to revive the field day, the loyal support of the student body and citizens generally should be given to make the program a complete success. Two members of the Collegiate staff, Miss D. Brisbin and H. A. Craig, have given much work to the organizing of this sport day.

The Eighth Commandment

By NORMA HENDRICKS

CHAPTER 1

The dignified length of University Row stretched out, oppressively quiet in the May sunshine. Though it was just past seven, the sun was already well up and heat lay heavily on the earth, like a smothering hand.

It would be another steaming day, thought Dan McManus as he hurried toward the English House, another day like yesterday when the heat did not lift even during the night that followed. In spite of the fact that he was late and should be hurrying, he stopped for a minute in the shade of one of the tall old trees that bordered the row, and wiped his damp face.

Dan McManus was an old man that morning, and a tired one. There had been no rest for anyone the night before. The earth, and Dan with it, had fretted and turned restlessly through long black hours, sticky and comfortless under the merciless weight of the heat.

When he had managed to sleep he had dreamed, curious involved dreams that made no sense but that left with him their feeling of portent and foreboding, tangled up with the words of the quarrel he had overheard the afternoon before.

Across from him stood the large stone and brick buildings of the university, their straight, harsh lines hidden in jackets of ivy and the heavy spring foliage of tremendous elms. They were all old and had stood there for more than 60 years which is a long time in mid-western Center City.

But the buildings that Dan loved best were the old houses past which he now hurried, houses now the property of the university but built originally as fine residences from which the owners halt moved as the university grew larger and engulfed them. A few of them had been torn down to make way for the medical and law schools.

Dan, was frankly sentimental, something he had brought with him from the old days when he had been a saloon-keeper. Now he was finishing his days as caretaker at the English House, fussy, loyal, and somehow sentimental about these houses where learning dwelt behind broad lawns and looked out from shining windows.

"The Sociology House" he admired because it was one of the family, although he couldn't bother his grizzled gray head about what he meant. "History House" probably ranked next to his own domain in his affections. He approved knights in armor, high-stepping steeds and burnished shields; he'd read several books about them and felt he understood history.

He frowned as he approached the English House, his ruddy face troubled and his faded blue eyes not even observing the tufts of grass springing up between the sidewalk blocks. Dan's relation to the members of the English department, especially the younger men, was close. They would never have thought of calling him a janitor.

He fussed about their offices, scolded them and bullied them because they were "his boys" and told them tall tales of his old saloon. The boys for their part joked with him, bought him tobacco, saved him squirrels or rabbits from their occasional hunting trips and bribed him to tell them his stories. He had no sons.

The quarrel, the shouted threats he had overheard the afternoon before he cleaned the classrooms downstairs alternately enraged him and frightened him.

He was still frowning as he unlocked the front door of the English House and walked through the hall with its fine old staircase leading to the offices on the second floor. Opening the basement door below the staircase with the same key, he disappeared in the rectangle of darkness.

In a few moments, Dan reappeared in the hall and started up the stairs. In one hand he carried a mop, in the other a broom and dust pan and over his shoulder hung a carefully-washed dust-cloth that had once done duty as the left leg of his winter woolens.

He went directly to the back of the hall and began on Dr. Henderson's office. Dan didn't much like that job, so he always did it first. Dr. Henderson, being a precise bachelor, kept everything neatly in its place and there was never any cleaning necessary that you could get your teeth into, the old fellow complained.

A lick and a promise was all it deserved, he said, and a lick and a promise was all it ever got. Mild Dr. Henderson never complained, probably never noticed it.

When the wastebasket was emptied into the large one in the washroom and the desk given a half-hearted swipe with the woolen cloth, Dan was done. He headed down the hall toward the office occupied by the instructors, Jamieson and Reeves. He was frowning again as he unlocked the door and flung it open. He never entered. For an instant he stood there, rooted to the floor, his old eyes gazing strickenly at the thing lying inside. Then he dropped his mop and broom and went clumping down the stairs and out the door.

The university policeman, just starting on his morning rounds across the campus, saw Dan as he stumbled out, his dust cloth floating about his shoulders like an incongruous scarf.

"Callaghan! For God's sake, Callaghan!"

The policeman came up at the double. "Steady, Dan, steady!" he called. "In the devil's name, what's the matter with you?"

"Reeves!" gasped the old man. "He's all bloody and dead." And he pointed back to the house from which he had come.

Callaghan turned and ran inside, with Dan following more slowly. "Up there," the old man directed when they were in the lower hall. Up the staircase dashed Callaghan with Dan at his heels.

At the open doorway the policeman paused for a moment, then quickly entered. Dan, fascinated and a little dazed, came in staring at the body of the man lying before them. Donald Reeves lay on his back, one arm flung out as if he had tried to grasp at something as he fell, the other clutched to his chest and stained with the blood that had poured from his body over his shirt. Near his outstretched hand lay a revolver. His sightless, blue eyes stared in fear and his rather good-looking white face still showed the same emotion.

Carefully avoiding the gun, Callaghan knelt and felt the pulse in the outstretched hand. As he touched the cold wrist, he muttered, "Dead of course," and arose. He looked about, his quick eyes taking in the room. Two desks stood against opposite walls near the windows, which were both open. Cases loaded with books were ranged about the room. A few chairs completed the furnishings.

"Which desk was his?" he asked.

Dan pointed to the one against the east wall on which theme papers were littered as if a man had risen suddenly from his work. The desk lamp was still burning. The swivel chair which ordinarily stood in front of the desk looked as if it had been pushed back violently for it had rolled halfway across the floor. Across the back of it still dangled by one sleeve the coat Reeves had evidently been wearing and had taken off for comfort's sake.

IF YOUR EARS RING WITH HEAD NOISES,

If you have roaring, buzzing noises in your ears, are getting hard of hearing and fear Catarrhal Deafness, go to your druggist and get 1 ounce of Parmint (double strength), and add to it ½ pint of hot water and a little granulated sugar. Take 1 tablespoonful four times a day.

This will often bring quick relief from the distressing head noises. Clogged nostrils should open, breathing become easy and the mucus stop dropping into the throat. It is easy to prepare, costs little, and is pleasant to take. Anyone who has Catarrhal trouble of the ears, is hard of hearing or has head noises should give this prescription a trial.

For Friday, October 12

An interesting day with many intriguing and challenging developments is read from the ruling planetary configurations. The planet of the curious, mysterious, marvelous, radical and strategic is the strongly dominant force, with trends in the direction of conspiracy, subtlety, secrecy and subterfuge and with the mind inclined to the mystical, singular, idealistic, visionary or Utopian.

If It Is Your Brithday

Those whose birthday it is are on the threshold of a very interesting and intriguing year, with much of the curious, mystifying and inexplicable to be encountered in business as well as in the private affiliations. Mergers, rings, secret societies, diplomacy and conspiracies should flourish and contacts with these channels should beget friendships and advantages.

A child born on this day may be gifted with unusual talents of a secret, mysterious or subtle nature—radical, altruistic, idealistic and poetic or romantic rather than practical.

The telegraph wire mileage in the United States represents .34 per cent. of the world's total.

Muscle reading is the intuition of a person's thought by physical contact.

Now Science Explains Why So Many People Past 40

Feel That They're Slipping Losing Their "Grip" on Things

It's Often Nothing More Serious Than a Touch of "Acid Stomach"

HOW TO RELIEVE IT

Many people begin to look back on life when 40 rolls around. They worry. Notice they've lost "snap." Have headaches oftener — Feel "dizzy." Tired and low a lot. Are prone to stomach upsets. They think they're "growing old."

Not at all, usually. Scientists say the cause, in a great many cases, is only this: a tendency to an acid condition of the stomach, perhaps the result of faulty diet. Nothing more.

The thing to do is simply to neutralize excess stomach acids.

When you have one of these acid stomach upsets, all you do is take Phillips' Milk of Magnesia after meals and before going to bed. Soon you feel like another person. Stomach calm. Fewer headaches. And the pep and energy you thought lost, comes back again!

Try this. Take either the familiar liquid "PHILLIPS'" or the new Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets, —convenient to take with you anywhere . . .

Also in Tablet Form: Phillips' Milk of Magnesia Tablets are now on sale at all drug stores everywhere. Each tiny tablet is the equivalent of a teaspoonful of Genuine Phillips' Milk of Magnesia.

JAMES GERAGHTY BAGS LARGE MOOSE ON HUNT

Holidaying at the home of his parents at Oak Bay, Quebec, James W. Geraghty of Fitzpatrick and Geraghty found time during his two-weeks stay in the Maritimes to get in some memorable hunting and fishing trips. Mr. Geraghty, who has recently returned to the city, made the trip by automobile accompanied by Mrs. Geraghty.

Hunting near Bear Mountain Lake in Gaspe County in the range vernacular as the "shick shock" mountains Mr. Geraghty was successful in bagging a fine Moose. While it was by no means the first Moose that has fallen to his gun, he told The Examiner that it was a large animal with a particularly fine pair of antlers that he intends to have mounted and which he brought back here with him.

The "shick shock" mountains, a part of the Appalacian range are stated to be the only mountains in Eastern Canada that are snow-capped the year around. Caribou are plentiful above the timber line.

During a three-day sojourn in the woods, Mr. Geraghty saw four Moose. He also caught a string of speckled trout, describing the trout fishing in that section as being unrivalled anywhere in Canada.

CANADA'S UNSOLVED MYSTERIES

No. 4—Shooting of Police Inspector Joseph Carruthers

By FRED POLAND
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

CALGARY, Oct. 11 (C.P.)—The maddening silence of mystery that settled over suburban Sunalta after the ringing shot that killed Police Inspector Joseph Carruthers has never been really broken. Twice in the last few months there have been whisperings of hopeful clues. They proved either false or fruitless.

In the early morning hours of June 12, 1923, a cruiser car answered a call from south side householder who reported a man had burglarized his home and was still in the neighborhood. Seeing a figure disappear up a lane, the police left the car and began to surround the block.

As Inspector James McDonald turned from his searching one end of the alley, he heard Carruthers cry out "Jimmie! Jimmies!" in a weak voice. He found Carruthers crumpled up on the gravel, flashlight in hand. He had left his revolver in the car. McDonald ran up the lane but there was nothing to be seen or heard and he returned to find his comrade—one of the force's most popular men—dead.

Inspector Carruthers was 46 years old and had been with the Calgary police for 15 years. He was to have been married within less than a month.

Indignation at the shooting was strong. City and Royal Canadian Mounted Police made a thorough search for the murderer. A cordon was thrown around the city and suspects were brought from farther west. It was thought the slayer might have jumped a westbound freight that passed through Sunalta half an hour after the crime was committed. Nothing was ever found of the murderer.

The shot that killed Carruthers was fired from a .32 calibre revolver. The most promising clue was uncovered in Sept., 1933. A revolver of that calibre and said by ballistic experts to be the murderer's gun, was found in the Saskatchewan river below a bridge at Edmonton. The holster, which was cut away to permit firing at short notice, was marked with the name of an Oregon man. Police ran down this clue with no success.

The most startling development in the case in May, 1934, proved a poorly executed hoax. In a ketchup bottle found in the Bow River four miles below Sunalta was a note scribbled on the back of a filing sheet. "I was not very rich," it read, "but I had a passion for gambling. I gambled my last money on the horse races and went broke. Being hungry I was going to rob. While robbing, Carruthers came and I shot him. When I heard he was dead, I ended it in the river. Bill Cresunkals."

The reverse side was marked with three horses, presumably the ones he intended to bet, but investigation showed the sheet contained entries for Arlington track, Chicago, for June 17, four days after the murder was committed. Police declared the whole thing a fake.

Spanish Gov't Employs Autogyros for Mountain Work With Army.

(By Rex Smith)

MADRID, Oct. 11 (AP)—Scenes of horror in the isolated province of Asturias, now the centre of a Red Revolt which has raged for a week, were described to-day in a message from a Spanish correspondence accompanying troops.

The army encountered instances where civil guards had been slain by overpowering forces, the correspondent reported.

More than 1,000 armed rebels attacked the civil guard at Campomanes and 15 guards from Leow who attempted to relieve the post were killed. The civil guard quarters were literally torn to pieces by bullets. Campomanes was retaken by the army Sunday.

Many were slain on both sides and hundreds of cattle in the region were killed by flying bullets. Insurgents were equipped with light artillery.

In one bombardment near Campomanes more than 150 rebels were killed, the newspaper man reported. Vega and Del Ray have just been overcome after a terrific bombardment. An advance from two directions on a Red stronghold at Mieres is now planned.

Using Autogyros

Autogyros are being used for the first time in actual Spanish combat. Two are operating with the army in Asturias on patrol duty and carrying despatches in the mountainous territory.

(A dispatch from Lisbon said the Portuguese Government sent troops to the Spanish border, but the action was not explained. A subversive movement in Portugal was reported to have been stamped out this week.

One of the first of the insurrectionists to go on trial, Captain Jacques Bosch, who commanded Catalonian rebel forces at Barcelona last week, was sentenced to life imprisonment by a court-martial. Scores of other Leftist leaders are to face a court-martial.

Former Premier Manuel Zana and Luis Companys, president of Catalonia, will be brought here with other officers to be tried before the Tribunal of Constitutional Guarantees.

Rifle fire has ceased in Madrid. Reports of a restored order came from nearly every section except the north. A strike is underway at San Sebastian.

TRIAL OPENED OF SEN. LITTLE

Crown Intimates Case Will Stand or Fall on First Charge.

ACCUSED OF FRAUD.

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 11—(CP)—Crown Counsel Norman Newton announced this morning that the Crown would proceed on only the first of seven counts in the indictment against Senator R. S. Little, and his two brothers Arthur of London and Walter of Winnipeg, members of the firm of Robinson Little and Co.

He indicated further that the Crown's case would stand or fall on this single charge.

"When the result of this first charge is known, it will be my duty to consider further action," said Mr. Newton. "I believe, however, that acquittal or conviction on this charge, will dispose of the entire case."

The specific charge on which the trial is proceeding is as follows:

"That Arthur Thomas Little, E. Sidney Little and Walter H. Little, during the years 1926 to 1930 inclusive, conspired together to defraud the shareholders of Robinson Little Company Limited."

The charge was read and each of the three brothers pleaded "not guilty."

Selection of the jury went ahead. Selection of a jury for the Little case was a lengthy proceeding.

Challenges of three defense counsel indicated a desire to have residents of the City of London, rather than those outside the city, on the jury.

Arthur G. Slaught K.C., is acting for Senator R. S. Little, Col. Richard H. Greer, K.C. acts for Walter Little of Winnipeg while W. B. Henderson, K.C., acts for Arthur Little.

$92.25 REALIZED AT FOWL SUPPER

Successful Social Held Thanksgiving Night at Trent River.

TRENT RIVER, Oct. 11.—Ideal weather favored the Annual Fowl Supper and entertainment held Thanksgiving night at the United Church under the auspices of the Ladies' Aid. Three long tables were arranged in the dining hall, seating nearly one hundred; these were filled three times. Abundance of fowl and cold meats and all that goes with it were served by the ladies of the congregation.

The tables were prettily decorated with cut flowers and potted plants.

After the serving of the tables, the crowd repaired to the dining hall, where the following program was given, with Rev. S. A. Kemp as chairman, who gave the opening address: Recitation, "Kittens and Babies", by Miss Irene Wood; reading, "The Saleslady", by Mrs. Percy Locke, of Campbellford; vocal solo, "Three for Jack", Roger McMillan, accompanied by Wesley Wildman on the piano; recitation, "Gentleman Gay", Miss Jean Thompson; vocal duet, "Whispering Hope", Mr. and Mrs. Wesley Wildman, accompanied on the piano by Miss Pleda Wildman; reading, "Thanksgiving Reminder", Mrs. Percy Locke, who returned for a hearty encore with "A Maiden Lady Receives a Proposal"; piano solo', Miss Genevieve Milne; recitation, "The duel", Miss Marion Forsythe, of Havelock; Rev. Mr. McTavish, of Seymour circuit, was called upon for an address and responded by relating a number of amusing stories; piano solo, Wesley Wildman. After the singing of the national anthem, Rev. Mr. McTavish pronounced the Benediction.

The door receipts amounted to $92.25, together with the special Sunday offering of $77, making a total of $169.25. Rev. Mr. Newell, of Hastings United Church, and Rev. Mr. Neal, of Campbellford United Church, attended the fowl supper on Thanksgiving night.

Balkan Upheaval Not Due U.S. Believes

WASHINGTON, Oct. 10 (A.P.).—Anxiety that arose with the first news of the assassinations in Marseille subsided to-day into a general belief that the Balkan powder keg will not explode this time.

Official Washington went sadly through the ritual of condolence on the death of King Alexander of Yugoslavia and Louis Barthou, French Foreign Minister. Social events were cancelled, and President Roosevelt cabled Queen Marie of Yugoslavia that he was "deeply shocked and grieved at the great calamity" that had befallen her house.

Princess Marthe Bibesco of Rumania, who is here for the convention of the Federation Aeronautique Internationale, said the death of the King removed a stabilizing force, a man who stood for peace. She said that the "effect of the King's death may be distressing to Europe."

How do YOU judge the value of soap?

- You can't tell by looks, nor by size or price! How, then, can you tell?
- The surest, safest way to judge good value in soap is by the $5,000 Sunlight Guarantee of Purity.
- To women who know what harsh, impure soaps do to hands and fabrics . . . soap purity such as you find in Sunlight, is a boon.
- Yet because Sunlight is all pure soap it is more economical . . . bar for bar it washes more clothes than common soaps.
- This absolute purity of Sunlight Soap means so much. Sunlight Soap is purposely made to dissolve freely. The pure soapy suds cleanse quickly and thoroughly. Clothes are made snowy. Hands are not roughened or coarsened . . . fabrics are not damaged with injurious chemicals.
- Sunlight's Purity is the standard by which millions of women judge soap — and the number of women who prefer Sunlight is steadily growing.

Child Had Fish Bone In Neck For 7 Years

ST. THOMAS, Ont., Oct. 12 (CP). —Seven years ago a 10 months-old son of H. O. Taylor, former railway police officer, swallowed a fish bone. A week later he developed soreness in the neck, which continued as the years passed despite efforts of doctors to ascertain and remove the cause.

Recently a St. Thomas specialist operated on the lad for a mastoid and a few days afterwards his mother, while cleaning the wound, was startled by a cry of pain from the boy. When she looked at the swab she was using she found on it the fish bone, swallowed seven years ago and about one inch long. The boy's pain has disappeared.

PARIS, October 12. — Police said to-night they believed King Alexander of Yugoslavia was assassinated by order of a European terroristic organization whose goal is the elimination of governmental leaders.

PARIS, October 12 (A P.) —The Surete Nationale announced to-day that two Terrorist suspects, Yaroslav Novak and Ivan Rajtich alias Vladislav Benes, had confessed that they had been sent to France on a secret mission by the Yugoslav organization "Pavcrich," but that they did not know what their mission was.

Rajtich was said by the police to be the man who talked. He is alleged to have told them that he and his friend came to Paris on "blind" orders, and were told they would be met here by others who would give them instructions as to what to do.

The Surete officials said Novak and Rajtich admitted they had shared a hotel room in Paris with Petrus Kalemen, the assassin of King Alexander and Louis Barthou. They said they met Kalemen in Paris.

Rajtich said his false Czechoslovakian passport, which named him "Benes," was delivered to him in Paris by a man he knew only as Serbot, who spoke Serbian and Croatian.

Novak said his passport also was false and confessed that he got it in Zurich on September 28 on the day he crossed the border. It was given him, he said, by a stranger called "Little Hans."

Rajtich confessed, said the Surete, that he and Novak were told that if they got no instructions in Paris to go to Lausanne where they would be met by an agent of the organization.

LATVIA BISHOP IS FOUND SLAIN

Was to Have Testified To-day Against Several Accused of Embezzling.

CHURCH FUNDS.

RIGA, Latvia, Oct. 12 (A.P.). — Dr. Pommer, Archbishop of the Russian Orthodox Church, was found slain in his villa early to-day.

The villa was ablaze when a fire brigade found his body, covered with straw. Dr. Pommer was a strong opponent of Bolshevism. Police have made no arrests in the crime.

The Archbishop, whose full name was Johann Pommer, was to have appeared to-day as chief witness in a suit against several persons accused of embezzling church funds.

Developments are leading authorities to suspect, they said, that the Archbishop was murdered as an act of vengeance in connection with a dispute between him and a number of bishops and the latter's followers.

Several documents were among articles stolen from the house before the fire.

Dr. Pommer was Archbishop of Riga, Primate of Latvia, and as such head of the Latvian Greek Orthodox Church which, however, extends to only about 10 per cent. of the population. Its adherents consist principally of Russians.

Beautiful Home And Grounds Of Children's Shelter

No home in Peterborough cares for as many children as the one here shown. For a number of years it has never had less than seven children, sometimes as many as 26 and can accommodate 27. At present there are 15. The grounds occupy a city block or about two acres. It is the property of the Peterborough Children's Aid Society. Well equipped throughout, the children are given wonderful care by the matron, Mrs. H. W. Nye, and by Mr. Nye. This year the flower beds, under the care of Ald. Walter Stocker, were admired by all who saw them. There is not a better equipped Children's Aid Shelter in the province. Tomorrow is tag day. Help on this good work by as generous a contribution as possible.

BENNETT SAILS WITH SKELTON FOR HOMELAND

Rumors That Ferguson Was turning Also Prove Unfounded.

HAD CREATED FURORE.

LIVERPOOL, Eng., Oct. 12. (C.P. Cable)—Prime Minister R. B. Bennett and Prof. O. D. Skelton sailed for Canada to-day—but not Hon. G. Howard Ferguson, Canadian High Commissioner to London and Conservative party stalwart.

Mr. Ferguson, who returned from a visit to Canada less than two wees ago, travelled from London to Liverpool with the Prime Minister and the under-secretary of state for external affairs, both of whom have been on this side of the Atlantic for several weeks.

The announcement that Mr. Ferguson was returning to the Dominion also, immediately evoking rumors of an early general election in Canada, proved to be founded on a misunderstanding concerning Mr. Ferguson's trip to Liverpool.

Wrong Interpretation

The Press Association, domestic news agency, circulated a despatch that Mr. Ferguson was returning, having wrongly interpreted a rather ambiguously-worded announcement from the Canadian Pacific offices, and this despatch was not corected for many hours.

Meisner Deportation Delayed For Hearing

DETROIT, Oct. 12 (C.P.).—Federal Commissioner Frank Q. Quinn, to-day adjourned the hearing on extradition proceedings against David Meisner, to October 19, on request of the British Vice-Consul, whose attorney said Canada wishes further time to prepare depositions showing Meisner is one of the men sought in connection with the John S. Labatt kidnapping.

Quinn heard reading of an affidavit by A. Rended Stone, British Vice-Consul, which stated that depositions were being taken which within the week would offer sufficient evidence to take Meisner to Canada. Taking of this evidence, the affidavit said, had started on October 11.

The fish, identified as an angler or goose fish, weighed between 40 and 50 pounds.

THREE KILLED IN TRAIN WRECK

Express Sideswipes Derailed Pullman Cars Near Iowa City.

TWO DEAD UNKNOWN.

IOWA CITY, Ia., Oct. 12 (AP)—Three persons were killed, at least six were critically injured and an undetermined number suffered less serious injuries early to-day when a Chicago-bound Rock Island passenger train, No. 14, was derailed six miles east of here and was sideswiped by westbound passenger train No. 23. The dead:

Sam Mason, negro, of Chicago, steward on the dining car of Train No. 14; and unidentified woman and an unidentified man.

All of the dead and injured were riding on Train No. 14, railroad officials said.

All of the injured and the bodies of the three dead were taken to Iowa City hospitals on a hospital train which was dispatched to the scene of the wreck from Iowa City.

Witnesses said that the dining car and two Pullmans of Train 14 were derailed, and that less than a minute afterward, Train 23, hurtling out of the night from the East crashed into the side of the cars.

M. B. Howe of Chicago, a passenger in one of the derailed Pullmans, said panic broke out among the passengers of the derailed train when the westbound passenger crashed into it.

MONTREAL JURY LAYS STABBING TO GIRL DANCER

Coroner Points Out Prisoner Could Have Left When She Went for Knife.

CLAIMS SELF-DEFENCE.

MONTREAL, Oct. 12 (C.P.).—Lillian Morel, alias Dolores Lopes, was to-day found criminally responsible by a coroner's jury for the death of William Owen, bond salesman, who died in her apartment after being wounded by a kitchen knife.

She is to appear later to-day on a manslaughter charge.

Owen died after a doctor had been called by Miss Lopes. In her alleged statement to police, the flame-haired cabaret entertainer had declared Owen had tried to choke her in a drunken rage, and she had struck him with the knife in self-defence.

The coroner stated to the jury that when she went to the kitchen to get the knife, as the alleged confession said, she could as easily have left the apartment.

Medical testimony was given to the jury that there was alcohol in Owen's blood, but little or none in his stomach. Doctors who performed the autopsy expressed the opinion Owen knew what he was doing at the time of the stabbing.

The statement police attributed to Miss Lopes was read to the jury, in which she claimed Owen was a difficult man to handle when he was drinking, and that he had beaten her and choked her in a rage.

After she had called the doctor, the statement said, she had taken Owen's car and in a panic had sought refuge with her aunt in Longueuil, a suburb. On her way there the car had crashed into a tree, and in a semi-dazed condition she had wandered into a field where she was picked up after the police alarm had been sounded.

Teck Hughes Probe Opens On Tuesday

TORONTO, Oct. 12.—(C.P.)—The public inquiry into "Teck-Hughes stock selling" will be opened Tuesday morning, Oct. 16, it was announced to-day by Securities Commissioner J. M. Godfrey.

John R. Stirrett, "temporarily associated with the commission," will serve as counsel for the commissioner, said Mr. Godfrey who announced previously the investigation would be made into allegations that announcement of a reduced dividend had been withheld to give "insiders a chance to sell the stock short."

PROVINCE SURE TO HAVE DEFICIT SAYS HEPBURN

But How Much It Will Be Not Even the Auditors Know.

MANY HENRY BILLS.

Claims Ontario Will be Out $4,00,000 if Only $1,000,000 Allowed on Relief.

TORONTO, Oct. 12 (C.P.)—Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn, said today, "There is no question" about Ontario showing a deficit at the end of its fiscal year, Oct. 31, but he added that not even the auditors had any idea of what it would amount to.

"There is no doubt that there will be a deficit," he said, when asked about a report that the province would show a debit of $5,000,000. "We are struggling along with the bills plied up by the Henry Government which deliberately failed to make provision for necessary services."

"They did some forecasting with respect to a surplus, but they didn't deliver the goods," said the Premier. "There was a deliberate attempt made by them to mislead the people of the province by failing to provide for ordinary maintenance of their departments."

The Premier called in the press following a Cabinet Council meeting and brought in members of the Cabinet with him. They all stood around the Premier's office and were prepared, Mr. Hepburn said, to reply to all questions from the press.

$1,000,000 Share.

The Premier was asked regarding reports that $1,000,000 was awaiting the Province of Ontario at Ottawa for a public works program.

"If that is the share the Federal Government is going to pay of the works program instituted by the last government, then it means we are out about $4,000,000 because Mr. Henry failed to get a signed agreement that the Federal Government

RANSOM PAID FOR MRS. STOLL

Family Awaits Instructions—Husband and Sheriff Chase Suspect South.

WIFE BELIEVED SEEN.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 12.—(AP) —The ransom for Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll has been paid and the family is awaiting instructions, was the announcement today from Berry V. Stoll, husband of the young society matron who was snatched from their fashionable country home near here late yesterday.

The statement given by an attorney representing the Stoll family at a conference with newspapermen said:

"We have carefully followed instructions, met all ransom requirements, and are waiting fulfillment of promises.

The parties may act freely without fear or hindrance.

"Berry V. Stoll."

Chosen Suspect

In a furious chase after an automobile reported to have contained a woman with a bandaged head, Stoll dashed southward through Kentucky today.

Highways throughout Central and Southern Kentucky were blocked by sheriffs and other officers on a request made at Hodgenville by a detective who accompanied Stoll.

The pair who had left the Stoll home in Louisville drove through Hodgenville about 11:15 a.m., heading towards Elizabethtown, after the detective had requested the sheriff at Hodgenville to telephone to sheriffs in nearby counties to watch for the mysterious machine.

It was reported to have been driven by a man and to have had a woman passenger. The description of her head being bandaged apparently made the wealthy young oil company executive almost certain it was his wife, since her maid, Ann Woolet, had declared that the unidentified man who snatched Mrs. Stoll from her home and left a $50,000 ransom demand, had slugged her on the head with an iron pipe until she bled.

Pig Snatchers

MILTON, N.H., Oct. 12 (CP) —This little piggy went—nobody knows where.

The pig, pet of Farmer Walt Cheney, was cavorting in the yard when strangers drove up and asked for some water for their car. Cheney gave them the water and went into the house. As he closed the door, he heard a squeal and turned. Both the pig and the strangers were gone.

HALIFAX POLICE HUNT UNKNOWN MAN IN TRAGEDY

Taxi Driver Tells of Driving Passenger Near Scene Before Explosion.

BELIEVED FOREIGNER.

HALIFAX, Oct. 12 (C.P.). — An unknown man was sought by police for questioning to-day after a taximan had told of dropping a passenger near Daniel Dudus' north-end home just before a terrific explosion shattered the building early yesterday morning and hurled six persons to death in burning wreckage.

The story added a new aspect of mystery to the investigation as police, baffled in their efforts to learn the source of the explosion after a full day and night of enquiry, turned to a scruting of reports that Dudus had been the object of vague threats in the last few days.

The man whom the taximan drove to the corner of Brunswick and North Streets at three o'clock yesterday morning was described as of foreign extraction. Two houses away from the Dudus home he left the automobile and walked away, according to the driver, whose name was not disclosed.

The taximan said he drove on for a few blocks and then entered a cafe for a cup of coffee. He was scarcely seated when the roaring blast rocked the neighborhood.

Checking Story

Police checked up on the story to-day as a possible important factor in their investigation, meanwhile continuing their question of neighbors and others who might be able to throw light on the cause of the tragedy.

Dudus, after questioning that began five hours after the fire and lasted until three o'clock this morning was released by police to-day after they had checked up on his movements through Nova Scotia's Annapolis Valley Wednesday.

"Yes, I have enemies and it would be hard to say what anyone would do these days," Dudus said as he left the police station. He was going to the morgue, where lay the bodies of his wife and their two young children with the wife and two children of Robert Cruse.

He was still unnerved, shaken by the tragedy that wiped out his whole family except himself and his seven year old daughter Edna. "I wouldn't care if I had lost every cent I had in the world if my wife and children were safe" he said, in a broken voice.

"If I had only been in there with them," he exclaimed.

"I have nothing now—my family, my home, all gone." He drew a few crumpled bills from his pocket. "This is all I have in the world."

Before his release, a friend of Dudus, Bert Brian, had told of a premonition of trouble felt by the owner of the building before the explosion.

POST WITH PROVINCE FOR EARL HUTCHINSON

TORONTO, Oct. 12.—(CP)—Earl Hutchinson, who resigned as a member of the Ontario Legislature for Kenora to make way for Hon. Peter Heenan's appointment to the cabinet, has "been asked to accept a post with the province," Premier Mitchell S. Hepburn said today.

At present, he said, the former member was temporarily employed in the labor department on "statistical work and proposed legislation."

As far as he was aware no consideration had been given to a reported appointment for Benian Bowman, Minister of Lands and Forests in the Farmer government of Hon. E. C. Drury.

POLICE, CITIZENS UNITE TO CHASE PAIR FOR MILES

Shots Exchanged Without Effect as Gap is Closed—Flight Continues.

$2,000 CASH AT STAKE.

Bandits, Surprise Manager Alone at Noon—12 Miles N. W. Kitchener.

KITCHENER, Ont., October 12 (C.P.). — The Bank of Commerce at St. Clements, 12 miles from here, was robbed of approximately $2,000 at 11.45 here to-day by two armed bandits who came from the direction of Kitchener in a light colored sedan and disappeared in the direction of Linwood, which is on the road to Listowel. The car was later observed going through Listowel.

The car engine was left running outside the bank as the two occupants entered. Ed. Jordan, the manager, a lone employee of the branch, was approached, and finally the two men edged towards the side door of the teller's cage. Suddenly the leader produced a gun, and Jordan was curtly told that they "meant business." He was ordered to lie flat on the floor at the point of a gun in the hands of the leader, and the two men then cleaned out the till of cash, roughly estimated at $200.

The robbers approached the safe, and finding it locked ordered Jordan to get up and unlock it.

Keeping him covered they scooped up $1,800 and jumping into the car disappeared in the direction of Linwood.

Chase Starts.

After leaving St. Clements the bandits' car was sighted at Linwood, north of where the robberiy was committed. Two Linwood men, Walter Reiber and Edgar Wilker, started after them, chasing them to the north-east as far as Hesson, 10 or 12 miles away and then back to Wallenstein, six miles east of Linwood and from that point north through Yatton into Alma. Police meanwhile had joined in the pursuit.

The fleeing bandits halted the hectic chase for a few minutes to exchange shots with their pursuers.

SENATOR LITTLE, BROTHERS FREED

Judge Takes Case of Fraud From Jury After Day and Half Evidence.

DISMSSES CHARGE.

LONDON, Ont., Oct. 12 (CP) — Senator E. S. Little and his brothers, Walter and Arthur, today were discharged from trial on charges of conspiracy to defraud shareholders of the Robinson Little Company of which they were formerly directors.

The charge against the three brothers was that from 1918 to 1930, inclusive, they conspired together to defraud shareholders of the company of $350,000.

The Crown said six other charges including theft would be left in abeyance and that its case would stand or fall on the conspiracy charge.

At the conclusion of the evidence which had taken a day and a half to present, Mr. Justice J. C. Makins took the trial out of the hands of the jury and dismissed the charge.

He remarkd ethrough the "1930's the Littles had available $1,000,000 of profits on common stock which they could have split between them.

Preferred to Borrow

"Instead of this," he said, "they borrowed—rather irregularly, but not criminally.

"I can see no evidence of conspiracy. I have no alternative but to take the case from the jury and dismiss the charge."

Dealing with the matter of the six remaining counts of the original indictment, which he had already intimated would not likely be pressed, Crown Counsel Norman Newton stated that this would be referred to the Attorney-General. In the meanwhile, the three Little brothers remain on their own recognizance to appear, possibly later during this session, pending the disposition of these other charges.

CAMPBELL[illegible]CE RETIRE TAKE TO LET FAMILY MAKE CONTACT

Relatives Hold $50,000 Ransom Ready—Victim's Safety First.

SPECIAL 'PHONE LINE.

Federal Men Continue on Trail — Clue in Tennessee.

LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 12 — (AP) — The fate of Mrs. Alice Stoll, kidnapped two days ago, became today a matter of increased concern as her abductor, demanding a reported $50,000 ransom, continued his ominous silence.

The society matron's husband, Berry V. Stoll, wealthy and prominent, remained with members of the family close to the telephone at the Stoll home, waiting for some word from the kidnapper.

To make a contact easier, all officers were withdrawn from the vicinity of the Stoll residence last night. It was emphasized by spokesmen for Stoll and for the police that Mrs. Stoll's safety was the primary consideration.

The telephone line was kept clear affording an immediate and uninterrupted avenue of approach to Stoll by the kidnapper. Federal men, headed by Harold Nathan, assistant director of the division of investigation of the Department of Justice, are directing the law's activities. Both city and state officers, according to Mayor Miller, feel that the federal men are best qualified by experience to accomplish "the primary object" — the safe return of Mrs. Stoll.

Hunt Goes On

Withdrawal of officers from the Stoll home did not mean that there was any abandonment of the hunt for the kidnapper. There were some signs that the case was approaching a climax.

An authoritative report from Nashville, Tenn., said that a man living there had been designated in the kidnapper's note as an acceptable intermediary, and that he was ready to act. His name was not disclosed.

A possibility that the 36-year-old matron had been taken into Tennessee was seen in the story of William Crump, of Smith's Grove, Ky. Crump told of having seen at Little Knob, Ky., an automobile in which was a woman resembling Mrs. Stoll.

He noted the license plate number. Police said the plates had been issued for a car smaller than the one Crump described.

First Picture Of Dead King Resting In State

Rushed by plane to London from Marseille and radioed to New York City, this exclusive picture shows the assassinated Yugoslavian monarch, Alexander I, lying in state in the dim light of flickering candles guarded by a French officer with a drawn sword. The late king is dressed in the uniform in which he was shot, with a great coat over his feet, a Yugoslavian flag across the middle of his body, an admiral's hat on his knees, while his dead fingers clasp a sword hilt. A few hours later, Alexander's body was taken aboard the Yugoslavian cruiser on which he had arrived in Marseille, to be returned to his homeland, his peace mission abruptly ended.

LIVESTOCK PRODUCE AND CHEESE QUOTES

WEEKLY LIVESTOCK REVIEW

TORONTO, Oct. 12. — (C.P.)— Hog prices climbed into higher territory on the Toronto livestock market this week. A light run shot prices up 35 cents on Tuesday and the gain was extended to 50 cents by the close of trading Thursday.

Lamb prices followed hogs upward while sheep held unchanged for the week. Cattle prices showed no change of any account. Calf prices generally held steady.

Supplies of all classes of livestock were lighter than for the previous week, owing to the Thanksgiving Day holiday money. The cattle run was down about 300 head and included 1,400 westerners. The holdover was 300 head, about the same as was carried over last week. Buyers picked out the best of the cattle Tuesday and trade was rather draggy on the comon to medium quality offered for the balance of the week.

Common to medium weighty steers sold at $3.00 to $4.50 and a few choice heavies brought $5.20 to $6.00. Butcher cattle sold mostly between $2.50 and $4.00 with tops at $4.25 to $4.50. Fed calves, ranging medium to good, brought $4.50 to $6.00 and a few choice made $6.50 to $7.00. Butcher cows were steady at $1.75 to $3.65, while canners and cutters sold at $1.00 to $1.50.

Good heavy bulls sold for export at $2.25 to $2.75. Bolognas went to $1.75 to $2.00. While the store cattle movement was as good as for last week, the supply was heavier and some were left unsold. Good stockers and feeders sold at $2.75 to $3.00 with a few picked lots up to $3.25. Lighter stockers sold as low as $2.00 per cwt. Milkers and springers were firm at $40 to $47 for the best.

Calf receipts of 2,100 head were down sharply 1,000 head. Offerings of heavy Western calves were lighter than for the previous week. Prices on vealers were steady at $5.50 to $7.00 for choice, with commons downward to $4.00. Heavy calves sold at $2.50 to $3.50, and Eastern grasser at $2.00 to $3.50.

Hog receipts shrank 1,100 from last week's figure, at 2,400 head. The light run sent prices up 35 cents on Tuesday and the gain amounted to 50 cents by the close. Bacons sold on Thursday at $7.15 f.o.b., at $7.50 off trucks, and at $7.90 weighed off cars. Selects were $1.00 per head premium.

Sheep and lamb receipts at 6,300 showed a drop of 400 for the week. Lambs gained 25 cents at the opening on Tuesday despite a heavy week-end pileup. They were stronger again at the close. Good ewes and wethers sold generally at $6.00 per cwt., with a few picked loads at $6.25. Culls, bucks and heavies sold at $1.00 per cwt. discount. Show lambs from the Middleville Lamb Fair sold at $6.50 for top grades and at $6.50 for others with two champions at $10.00. Sheep were unchanged for the week at $1.00 to $3.00 per cwt., according to quality.

TORONTO CHEESE

TORONTO, Oct. 12 (C.P.)—The Toronto Wholesale Cheese Market was steady to-day with dealers buying large, colored, paraffined and government grades at 10¼c.

Wholesalers offered cheese to retailers at the following prices: New large, 11¼c; twins, 11¼c; triplets 11¦c. Old, large, 17c; twins, 17¼c; 10½c. Old, large, 17c; twins, 17¼c triplets, 17½c. Medium, large, 15c; twins, 15¼c; triplets, 15½c.

U. K. CATTLE

OTTAWA, October 12 (C.P.). — Canadian cattle from the s.s. Vardulia were landed in good condition at Birkenhead this week, according to a cable to the Department of Agriculture. The shipment consisted mainly of rough cattle with a few better class steers. The cows and heifers, however, were of poorer quality than recent shipments. No sales had been made at time of cabling.

The cattle from the s.s. Manchester Citizen were sold over the week-end, making the equivalent of 12 to 13¼ cents per pound, dressed weight for Easterns and 11 to 12¼ cents for Westerns. Trade was slow.

COMMUNION IS GIVEN 150,000

Great Open Air Ceremony Starts in Buenos Aires at Midnight.

FOUR ALTARS.

BUENOS AIRES, Oct. 12. (CP). More than 150,000 men, participants in the thirty-second International Eucharistic Congress, received communion this morning in a great open air ceremony which started in the Plaza Mayo at midnight.

Eugenio Cardinal Pacelli, Vatican secretary of state and Papal legate to the congress, with five other Cardinals participated in the ceremony in the brilliantly illuminated square, traditional centre of Argentine religious and governmental activities.

President Augustin Justo and his cabinet marched in the procession down the wide, mile-long Avenida de Mayo from the Plaza Del Congresso which preceded the communion service.

The huge Plaza de Mayo, with four altars set up at the Pyramid de Mayo, monument to Argentina's independence, was alive with decorations, the blue and white Argentine colors and yellow and white Papal banners predominating.

Jean de Lamarck, French zoologist, was regarded as the greatest of the period between Linnaeus and Cuvier.

SPANISH PLANES PLAYING HAVOC AMONG REBELS

Over 100 Slain as Government Craft Bombard Troop Trains.

FORTS WIPED OUT.

(By REX SMITH)

MADRID, Oct. 12. (AP).—Spain's air attack on rebels in the mountainous province of Asturias was described as highly successful in dispatches to-day from the north.

A troop train carrying insurgent reinforcements to Mieres and Obiedo, among the last rebel strongholds, was destroyed by bombs from the government planes.

Madrid was informed there were 100 dead and injured as a result.

More than 300 bombs have been dropped on Leftist strongholds in the mining districts, army leaders said. Infantry forces have had difficulty penetrating the region because retreating rebels are blowing up roads and bridges and taking all provisions with them.

At home the government offered protection to workers who would return to their posts in defiance of the general strike, launched with the Extremist revolt a week ago. Former Premier Manuel Azana, said by the government to be a leader of the rebellion, was to arrive in Madrid to-day. He will be placed in prison to await trial.

Despite apparent tranquility at Barcelona, capital of Catalonia, drastic precautions are being taken by the military government to prevent a renewal of last week's violence.

Exodus From the West to National League Training Camps Under Way.

AMERKS AT OSHAWA.

CALGARY, Oct. 12. (CP).—The exodus of professional hockey players from Alberta to the training camps of the National Hockey League teams has started.

Marvin "Red" Dutton to-day was enroute to Oshawa, Ont., where the New York Americans are holding their pre-season drills. At Oshawa he will be joined in a few days by "Sweeney" Schriner and Fred Hergert, Calgarians who played for Syracuse in the International League last winter but who hope to make the Amerks this season.

"Tiny" Thompson, Boston Bruins goalkeeper leaves for Quebec to-night while his brother Paul, star sniper of Chicago Blackhawks, expects to leave early next week. Norman "Dutch" Gainor, Calgary hockey product who was once a headliner in the National League with Bruins will try a comeback with Montreal Maroons this winter.

Ab Cromie and Mel Snowden, Calgary juniors, will attend the Ranger hockey school at Winnipeg, and Bob Gilmour is leaving to try out with the Maroons. Connie King and Tommy Anderson, last year with Philadelphia, and who have been sold to Detroit, are enroute to join the N.H.L. champions.

Five men have been sentenced to death at Gorna Djooumaia, Macedonia, for a murder committed six years ago.

ITALY KEEPING CLOSE WATCH ON YUKOSLAVIA

Expresses No Great Concern at Riots in Ljubljana and Sarajevo.

DENY MURDER LINK.

ROME, Italy, Oct. 12. (AP).—The Italian government kept a close watch on Yugoslavia to-day for further anti-Italian demonstrations.

Official sources expressed no great concern because of riots at Ljubljana and Sarajevo yesterday directed at Italy; but Premier Benito Mussolini was in close touch with the situation.

The press, including official newspapers, made it clear that Italy would repudiate any possible connection with the assassination of King Alexander regardless of the nativity of the slayer and his accomplices.

It was pointed out by the foreign office that the cities of Zara and Gorizia, given on passports of two suspects jailed in France as their birthplaces, were part of the Austro-Hungarian empire before the Great War, although they are now Italian.

Italian sympathy with Croats in Northern Yugoslavia has been open for both the Croats and Mussolini's government have had differences with the Yugoslav government at Belgrade This situation resulted in Belgrade's sending Serbians to the border to counteract the growing Italo-Croat attachment.

ROBLES HOLDS POWER IN SPAIN

Agrarian-Populist Party Leader Believes Revolution is Crushed.

MANY REVISIONS HINTED.

MADRID, Oct. 12 (C.P.-Havas).—Jose Maria Gil Robles, leader of the powerful Right Agrarian Populist party, was the man of the hour in Spain to-day.

He knows that without him the government of Premier Alejandro Lerroux could not command the aid of parliament, in which his party holds a commanding majority. He also knows that his organization rendered signal services to the Government during the current Left revolt.

In an interview Gil Robles referred to the use of his men as strike-breakers in the country's public services as "civil mobilization." He considered the revolutionary movement as crushed.

"Our party has 1,000,000 members of both sexes," he said.

"If new elections were to be held the atmosphere would be still more favorable for us. We do not believe it necessary to assume power because we desire to govern with the other political forces who pursue the same aims as ourselves."

The Rightist leader expressed the belief that the Spanish republican constitution must be revised.

"All parties, conscious of their duty, think as we do." Although he is not opposed to regional statutes, he is an enemy of federalism, he said.

Robles thought the agrarian reforms, containing socialistic formula, must be repealed.

At the conclusion of eight games of cards a bounteous lunch was served consisting of pie of all kinds, sandwiches and coffee.

The hall was then cleared for dancing to the music of Rex Wilson and his orchestra.

Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Fitzgerald and son Clayton of Selwyn attended the card party and dance in the village on Wednesday evening.

Make these 3 tests

YOU'LL KNOW WHY ST. CHARLES EVAPORATED MILK IS BETTER

TRY THIS: Open a can of St. Charles Milk. Note the creamy color—the smooth consistency—the pure fresh flavor.

TRY THIS: Have a cup of coffee "creamed" with St. Charles. It blends so smoothly, tastes rich and fresh. And saves you money.

TRY THIS: Make mashed potatoes with St. Charles Milk. That pure fresh flavor gives greater deliciousness.

Why is St. Charles Evaporated Milk different . . . better? The reason begins way back on the farm where it comes from! Cows, barns, milkers, equipment are carefully inspected. And when the milk arrives at the spotless Borden plants, tests are made for flavor, purity, richness and body—the most rigid tests ever evolved in the industry.

That's why—for your coffee, or your cooking, it pays to insist on St. Charles.

It's Better—And you can prove it.

BOY WOUNDED BY AIR RIFLE

Mackenzie Allen, Lindsay, Injured in Neck at Play.

BARN FIRE SUBDUED

LINDSAY, Oct. 12 (Examiner Correspondence) — Mackenzie Allen, the four year old son of Mr. and Mrs. Charles Allen, town, was accidentally shot in the neck with an air rifle in the hands of some small boys. The shooting took place on the lawn in front of the Allen home, and the victim was rushed to the Ross Hospital where he bled profusely. The injury was not a serious one.

Earl Ferguson, son of Donald Ferguson, of Fenelon Falls, had a narrow escape from drowning at that village a day or two ago. The little lad was romping along the cliffs in front of the Kawartha Hotel when he tripped and fell fifteen feet into the rocky river. He was saved rom drowning in an unconscious position by his brother, Garfield, and Jos. Fountain. He was severely wounded about the head when he struck a rock and also sustained some slight internal injuries. He regained consciousness several hours after his rescue.

While riding horseback at Bolsover on Wednesday Viola Harris, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Harris, fell off the animal, breaking her arm and dislocating her shoulder.

The barn and residence on the farm of William Nicholls, Bolsover, had a narrow escape from destruction by fire during harvesting operations. One of the grain stacks in the rear of the barn took fire from a spark from the smoke box of the engine. The flames spread rapidly and it looked for a time as if the buildings were doomed. Jack Mitchell, owner of the threshing outfit, attached the hose and emptied the boiler. A bucket brigade was also formed, and after a hard fight the flames were subdued.

ROAD IMPROVEMENT REQUEST LAID OVER

Much Business Done at Regular Meeting of Manvers Council.

BETHANY, Oct. 12.—(Examiner Correspondence):—The members of the Manvers Council met on October 4. All the members were present and the reeve was in the chair.

The following communications were received and read: Hydro-Electric Power Commission, as to changing the length of contracts from twenty to five years, also stating that the municipalities of Port Perry and Newcastle districts all passed the necessary by-laws for the change of subsisting and future contracts except in special cases are now entitled to a change in their contracts; report from school attendance officer.

The reeve and Councillor Bogga report as to their meeting with J. J. Brown as to cutting wood on his property (under relief) last winter in error on road allowance between concession 1 and 2, but could not come to any agreement.

Cumiskey-Skuce: That the clerk write Mr. Brown offering him $25.00 as damages or allow him all the wood growing on the north half of divided road, that being 33 feet from centre of divided road adjoining his property.

Cumiskey-Boggs: That the reeve and treasurer be empowered to sign cheques for school grants as the orders are presented outside of Council.

Earl Smith addressed the Council as to the usual grant of $15.00 for the junior farmers as heretofore.

Mr. Garton requested that a certain road be so improved as to make a bus route for the convenience of those travelling between Bowmanville and Lindsay.

Cumiskey-Skuce: That Mr. Graton's request be laid over for a month.

Frederick Hart applied for letters of occupation for that part of road allowance hitting his property on lot 20, concession 14.

Cumiskey-Skuce: That letters of occupation be granted to Fred. Hart for that part of road allowance hitting his property on lot 20, concession 14.

Skuce-Boggs: That George Simpson paint and decorate the Town Hall as per contract.

Boggs-Neals: That cheques be drawn and signed by the reeve and treasurer for the following accounts:

Manvers Municipal Telephone System, $150.00; Earl Smith, junior farmers' grant, $15.00; F. W. Reynolds, burial of late Mary Smith, $58.00; F. W. Reynolds, trustee: requisition S.S. No. 15, $275.00; W. N. Armstrong, trustees' requisition, S.S. No. 15, $200.00; W. James Boggs, S.S. No. 14, $100.00; A. B. Sisson, road superintendent's vouchers, $477.90; Ottawa Paint Works, material for decorating the hall, $41.28.

Neals-Skuce: That the Council adjourn, to meet Thursday, November 8, at one o'clock.

OUT OF BOUNDS.

CAMDEN, N.J., Oct. 12 (C.P.)—Notwithstanding the merits of cleanliness, a Justice of the Peace ordered Joseph Montano, 21, of Audubon, and Roy D'Arcy of Pentryn, N.J., held without bail for the theft of a sink, bathtub and washbowl.

Members Decide to Send Bale West as Result of Letter From There.

SPRINGVILLE, Oct. 12 (Examiner Correspondence).—Mrs. S. S. Staples was hostess on Wednesday afternoon, when the Springville W.M.S. met at her home for the October meeting.

The president, Mrs. A. Hunter, opened the meeting with an inspiring address on "The Harvest of Our Lives."

Business discussed included the reading of a letter from Mrs. Trew, formerly of Springville, now living at Trewdale. Mrs. Trew described the conditions in her particular part of the West as a result of crop failure for six consecutive years. It was decided to pack a bale of clothing, quilts, etc., and send them directly to Mrs. Trew to be distributed to those in greatest need.

Mrs. A. Hunter made and donated a pretty patch-work quilt to the Auxiliary, which was sent in the bale to the Indian missions.

Mrs. J. Grandy extended an invitation to the ladies to meet at her home for the November meeting. The lunch committee was appointed to consist of Mrs. E. Kelk, Mrs. Morrison and Mrs. Lord.

The program in charge of Mrs. M. Johnston was very interesting.

Rev. H. Seymour addressed the meeting on the subject, "The Growth of the Church." Mrs. (Rev.) Seymour spoke on "Christian Stewardship." A paper on Oriental missions was given by Miss J. Schaffer, and a reading on the subject of "Peace" by the peace secretary, Mrs. J. Grandy.

Little Peggy McNeil gave a recitation about "The Crust.""

Following the close of the meeting lunch was served by the lunch committee, assisted by the hostess.

Votes of thanks were extended Mrs. Staples and the lunch committee for their hospitality.

A DROP IN OIL.

CAMPBELLFORD, October 12 (Examiner Staff Correspondence).—It can be truly said that Wilbert Reid struck oil here on Thursday morning, but not in the way he would like to. Mr. Reid just happened to back up a little too far, when making a turn in front of Bob Fraser's filling station with disastrous results to an oil rack, which contained twelve quart bottles of a high-grade lubricant. There was no salvage, the cement walk proving too much for the glassware.

Interesting Report For Apsley Hospital

APSLEY, Oct. 12 (Examiner Correspondence).—The annual meeting of the Apsley Red Cross Society was held at the Parish Hall on Thursday evening under the chairmanship of M. E. Emmal, president. The financial statement showed a balance in hand of $169.54. Local receipts amounted to $694.86 and expenditures $525.34. The report of activities at the Red Cross Outpost, submitted by Miss Brand, proved most interesting, from which the following particulars are abstracted. During the year there have been 134 admissions, of which number 129 came in since January 1st. Of the whole number 53 were local patients, and 81 were from the road camps. Thirteen babies were born in the hospital and seven outside births were attended by the nurse. Hospital days amounted to 930. One death occurred in the 12 months. Thirty-six minor operations were performed, some of which were practically major ones, and 130 outpatients received attention. In addition, 13 schools have been inspected, a series of cookery classes has been conducted, besides a monthly well babies' conference. Dr. Manning, M.O.H. for Burleigh and Anstruther, is arranging to hold toxoid clinics in the schools of these townships.

The following officers for 1934-5 were elected at the adjourned meeting held on Tuesday evening: President, M. E. Emmal (re-elected; Vice-President, Reeve Roy Brown; Secretary, Mrs. W. Lean; Treasurer, Mrs. J. Downing (both re-elected). Executive committee, Revs. C. A. G. Spence, G. Porter, Messrs. C. Smith, S. A. Hustwitt, Mrs. T. H. Lean, Mrs. Ned Tanner. Auditor, Mrs. C. Smith. Representative to Division Council, Rev. C. A. G. Spence.

Nine Grandmothers Respond to Roll Call for Roseneath Institute.

ROSENEATH, Oct. 12 (Examiner Correspondence)—Women's Institute meeting was held on Thursday afternoon in the township hall, with Mrs. Andrew Brown as hostess, with an attendance of thirty-seven members, six visitors and nine children, nine of whom were grandmothers.

The president, Mrs. Frank Nichol also a grandmother, presided over the meeting. It was a great pleasure to the Institute to have with them at this meeting their oldest member, Mrs. Mary Brown.

Grandmothers who responded to the roll call were Mrs. Robert Mouncey and who read a humorous story entitled "Our committee meeting"; Mrs. Albert Nill favored the gathering with an old song "Robin Adair"; a poem by Mrs. E. J. Milne and read by Jessie Johnston entitled "You can help"; a reading by Mrs. W. J. Pacey, "Kindness"; Mrs. Dinah Robins gave a laughable article "A Family Financing"; Mrs. F. Nichol recited "Betty and Her Cow."

An exhibition of quilt blocks brought by the grandmothers were very interesting also very pretty. Mrs. F. Nichol was awarded first prize and Mrs. Robert Mouncey second.

Mrs. Ednel Blodgett was appointed convenor of the girls work in the Institute.

Baby Beverly Gordon Robins, son of Mr. and Mrs. O. J. Robins was presented with a bank account of one dollar from the Institute.

On motion by Mrs. Delbert Brisbin seconded by Mrs. Milne that Misses J. Johnston, R. Blodgett, J. Morrison be delegates to attend the W.I. convention at Belleville. Mrs. Albert Halstead and Mrs. Albert Nill were also appointed to go to the convention.

The November meeting will be held on Friday, Nov. 2nd with Lawyer McColl of Campbellford as guest speaker. Mrs. Barton Thackeray and Miss J. Morrison were asked to provide music for the meeting. Mrs. A. Nill hostess with Mrs. Ryan, Mrs. Brisbin, Miss Brown and Miss Johnston assistant hostess.

It was suggested that a picture be taken in the near future of the grandmothers of the Institute.

A hearty vote of thanks to the hostess and the singing of God Save the King brought the delightful meeting to a close. An excellent lunch was served by the hostesses in charge.

CAME TO PARIS ON BLIND ORDERS

night following Alexander's assassination at Marseille, otherwise they might have escaped to Switzerland. They were arrested at Thonon.

Neither Rajtich nor Novak appeared to resemble a photograph of Nikomir Nalis, the alleged terrorist agitator whom police are seeking on a tip of the Belgian authorities that Nalis came to France to assassinate Alexander.

Fontainbleau Forest was still being searched by a posse for a fugitive who escaped gendarmes, leaving a passport in the name of Sylvester Mainy

Inhabitants of that region reported occasional glimpses of a stranger.

Egon Kramer, who shared a hotel room at Aix-En-Provence with Kalemen, also is sought by police, who believe that at least six members of the revolutionary band came to France, half going to Marseille for an attempt on the King's life there, the other remaining near Paris for a second attack if the first failed.

The Archbishop's body was badly burned but a wound was clearly visible in the forehead

Police opened an inquiry to determine whether he had been killed for political reasons or motives of personal vengeance. It was considered possible also that he had been slain by a burglar who may have been surprised in the act of robbing the home.

Hot On Trail.

By Stuart Moroney
(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press).

PARIS, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—French police believed to-day they have unearthed the trails of two more members of the band of terrorists responsible for the Marseille assassinations.

One led to the region of Lille and the other to Bellegarde, on the Swiss frontier.

The secret service worked tirelessly in a nation-wide hunt as Peter II., boy King of Yugoslavia, and his widowed mother, Queen Marie, sped toward Belgrade. Their special express train was heavily guarded as it roared through Europe No one was allowed to approach it at stations along the line.

Peter started home last night, passing through 500 gardes mobile to enter the train. A carload of special detectives was attached and at each end of the train were freight cars filled with police.

Of these five suspects, Kalemen is dead; "Benes," or "Rajtich," and Novak are held on minor charges; Sylvester Chalny, who fled into the Forest of Fontainebleau yesterday from police, is still lurking in those 42,000 acres unless he managed to slip out at a remote spot. Soldiers, police, and foresters are combing every inch of the woods. Of the fifth, known as "Kramerr," there has been no trace.

Police are searching Paris suburbs, questioning numbers of foreigners and holding some of them for further inquiries.

Doumergue to Step In.

A Cabinet crisis was virtually opened by the resignation of Albert Sarraut, Minister of the Interior, as an aftermath of the Marseille deaths. It is expected to be settled swiftly by Premier Gaston Doumergue on Monday when the resignation will be acted upon.

There is to be a reshuffle of ministers, parliamentary circles say, regardless of whether Doumergue decides on a joint ministerial resignation or simply to replace Sarraut and the late Foreign Minister Louis Long lines of Parisians to-day filed past Barthou's flag-shrouded coffin in the Quai d'Orsay. They saw only the tricolor and outlines of the coffin in the flickering candle light, for the aged statesman suffered so much in his last moments it was decided the old custom of baring his face must be discarded.

A national funeral will be given him to-morrow.

High French officials, including General Henri Petain, Minister of War, went along to represent France at the funeral of the assassinated Alexander. Despatches said the destroyer Dubrovnik, bearing the King's body to Yugoslavia, had been delayed by storms in the Mediterranean and might not reach the Adriatic port of Sitt until Sunday. It was due to-day.

A WORTHY CAUSE.

It should only be necessary, The Examiner feels sure, to mention the fact that the annual tag day of the Peterborough Children's Aid Society will be held to-morrow to ensure a liberal response to this appeal.

The work done by the local branch in contrast to the record in some other centres has always been efficient and economical; the citizens who have been associated with the direction of the affairs of the organization have shown an unfailing interest in the activities of the branch and in the welfare of the children who have come under its protecting wing, and the Society has, by reason of its careful management, earned the confidence of the public.

Little need be said of the nature of the Society's work; it has been caring for neglected and dependent children so long that every citizen is familiar with what has been done.

All that should be required is to point out that the Children's Aid Society depends largely upon the annual tag day for the funds with which to carry on its activities, and it is essential therefore that those who are financially in a position to help—remembering that many who formerly assisted are not now able to do so—should make a generous response to-morrow.

The need is great, the cause is deserving—give then accordingly.

A COMEDY OF ERRORS.

A new angle to the beer question has emerged as the result of an order issued by Liquor Commissioner E. C. Odette that London hotel proprietors must close their beverage rooms at 11 p.m. on week days and 7 o'clock on Saturdays.

This command is the sequel to what may be termed a "comedy of errors."

A short time ago the London City Council passed a resolution urging the Liquor Control Board to shorten the beverage room hours over the whole province; that is, to introduce a general scaling down of the sales period.

On receipt of this request, Commissioner Odette issued orders that the hours of sale would be limited in London to the times mentioned.

That, of course, precipitated an unexpected situation.

The London city authorities had asked for a province-wide curtailment of the period of beer sale and were quite in favor of that, but when it came to cutting down the hours in London and letting other places carry on for the longer hours that was a horse of another color, and the Council hastily assembled and by a vote of 12 to 1 urged the Liquor Commissioner to rescind his order.

Up to the present he has not only declined to do so but has officially notified the beverage room proprietors of the Forest City that henceforth they must adhere to the early closing order.

The incident shows the need of a uniform shortening of hours, and the wisdom of Commissioner Odette's decision to get the feeling of the public and to announce new hours at the end of this month when licenses for the next year will be issued.

CHASING THE TELEPHONE RACKETEERS.

Whether or not the Hepburn Government is merely carrying out a recommendation made a month ago by former Securities Commission George A. Drew, as the latter declares, its action in prohibiting the sale of securities by telephone will be applauded on all sides, except, of course, by the high-pressure salesmen of doubtful stock who have been using this method of getting at Ontario investors.

From the viewpoint of the general public, it does not matter a great deal whether the credit should go to Colonel Drew or not, but it does matter tremendously that a most objectionable practice has been brought to an end.

The use of the telephone to reach possible customers, in evidence to some extent before it was made illegal to sell securities from door to door, has, of course, greatly increased since that order was passed, and it has become a nuisance to a great many people and a source of serious loss to not a few who have yielded to the persuasions of the glib-tongued salesmen who bombarded them over the telephone with reasons why they should invest in this or that stock.

These "hot tips" sent out through the medium of the "phone" by racketeers have been listened to by many Ontario folks to their sorrow, and it is a matter for satisfaction that in bringing Ontario into line in this respect with the Dominion Act, which came into force on October 1, the Ontario Government has served notice on the high-powered gentry that they are through so far as this province is concerned.

Whether the Government will be equally successful in placing the Securities Commission on a self-supporting basis remains to be seen, but offhand it may be said that if there is to be adequate protection for investors and efficient investigation is to be made by the Commissioner, these services cannot be rendered without expense—a great deal of it at times.

ST. JOHN TRIES THE PLAN.

The Examiner referred in an article in this column the other day to the suggestion made by Attorney-General Roebuck that construction operations should be encouraged by establishing tax exemptions for a term of years on all new buildings.

It is interesting therefore to learn that this policy, while an innovation so far as Ontario is concerned, has already been tried out in New Brunswick—as a matter of fact, the plan is in force at the present time in St. John.

The Times-Globe of that city gives the particulars in the following article:

"During the regime of the late Mayor Potts, provision was made in the Assessment Act of the city of Saint John whereby all improvements made to property were exempted from taxation for a period of five years, and all new residential construction was exempted for two years. These provisions came under the scrutiny of a commission appointed to report on taxation a few years ago and as a result of its recommendations, a change was made in this part of the act, which came into effect this year. The exemption on improvements was removed, although those qualifying under the old act will get the exemption until the five-year period has run out. The concession to new dwellings remains with the proviso that they must be occupied wholly or in part by the owner.

"The chief difference between the Potts plan and that suggested in Ontario is that in the latter case the exemption is designed to apply only to new construction undertaken within the ensuing twelve months. In Saint John the plan was to continue in force indefinitely."

The St. John paper does not say anything about the success of the scheme or as to its effect upon construction operations, but it seems only reasonable to suppose that new building would be encouraged by a plan that offered the advantages of tax exemption over a period of years.

UNCERTAINTY IN EMPIRE TRADE.

Mr. Stanley Bruce, the Australian High Commissioner in London, is, we think, upon sound ground in suggesting that the British Government should definitely announce its intentions in regard to British agriculture and the effect which exercise of the present policy will have upon the import trade from the remainder of the Empire. He thinks that in the interests of the Mother Country herself, guiding principles should be laid down so that partners to the agreement negotiated at Ottawa may know where they stand and so that a concrete policy for intra-Imperial co-operation in the promotion of reciprocal trade may be formulated.

Mr. Elliott's campaign—given the approval and financial support of the Government to which he belongs—for the encouragement of British agriculture was scarcely in the minds of delegates from the Dominions when they sat down in Ottawa to arrive at a basis of agreement in regard to Empire trade. It was not thought at that time that, because of the response made to this campaign on the part of British agricultural producers, it would be necessary at such an early date to reduce the amount of Empire produce seeking a market in the United Kingdom. And yet in various respects the Dominions have already been asked to cut down their exports across the Atlantic or, if not to cut them down, at least to give some assurance that they will not exceed their current volume. Canada, for instance, has been asked not to send more cattle to the British market than she sent last year. Australia and New Zealand have been asked to limit their shipments of dairy produce. Other commodities have been similarly affected even before quotas have been reached. And an agreement in regard to the provision of eggs for the British market is now under discussion.

Little of this was anticipated at the time of the Ottawa Conference, and it is a direct result of the response made by British producers to the appeal of Mr. Elliott, together with Government encouragement, that they should grow or raise more food supplies for the home market. In milk, for instance, a surplus of such magnitude has already developed that the Government is spending millions to furnish it free of charge for consumption by school children. When this is realized, it may be readily understood why the same Government is unwilling to see larger quantities of imported dairy products arrive on the home market.

The uncertainties of the situation as it affects the Dominions and their own producers may be just as readily appreciated. Led to believe that a market of almost unlimited opportunities lay within their grasp and encouraged to increase their production in order to match those opportunities, many Empire producers have been disappointed upon finding restrictions applied by the British Government after voluntary agreement on the part of the Dominions. They know not when the things that they are growing or the animals that they are raising primarily for the British market may be similarly affected. They will be inclined to agree with Mr. Bruce that the time has arrived for the British Government to make known its intentions in regard to British agriculture and the final place that imported Empire foodstuffs will occupy in the British market.

The situation that has arisen suggests that the Dominions should not lean too heavily upon the United Kingdom as an outlet for their production, and that they should explore every other avenue that presents itself for the consumption of their surplus agricultural produce. The British market is constantly absorbing a larger volume of home produce and thus relieving itself of its dependence upon other countries. It is apparently the studied objective of the British Government that the United Kingdom shall be made as nearly self-supporting in the matter of food supplies as possible. If this is not the case, the Dominions should be so informed, so that they may govern themselves accordingly. To have Empire producers continuously in the present state of uncertainty is neither good for them nor for the cause of Empire trade.—Brockville Recorder and Times.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

This Colonel George A. Drew seems to be a formidable opponent of the new regime with an abundance of ammunition and sufficient experience as an artillery officer to use it most effectively.

UNFAIR TAXATION

To the Editor of The Examiner.

Dear sir:

Referring to a letter sent to the City Council on October 1, from the newly-formed Ratepayers Association this letter contained some very startling information regarding the unfair taxation of this city.

Can the Association give positive proof of the accuracy of the condition outlined in their prepared letter. If the information is correct the ratepayers of this city have not had the knowledge and they should demand the city representatives to discontinue a system that has been so disastrous to the city's interest. There is a paragraph in the mentioned letter that fixed assessments to industries in this city adds six mills to our tax rate and one dollar in eight of our taxes goes to the benefit of these favored industries. Can this be possible? Or can that statement be challenged. If this information can be vouched for and the present council fails to face the issue of definitely dispensing with the renewal of fixed assessments. What further action will this association take regarding this unfair taxation which they have championed.

RATEPAYER.

AN APPRECIATION OF NICHOLLS HOSPITAL.

To the Editor of The Examiner:

After having spent just three weeks in our local hospital, and being now convalescent, I feel that one of the first things I should do is to put on record my appreciation of this valuable institution in our community.

I always wondered what were the excellences that constituted this institution in the grade A class among the hospitals of the continent. Having come from cities of larger populations than here, where the hospital accommodation was on a larger plain, I experienced difficulty in acknowledging the position assigned to Nicholls Now, I am in a position to speak with some assurance, and I find that the management could not be better, that the equipment is excellent, excelling even some of the larger institutions in certain details, that the discipline is wise and well-ordered, and that dietetic arrangements are of the best. The only handicap lies in the building, in which hospitalization is carried on, and that needs to be remedied as soon as financial conditions will permit. It is a strange human trait that folks will, when they are well, build fine homes and surround themselves with the best of everything that money can buy, yet, when they are sick, they are ready to put up with something that, according to the most progressive ideas in hospital architecture, is a bit out of date.

All honor, then, is due Mrs. Leeson, and her very capable staff, as well as the medical men of the city, for their loyalty in carrying on under these conditions, making the services rendered by the institution such, that our hospital is rated in the highest class. I have only praise for everyone, after my three weeks' sojourn, and hope for the day when a new building, or a remodelling of the present building, will bring to realization the highest vision of the medical and nursing professions for our city. I am, sir,

Yours truly,

ALFRED T. BARR.

U. S. RECOVERY NOT SOLVED.

Experimentation is the utmost of all human efforts at the present writing. Thousands have been busy at the job of discovering a solution. But no one has succeeded. Political parties do have fundamental policies which lead to a difference in approach to national problems. The present issue demands the clearest type of thinking and vigorous action. Those who believe in the methods of the present administration, with their changes from the past procedure of the American governmental system, and that they offer the way without overbalancing harm to liberty, should give their support in continuing these methods.

Herbert Hoover has voiced different methods. He is not alone in their advocacy. He believes the present issue could be met and liberty more thoroughly safeguarded. Those who support this policy have the obligation as proper occasion arises to express their convictions.

By high authorities the admission has been made that no nation in the world has demonstrated a recovery plan. The depression is still universal. Therefore, whatever prompts study and debate of methods leading to the most earnest efforts to solve our great social and governmental problems of this hour, is altogether wholesome.

The added discussion provoked by Herbert Hoover's book, "Challenge To Liberty", if it rises above partisan advantage, will prove of great value. The approach to so many important issues are often so partisan, or so selfish, that incalculable harm is done. The St. Lawrence waterway is an instance of selfish greed blocking legislation. Selfishness in politics is just as obstructive. Eventually the people will arise in their might at the ballot box and decide. As to recovery the people make the final decision.

VIOLA LLMA MAKES HER DEBUT.

She has brains. And she has the spirit of adventure. She does not think in terms of the little and significant. There is risk in what she enlists. Attention has already been called to her in this column. She is only sweet and true twenty-three. One year and a half ago she announced a new magazine: Modern Youth. There was no such magazine. In her announcement there was an idea. Sometimes an idea is bigger than any magazine. Thus it was in this instance. The idea that caught the attention of the readers of the announcement was that no contributor to the Magazine was to exceed the age of thirty. Some said that her purpose was to get a little publicity. Whether the criticism had point or not you can decide later. Here is an unfolding story.

Financial backing and experience were not her capital in the daring adventure. The innocent notices about Modern Youth brought to her desk an avalanche of subscriptions and inquiries and contributors. What she intended to be a feeler was taken seriously by thousands. Without waiting for enough dough to come in response to her Magazine announcement a small printer in Chicago was induced to extend credit for three issues of her Modern Youth. The bill climbed to $11,000, and that was the end of Modern Youth. The Magazine was down and out, but not Viola Llma.

Instead of being discouraged to the extremity to give up her idealism, this failure experience girded her for more adventure in the field of modern youth. The story of Modern Youth and of Viola Llma fell into the hands of the prominent and wealthy Anne Morgan. Miss Morgan sought her acquaintance. A brief visit confirmed Miss Morgan that Viola Llma had ability and a call. A call is the key-note of life. It is heard within. Failure cannot defeat a person with a call. Providences gather about such as are responsive.

THE MUNITION EXPOSURE

The munition industry is now getting overdue exposure. The relationship of this whole industry to disarmament and war can no longer be concealed. Facts such as these will arouse the public. Senator Nye, Chairman of the Investigation Committee, has presented proof that American battleships have been used by the makers of the guns upon them, as sample cases to aid in selling like guns to other countries.

Senator Nye must also be credited with a major discovery. Seven hundred and sixty-six thousand, and ninety-nine dollars was paid from 1919 to 1930 by the Electric Boat Company of Groton, Connecticut, manufacturers of fighting craft, to Sir Basil Zaharoff. He is now a subject of Great Britain. One saving clause there is in telling who he is. He is not a native of Great Britain. But he found Great Britain vantage ground for the sale of all kinds of munitions. What Britain buys for army and navy is good enough to command a world market. To be British meant sales and millions to Zaharoff. He is the greatest arms salesman in the world. He practically owns the Spanish market for such products. He goes direct to the Spanish government. What Spain needs he sells.

When another fact is known, do you think the American people will be in the mood to trust private firms to own and manufacture and sell arms and war vessels to whom they choose. Germany's famous U-boats, which sank American ships during the war, were built from patents of this same American firm, the Electric Boat Company.

The hand of the American government, like the hand of Lady Macbeth, is stained with blood. The War Department, in its efforts to encourage private companies in the United States in manufacturing munitions, agreed to reveal to these companies its latest designs for certain guns.

What's in The NAME

of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

HUMBOLDT, SASKATCHEWAN

More than 100 years ago, which is a long time in the history of the prairies, a German explorer, Alexander von Humboldt, passed through this district. He must have exercised quite an influence on the community, for when a telegraph station was built 40 years after his visit, at a point four and one-half miles from the site of the present town, someone remembered him and attached his name to the tiny station.

Local history is hazy about why this man should have been remembered in such a fashion, but the fact remains that he was remembered and the new settlement took his name.

ON THIS DATE

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Red Williams

COLUMBUS NOT THE FIRST

On this date, in 1492, one Christopher Columbus arrived at some West India Islands and since then has been acclaimed as the discoverer of America, which he was most decidedly not. He was no more the first European to touch American soil than was Lindbergh the first to fly across the Atlantic from America (our American friends like to forget the record-breaking flight of Alcock and Brown). Columbus sailed from Spain with three ships subsidized by Queen Isabella. He was, in fact, well equipped, even if his caravels were tiny by modern standards.

How different was the equipment of the real discoverer of America! Leif, son of Eric the Red, the Norwegian who, 500 years before Columbus, sailed first to Greenland and then westward where he "struck a land with great ice mountains inland and flat from the sea to the glaciers". This country he called "Helluland" (probably that which we know as Labrador). Then the company put to sea again in their frail craft—there were only 36 of them—and they "found a second land", a level wooded land with broad, sandy beaches and level to the sea. This they called "Markland". But still not satisfied they put to sea again and, after two days, came to another land where they went ashore and, observing the dew on the grass, touched their hands to their mouths "and it seemed to them that they had never before tasted anything so sweet as this".

Maritimers believe that this was Nova Scotia, for they next sailed into a sound where, at ebb tide, there were broad reaches of uncovered sand (perhaps what we know as the Bay of Fundy). They cast anchor, carried their hammocks ashore and built booths, and, later, determined to remain the winter, built a large house".

Where was that country? Its description sounds like Acadia, the cradle of civilization in Canada: "There was no lack of salmon; cattle would need no fodder there in winter, for there was no frost and the grass withered little." The story tells how they found rich vineyards and how they filled their ship with grapes. In the spring they sailed away and Leif called the country "Wineland" (Any interested in further details of this boyage can find them in "The Finding of Wineland the Good" by A. M. Reeves, quoted by Prof. W. Stewart Wallace in "With Sword and Trowel".

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

CITY CAT IN THE COUNTRY.

We took our cat to the high mountains—and at first he didn't like it . . . What was the idea, anyway, of taking a decent, well-behaved city cat into the country, into so many strange sights and sounds and swells? It was outrageous and we ought to be reported to the Society for the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. . . . Such actions. Such unfeeling disregard for his happiness . . . He was miserable and he hated us . . . When he was inside the cabin he paced up and down like a caged tiger and insisted on getting out. And when we let him out, he meowed at the door and clamored to be inside again . . . And that wasn't all, either. It was cold those first days and the wind blew off the mountain tops, and it snowed, and all the land was covered three inches deep with funny white stuff. . . . When he walked in it he had to lift each hind leg and shake it off before he set it down again and whenever he did that, those human beings laughed at him and his dignity was sorely insulted . . . Such a business!

But the sun came out and the wind died down and he saw little striped chipmunks on every rock and birds scolded him from the tops of trees and a red-headed woodpecker drummed a military march from a dead tree every morning and—that cat came alive again . . . Speedily he ceased to be a city pussy and became a mountain cat. A stalking, hunting, contriving, slinking, joyous cat that kept us busy warning chipmunks and little birds that he was on the trail . . . He didn't like that, either, but he accepted it as one of the handicaps of living with human beings . . . His worst moment was that day when he chased a chipmunk up a tree and it didn't occur to him that HE, too, could climb a tree. So he crouched at the base of the tree and swished his angry tail like a dog and did nothing at all but wait for that chattering chipmunk to come down again. And even a baby chipmunk knows better than that.

But now he's happier than he ever was in the city. This, he seems to say, is where I really belong, here among the pines and the granite rocks and the clean, sweet breezes, and I don't care if I never go back to that city o gasoline exhaust and clanging noises and that basement where you shut me up at night . . . I'm a happy, hunting, predatory mountain cat, I am, and I never want to be a pusillanimous city cat again. Not me!

But, just the same, he's going back!

DR. KIDD BYRNE TAKEN BY DEATH

Claimed He Was Heir to $42,000,000 Fortune for Saving Millionaire's Daughter.

BORN IN PORT HOPE.

MONTREAL, Oct. 12.—(CP)—David S. Kidd Byrne, former Toronto business man who years ago claimed he had saved a millionaire's daughter from disgrace in Chicago, and as a result had been made heir to a $42,000,000 fortune, is dead here today.

Born in Port Hope, Ont., he was in business in Toronto and known as David S. Kidd. He moved to Chicago and became a membes of the Christian Workers' Church and while doing gospel work claimed to have restored Lucy Lillian Byrne to her parents and became heir to the estate on condition he took the name of Byrne.

He came to Montreal in 1930 and did mission work. In 1929 he was before the courts on a charge of forgery in connection with a cheque. When Byrne cashed the cheque with a merchant he showed a letter supposedly from the late Hon. J. L. Perron which referred to the return of various legal documents and which indicated he was satisfied Byrne's claim to the fortune was a good one. It was proved the latter part of the letter had been added on to a formal letter concerning the return of the documents.

Judgment was postponed when alienists reported he was of unsound mind and he was detained. He later appeared before the courts and was acquitted.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

ONTARIO GRAIN.

Approximate prices track shipping point—Wheat, 93c to 95c; oats, 33c to 35c; barley, 45c to 48c; corn, 90c to 92c; rye, 51c to 53c; buckwheat, 47c to 50c.

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

Egg prices advanced while cheese quotations were lower on the Montreal produce and dairy market yesterday.

Graded shipments of eggs in carlots or less were ½c to 1c higher, A-large being quoted at 32c to 33c, A-medium at 30c to 31c, A-pullets at 28c, B at 22c to 22½c, and C at 19½c to 20c a dozen. Receipts were 1,892 cases.

Cheese eased ¼c with No. 1 Ontario White selling at 9¾c to 9¾c, Ontario colored at 10¾c to 10½c, No. 1 Quebec White at 9¾c and Quebec colored at 9¾c a pound. Rail receipts totalled 2,136 boxes.

Butter was unchanged at 30c to 30¾c a pound for fresh No. 1, in carlots or less, with No. 1 storage at 29¾c to 30c. To retailers solids were 31c and prints 32c. Arrivals were 15 boxes.

New Quebec potatoes sold at 35c to 40c and New Brunswick new Mountains at 45c to 50c per 80-pound bag.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Soaring rapidly to more than eight cents above last week's low point, wheat yesterday closed strong at the topmost quotations reached.

Washington reports of possible moves toward further devaluation of the United States dollar furnished much of the wheat market impetus. Other stimulating factors included a sensational advance in silver, bullish aspects of the United States Government crop report strength of foreign markets, and forecasts of continued drought in domestic winter wheat territory south-west and west.

Wheat barely missed scoring a maximum overnight rise of four cents. The actual net gain being 2¾c to 3¾c, with Dec. new finishing at $1.02 to $1.02½, corn 1¼c to 1⅝c up, Dec. new, 76¾c to 77c; oats, ¼c to ⅝c advanced; and provisions unchanged to 25 cents higher.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, October 12. — The uptrend of wheat prices was continued on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday, futures trading buoyantly throughout an active session to close 1⅝c to 1¾c higher. Strength in outside markets again was the incentive for the advance.

Optimism prevailed over the market, and with little pressure to sell in evidence the upturns were easily retained. The October option closed at 81⅝c, December 82⅝c, and May 87¼c to 87¼c. Strong support from Chicago and Eastern interests featured the trade.

Foreign purchases of Canada's wheat also figured in the day's dealings, but actual figures were difficult to ascertain. Export sales yesterday approximated 1,000,000 bushels, but part of this was new business.

Excellent demand for the higher grades of wheat again was shown in the cash grain division, with No. 1 Northern variety featuring. Coarse grains futures also scored advances, chiefly in sympathy with wheat.

Norris On Market For Brooklyn Club

BROOKLYN, Oct. 12— (A.P.)—The Brooklyn Eagle says to-day that James E. Norris of Chicago, is negotiating for the purchase of Brooklyn Dodgers of the National Baseball League and that "chances are very good" that control will pass to him during the winter.

Norris was in Brooklyn three weeks ago, the Eagle said it was learned, conferring with Stephen McKeever and the Ebbets heirs, who jointly own the club. It was not believed an agreement was reached then, but that the basis was laid for further conferences.

Norris already is interested in sports promotion, owning the Detroit Red Wings of the National Hockey League. He attempted to buy the Chicago Cubs several years ago before they were purchased by the Wrigley interests.

LOAN OVER TOP.

OTTAWA, Oct. 12 (C.P.).—Completion of the $350,000,000 Dominion Government refunding loan with the closing of the subscription books at five o'clock this afternoon, brings the total conversions of Canada's war loans since 1931 to well over $1,030,000,000, with an annual interest saving in excess of $14,000,000.

JUDGE PASSES

GRANADA.

ROUYN, Que., Oct. 12.—Granada will double daily tonnage. Good progress is being made with the installation of the new Hadsell mill being added to the circuit. The new equipment is being added to double the daily tonnage. If there is no unforeseen delay it is probable that the plant will be operating at the increased rate by the first of next month. At present a little better than 100 tons daily are being crushed and it is learned on the best authority that underground development continues to confirm the management's judgment that there will be no difficulty maintaining mill feed at the highest rate.

J. M. CONSOLIDATED.

TORONTO, Oct., 12.—With all freight delivered to the mine, the mill of increased capacity is being re-opened to-day by J. M. Consolidated. It is expected that tonnage will be just about doubled to at least 30 tons daily A new ore body has been opened up below the 125-foot level, having a width of over 5 feet and averaging better than 1 ounce of gold per ton, it is reported.

ONTARIO MINING EXCHANGE.

The Ontario Gazette announces incorporation granted Ontario Mining Exchange, Limited, to provide, regulate and maintain a suitable building for a stock exchange in Toronto or other parts of the province with a capital of $40,000. Provisional directors are E. A. R. Newson, solicitor, W. T. Stewart, manager, and Ruth Newson.

Prospectors' Classes Planned For Ontario

TORONTO, October 12 (C.P.). — Classes for prospectors will be held in various sections of the Province from about the middle of November to the middle of March it was announced to-day by Hon. Paul Leduc, Ontario Minister of Mines.

The classes, started some years ago for the benefit of those anxious to learn the technicalities of prospecting, will be conducted by Dr. E. M. Burwash, assisted by H. E. Purdy.

Places and dates for the classes are:

Ottawa, November 22-30; Marmora, December 3-11; Sault Ste. Marie, December 13-21; Toronto, January 3-11; Port Arthur, January 14-23; Fort William, January 24-February 1; Kenora, February 4-13; Haileybury, February 14-22; Kirkland Lake, February 25 - March 5; Kapuskasing, March 7-15.

POLICE, CITIZENS

As the car driven by W. Reiber and Edgar Wilker of Linwood closed the gap between them and the escaping thugs, the quarry car stopped suddenly. One of the occupants leaped out and emptied his gun at the approaching machine. Reiber and Wilker pulled up and let go with a volley toward the bandit machine, but their fire apparently had no effect. The chase renewed immediately after this exchange.

"Daddy" Browning Dies In New York

NEW YORK, Oct. 12 (AP)—Edward West "Daddy" Browning, wealthy real estate operator and husband of the former Frances "Peaches" Heenan, died to-day at Scarsdale, N.Y., his secretary announced.

After a cerebral hemorrhage last June, Browning was confined to the Hospital for Joint Diseases, in New York City.

For several weeks his condition was critical. He was discharged from the hospital the middle of September and taken to the home of a friend in Birch Hall Drive, Scarsdale.

ACTRESS NEAR DEATH

GLENDALE, Cal., Oct. 13—(AP)—Physicians attending Lucille La Verne, veteran character actress of the stage and screen and a contemporary of the late Marie Dressler, said today that death for her was only a matter of hours.

Miss La Verne, underwent a major operation for cancer at a Glendale hospital yesterday.

SHOWDOWN NEAR LINDBERGH CASE

Hauptmann's Counsel Will Call 15 Witnesses in Habeas Corpus Hearing.

TRIAL PREVIEW MONDAY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The Lindbergh kidnap-killing case moved toward a showdown to-day with Bruno Hauptmann's lawyer planning to call 15 witnesses at a habeas corpus hearing and New Jersey's Attorney - General preparing to match them man for man if necessary to get custody of the murder suspect.

The murder trial preview will be held Monday, when Hauptmann's fight to escape extradition will come before Justice Ernest E. L. Hammer of the Supreme Court.

James M. Fawcett, counsel for the alien carpenter, promised last night to appeal if the jurist ruled against Hauptmann. He said the case would be "fought to a finish."

At least half a dozen of the witnesses, Fawcett indicated, will be called to testify that the prisoner could not have been in Hopewell, N.J., that night in 1932 on which Charles Lindbergh, Jr., was carried from his crib to his death.

Ready to testify against him, Frank Rossiter of Maplewood, N.J., said that he had talked to Hauptmann for "approximately 10 minutes" in a "well-lighted place" near the Sourland Mountain snatch scene. He was one of the witnesses before the Hunterdon County grand jury which returned the murder indictment at Flemington.

would contribute $6,000,000 to the works program.

"I'll give Mr. Bennett credit," said the Premier. "He rejected some work proposals of the Ontario Government but notwithstanding the Henry Government went right on spending money. I'm not blaming Mr. Bennett as much as Mr. Henry."

In regard to other questions, the Premier said the Government was not prepared to announce his works program in regard to Northern Ontario and so far no consideration had been given reduction in pulpwood stumpage fees.

At this morning's council meeting the Premier said the resignation of Norman Harris as assistant to the Ontario securities commissioner had been accepted.

TO DISCUSS INVITATION TO HIGHWAY MINISTER

At a meeting called by Mayor Denne this afternoon in the City Council Chambers, representatives of the city and county were to consider the advisability of extending an invitation to the Honorable T. B. McQuestin, minister of highways to officiate at the opening of Lakefield road when paving operations are completed.

The Mayor, who conceived the idea of inviting the minister here to open the highway, announcing the holding of the meeting, stated that he had asked Warden Rork Ferguson, Reeve A. B. Burrows of Lakefield and Alderman Max Sloan, chairman of the City Council Reception committee, to discuss the matter with him. It was proposed that the minister should be entetrained at a civic banquet in the event of his acceptance of an invitation to come here for the occasion.

CHIMNEY FIRE.

A chimney fire at 721 Bethune Street brought the Fire Department on the run shortly before ten o'clock this morning. The flames were put out before causing serious damage.

The firemen answered an alarm for a blaze in a rubbish pile at Riverside Park yesterday. No damage resulted.

Lads Dig Out Of Jail, Get Caught On Train

BUFFALO, N.Y., Oct. 12 (A.P.).—Four young prisoners who dug their way out of the Cayuga County Jail at Auburn were en route back to their cells there this afternoon after being captured this morning in Fort Erie, Ont., by Michigan Central railroad police.

The young quartette was riding "blind" on a passenger train bound west when they were spied by officers. The train was halted and all taken off. They admitted they were the four sought since their escape from the Auburn Jail yesterday.

The youths are Matthew Andreszewski and Matthew Pietrzyk, both of Niagara Falls, N.Y., Howard Derby of Port Byron, N.Y., and John Murphy of Mobile, Ariz.

New Gold Strike Awakens Ghost Town Asleep 50 Years

Not the only gold strike area on the continent is to be found in Northern Ontario. Here is Central City, Colo., the first gold town of the old days of the west which is becoming again as new veins of gold are found by modern machinery. Scenes reminiscent of the old days are being re-enacted as new buildings are hurriedly erected and prospectors are flocking to the little mountain "ghost city" in search of the elusive yellow metal. The town has been asleep for 50 years.

MANITOBA MERCHANTS PROPOSE PROGRAM OF CODES AND LICENSES

Place Every Business Under Same Form of Government Regulation.

ROEBUCK AFTER 'WOLVES.'

WINNIPEG, Oct. 12 (C.P.).—One way and another business and industry in Canada are being placed under control, watched over by governments or supervised by internal organizations supported directly by business and industry themselves. So-called voluntary codification of industry has been discussed in both the East and West, but so far it has produced few results.

But the Retail Merchants' Association of Winnipeg moved yesterday to have the Manitoba Government set up a new governmental department for the purpose of controlling trade and industry by means of codes and licenses. Virtually every business would come under some form of government regulation if the merchants' plans were approved.

A voluntary submission to codes would be the result in Manitoba, should the next session of the Legislature pass legislation setting up a department to operate the scheme. Negotiations with a view to making the proposals effective were already underway here between the merchants and the Government.

After Wolves in Industry.

So business codes seemed likely to be an important topic when the Legislature holds its next session, just as Attorney-General, Arthur W. Roebuck, has promised they will be in the Ontario house. Mr. Roebuck told a Toronto audience last night he is after the "wolves in the industry."

Nevertheless if an industry does not desire to operate under a code, it will not be forced to do so, Mr. Roebuck said. Only where the majority of members in an industry favor codes will the minority be compelled to observe the agreements decided on. The codes will be designed to set a scale of wages operative throughout industry — not merely fixing wages.

Follow Sister Provinces.

Manitoba and Ontario are moving in the wake of Alberta and British Columbia which wrote laws affecting industry last winter and which may discuss further plans shortly. As in Manitoba, Retail Merchants' Associations in Saskatchewan and Alberta have taken steps to establish fair trade practices. Negotiations are underway between the Alberta Government and merchants.

Minimum wages and hours of work in various industries in British Columbia are being set up by what is known as the Board of Industrial Relations. But the Board has no power to establish codes in any industry.

Central Coal Output

Saskatchewan's action towards business regulation includes provision for licensing of coal mines and control and regulation of production. A local government board is vested with powers to regulate the processing and marketing of milk.

At the last legislative session, the Alberta Government passed a bill to regulate trade and industry through codes governing wages, conditions of labor and prices of products. Now Manitoba is moving, with the co-operation of retail merchants, towards a similar goal.

LOUGHLIN OPTIMISTIC

CHICAGO, Oct. 12 (AP)—Chicago's Blackhawks, world's hockey champions, will open their long practice drills on the University of Illinois rink Saturday afternoon. Most of the players gathered here to-day for the training trip.

Clem Loughlin, new manager of the team, was optimistic over prospects of retaining the title.

16-Day Limit

CLARINDA, Ia., Oct. 12.—(CP).—The hunger strike that Lloyd Jewell, 26, conducted in protest against the Iowa State liquor law is ended.

Jewell, in jail on a charge of bringing Missouri liquor into Iowa, said to-day he broke the strike after 16 days on the advice of friends and lawyers.

Doctors ordered warm milk and toast for the first meal, with regular meals to start to-morrow. Officers said they doubted Jewells claim that he didn't take any food during the strike.

HEIRESS' CASE TAKES NEW TURN

Judge Hints at Possibility of Neutral Guardian for Gloria Vanderbilt.

SESSION MONDAY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12 (AP)—Mrs. Gloria Morgan Vanderbilt's fight to recover her daughter, Gloria, from the child's aunt, Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, may end with neither society matron in charge of the 10-year-old heiress.

Justice John F. Carew of the State Supreme Court, where the mother brought habeas corpus proceedings, disclosed yesterday that appointment of a neutral guardian was possible. He added, however, that he was "not considering the possibility right now."

"The issue brought to my court," he said, "was between Mrs. Vanderbilt and Mrs. Whitney and my duty is to decide on Mrs. Vanderbilt's petition for a writ of habeas corpus. But it is true that the future welfare of the child is now in my hands."

Coming to Mrs. Vanderbilt's defense are her twin sister, Viscountess Furness; her brother, Harry Morgan, and Prince Hohenlohe, who was named by an early witness in connection with Mrs. Vanderbilt. Lady Furness and Morgan arrived in Quebec from Great Britain late yesterday and left immediately for New York.

The next session is set for Monday.

FOUND DYING

EDMONTON, Oct. 12. —(CP)—City police faced a mystery death today when the battered and bleeding body of Robert K. Soutar, aged Interdicted sweepstake winner, was found lying in a ditch running along a city dump road.

The body was found at the foot of a rough patch leading down a 300-foot hill. Soutar was still breathing when discovered but died on the way to hospital.

Costly Deal

BEAVER, Pa., Oct. 12 (CP)—It cost John Losco of Baden $402 to attempt to sell his farm.

Losco told police two men came to buy the farm, and that he started out in an automobile to show them the place. En route, they picked up a hitchhiker who became ill.

Losco said he was persuaded to go to a nearby store for medicine and returned to find the strangers gone, together with the $402 in the wallet he left with them for safe-keeping.

Voters' Enumeration Will Start Monday

Enumeration of voters in Peterborough West will begin on Monday morning, Vincent Eastwood, Sr., local registrar of elections, reminded to-day. In the city, 104 men will begin work and 39 will get the task under way in the rural section of the riding.

The city enumeration must be completed by October 20, and the rural canvass by October 23. Two enumerators to work in pairs have been appointed for each polling division in the city and one for each division in the rural districts.

Mr. Eastwood is asking citizens to help the enumerators in their work in every way possible so that a perfect list may be secured speedily. The men will make their calls between 9 a.m. and 6 p.m., and, if it is found necessary, between 7 p.m. and 10 p.m. The questions they will ask will not be as comprehensive as in the instance of a census taking, and calls ordinarily will require a few minutes each. Householders are asked to answer the questions readily and frankly.

The purpose of the enumeration is simply to ascertain those who have a right to vote in the next general election and inform them of their franchise, Mr. Eastwood said.

Father Slays Family Fires House, Suicide

BOULOGNE, France, Oct. 12. — (A.P.)—A crazed father massacred his entire family of six to-day, set fire to the house and then hanged himself in a hay mow.

The man, Alfred Mouchaux, locked the doors of his home, beat his wife to death with a shovel in a bedroom, then went to the kitchen where his five children were at breakfast. He killed four and mortally injured the youngest, Lisette, aged four.

Neighbors said the mother would have given birth to a sixth child shortly.

LADY FURNESS TO BACK SISTER

Amazed at Mother's Attitude Backing Mrs. Whitney Against Mrs. Vanderbilt.

FOR GLORIA'S CUSTODY.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12 (AP).—Lady Furness came to New York to-day determined to back her twin sister, Gloria Vanderbilt, to the limit in her court fight for the custody of her 10-year-old daughter, Gloria Laura Morgan Vanderbilt, and her $2,500,000 fortune.

"It is ridiculous," she said. "My sister is a better mother than our own mother. She at least does not turn against her own children as our mother has."

Mrs. Laura Kilpatrick Morgan, mother of Lady Furness and Mrs. Vanderbilt, has allied herself with Mrs. Harry Payne Whitney, little Gloria's aunt, in an effort to have Mrs. Vanderbilt adjudged unfit to have the custody of the child.

"I am amazed at my mother's attitude. I have no idea what she is doing. She must be overawed."

"Overawed by what?" Lady Furness was asked by one of the group who met her train at Grand Central Station on its arrival from Quebec, where Lady Furness landed yesterday with her brother, Harry Hayes Morgan, and his wife.

"Oh, just overawed," she answered.

"I think so, too," her brother drawled.

"I know one thing," Lady Furness said, nodding her head with certainty. "Little Gloria should be with her mother. Every child should be with its mother."

CHEAPER GOLDS LEAD INTEREST

Advances Up to 20 Cents Registered in Dozen of the Smaller Producers.

OIL STOCKS FIRM.

TORONTO, October 12 (C.P.). — The cheaper gold shares came to the front to-day while the seniors lagged, due no doubt to the new York market holiday. Advances up to 20 cents were registered on heavy turnover in a dozen of the smaller producers and development stocks. Silver shares also continued to rally on good volume, while Base Metal and oil stocks were quiet but firm.

SPECIALIST GIVES SIGHT TO WOMAN STONE BLIND

MONTREAL, Oct. 12 (CP)—On her way to Boston to show American surgeons the result of an operation which has transformed her from a woman stone blind to a woman with almost normal vision, Dauphne Muir, English novelist, has arrived in Montreal.

Accompanied by Sir Harold Gillies, famous British plastic surgeon, and Lady Gillies, the well-known authoress arrived here yesterday aboard the Empress of Britain.

A year ago she was completely blind. On her eyes Tudor Thomas, well-known eye specialist from Cardiff, grafted bits of other eyes until slowly the light returned. Views took shape and form, and eventually she was seeing once again. She now has no trouble distinguishing objects and faces. Seeing again is still strange to her, however.

EXPENSE VOUCHERS MISSING FROM ATHLETIC BOARD BOOKS

Deficit in Commission's Finances Amount to $11,000 According to Auditors.

TAX NOT COLLECTED.

TORONTO, Oct. 12. (CP).—Ontario Minister of Health J. A. Faulkner to-day made public a report of auditors who examined books of the Ontario Athletic Commission and revealed expense vouchers for the years 1931 to 1933 inclusive were missing. The report also said deficit in the Commission's finances this year amounted to almost $11,000 and more than $12,000 last year.

The report also charges the tax from the Toronto Baseball Club, operating the citys' International League team, was not collected daily in compliance with the act setting up the commission. It added the result was that the 1931 two-percent tax on gate receipts was believed uncollectable.

The audit said in some instances travelling expenses of commissioners were not covered by vouchers. The statement covering travelling expenses, it declared, show that those of Commissioner T. A. Murphy averaged $4 a day for every day of the year from the end of October, 1931, to Sept. 7, 1934, when the new commission took office.

"We are informed," the report said, "that on or about July 30, 1934, many of the vouchers belonging to the commission were removed from the commissioners' office by some person or persons unknown. We have, therefore, found it difficult to analyze the various income and expense accounts."

It said that in the statement submitted travelling expenses and daily allowances of the commissioners "had been distributed to other accounts." It said salaries for only 11 months of the year had been included in the expenditure account.

"The commission," the report continued, "owes the Department of Public Works $6,000. This is the balance of a $10,000 loan made when the summer camp at Orillia was constructed. The commission agreed to repay the loan at the rate of $3,000 a year; the payments, however, have not been kept up."

Elephant Flies

NEW YORK, Oct. 12 (CP)—Tote, the 22-weeks-old, 200-pound elephant, is no longer at the Central Park Zoo—he flew away.

Occupying no less than six seats in a passenger plane, Tote took off from the Curtiss Airport yesterday for his new home, the St. Louis Zoo. He was accompanied by Mr. and Mrs. Martin Johnson, who brought him from an African jungle.

Tote took his trunk along, but disdained a parachute.

HAVELOCK'S BUSINESS SECTION UNDERGOES MILD REVOLUTION

Considerable Property Changes Hands, Many Stores Are Altered.

BAKERY IS RE-OPENED.

HAVELOCK, Oct. 12 (Examiner Correspondence) — A mild revolution has taken place in downtown Havelock during the past month. It is not the kind of a revolution that often make the front page, but a few of the moves that have taken place have been noted as follows:

Marion's T Room on Ottawa street formerly occupied by Ray Scott, now farming, has been taken over by Eldon Pirie, who gave it the new name. It was formerly known as The Rose Room.

Mr. S. S. Joyce had the store in the west half of his block prepared for a new barber shop; but instead, H. W. Krantz, expert tinsmith from Bancroft took possession and now has a most up-to-date line of goods appropriate to his profession.

Michael Said, Assyerian fruit dealer of Ottawa street, recently opened a branch store in Ottawa, Ont. It was rumored Mr. Said was financing the New Havelock Exchange store which started up a short time ago on the corner of Ottawa and Oak streets. This building owned by J. W. Bryans is being made available for the McColl Frontenac Oil Co., who purpose erecting an elaborate service station and garage at a later date. Many months were spent in locating some of the papers for the property which the last Chinese resident of the village allegedly took with him in his hasty flight from the community.

The Exchange was moved last week to new quarters in Mrs. G. Brewster Gawley's house on George street opposite the Presbyterian Church.

John M. Scott of the Home Bakery, Peterborough city and formerly of the Havelock Home Bakery, returned to the village and has a most up-to-date bakery in the building formerly occupied by Patterson's bakery.

George Wilde's shoe hospital was removed from the Joyce building on George street to a combination shop and residence building around the corner on Oak Street. A. C. Denike and sons own the new building.

The east half of A. Leeson & Son's building on Ottawa street is vacant, having been operated by different parties as an egg grading depot.

Dame rumor has it the Masonic brethren are contemplating the purchase of the Old Queen's Hotel to be used as a lodge quarters; but no confirmation of this report could be obtained.

At the end of this month the tobacco and confectionery stand of C. P. Voyer's in the east section of the Aboud building is being purchased by Mr. George Aboud, who will live in the quarters over the store.

POTATO GIFT FOR THE WEST

Two Hundred Bags Contributed by Churches of Millbrook.

RELIEF SUPPLIES

MILLBROOK, Oct. 12 (Examiner Correspondence) — The contributions in potatoes, and other vegetables donated from this community, and surrounding countryside, left at W. E. Ball's shop on Wednesday afternoon, totalled approximately two hundred bags. Three truck loads were taken to Peterborough, to make part of the relief supplies being sent to the West, the train leaving, it was expected, on Thursday.

Donations were from practically all denominations locally, and distribution, upon arrival at the train's destination, is made impartially without respect to any church affiliation whether Protestant or Catholic.

Announcements from the pulpits of local churches, and personal calls from collectors appointed for that purpose, were the means used to secure donations, and there was much gratification at the generous response. This is the third year in succession that the residents of village and countryside have contributed, with the same generosity, to a similar call. It was felt, however, that this year's supply was the largest yet received locally.

St. Andrew's Auxiliary

Mrs. J. L. Byam was hostess for the October meeting of the Women's Missionary Auxiliary of St. Andrew's Church which met at her home on Wednesday at 3 p.m., with the president, Mrs. (Rev.) A. L. Sisco, in the chair.

The Supply Secretary, Mrs. J. Spence, reported the annual bale packed and shipped, and the president brought up the matter of the relief bale for the West, each group leader being made responsible for seeing her group and securing donations. Clothing in good condition will be especially appreciated and any interested may give as distribution is among all denominations.

Miss Mary Widdis, group convenor took the chair for the program, Mrs. O. Williamson reading the lesson and the leader the leaflet on "Mutual Friendship." Mrs. McKnight took up the opening chapter of the new study book, "Builders of India." Mrs. Thornton assisting, and Miss Estelle Hetherington giving a most helpful talk on "The Life Abundant." A solo, "I would be true," by Mrs. W. W. Kennedy, and the announcement that a list of all religious and missionary books read by individual members will be asked for at the next meeting, the last twelve months being the period covered, with the benediction in unison, closed the gathering.

St. Thomas' Church W.A. Tea

Mrs. O. M. Westmacott, president of the Anglican W.A., extended the hospitality of her home for a "silver tea", sponsored by that organization, and held on Wednesday from 3 to 6 p.m. The large rooms were lovely with fall blossoms, and very inviting with their warm atmosphere to the many guests coming in from the dark and chilly day outside. Mrs. A. J. Fallis assisted the hostess in receiving in the hall, and Mrs. H. Attwooll was cashier.

The table in the tea room was centred with a cut glass bowl of asters, and tall tapers burned in silver holders on the table and buffet. Mrs. W. Cartwright Allen and Mrs. L. M. Bonneville poured tea, and serving the guests were Mrs. J. E. Allen, Miss Margaret Simpson, Mrs. Craig and Mrs. D. R. Fowler. Others who helped with the tea were Mrs. H. J. Russell, Mrs. J. W. Hilton and Miss Rose Macnamara.

Miss M. L. Collins had charge of the program which included piano duets by Miss Collins and Miss Simpson, and by Mrs. Allen and Miss Collins; and vocal selections by Misses K. Donnelly, Mary Nattress and Margaret Simpson. Financially the tea added a considerable sum to the W.A. funds, and also provided a most enjoyable social occasion.

Sweden has ruled that foreigners cannot own real estate or mines in that country.

SOVIET RUSSIA STILL BACKWARD IN SPITE OF PLAN

T. Fechney Addresses Local Branch of Engineering Institute.

IN RUSSIA 3 YEARS.

Progress Hampered by Inability of Russians to Adapt Themselves Properly.

Some interesting impressions of present-day Russia were presented to the members of the local branch of the Engineering Institute of Canada last evening, by T. Fechney of the Pratton Whitney Company of Canada.

Mr. Fechney was one of a party of twenty-one American engineers who went to Russia in the Autumn of 1930 under the three-year contract with the U.S.S.R. government, agrangements for which were completed through The Amtorg Trading Corporation in New York.

From his personal observation of conditions, Mr. Fechney concluded that while great progress had been made in the field of industry and education under the five-year plan Russia was still in a generally backward condition as compared with the advancement that has been made in the new world. He was of the opinion that the five-year plan had attempted to accomplish too much in too short a space of time.

First Of Season

The meeting presided over by John W. Pierce, chairman of the branch, was the first of the winter series that are held monthly in Paregon Hall. Following his address which was delivered in a delightfully informal manner, the guest speaker was besieged with questions which testified to the interest he had created.

During the question period Mr. Fechney said he believed that Russia would have to modify her program of reconstruction, although he feared that even before that was possible she might become involved in another war or revolution. Japan was casting covetous eyes on portions of Russian territory, while there was a considerable amount of internal dissatisfaction over conditions in general.

In his capacity as a technical adviser to the Russian government, Mr. Fechney was sent to a large engineering works at Kramatorsky, a place of 60,000 population. The plant employed 32,000 hands, including women who worked on an equal footing with the men.

One of the first things Mr. Fechney and his associates did at the plant was to go over the machinery and equipment and to place orders for several new machines. During the first year over 100 new machines, bought from Germany, were installed at the plant.

Backward Methods

"Methods of working are far behind our own," Mr. Fechney remarked, and while the government would spare no expense in providing up-to-date machinery, there was a complete disregard for important details of operation and so on, with the result that a great amount of work and machinery was spoiled and broken.

Many of the hands were inexperienced peasants whose only qualification as engineers was a lifetime spent on the land. Russian supervisors and foremen were little better as practical men, although many of them had wide theoretical knowledge.

In a Russian plant, the speaker stated, if a foreman or superintendent offended any of the workers he could be removed and a boss more to the liking of the employees elected in his stead.

While the Russians had spent millions of dollars in taking Americans over to help them with their various industrial problems, Mr. Fechney claimed they were generally unwilling to accept counsel and advice. They were loath to give up their crude and slow ways of doing things with the result that they piled up a lot of "grief" for themselves.

Progress Hampered

"They are making some progress but that progress is being hampered and delayed by the inability of the Russians to adapt themselves readily to changed conditions," he said.

When Mr. Fechney first landed in Russia he was very enthusiastic about learning the language, but he confessed that he never got beyond the alphabet stage. There were some letters in the Russian alphabet he believed that it was impossible for any English speaking person to pronounce. During the whole of his sojourn in the Soviet Republic, he had to rely upon an interpreter.

He spoke of housing and transportation as being particularly bad features of life in Russia. The general standard of living was very poor, and there was a shortage of food and clothing and other necessities of life.

W. T. Panjoy very ably proposed a vote of thanks, which was tendered to the speaker by the chairman.

To use 450 bales of surplus silk which cannot be sold Japan is making silk uniforms for its 70,000 railways employes and claims that the material is cheaper than wool or serge.

DIETING MADE HER A WRECK

Then She Found a Better Way to Reduce

TOOK OFF 15 LBS. WITH KRUSCHEN

This woman's first effort at reducing did reduce her—but not in the right way. She says it "reduced her to a nervous wreck"! Then she tried another method. Read what she has to say about that:—

"Twelve months ago I started a rigid diet for reducing, and in two months had reduced myself to a nervous wreck, with only slight loss of weight. I read about reducing without dieting, and decided to give Kruschen a trial. After the first jar my general health improved, and after eight months I sleep better than for years. I can eat anything, and feel a different person altogether, besides slowly losing 15 lbs. of excess weight in that time.

"I am naturally of very broad physique, and always weighed roughly 165 lbs., so I do not expect to reduce to 140 lbs., and will be quite satisfied to do away with the torture of dieting by slowly losing weight the Kruschen way. I take half a teaspoonful each morning, and it makes me feel life is worth living again—lassitude has gone, and it is a pleasure to go out."—(Miss) D. S.

Gently, but surely, Kruschen rids the system of all fat-forming food refuse, of all poisons and harmful acids, which give rise to rheumatism, digestive disorders, and many other ills. As the action of Kruschen affects surplus fat only, there can be no reduction of weight where there is no surplus.

One of the secrets of the effectiveness of Kruschen is the exact proportion of the six different salts it contains. Every batch of Kruschen Salts is tested and standardised by a staff of qualified chemists before it is passed for bottling.

Kruschen Salts is obtainable at all Drug Stores at 45c. and 75c. per bottle.

BUCKHORN.

HALL'S BRIDGE, Oct. 11.—(Examiner Correspondence).—On Tuesday last the usual meeting of the Buckhorn Ladies' Aid took place at the home of Mrs. Harry Shearer. After the usual business had been concluded, a quilt was planned to be made in the near future. Refreshments were served by the hostess and an enjoyable social hour spent by the members and friends.

The Rev. Mr. E. C. Moore was in the village recently making parochial visits.

Mrs. Bernard Walton and Miss Olive Fulton visited their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Archie Fulton, at the week-end, returning to Toronto on Sunday evening.

The Community Club held their weekly meeting on Monday, Oct. 1. After business a short program was put on under the management of Mrs. Henry Shearer and Mr. James Irwin. Several items of music were played by Mr. Irwin's orchestra and Miss Bernice Northey contributed a number of solos on the guitar. Choruses were sung by the Misses E. Irwin, B. Wilson and L. Shearer, after which the school teachers, Miss Dewart and Miss Dunford, presented the scholars with the prizes won during the past year for work and attendance.

Isaac Taylor, who recently underwent a major operation of St. Joseph's Hospital, after being in a very critical state for several days, is now reported to be doing well.

Mrs. Arnold Bennett, who has been in the Nicholls Hospital for an operation on the eye, returned home on Tuesday evening.

Mrs. Sullivan has returned home from St. Joseph's Hospital where she has been under treatment for some time.

Mr. Levi Morris' son, Lewis, who has gone under an operation for an old injury to the knee, is also reported to be doing well.

Dr. H. M. Yelland was in the village on Sunday last, and also on Tuesday, 9th.

On the evening of Monday, Thanksgiving Day, Mr. and Mrs. Rollie Armstrong entertained a large party of friends, dancing being enjoyed until it was time to go home and milk the cows.

On Thursday, October 4, a son was born to Mr. and Mrs. Neil Windover, of Hall's Bridge.

—yet tall, short, stout or thin, Tip Top fits them all!

Y'S MEN HEAR REV. C. D. DANIEL

Local Club Celebrates Birthday Anniversary of Founder of Y.M.C.A.

1,750,000 MEMBERS.

Rev. Charles Daniel was the guest speaker at the regular supper meeting of the Y's Men's Club last night. Since it was the anniversary of the birth on October 11, 1821, of Sir George Williams, the founder of the Y.M.C.A., Mr. Daniel based his talk on this man's life and achievements.

The Young Men's Christian Association owes its existence to a young man whose dream translated into action made possible this movement. At the dawning of the industrial era with its changing habits of life came the move of young men from the country to the city. Among the youth who made that change was the founder of the Y.M.C.A. So great were the temptations of the city life at that time and so prevalent was vice that George Williams made an effort among the young men to help themselves find an outlet for youthful exuberance in a constructive manner.

For three years groups of his fellow-employees met in young Williams' room for prayer, Bible study and mutual improvement. Led by a desire to spread the blessings attained from these Christian contacts, twelve of these young men met on June 6, 1844, and formed what they agreed to call "The Young Men's Christian Association." The original purpose of this movement was to help each other to put into practice the Christian principles in which they believed. This purpose is still paramount, and that it has an enduring appeal to youth throughout the world is attested by the fact that the Y.M.C.A. is in every continent and constitutes a world-brotherhood.

The Y.M.C.A. is the living evidence of the power influence and outreach of a young man's life. To-day there are over 10,000 Y.M.C.A.'s with a membership of 1,750,000 in thirty-seven countries. What a contrast to the original twelve members of only ninety years ago.

BENNETT SAILS

In the meantime London, no less than Canada, was speculating furiously on why Mr. Ferguson should be going to Canada with Premier Bennett within 11 days of returning here—and there was only one answer—an early Canadian general election.

Mr. Ferguson however bade farewell to Premier Bennett and Professor Skelton at the docks here, where the two latter boarded the Duchess of Richmond, sailing for Montreal.

Better Times In England

As he took the boattrain at London Prime Minister Bennett told the Canadian Press: "England is leaving the depression behind." And J. H. Thomas, Secretary for Dominion Affairs who went to the station to say goodbye to Premier Bennett echoed, "I agree."

Premier Bennett, fully recovered from the illness that sent him abroad for a rest was in high spirits. With Thomas and Sir Edward Harding, permanent Under-Secretary for the Dominions, among those standing by, Premier Bennett told the Canadian Press:

"I was delighted in London to see such evidence of increasing prosperity. Well-dressed people on the streets, crowds in the shops, and the spirit everywhere apparent, indicate that England is leaving the depression behind her.

"In continental Europe nothing so much impressed me as the position which the British Empire occupies in the councils of the world."

PRINCE GEORGE DELEGATED.

LONDON, October 12 (C.P. Cable). — The Duke of Kent—better known as Prince George, third son of the King—will attend the funeral for assassinated King Alexander of Yugoslavia. At first it was thought the Prince of Wales would make the journey.

Sir John Simon, Secretary for Foreign Affairs, will attend the state funeral in Paris for Louis Barthou, the late French Foreign Minister, assassinated with Alexander.

King Alexander

Louis Barthou

Queen Marie

Crown Prince Peter

Again the sound of an assassin's bullet echoes around the world, bringing back memories of 1914. Just as King Alexander of Jugoslavia and Louis Barthou, foreign minister of France, were reported near an accord which would strengthen relations between the two nations, a fusillade of bullets from an assassin's gun ended their lives along with that of General George, a French officer. King Alexander, the only royal dictator in Europe, was making a journey to France of which much was expected. In view of Mussolini's pronouncement that Jugoslavia was an enemy of Italy, the result of the conference was expected to be significant. When word was first flashed that he had been assassinated, it was feared that an Italian had done the shooting. This was later disproved when it was learned that the murderer was a Croat, one of the numerous nationalities that make up Jugoslavia. Louis Barthou has been much in the news since he became foreign minister under the Doumerge regime. His frequent clashes with Sir John Simon of Britain are well known, and he has been called on many occasions the real ruler of France for the past many months. In rightful succession to King Alexander stands little Crown Prince Peter, eldest son of King Alexander and Queen Marie. It is reported he will succeed to the throne within a few days, probably under a regent. Queen Marie, daughter of Queen Marie of Roumania, was away on a cruise when the tragedy happened. It was at the villa of Prince Paul of Jugoslavia that Prince George of England proposed to Princess Marina of Greece. The assassination is expected to have its political implications since the accord which Jugoslavia was reported near with France may be broken, resulting in Jugoslavia linking up with Germany against Italy.

BAILIEBORO UNITED CHURCH HOLDS ANNUAL CHICKEN SUPPER

Y.P.S. ELECT OFFICERS.

BAILIEBORO, Oct. 12 (Examiner Correspondence) — There was a large crowd at the annual chicken supper and bazaar held under the auspices of the United Church Ladies in Fletcher's Hall on Tuesday evening.

The crowd commenced coming at five thirty o'clock and it was not until after eight that all were served.

Mrs. B. Dawson, president of the Ladies' Aid was in charge of the tables where the various articles donated by the women were offered for sale. She was assisted by Mrs. T. E. Dawson and Mrs. Edmund Dawson. Mrs. J. Lang and Mrs. W. Thompson were in charge of the farm produce table. Misses Hilda and I. Thompson, H. McMahon and P. Smith were in charge of the candy and novelty table.

Mrs. O. Williamson, Mrs. G. Fletcher and Miss May Earl officiated at the fish pond, while Mrs. Ira Dawson conducted the bean guessing contest which was won by Mr George Fletcher. Mrs. F. C. Jewison sold tickets at the door.

Mrs. H. Barnard and Mrs. W. Bateman were in charge of the supper tables.

The occasion was considered one of the most successful yet held in the history of the church.

The Young People's Society held their regular weekly meeting in the church on Tuesday evening.

The worship period was conducted by the president, F. Barnard.

The pastor, Rev. E. M. Cook then conducted a service of the installation of the new officers for the ensuing year which are: Honorary president, Rev. E. M. Cook; president, F. Barnard; secretary, Miss A. Barnard; treasurer, H. Seens; organist, Miss P. Watt; editor of society paper, B. Gainer; convenor of Christian fellowship department, Mrs. N. Thompson; convenor of Missionary department, Miss F. Rahmel; citizenship, J. Ackison; literary, Mrs. M. Perrin; recreational, Miss B. Barnard.

At the conclusion of the installation service Mr. Herbert Dean gave an excellent address on Christian citizenship.

Miss F. Rahmel conducted a brief recreational period.

Issue Too Great

During his cross-examination of a witness from Bancroft in a claim for damages arising out of a motor accident, heard in County Court here yesterday, W. F. Huycke, counsel for plaintiffs simulated mild surprise upon learning that the roads in that section were surfaced with crushed rock.

"Haven't you got a highway down there yet?"

"No. We are waiting for Peterborough," witness replied.

"Who is your member there?"

"Dr. Faulkner."

"No. I mean before the election," Mr. Huycke persisted.

"The Honorable Mr. Cooke."

"And couldn't he get you a highway," Mr. Huycke asked.

"We are not prepared to meet that issue," C. A. Cameron of Belleville, counsel for the defence, rejoined.

Europe's Destiny In Youthful Hands

KING PETAR

CROWN PRINCE MICHAEL

Once Petar was crown prince. Today, after the assassination of his father, Alexander, the 11-year-old lad becomes king of Jugoslavia. Once, Michael, 14 years old, was king of Roumania. Today he is crown prince. He gave up the throne when his father, Carol, was called back from exile to take over the throne. The two lads are cousins. Their hands are young to hold the destinies of people!

Bandits Ask $138,500 For 3 Missionaries

SHANGHAI, Oct. 12 (A.P.).—The captors of three missionaries, including a Canadian woman, demanded the huge ransom of 500,000 Mexican dollars (about $138,500) to-day.

This dismaying news was received by the local station of the China Inland Mission, to which the three were attached. There is no possibility that this sum—or anything at all—will be paid, it was indicated.

The victims were seized Tuesday when returning from a conference at Kweichow. Miss Grace Emblen, the Canadian, a British and a Swiss missionary were taken, but wives of the two men were allowed to return to Kweichow.

Nearly all foreign missions in China have advocated a policy of refusing to meet ransom demands, regardless of the sum, because of the widespread activity of bandit-kidnappers.

New Type Automatic 20-Shot Pistol Used By Alexander's Assassin In Marseille

MARSEILLES, France, October 12—The double slaying of King Alexander and Louis Barthou on Tuesday was done with a new type machine gun pistol, capable of discharging 10 bullets in two seconds, experts revealed yesterday.

The assassin fired 10 shots, seven of which struck the three occupants of the back seat of the official automobile indicating that most of the spectators who were injured were hit by bullets aimed by police at the murderer.

The slayer, it was established, had two pistols and a hand grenade. He only used one pistol. This was a new type of automatic Mauser, capable of firing two charges of 10 bullets each without reloading, at a rate of 280 shots per minute.

A special regulator enabled the user either to fire single shots, or to release them in bursts like a machine gun as long as pressure was kept on the trigger.

The man who killed King Alexander regulated it for machine gun fire, but by skilful pressure on the trigger was able to control the fire and aim at each of his victims.

FIRE PREVENTION BULLETIN

This is Fire Prevention Week—Do Your Part to Reduce Peterborough's Fire Losses

"John Dillinger was a piker in comparison with fire," declared Fire Chief Gimblett today. "The man who was known as Public Enemy No. 1 and was so relentlessly pursued by thousands of police officers was responsible for the death of less than twenty persons, and stole money and bonds amounting to a hundred or two hundred thousand dollars. Yet in 1933 fire took ten thousand lives and destroyed property worth more than three hundred and fifty million dollars."

Chief Gimblett made this statement to emphasize the importance of ceaseless vigilance in preventing fire. Dillinger is dead and his depredations have been ended but fire, a more dangerous public enemy, is always ready to break out and destroy life and property if it is encouraged by carelessness.

Criminals like Dillinger work of their own accord but fire in most cases is helped by careless humans who give it an opportunity to rob them of their valuable possessions. Careless smokers, those who mix gasoline and fire either in home dry-cleaning or in the garage, parents whose children play with matches, those who tamper with electric wiring, and many others are all paving the way for fire's inroads.

"A great deal has been said about Dillinger's cruelty and ruthlessness," the Chief continued, "and about his disregard of life and laws. For utter cruelty, nothing can compare with fire. It sears and scorches little babies and the aged as well as adults. Dillinger's victims suffered the pain of bullets which is nothing like the pain fire brings its victims. And those victims who do escape with their lives bear horrible scars to their graves.

"The fact that this country's fire losses are so large, and that it is largely due to carelessness, should be a matter of shame to every citizen. Let us all unite to rid our nation of this menace that constantly threatens every home and building and every man, woman and child.

"We of your fire department are constantly on call to do what we can for you when the fire starts. What is done to prevent fire altogether is largely up to you. Your Fire Department can give you valuable advice on preventing fire. If you will accept it and treat fire with respect, you can be sure that you are making your life and your home more safe."

Rib Cracks, "Mighty Atom" Falls In Faint As He Tosses 100-Pound Weight For Crowd

NEW YORK, Oct. 12.—(CP)—The "Great Mighty Atom," professional strongman and medicine hawker who appears before New York's gawking street crowds in a leopard-skin, was in hospital today threatening to huff and puff and blow the place down if they didn't soon make him better.

He was nearing the highpoint of his sales talk last night when something cracked. That something, it developed later, was one of the Atom's ribs.

The Atom, who in private life is Joseph Greenstein, 51, had gone through his routine of bending iron bars across the bridge of his nose, hauling automobiles around with a rope tied to his hair, and had come finally to the dumbell number.

With a great flexing of muscles and a violent shake of his long mane, the Atom grasped the 100-pound dumbell and hoisted it firmly and slowly over his head. Then it happened.

"Opp!" said the Atom, and collapsed.

His son, Harry, 21, who was preparing to meet an expected rush to buy bottles of the herb tonic that "changed my father from a weakling to a modern Sampson," leaped to his aid.

An ambulance was called but by the time it arrived the "Mighty Atom" had recovered consciousness.

In a final burst of showmanship he offered to tow the ambulance back to the hospital with a rope tied to his hair. The surgeon prevailed on him, however, to make the trip in the customary manner.

His son ascribed the mishap to a fracture suffered years ago.

Balkans Still Powder Barrel

An assassin's bullet again changes the European scene. With the deaths of King Alexander of Jugoslavia and French Foreign Minister Louis Barthou, further complications have entered the situation which observers state may completely change the trend of events. Up to the moment of the murders, King Alexander, richest king in all Europe, and the only royal dictator, was making overtures to France (or vice versa) to form a new alliance against a common enemy, Italy. Meanwhile, however, Germany has also been courting Jugoslavia, and the possibility now exists that the Balkan nation, made up of more than five distinctly different nationalities will swing toward Italy. In the event she does, it may mean either the break-up of the Little Entente of Jugoslavia, Roumania and Czechoslovakia, or the transferring of its relations from France to Germany. The assassinations therefore checked an attempt on the part of France to further entrench herself as strongest nation in Europe. The maps shown ABOVE illustate the situations as they now stand. Both Jugoslavia and Italy seek control of Austria for rich iron deposits. Reports indicate that troops from both nations are being massed at borders in view of King Alexander's statement made before his death, that assassins were being trained in Milan, Italy, for the express purpose of shooting him, although the actual murder was committed by a Croat, one of the Jugoslavian nationalities. The map at TOP shows the positions of the various countries in the drama. The LOWER map shows how Jugoslavia herself is divided into many different nationalities, most of whom are enemies. It is reported that the death of the king, hated by the Croats, caused this people to start rioting. It is claimed they have had no say in the governing of the nation as a whole. Forther uprisings from the down-trodden people are feared. Only the iron hand of Alexander kept them in subjection previously, observers state.

Suspicion

CHICAGO, Oct. 12. (CP). — Fortune tellers aren't helping the happiness of Chicago homes, the Rev. Clinton C. Cox, pastor of the Drexel Park Presbyterian Church, says he has learned by submitting a questionnaire to 500 couples in his congregation.

Such statements as "There is another woman in your husband's life," and "Beware of a tall dark man," he says, are disturbing factors.

Neilson's Cocoa Contest

Ford V-8 Standard Tudor Sedan, fully equipped, 2 C.C.M. Bikes and 2 Air Line Coasters, to the winners—everybody has a chance—enter the contest now.

A C.C.M. bicycle for boys and a C.C.M. bicycle for girls to the lucky ones—get your entry in at once.

Two of these new Air Line Coasters equipped with real General Jumbo tires holding five pounds of air each, and real automobile brakes—Boy, oh! Boy, the winners of these coasters will be the envy of the town.

CONTEST RULES

1. Estimate how many entries will be received in this contest. Neilson's will give a new 1934 Ford V-8 Tudor Sedan, fully equipped, to the person whose estimate is the closest to the actual number of entries received.
2. Each estimate must be written on the back of a label from a tin of Neilson's Jersey Brand Cocoa, or on a reasonable facsimile of the label, together with your name and address—and in the case of those under sixteen, sex and age.
3. This contest is open to every resident of Canada—men, women, boys and girls—except employees of Neilson's and their families.
4. Boys and girls under sixteen years of age are eligible for all prizes—the car, the bicycles, the wagons, but can win only one prize. Persons over fifteen are eligible for the car only.
5. A dandy Air Line Coaster will be given to each of the two winners in the contest for children between the ages of five and nine years inclusive. One to the boy and one to the girl whose estimate is nearest or closest to the actual number of entries received. A C.C.M. bicycle will be given to each of the two winners in the contest for children, between the ages of ten and fifteen inclusive. One to the boy and one to the girl whose estimate is correct or closest to the actual number of entries received. Don't forget to give your age and sex.
6. In the event of a boy or girl winning the automobile then the bicycle or wagon, as the case may be, (major prize in the children's contest) will go to the next boy or girl competitor whose estimate is closest to the actual number.
7. You may send as many estimates as you wish, but each estimate must be on the back of a Neilson's Jersey Brand Cocoa label or on a reasonable facsimile thereof.
8. In the event of tie priority will be given to the entry bearing the earliest post mark.
9. All entries must be addressed to Neilson Jersey Milk Chocolates, Post Office Box 254, Toronto, Ont.
10. Contest closes at midnight, December 28, 1934. The judges of the contest will be Mr. W. J. J. Butler of the Toronto Mail and Empire, T. M. Dunn of The Toronto Telegram, and Harry (Hal) Foster, famous sports announcer. The decision of the judges will be final—no correspondence will be entered into with contestants.

RICHARD HALL, LIMITED

BETHANY PAIR 50 YEARS WED

Mr. and Mrs. Richard Johnson Observe Golden Wedding Anniversary.

POPULAR RESIDENTS

BETHANY, Oct. 12 (Examiner Correspondence)—On Sunday, Oct. 7th, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Johnston of Bethany celebrated their golden wedding anniversary.

Mrs. Johnston, whose maiden name was Sarah Kennedy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Kennedy, and Mr. Johnston was a son of the late Mr. and Mrs. James Johnston, were married by the Rev. Mr. Bennett at the home of the bride's parents. The bridesmaid was Elizabeth Graham of Bethany and the groosman was H. A. Johnston of Millbrook, Ontario.

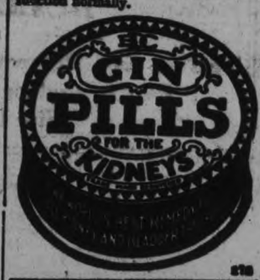
Mr. Johnston is in his 84th year and Mrs. Johnston is in her 72nd year and both are enjoying good health. They have one son, Harry at home and three daughters, Mrs. Thomas Jackson of Bethany, Mrs. Milton Faills of Millbrook and Mrs. Elmer Rowan of Brunswick. They have nine grandchildren living and one great grandson.

Mr. and Mrs. Johnston have lived all their lives in Bethany and have been faithful members of the Presbyterian Church. Mrs. Johnston being an elder in the church for sveral years. Mrs. Johnston was the first organist in the church.

Following the dinner which was held at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Thomas Jackson, the bride of fifty years ago was presented with a gold bar pin set with amethysts and the groom was given gold initialed cuff links. It was a very happy event and all present joined in wishing the happy couple many more years of continued health and happiness.

Too Much Uric Acid

Is a very common cause of Rheumatism, Sciatica, Lumbago. Deranged kidneys allow an excessive amount of uric acid to accumulate. Take Gin Pills to give relief while they are assisting your kidneys to function normally.



BAILIEBORO

Mr. and Mrs. John Dawson of Detroit are visiting at the home of Mrs. B. Dawson.

Messrs. F. Pendrie, F. Burton and A. Scott of Millbrook attended the fowl supper in the hall on Tuesday evening.

The ball club are sponsoring a baseball tournamerit on the local diamond on Saturday afternoon.

Miss Marie Barnard and friends of Port Hope attended the supper in the hall on Tuesday evening.

Mr. and Mrs. W. E. Thompson and son Billie of Peterborough attended the United Church supper in the hall on Sunday evening.

Centreton Services Are Well Attended

CENTRETON, Oct. 12 (Examiner Correspondence) — The anniversary services were held at the United Church on Sunday, Oct. 7. Rev. W. T. Scott of Roseneath was the speaker at both services. The home choir rendered the morning music when two anthems were sung. Baltimore Male Choral Society had charge of the evening music. Both services were largely attended. The Choral Society sang an anthem and R. Grey sang a solo the rest joining in the chorus. A violin solo was softly played. On Thanksgiving night a fowl supper was served and was well attended. A bountiful repast was served. And the following program was given by Baltimore Choral Society: Choir, "O Canada"; cornet solo, Ed Laycock; monologue, Clarence Burgess; vocal solo, Ernie Menhenlott; choir, "The Grandfather Clock"; vocal duet, Messrs. Burgess and Menhenlott; choir; banjo solo, Clarence Burgess; vocal solo, Reginald Grey; cornet solo, Ed Haycock; vocal duet, Messrs. Burgess and Menhenlott; choral number, choir; National Anthem by all.

Rev. P. H. Neville was the chairman of the evening.

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Oct. 12.—Yugoslavia remained calm to-day despite sensational reports abroad that riots and anti-Italian manifestations had occurred throughout the country.

This was established after telephonic conversations with Sarajevo, Ljubljana, Zagreb, Split, Subotica, Ossick and other points where "serious riots" had been reported. Anti-Italian disorders, however, were reported to have taken place yesterday at Sarajevo and at Ljubljana.

Zivojin Lazic, Minister of the Interior, said there was not a shred of truth in the reports, calling them "pure inventions."

"It is not in the heart of a Slav to indulge in rioting while the King of his country lies dead," the minister asserted. There is considerable feeling against Italy but this sentiment certainly has not taken the form of open demonstrations in the streets.

Want No Attacks

"The government has given the strictest instructions to authorities throughout Yugoslavia to prevent the slightest untoward attack against our neighbor, Italy:

"I earnestly ask the people of other countries to believe me when I say that Yugoslavia is entirely tranquil and will remain so."

Belgrade prepared to receive its new king, 11-year-old Peter II to-night. He is coming on a special train from Paris with his widowed mother, the dowager Queen Marie.

Dispatches from Split said high seas and storms were delaying the destroyer Dubrovnik, bearing the body of King Alexander from Marseille. It has been expected in Split today, but may not reach there until Sunday.

State funeral ceremonies planned for Alexander here Wednesday, may be postponed until Thursday.

August Moshutich, leader of the outlawed Croatiapeasant party, told the Associated Press in Vienna last night that Croats would never be satisfied until they had achieved absolutely independence from Yugoslavia.

He predicted Alexander's death would soften the dictatorship which had existed since 1929, but said Serbs would continue to rule the government, virtually to the exclusion of Croats and Slovenes.

Northern Airports Nearing Completion

NORTH BAY, Ont., Oct. 12.—(C.P.)—Rapid progress is being made in the construction of airports by the Federal Government in this district, and, according to G. L. McGee, superintendent at the district headquarters in North Bay, the airports at South River, Porquis Junction and Diver are now ready for emergency landing purposes. Approximately 300 men are working on the construction of the mine ports.

On a tour of inspection, J. A. Wilson, director of Ottawa, director of civil aviation, and Squadron Leader E. A. Tudhope of Ottawa, visited the almost completed South River, Diver and Junction fields and approved the work.

PUFF BALL WEIGHS 15 LBS.

While out in the country yesterday, Fred Long, 23 Jackson Street, picked up on a farm near the Green Hill, North Monaghan, an immense puff ball, weighing 15 lb. 3 oz. The circumference one way is 32in, and the other way 34½in. This is one of the largest puff balls that has been gathered in this district. It is on view in The Examiner window.

MAYOR TO ADDRESS CLUB.

Mayor Roland Denne is to address the members of Friday Night Supper Club at the Y.M.C.A. this evening, when it is understood he will discourse on matters pertaining to the early history of this city. The address promises to be an interesting one and a good attendance of members is anticipated.

ATTENDED PLOWING MATCH.

Peterborough was well represented at the big International plowing match on the farm of Frank P. O'Connor at Toronto yesterday. Besides J. J. Duffus, who is connected with the event as one of the officials of the Ontario Plowmen's Association, there were present Mayor Roland Denne, W. G. Morrow, R. M. Glover, James Juby, George A. Gillespie and John Gillespie.

The Mayor met and talked with Premier Mitchell Hepburn and other members of the Provincial cabinet, and also the Lieutenant-Governor, who was the guest of Mr. O'Connor.

CORRECTION

Correcting the report in which his child, Robert Brown, was fatally scalded Monday, Roy Brown said to-day he was listening to the radio in the kitchen where the accident occurred, not in a front room as related in yesterday's issue.

Obituary

JAMES EDWARD CROWLEY

The death occurred at six o'clock last evening, at his residence at 664 Charlotte street, of James Edward Crowley, in his sixty-fourth year.

The late Mr. Crowley was a native of Otonabee township and spent all his life in this district. About thirty-five years ago, he gave up farming and came to the city to live, being employed first by the Canadian Pacific Railway Company and later by the Utilities Commission. His father was the late David Y. Crowley, one of the early settlers of the township of Otonabee, who died a few months after his son was born.

The deceased was a man of very quiet habits and equable temper. He was a devoted Catholic and excellent citizen. His patience and forbearance, during a lengthy and difficult illness, was characteristic of his habitual manner and bearing.

He is survived by his sorrowing wife and three brothers—Michael and David of Otonabee and Walter of Geneva, New York.

The funeral will take place from the family residence to St. Peter's Cathedral, on Monday morning, with Mass at nine o'clock and interment in St. Peter's Cemetery.

The Weather

TORONTO, Oct. 12. — (C.P.) — Synopsis: A disturbance is passing eastward south of Nova Scotia, while pressure is high in the James' Bay region and in the Southwest States, with low pressure to the northward of the western provinces. Rain, with some snow in northern districts, has fallen from the Ottawa Valley eastward though elsewhere east of the Rockies the weather has been fair. It has been warm in the west, but it is quite cool this morning throughout Eastern Canada, with strong easterly winds and gales in the Gulf of St. Lawrence.

Lower Lake Region and Georgian Bay— Fresh northerly winds, fair and cool. Saturday—Moderate to fresh variable winds; fair and cool.

Northern Ontario — Northerly winds; fair and quite cool. Saturday, fair and becoming a little milder.

Ottawa and Upper St. Lawrence Valley—Fresh northerly winds; fair and quite cool to-night and Saturday.

Magistrate's Court

Four drunks comprised the entire docket in magistrate's court this morning. Three of them drew fines of $15 and costs of $4.50 each, or in default 15 days, while the fourth member of the quartette was given the minimum of $10 and $4.50 costs, or 10 days.

Those who were given the stiffer penalty were Ernest and Harry McManus and Thomas Sullivan, all of Bridgenorth, who were in an intoxicated condition in the back seat of an automobile that was parked on Wescott street last evening. Arthur King was the defendant who escaped with the minimum.

300 Pulp Workers On Strike In North

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., Oct. 12 (CP)—Three hundred workers in pulpwood camps north of here were reported on strike to-day. More than 1,000 men are employed in the 17 camps of the Abitibi Pulp and Paper Company in the district.

Sixty additional men came into the Sault from the area last night, but so far no violence has been reported. Patrolling the strike area, which extends almost 200 miles up the Algoma Central Railway, one lone Provincial policeman was responsible for preservation of order.

PLAN MORE JOBS FOR GRADUATES

Father Coughlin Discusses Proposal With Roosevelt for College Youths.

IN GOV'T SERVICE.

NEW YORK, Oct. 12 (AP) — A plan to help alleviate the plight of college graduates who are unable to find places in the business world was outlined yesterday by the Rev. Charles E. Coughlin, Detroit priest, who said it had met with favorable reaction from President Roosevelt.

"There are more than 100,000 college graduates unable to find work in the vocations they are trained for," he said. "I talked with President Roosevelt about this. There are 25,000 young people now employed in the government service. I discussed a plan with him to employ more.

"Briefly, it would allot so many hundred white collar or secretarial jobs to each major college president. The college head would designates his young men and women and they would be placed in government posts. Of course there couldn't be 25,000 placed each year. The number would be nearer 5,000."

Turning to a discussion of silver, Father Coughlin said he believed the administration would go through with its program to elevate the price of that metal, and declared the ultimate outcome would be a commodity dollar. The President, he said, intends to stabilize commodity prices in a narrow range.

This is a noon dinner for school children. Simple deserts are best for them, and noon is the best time for their dinner, with a lighter meal at night. You may prefer another dessert, so I am enclosing another recipe just in case.

Today's Recipes

Apple Sponge Pudding.—Two tablespoons gelatin, one-fourth cup cold water, one-fourth cup boiling water, one-fourth cup orange juice, two tablespoons lemon juice, one and one-half cups strained apple sauce, one-third cup sugar, two egg whites, one-fourth teaspoon salt. Soak gelatin in cold water for five minutes. Dissolve in boiling water. Add fruit juices, apple sauce and sugar, stirring until sugar is well dissolved. Cool until mixture starts to thicken, then beat until light and fluffy. Beat in egg whites which have been beaten stiff with the salt. Turn into glasses or serving bowl and chill. Serve with a soft custard sauce. When serving, top each with a cube of red jelly, or a spoonful of orange marmalade is equally tasty.

Banana Tapioca Cream.—One-third cup quick cooking tapioca, one-half cup sugar, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one egg yolk, four cups milk, one egg white, stiffly beaten; one teaspoon vanilla, two bananas. Combine tapioca with sugar, salt, egg yolk and milk in the top part of a double boiler. Stir enough to break the egg yolk, place over hot water, heat to scalding and cook five minutes, stirring constantly. Remove from hot water, fold in a small amount of the stiffly beaten egg white, add remainder and blend well. Add vanilla and chill. Just before serving, crush one banana with a silver fork and dice the other; fold into the tapioca. Serve garnished with a cube of red jelly, or plain.

FACTS AND FANCIES.

Candied Citron

Peel and core the citron and cut into strips. Weigh the fruit and allow one pound of sugar to each pound of citron strips. Make the syrup, allowing one cup of water to each pound of sugar; cook five minutes. Add citron and boil gently until tender. Remove from syrup and spread out on platters to dry slightly. Add a small amount of ginger to the syrup, just enough to give it a slight flavor, and boil until very thick; add the juice of one lemon to the quart of syrup. Put strips of citron back into syrup and stir until candied and coated with sugar. Again spread out on a platter to cool and dry.

Trent River

Members of the Ladies' Aid met Tuesday afternoon to clear the table and wash dishes which had been used the night previous for the fowl supper after which they met in the kitchenette for their regular meeting with the president, Mrs. Gordon Shearer in charge. Mrs. Harold Wood gave the secretary's report and Ms. John Scott the treasurer's report. Two dollars was received from Mrs. G. Holmes of Toronto, a cottager for quilting a quilt for her. Mrs. Holmes most generously donated $10 to the Aid members to be used for purchasing new hymn books for the church. Vote of thanks given to Mrs. John Garneau who donated a load of wood for use in the kitchenette the night of the fowl supper. All outstanding bills in connection with the fowl supper were ordered to be paid. Mrs. Shearer was appointed to purchase the new hymn books. The members plan to purchase a new heater for the dining hall. The members plan to donate a certain sum of money to the church board of managers in the near future. The mispah benediction closed the meeting.

Mrs. H. R. Wood was a visitor Tuesday afternoon with Mrs. R. H. Fairbrother and Mrs. J. Doupe and Miss Ada.

Mr. and Mrs. Reg Taylor, Mr. and Mrs. Jack Scully left Wednesday for Toronto after spending a few days at the former's summer home "Idlewood."

Mr. George Johnston is improving the shore line at Whitehall Gardens Pavillion Grounds, building a stone wall along the water front.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

It is no longer possible for any one to say that he drives an automobile just as well when he has had a drink as without one.

The question has been put to the test of scientific experiment.

It is possible to determine whether a person is under the influence of alcohol. After an automobile accident has occurred, this can be definitely established by the police, so that no excuse the driver gives is valid. In Milwaukee Dr. H. A. Heise has been conducting experiments for some time. He found that if there was 0.02 per cent. of alcohol in the blood (or urine) of the driver of the automobile he could safely say he was under the influence of alcohol. An ounce of whiskey will usually produce this.

In studying 119 consecutive automobile accidents, nearly twice as many (74 to 45) involved drivers who were intoxicated. In the same series there were over three times as many people injured (155 to 44) in the cases where intoxicated drivers were involved.

In nine cases of hit and run drivers, in all seven cases in which the drivers were caught, the percentage of alcohol was always as much as ten times the minimum of 0.02 per cent.

It is not the obvious drunk who is driving a car who is the worst menace, but the one who can be called the drinking driver. Most accidents occur from the hours of 5 and 7 p.m. (the cocktail hour) and again from 11 p.m. to 1 a.m.

The experimenters have set aside for their use a certain district of the city in which to try out the efficiency of a driver after he has had a few drinks. The drivers were given 150 c.c. of whiskey (5 ounces). Under the influence of this they did not appear drunk; given the ordinary tests to determine drunkenness they passed them satisfactorily. That is, if brought into a police station they could not have been proved to be intoxicated.

Under test conditions they performed satisfactorily the routine actions involved in driving.

There was, however, a definite variation from normal in actions that had not become a habit, such as avoidance of obstacles placed in the road, backing, which was poorly and inaccurately accomplished, and the substitution of an unusual action for one that was normally used, such as using the hand brake for the foot pedal.

The time which elapsed between the giving of a signal and the application of brakes was longer, or more uncertain, in the intoxicated than in the sober driver.

The drinking pedestrian is definitely shown to be a menace in the case of accidents of this kind; in cases where children were hit, the driver in most cases was sober.

Dr. Heise prefers to say intoxicated rather than drunken drivers, as the latter term is resented. "Intoxicated" simply means under the influence of alcohol.

Since the chemical test of body fluids for alcohol is simple, it should be used to confirm evidence otherwise deducted.

Editor's Note: Six pamphlets by Dr. Clendening can now be obtained by sending 10 cents in coin, for each, and a self-addressed envelope stamped with a three-cent stamp, to Dr. Logan Clendening, in care of this paper. The pamphlets are: "Indigestion and Constipation", "Reducing and Gaining", "Infant Feeding", "Instructions for the Treatment of Diabetes", "Feminine Hygiene" and "The Care of the Hair and Skin".

ONLY MARGARET'S BEAUTY CAN SURVIVE SHINY NOSE

Margaret Sullavan

The lovely Margaret Sullavan, whose favorite working costume is a pair of slacks and a jersey, confesses that she doesn't mind having a shiny nose now and then. Peggy isn't the gal to spend hours on just primping up. And she really doesn't need to. For any girl possessing Peggy's flawless complexion really doesn't have to worry if her nose gets shiny once in a while.

However, the average girl, who is not blessed with so perfect a skin, usually can't afford to have a shiny nose. It's too likely to reveal the flaws in her complexion. And there's nothing like a skillfully applied bit of powder to conceal complexion defects, and to enhance the basic loveliness of one's appearance.

I don't intend, of course, to give any woman the impression that she must literally coat her face with powder in order to make her skin look attractive. But I do believe that powder helps. And I find that those women who have difficulty in finding a powder that adheres well and gives a soft, peach-like effect of youth, make the mistake of choosing either too light or too heavy a powder for their particular type of skin. There are, you know, light, heavy and medium-textured powders. But women often do not know which type is most appropriate for use on their own skins.

The majority of oily-skinned women have the idea that they must use a very heavy powder, so that it will stay on and cover any shininess. But this isn't true. For fine powders cling just as well as heavy powders if they have the property of adherence. And indeed, when the skin is oily, a heavy powder may prove detrimental by clogging and distending the pores. The best type of powder for the normal or oily skin is the kind that, while adherent, is fine enough to permit the evaporation of moisture, and thus prevent any shininess.

Dry-skinned individuals generally choose very light, fine powders. The best type of powder for the dry skin, however, is the kind made on a proper cream base, or containing a bit of almond meal. For such powders will not dry out the natural moisture of the skin, but will rather help to keep it soft and smooth.

ANSWERS TO QUERIES.

Teeth

Doris: I'd suggest that you have your teeth cleaned and polished by a dentist to remove all tartarous matter. Proper cleansing will then keep your teeth white and sparkling.

Figure

Bess: The reducing course in my "New Figure" booklet is indeed a healthful and effective one. This course takes off about 8 to 10 pounds in two weeks, and includes reduction of the bust, waist, hips, abdomen, buttocks and thighs.

Blonde Hair Rinse

Patsy: The blonde hair rinse consists of the juice of one lemon, one tablespoon of vinegar, one tablespoon of peroxide and a pint of clear water.

SALLY'S SALLIES

A woman argued with a flood of words but convinces with a flood of tears.

MOUNT JULIAN.

On Sunday last the Harvest Thanksgiving service was held in Eden United Church, a good-sized congregation attending. The fields, forests and gardens produced articles of such fine quality, that the church was never more beautifully decorated nor showed evidence of a better harvest.

Rev. G. Porter delivered a very appropriate sermon, choosing for his text, Deut. 6, 10-41.

A special feature was a solo, given by Mr. Collins, of Camp 5, which was greatly enjoyed and much appreciated by the congregation.

The Harvest Thanksgiving service was observed in the Holy Trinity Anglican Church on Sunday, Sept. 30th. The splendid samples of a bountiful harvest was displayed to perfection in the quaint little church of the old English design. The pews were well filled and a very interesting and appropriate sermon for this special occasion was given by Rev. E. C. Moore.

Mr. and Mrs. McKenty of Buckhorn district, also Mr. and Mrs. Norman Wilson and Miss Dorothy Bell of Apsley attended the Harvest Festival service at Holy Trinity Church on Sunday.

Miss Lena McCauley, who has been spending a vacation in Peterborough and Douro, returned home on Sunday.

Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Crocker and little sons, Allen and Douglas, also Mr. Samuel Crocker, all of Peterborough, spent the week-end visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs Albert Reid.

Miss Dollie Church, R.N., who has been visiting with her parents, Mr and Mrs. Allan Church, and other relatives in this district for the past month, has returned to her position at the Shriners' Hospital, Montreal.

Mr. and Mrs. Fred Smith and children of Toronto spent the week-end at Stoney Lake.

Mrs. Sloan of Toronto is spending a few days at Stoney Lake.

Friends of Mrs. Grety Schoeni of Toronto, who is a vocal pupil of Dorothy Allan Park, and has often delighted audiences here with her sweet singing, will be sorry to learn that she is returning to Switzerland next week to live. Mrs. Schoeni will give a farewell recital on Saturday evening in the Concert Hall of the Toronto Conservatory of Music, when her program will consist entirely of Schubert compositions. She will be assisted by Weldon Kilburn at the piano, and Dons Wheeler, a pupil of Norah Drewett de Kresz, is also playing.

Don't forget the Firemen's dance at the Brock Street Summer Gardens, next Tuesday evening. The firemen spend many weeks each year collecting, repairing, and delivering toys for the children of the city, for Christmas. Already, they have started doing this work, which takes plenty of time. They need funds for the necessary paint and other repair goods, and this dance will assist them in this way. Your attendance and support will help the firefighters to help children who otherwise might have a lean Yuletide.

Invitations will be issued shortly for a dance to be held in the Canadian Legion Hall on November 16, under the auspices of the Canadian Department Stores, with music by Mose Yokom and his orchestra.

Magistrate Walter Davidson of Calgary, well known here as a former resident, doesn't believe in coddling. He handed out fines of five dollars, and costs, or thirty days in jail, to nineteen workers at the Canadian relief camp near Calgary, who yearned for a change of diet and came to the city to get it. Roast beef at the camp, with an occasional stew thrown in, palled in time, so they went to two Calgary restaurants—eleven to one and eight to another—and ordered up a meal with all the trimmings, and then told the manager to call the police as they could not pay for it. The manager did.

PLUCK EYEBROWS WITHOUT INJURY

But London Specialist Warns Belladonna in Eyes May Have Bad Effect.

LONDON, Oct. 12 (C.P.) — A good word has been said for eye "make-up" by Dr. Marcelli Shaw, chief clinical assistant and senior registrar of the ophthalmic repartment of Guy's hospital.

"I am often asked," he said, "by my women patients whether eye cosmetics are harmful. The beauty of a woman's eyes may be enhanced by the aid of cosmetics." No medical reason exists for discouraging their use. Very often women ask me: 'May I pluck my eyebrows?' and I tell them to pluck their eyebrows as much as they like.

"That habit of putting belladonna into the eyes is pernicious. Women sometimes put this stuff into their eyes to make them big and beautiful. If the habit is persisted in it may have a very bad effect on the muscles of the eyes."

At the Theatres

AT THE CAPITOL.

"TREASURE ISLAND."

Pieces of eight and Spanish doubloons—bottles of rum on a dead man's chest— "ho, heave he, my hearties"—galleons with sails spread to a breeze that carried them to an island where treasure waits, guarded by skeleton hands—all the thrilling paraphernalia of the old pirate tales of buccaneers who hoisted the black flag with the skull and crossbones—they have their way in "Treasure Island," filmed from Robert Louis Stevenson's immortal tale and featured at the Capitol for the last three days of this week.

There will be many who will disagree, possibly, but this reviewer has a notion that the roles of Barrymore and Beery, reversed, would have made for a more veritable screen version of the story. The genius of Barrymore would have made of the part of Long John Silver a more villainous and therefore a more familiar characterization. When Wallace Beery speaks of slitting a man's throat, the good-natured leer on his fat face belies the murderous element in the words, and there are at moments almost a burlesque handling of the picture of the one-legged man who played such a powerful part in the story of the lad who set out from Bristol to search for pirate's treasure trove.

Jackie Cooper, still with the pursed-out lower lip and the attitude of sincerity that colors his work, has the role of Jim Hawkins; Barrymore is the short-lived Billy Bones, and Otto Kruger, who stands out in this picture, is Doctor Livesey. The stern Captain Smollett is Lewis Stone. Squire Trelawney is Nigel Bruce, and the old, daft, itchy Ben Gunn of the island, is Charles ("Chic") Sale. It is a great cast and a great story, with nary a lady at all but the briefly-appearing Mrs. Hawkins (Dorothy Peterson), and plenty of grim excitement on the high seas and on the island. The episode of the hand-to-hand fight makes for many thrills.

"Treasure Island" affords a wonderful opportunity to see in the flesh those exciting and memorable figures in R.L.S. famous book.

Of exceeding interest on this program also is the glimpse vouchsafed of the famous Dionne quintuplets (whether you pronounce that word with the long or the short u sound, you get it both ways in the picture. Old Dr. Dafoe inclines to the short and his son to the long (u). Their surroundings, the babies themselves, their nurses and their doctor, all appear on the screen, with the parents as minor figures.

Just Between Us Women

A daily chat with Examiner neighbors conducted by Anne Wilcox.

Front stairs have always been one of the decorative architectural features of a house. Winding stairs are the most graceful because a curve is the line of beauty. In early mansions curved or circular stairways were in high favor. Sometimes there would be two such staircases one above the other mounting up from the first to second story, and then from second to third with a break in the ascent on the second floor for the stretch of hall. This led to a position just above where the first stairway began and here the second staircase started. In these old houses, and those like them one can stand on the first floor back and look straight up through the centre of the curve to the third floor. Either in looking up thus or down from the top, the precision and grace of the stairways is fully seen.

* * * * * *

In many houses one flight of stairs comes above another in the main hallway. However this arrangement had its drawbacks as houses built on such a plan have difficulties to contend with in heating. Warm air rises, and heat is partial to the top floor, to the detriment of the warmth of lower ones. This was one of the chief reasons for many home builders not having the circular open staircase as described, and having stairs to the third floor either enclosed or positioned elsewhere in the house.

* * * * * *

Speaking of enclosed staircases, they are not put in fine houses except for back stairs on those which serve for both back and front stairs from second to third floors. These box stairways have no decorative merit whatsoever. They are purely practical. This is their redeeming feature. In some old farmhouses, such stairs were built in order to conserve heat on the lower floor. It will be noted, however, that even in those old dwellings in which there is any attempt at architectural beauty, there are open front stairways leading from tiny front halls which halls are scarcely more than vestibules. There are doors at right and left of the stairs. These lead into living rooms. Doors were kept closed in cold weather. No heat was lost.

* * * * * *

Stairways with landings are favored. These break the climb without interfering with the ornamental appearance. In fact this is accented decidedly when a broad landing has a window from which there is a good view, or which lets in sunlight. Sometimes where such a landing is broad, a chair or settee is on it where one can rest, or sit and enjoy the view. Such landings are favorite places for grandfather's clocks.

* * * * * *

Sometimes where there is enough space, stairways branch to right and left about halfway up, and enter the second floor from both sides of a hall. In small houses this is neither attractive nor practical. A cramped looking hall results, and there are extra stairs to keep clean In spacious houses, such a staircase can add decidedly to the elegance of the hall giving an appearance of space as well as decorative attractiveness.

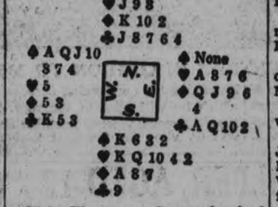
CONTRACT BRIDGE

WRITTEN FOR CENTRAL PRESS

By E. V. SHEPARD

THREE DIFFERENT SCORES

In a duplicate game all West players played the deal shown below at 4-spades. At each table the opening lead was the J of hearts, and yet three different scores were made. Only one table made 5-odd, another table made only 3-odd, while the 6 remaining tables tied at 4-odd. How did this happen?



Eight Wests won the opening lead with dummy's ace of hearts. Five Wests ruffed a return lead of hearts. Three Wests led back a club, winning with the K. Eight Wests led the ace of spades, then gave South a trick with his K of spades. After that the swings in scores came about.

The 5 Wests who ruffed a second lead of hearts to reach their hands, to lead trumps, took the safer course, but of course they had no opportunity to pick up an overtrick. When the South players won their trump trick, in each instance the defenders won their 2 diamond tricks, giving the declarer just the game. The swings in score came in the 3 cases where the declarer did not ruff a heart for the second trick.

At one of the 3 tables where West won his second trick with a club, South led a heart when he was in with the K of trumps. West ruffed, completed his trump pulling, then won 4 club tricks. On the last club trick he discarded one of his 2 losing diamonds, thus making 5-odd. At another table the defenders took their 2 diamond tricks when South won his spade trick, giving the declarer just 4-odd.

At the third table where West won a club trick to escape from dummy, South took advantage of his voidness of clubs to defeat the contract. He led his ace of diamonds. North won the second diamond trick, then he had wit enough to lead back a club, which South ruffed, for the setting trick. Three tables had this opportunity to defeat the contract, but only one of them utilized it.

Six missing cards of a suit, most often are divided 4-2 between opponents. When West put himself in with the K of clubs the great danger was not that he might give South a ruff. The grave danger was that 4 to a J in South's hand would prevent him from discarding one of his 2 losing diamonds, while 5 clubs in the South hand would enable South to give North a ruff, in case North held 3 spades.

MRS. MATHEW KENNY

A new entrant in the "maternity sweepstakes" is Mrs. Mathew Kenny of Toronto. Under the terms of the Charles Millar will, $500,000 goes to the Toronto mother who bears the most children from October, 1926, to October, 1936. Mrs. Kenny claims to have had ten children during that time and is now informed by doctors that she will bear twins next month. This will place her far in the lead. Of Mrs. Kenny's thirteen children born in eleven years, only three are living.

ROAD-BUILDING PLANS TO PUT MILLIONS INTO CIRCULATION

Consider Undertakings "As Bold as Those of Imperial Rome"

RELAX ECONOMY

London.—Vast schemes of road development, which were shelved during the "economy" wave of 1931, are now receiving favorable consideration by the ministry of transport and decisions to start work on some of them have already been taken.

Plans are being made to proceed with great projects for by-passes, bridges and tunnels with a total value approaching $50,000,000. Local authorities, so sharply is policy to be reversed, are to be encouraged to submit others.

When he opened the Silvertown Way, the new approach to London docks, Leslie Hore-Belisha, minister of transport, spoke of undertakings as "bold as those of imperial Rome," and said he would give "preference to works of utility, which have in them the germs of imagination and foresight."

Fund Set Aside

Big plans, based on future requirements rather than small improvements of temporary value, will be assisted in future by grants from the road fund which has an income of $100,000,000 annually.

Foremost among the large developments certain to be put in hand during the next few months is the Winchester by-pass road.

This road, held up since 1931, is now regarded by experts as the greatest and most pressing scheme in the south of England.

Another certainty is the Tamar tunnel, connecting Devonport with Torpoint and so linking Devon and Cornwall by road. The tunnel will cut out 20 miles by a circuitous road route.

Plans for the tunnel will be submitted to the minister of transport after the meeting of the Devonport Mercantile Association.

Other big schemes pending include:

Dartford-Purfleet tunnel under the Thames, $15,000,000.

Humber bridge at Hull, $10,000,000.

Forth bridge at Kincardine (Fife), $2,000,000.

Tunnel under the Tyne, $10,000,000.

IN COMA SIX WEEKS MAN EATS HEARTILY

Effects of Head Injury Put Patient in Deep Sleep

Hampton.—A one-armed man, shot in the back during a car crash, has lain in a coma for six weeks. During that time he has only spoken a few incoherent words. He appears to be in a deep sleep, but he eats three meals a day in a normal way. His diet consists of light, easily digested food such as fish, milk and fruit.

A nurse feeds him by the mouth, and he can be roused sufficiently to swallow without any difficulty.

The man is Frederick Charles Elton, of Jersey Rd. He is just under thirty years of age—a clean-shaven, swarthy young man, stated to be very strong physically.

He is making a good recovery from the shot wound. But there has been a recurrence of the effects of head injuries receiv d in a car accident some years ago. To these, two specialists who have examined him attribute his strange coma.

The man is under day-and-night observation. Regular reports are made by nurses who watch him to the medical officers in charge of the case.

CITY'S DIN TIRES BOY CYCLES 400 MILES

12-Year-Old Prayed When Frightened on Trip

Glasgow.—Leonard Victor, a 12-year-old schoolboy, was so disgusted with the noise and congestion when he returned to his native London after his holiday in Scotland that he cycled 400 miles in five days back to the scene of his vacation.

He learned to ride a bicycle last May—and average 80 miles a day.

He did the whole trip on five shillings. He drew it from his own bank.

He lived on one meal a day. Once rats stole his meal, and he ate raw corn and berries. He slept in haystacks.

When he was frightened, he prayed.

WIFE SAVES HUBBY BY STOPPING TRAIN

Men Fight on Track as Express Nears

Leicester. — While her husband struggled on the railway track with a man who is alleged to have attacked him, Mrs. L. W. Linnell, the wife of the keeper of a level crossing near Lutterworth, seeing an express train approaching, dashed to the signal lever and put the signals at danger, pulling up the express.

It is alleged that two men in a car, held up by the closed gates at a lonely crossing, demanded that they should be opened and they took the key from the keeper.

KAYE DON IN MOVIES

London.—Kaye Don has signed a contract to star himself in a film to be based on the story of his life. The film will be called "Crash!" The film will include actual newsreel shots of Don at Daytona and of his epic struggles with Gar Wood for the Harmsworth trophy.

London.—The famous Crockford's club—mecca of card-players in the west end—whose palatial home in Carlton House-terrace is the largest of its kind in London, is in the hands of receivers.

'NAGGED' HUBBY GETS YEAR IMPRISONMENT

"Peaceable" Man's Wife Dies From Strangulation

London. — Sidney Haggerty, 41, who was acquitted of the murder of his wife, but was found guilty of manslaughter, was sentenced at the Old Bailey to 12 months' imprisonment.

Mrs. Haggerty died from strangulation at their home in Acanthus Rd. Medical evidence was that she had had a weak throat.

Haggerty, whose statements that she had "nagged" him for years were supported, said he grasped her throat after she had abused him.

Mrs. Haggerty was described as a violent woman and Haggerty as a "peaceable and quiet" man.

WORKERS' TRIBUNAL TO TRY OWN 'IDLERS'

Employees Share in Business—Holiday Out of Accrued Profit

Leicester.—Idlers in a new boot factory are to be "tried" by a tribunal of their fellow-workers, who will decide whether or not they shall be dismissed.

This provision is contained in the prospectus of a company which is being formed on a co-partnership basis with the workers as shareholders.

The prospectus has just been issued by Frederick T. G. Thompson Hunt, a son of the late T. G. Hunt, who was head of a large boot manufacturing firm. It states:

"Should it be reported that one employee is idling away his time, or depriving his fellow workers of their share of profits, an explanation will be called for, and unless it can be satisfactorily explained a committee of inspection composed of employees will be formed to decide whether the idler shall be dismissed or given another chance by being placed on probation."

Another clause states that "as every man is worthy of his hire, so he is entitled to a holiday," and that the managing director (Mr. Hunt) has agreed that "each and every employee shall unite together with their wives in taking a holiday at any health resort in England once a year at the expense of the company out of the accrued profit."

HOLDS BACK TON ROCK TO SAVE TRAPPED PAL

Blaenavon.—At the Big Pit, a 27-year-old miner, Nanty Hughes, was caught beneath a huge fall of roof.

A rescue party worked for an hour to extricate him. Just as they reached Hughes a huge stone, almost a ton in weight, was seen to be slipping from the top of the low roof.

Without a thought of his own peril, Reginald Jones, another miner, who is a Blaenavon rugby forward, stepped beneath the stone and supported it with his back.

After Hughes, badly injured, had been pulled to safety, Jones jumped clear and the stone crashed to the ground.

RESCUE BOY FROM TREE

Twickenham—While climbing a high tree in Wellesley Rd., Strawberry Hill, Peter Weaver, aged seven, of Twining Ave., lost his nerve, and had to be rescued by the Twickenham fire brigade's escape. He became panic-stricken when 30 feet from the ground, but held on grimly till the arrival of his rescuers.

ONE OF THE ENTRIES IN LONDON TO MELBOURNE FLIGHT

Airmen in the old land are keyed up over the forthcoming race from London to Melbourne. ABOVE picture shows Capt. T. Neville Stack inspecting his new racing aeroplane, which he will pilot in the race. It is an Airspeed Viceroy machine and was on view for the first time at Portsmouth airport. Capt. Stack is at the extreme left and his engineer and wireless operator, J. H. Gordon MacArthur, is the man on the right.

CHAMPION GOLFER, AGED 13 PREFERS GAME OF CRICKET

Cries, "Take Me Away" as Cheering Crowd Surges Around Her

PLAYED SEVEN YEARS

Longniddry—Nancy Jupp, freckled little Scottish wonder golfer, aged 13, won the girls' championship at Stoke Poges, but she says she prefers cricket.

She beat Joan Montford (North Foreland), who is 18, by 3 and 1 in the final.

She broke a record, too—youngest and smallest girl who has ever won a national golf title, senior or junior.

Nancy did not seem to think she had accomplished anything remarkable.

"Take me away," she begged her father, as the cheering crowd closed in on her at the finish.

"Deeds, not words" might be the motto of Nancy, a sturdy little figure, defying the heat wave in woollen jersey, pleated short skirt, and football stockings turned over at the tops.

She was genuinely concerned for her opponent. "You see," she said, "Joan will be too old to play in the championship next year, but I shall have five more chances."

Nancy, a perfect, easy-swinging golfer in miniature, will doubtless make much of these chances.

Her father, himself a four handicap golfer, old Somerset cricketer, and Edinburgh Wanderers rugby player, promised her five shillings if she won her first-round match; offer doubled for each succeeding round.

"And I thought it the safest bet I'd ever made," gleefully said father, who travelled from Edinburgh to watch the final.

Nancy means to buy a new set of clubs with some of her winnings. "Not all, though," she said. "The professional at Stoke Poges has promised me three wooden clubs."

The new girl champion has been playing golf since she was six. She has no handicap yet, and the championship is her first competition. Yet Nancy would rather play real cricket—her father's game.

GASSES SELF AND DOG

London.—"I cannot live without you. Never again shall I hear you come up the road in your car."

This was part of a pathetic letter left by a woman for her husband before she gassed herself and her pet dog in a locked kitchen. It was read at a Reading inquest on the late Mrs. Dorothy Betty.

A verdict of "Suicide while of unsound mind" was returned.

FOUR YEARS' TRANCE ENDS WITH REUNION

Man Who "Died" Recovers—Couldn't Recognize Own Children

Folkestone.—A man has returned to his home and family after having been "dead" for four years.

He remembered his wife, but he did not even recognize his two children—a boy and a girl. They were babies when he "died."

He is Victor Cleave of Station Cottages. He was a railwayman.

He fell ill in May, 1928, consequence of wounds he received when serving with the Royal Engineers during the war.

He was obsessed with a desire for rest. He dropped to sleep even during meals.

Finally his health broke down completely and he was removed to the Ministry of Pensions hospital at Cosham.

There he lay for four years in a complete trance. He never opened his eyes again until Whit Sunday 1932—four years later.

For months he lay, still helpless, in his bed. Gradually he recovered the use of his limbs, his joints, his muscles.

He had to learn to walk again. When he went out his feet were so unused to the touch of the ground that walking hurt him. "I am like a dead man who has come back to life," he said on his return home.

DOLLS, RATTLES, BOOKS PILED HIGH AT PULPIT

Bishop Dedicates 1,800 Toys to Sick—Replace Flowers and Fruit

Tichfield.—The sanctuary of a little Norman church was filled with enough toys to stock twelve hospital nurseries.

Because he believes that "hospitals must be tired of dead flowers and surfeits of fruit," the Rev. G. S. Morley, vicar of St. Peter's holds a "toy service" on harvest festival Sunday.

On a recent Sabbath eleven hundred people—85 per cent. of them grown-ups—walked to the church carrying 1,800 toys.

The service was attended by the Bishop of Portsmouth and the mayors and Mayoresses of Portsmouth and Winchester, who wore their mayoral chains and carried brown paper parcels of toys. As the hymn, "All Things Bright and Beautiful" pealed out on the organ the congregation slowly filed up to the sanctuary.

There stood the vicar receiving the toys and arranging them on the floor. In twenty minutes, lying in the pale light that filtered through the windows above the altar, were rag dolls back to back with china beauties, model ships, aeroplanes, motor cars, books, bricks, a concertina and a golliwog, teddy bears, a baby's rattle.

"In the name of Jesus Christ we dedicate these toys for the sick and suffering . . ." So the Bishop of Portsmouth pronounced the dedication.

BIBLE BEST-SELLER IN 678 LANGUAGES

Add 11 New Translations in Year—Gipsy Version Unique

London. — Last year, 1,427,444 copies of the authorized version of the Bible were sold at home and abroad, and 10,993,203 copies in 678 languages were distributed throughout the world.

The Bible has been for more than three centuries the best-selling book in the world. Eleven new languages were added to the list last year.

The most important was the translation into Afrikaans. It took ten years, and its publication was made a national event. The King accepted a copy from the South African Dutch peoples, and a few months after it was published there was a copy in 220,000 Afrikaan homes.

Another translation was made by a Romany gipsy into the Lettish Romany tongue. It is a translation of the Gospel According to St. John, and was made by the gipsy Janis Leimanis, a poor man, who, supporting his family by his labors by day, gave his nights to this laborious work for five years. When they placed the first printed copy in his hands, he broke down and sobbed.

BOY AIDS FAMILY BY PEDDLING SOAP

Morden.—The enterprise of an 11-year-old school boy and former boy scout, who wanted to help his mother when she was ill and faced with a hungry family, brought him before the Wimbledon juvenile court.

He was charged with acting as a peddler without a license, but the charge was dismissed.

A constable saw the boy carrying an attache case containing soap, shampoos and other toilet requisites to a house, where he sold some.

LONDON'S CRIME DECREASES CITY BECOMING WEALTHIER

Less Beer Drinking, Survey Shows, But Overcrowding Up

MORE BOOKS READ

London is drinking less beer, reading more books, growing bigger, committing fewer crimes and becoming wealthier.

These are just a few facts in a book that tells in figures all about London's life and habits, "London Statistics 1932-33."

It searches every phase of the administration of Greater London, which includes important sections of five counties in addition to the county of London.

Every year it reveals, for instance, the wealth of the first metropolis in the world has grown until, in the period covered, local authorities, including six county councils, 25 boroughs, 48 urban councils, and eight rural and parish councils, spent $325,000,000 in making life more comfortable for Londoners.

Despite the spread of the Greater London, vast areas of overcrowding exist.

The black spots are: Finsbury (where 29.4 per cent. of the population live in overcrowded conditions, or more than two to a room); Shoreditch, with 29.1 per cent.; and Bethnal Green and Stepney, each with 23.6 of its inhabitants living in overcrowded dwellings.

London is drinking less. During the year 35 public-house licenses were extinguished, making a total of 1,455 fewer since 1905.

Westminster still has one public-house for every 350 of the population, and Fulham 2,126 persons to every public-house.

Drunkenness continues to decrease. So does crime. Civil cases reached the high total of 418,000.

Saturday is the most dangerous day of the week in London.

Sunday Safe Day

During last year L.C.C. ambulances responded to 42,384 calls, involving 44,250 killed or injured persons. Of these, 7,068 were involved in Saturday accidents, while Friday casualties totalled 6,550.

Sunday, 4,201, was the safest day of the week.

These accidents were spread over 2,252 miles of streets, the maintenance of which cost $18,005,000.

Hyde Park Corner, according to a census taken between 8 a.m. and 8 p.m. on July 11, 1933, is London's busiest with 64,735 vehicles. Marble Arch 52,197, Piccadilly-circus 51,160.

In 12 hours 81,357 vehicles passed this centre, as against 29,286 in 1904.

Trafalgar square was the next busiest with 64,735 vehicles, Marble Arch 52,197, Piccadilly-circus 51,160.

Londoners are reading more. Public libraries run by local authorities circulated more than 2,160,000 books to 20,570,000 readers last year.

CHOIR IS DISPLACED BY FARM WORKERS

Bishop Displeased as Choir Ousted From Loft

Stourbridge.—When the Bishop of Worcester attended Clent parish church to dedicate a memorial to the late vicar, he found six villagers occupying the choir stalls. The choir had to sit in the nave.

A local landowner, J. Amphlett, owns the chancel of the ancient church, and consequently claims to be entitled to use the two double seats there for his own family.

The people who used the seats at the service were tenants and employes of Mr. Amphlett.

The Bishop of Worcester contends that the choir should have had the use of the seats, and it was intended that they should sit there.

When they arrived in the church, however, they found the seats already occupied. The bishop is now determined to fight the matter out.

BARE-HEADED WOMEN BANNED FROM CHURCH

Orange Blossom Circlets Not Sufficient for Vicar

Hampton Hill. — "I cannot allow women to enter my church with bare heads. For many years it has not been allowed," said Rev. F. P. Harvey, vicar of the village church.

A bridal procession walking up the aisle was stopped by the vicar, who insisted that the bridesmaids, who had orange blossom circlets as head-dresses, should cover their heads with something more, otherwise he could not allow them in the building.

Someone handed them large handkerchiefs to wear and the ceremony then proceeded.

SELL RARE CHINA WOMEN BUY CAR

Family "Treasure", Thought Worth Little, Brings Large Sum

London.—Some time ago two women, living surrounded by family treasures in an old-world house in Lincolnshire, became possessed of a longing to own a motor car. But their means were slender.

So together they looked over the family treasures and after days of careful consideration chose an exquisite piece of Chelsea china consisting of two figures—a young man explaining to a maiden how to play a flute. This they sent to an auction room, putting a reserve price of $500 on it.

When dealers came to bid for it they could scarcely believe their eyes. The piece was "The Music Lesson," fashioned in the eighteenth century by a famous French artist named Roubilliac. Only three copies of it are known to exist, and one is in the Victoria and Albert museum.

One against the other the dealers bid for it, and the priced increased by leaps and bounds until the piece was sold for $15,750. When they were handed their cheque the two women were dumbfounded. Then they went out and bought a car!

"The Music Lesson" was the most valuable exhibit at the first Antique Dealers' Fair, which was opened by the Marchioness of Reading at Grosvenor House.

ENDS LIFE AFTER 'GOOD THING' FAILS

Man Works Hard, Saves, Then Loses All at Monte Carlo

London.—The death by gassing of William Rainbow recently revealed a story of hard work, careful saving and then an urge to play a "good thing" at Monte Carlo.

Mr. Rainbow went to India as a young man. He worked hard, he never gambled, and he rose to be a railway traffic superintendent in the United Provinces.

He came back to England with a gratuity o $30,000 and settled down with his wife in Putney. Then, three or four years ago, some one told him he could "make a good thing" at Monte Carlo. He went there with his wife, his money, and a "system."

But the "system" went wrong. William Rainbow sent his wife home; he thought she was spoiling his luck, he said. But the "system" continued to go wrong.

Then he was found gassed in a lodging he had taken in New St., Pimlico. The "system" had broken him.

At the inquest the coroner, in returning a verdict of "Suicide while of unsound mind," said the case was only another of those in which people, in their endeavor to get something for nothing, "lose all their money, lose their wives, get separated from their families, and end up with their heads over a gas stove."

PRINCE DISPUTES TAX LEVY APPEALS TO WORLD LEAGUE

Germany Drops Aid as Royal Landowner Opposes Hitlerism

SERVES JAIL TERM

Geneva.—The case of Prince Henry of Pless, whose appeal against the compulsory supervision of his $50,000,000 estates has just been finally rejected by the Polish courts, is to come up for discussion at the present session of the league assembly.

The prince is the son of Princess Daisy, nee Miss Cornwallis-West. As the largest single owner of land and industrial property in Upper Silesia he has been exposed to the determined efforts of the Polish state to bring the assets of that province under Polish control.

Some time ago the financial authorities discovered that the prince had omitted to pay certain taxes amounting, with arrears, to approximately $2,100,000 at present rates. The prince contested the claim and appealed, under the minority treaties, to the League of Nations.

The case was referred to the international court at The Hague, and, as private citizens are not permitted to appear there, the German government acted as intermediary. But the prince, though an ardent German patriot, is opposed to Hitlerism, and in February this year, after the conclusion of the German-Polish pact, the German government withdrew their claim at The Hague.

Meanwhile, the prince was sentenced to three weeks' imprisonment, which he has now served.

SURGEON LIFTS BRAIN TO REMOVE A TUMOR

Leningrad.—What is described as one of the most remarkable operations in medical history was performed at the Leningrad surgical institute.

A tumor the size of a pigeon egg was removed from the brain of a young girl. The malignant growth was threatening her with blindness.

The tumor was located only a few millimeters from the nucleus where all life centres are located. The surgeon, lifted a portion of the brain to remove the tumor.

for employing, among many thousands of men, one Danzig citizen.

In pursuance of the tax claim—still subject to investigation by the league, to which the matter has now been returned from The Hague—the authorities ordered, first a compulsory sale, and when this failed to produce results, the judicial supervision over his property.

Venice.—The Palazzo San Gregorio, one of the gems of Venetian Gothic which almost ranks with the famous Ca' d'Oro, has been bought by Prince Alexis Mdivani, husband of the former Barbara Hutton.

GOLD IN GALLEONS WILL BE SALVAGED

Spanish Engineer Seeks 'Pieces Of Eight' at Bottom Of Sea

Madrid.—Spanish gold which has been lying at the bottom of the Bay of Vigo since the early 18th century will be brought up to the surface to complicate further the world's currency problem, if the project of Manuel Mozo, local engineer, goes through.

The pieces of eight are in a fleet of galleons which, returning from the Spanish main with a golden cargo for King Philip V., were pursued by English privateers. Rather than let their wealth fall into the hands of the hated islanders the Spanish sailors sank their ships, and they have lain ever since at the bottom of the sea.

They lay there, however, only because no one could get to them, not because the world wanted to let them alone. French, Swedes, English, Italians and even a few Spaniards concocted schemes to get the money, but none succeeded.

Mozo feels he has the right idea at least, but it will cost him a large amount. It will take him three months to get ready. He will actually start a year from now, he says, and he will muster a crew by offering them a share in the booty.

He will use the caisson system of working the ships. He'll make just one, big enough to contain a galleon intact. The largest of these vessels displaced 600 tons, he says, and he figures that he can get it into a caisson 39 metres long, 10 metres wide and five metres high.

The caisson will be sunk by gravity. Once in position, the water will be forced out by compressed air. Workmen, tools and equipment will go down into it through tubes sticking up out of the surface of the water.

Working inside the caisson, the men will extract the gold, and anything else of value, and pass it up. The Spanish government will get 20 per cent. of the proceeds, and reserves the right to buy any articles of historical or artistic value which may be salvaged.

NUN CLAIMS KINSHIP TO LATE RUSSIAN CZAR

Faints After Quizzing by Friend of Dead Monarch

Vienna.—"I swear by God that I am the Grand Duchess Tatiana and that my father was the last Czar of Russia."

A woman screamed these words in a stuffy room at the Belgrade police headquarters.

The calm voice of a man—Professor Smirnoff, a former intimate of the Russian court—cut through her emotion like a knife.

"I knew the Grand Duchess Tatiana when she was a child," he said, "and knew her well just before her death when she was a young woman. If you were the Grand Duchess Tatiana I would know you, yet I see no resemblance. I do not recognize you. You even speak Russian with a Polish accent."

The woman rose and appeared as though about to speak, but collapsed in a heap on the floor.

This dramatic incident occurred during the police investigations into the claim of a thirty-seven-year-old nun, Natalie Radisheva, that she is the second daughter of Czar Nicholas, who, with his wife and family, was murdered in a cellar at Ekaterinburg in 1918.

After her collapse at the investigation she was removed to her lodgings, but she has been ordered to appear again.

CONGRATULATE EACH OTHER AFTER SENTENCED TO DEATH

Three Men Smile at Court's Verdict—Woman Accomplice Exiled

SHOT AT GOVERNOR

Darjeeling.—Three Indian terrorists, who attempted to murder Sir John Anderson, the governor of Bengal, at the Lebong racecourse, were sentenced to death.

Four others were sentenced to long terms of rigorous imprisonment.

One of the four was Miss Amiya Mujamdar, who was sentenced to transportation for life and fourteen years' rigorous imprisonment.

Her part in the attempt on the governor was to help to carry the weapons and ammunition.

There were amazing scenes in the court when the sentences were pronounced.

The three men sentenced to death exchanged congratulations, and were then congratulated by the other accused. All of them smiled broadly.

Miss Mujamdar was particularly cheerful, maintaining the extraordinary composure she has shown during the trial. She was dressed in brilliantly colored clothes, apparently specially for the occasion.

BAN "PENNY DREADFULS"

Canberra.—Almost immediate action is to be taken by the government to prevent the importation of sensational crime literature into Australia. The minister of customs stated that a proclamation would be issued imposing an import prohibition on all such matter.

FRANCE REBUILDS ARRAS CATHEDRAL

Work on War-Torn Edifice Took 15 Years

Paris.—The cathedral of Arras was wrecked by shell fire during the war. It has now been reconstructed, after 15 years' work, and formally reconsecrated after having been handed over to the church by Marshal Petain, the minister for war.

In presenting the keys of the cathedral to Mgr. Dutoit, bishop of Arras, the marshal said that the building, erected in faith and destroyed in hatred, had been built stone by stone, thanks to the love of the people for their sanctuary, to the respect of the authorities for the artistic patrimony of France and to the talent of the architect who had restored to the cathedral its original beauty.

WANT TAX ON RAZORS

Athens.—The barbers of Athens, who offer at nineteen cents the kind of haircut that costs 50 cents or more in New York, have been angered by American tonsorial practice. In their summer convention they were annoyed to observe that barbers who were charging such high prices were simultaneously cutting their own throats by allowing the sale of safety razors for home use at less than cost, with a view to building up the market for blades. The Greek barbers have demanded that their government place a heavy tax on safety razors and blades.

MIRROR REVEALS MAN'S DEATH DRINK

Girl Sees Her Lover Take Poison

Brighton.—Jealousy, remorse for having struck the girl he loved and anxiety regarding his financial position are believed to have led to a man drinking poison in the presence of the girl in her room at an hotel.

Albert Clare, formerly wine steward at a fashionable supper club in the West End of London, died in hospital.

It is stated that Clare quarrelled with the girl, Miss Ivy Fraser, of Great Windsor St., London, W., and struck her on the face. The next day Miss Fraser went to her room to tidy her hair, and Clare walked into the room. Just afterwards the girl, who, looking into a mirror on her dressing table, saw him drink from a glass and collapse.

GIVES LIFE FOR HER DOG

Car Kills Woman; Dog Escapes Same Fate

Minehead. — A seventy-year-old woman saved her pet dog at the price of her own life at Halford. She was Mrs. H. Tait, of Aberdeen Court, Maida Vale.

Her dog dashed across the main Minehead Bridgewater road in front of a passing motor car. Mrs. Tait dashed across to save it.

The dog escaped. Mrs. Tait was knocked down and died immediately.

WOMEN REVIEW INSTITUTE WORK

Delegates of Six Central Ontario Districts Meet at Belleville.

G. A. PUTNAM'S FAREWELL

MADOC, Oct. 11.—On Tuesday and Wednesday last, officers of the executive of the Women's Institutes, with the Presidents and Secretaries of the six districts of Belleville Area, No. 4, and the delegates from the branches of these six districts with visitors filled the capacious parish hall of St. Thomas' Anglican Church, Belleville, to overflowing.

Due to the generosity of the city florists and the untiring zeal of Miss Jones of Belleville, the hall was gaily decorated in Institute colors, with beautiful ferns, foliage and late blooming flowers.

The districts of Prince Edward County, East and West Northumberland and Nort, East and West Hastings were all well represented. Mrs. Munro of Demorestville presiding as chairman. A unique change had been made in the program and instead of the usual lengthy and somewhat wearisome reports of committee work being given, each district was allowed one hour in which to demonstrate the attainments and achievements of their own district during the year. The interpretation of this somewhat vague announcement was left to the district concerned, and each planned in its own way. North Hastings embodied in this hour the committee reports for which they were responsible; Health Education and Relief. Northumberland and Prince Edward called on their individual branches for numbers. West Hastings put on a Model Institute meeting, and East Hastings gave a variety program.

Contrary to expectations, Mr. G. A. Putnam, retiring superintendent, was able to be with the convention during part of the afternoon and for the evening banquet, and gave a very fine address, stressing the fact that by co-operation of all, even though derived of his leadership, the Women's Institute could and were already prepared to take immense steps forward in helpful service and achievement.

Much regret was expressed at his retirement, and yet he was vociferously requested to "Pack All Your Troubles in Your Old Kit Bag and Smile," then "For He's a Jolly Good Fellow" was sung as he left in haste to catch his train.

Miss E. Guest of the Department of Agriculture, Toronto, and Miss E. Hopkins, girls' leader, gave very able assistance and direction during the convention, and Miss Guest spoke in glowing words of what "Women and Farms Are Doing in Other Lands," adding many suggestions which might prove very helpful to women of Ontario and Canada. Prince Edward district proved a pioneer in establishing a link of friendly exchange of letters and greetings with West African Institutes. Northumberland showed clearly that in case of size they could be in themselves self-sustaining for a year, and probably a much longer time, with regard to home-produced food products.

The officers elected for the year 1934-5 are:

Chairman, re-elected by acclamation, Mrs. Munro, Demorestville; Vice-Chairmen, 1st, Mrs. Clarence Holmes, Stirling; 2nd, Mrs. W. L. Wicks, Cobourg; 3rd, Mrs. James Bailey, Eldorado. Secretary-Treasurer, Mrs. M. B. Weese, Redners-ville. Chairmen of Activities—Education, Mrs. C. N. Whytock, Madoc; Health, Mrs. F. J. Nickle, Eldorado; Publicity, Mrs. R. Withers, Picton; Legislation, Mrs. R. Alexander, Brighton; Community Activities, Mrs. L. Wilson, Roslin; Home Economics, Mrs. Charles Fraleigh, Bloomfield; Agriculture, Mrs. J. A. Devinery, Vernonville; Relief, Mrs. W. R. Grass, Gunter; Historical Research, Mrs. C. Ketcheson, Belleville; Immigration or Canadianization, Mrs. C. Holmes, Belleville; Canadian Industries, Mrs. L. Rodgers, Stirling; Decoration, Miss B. Jones, Belleville, and Mrs. James Garbutt; Federation Representative, Mrs. Murphy of East Hastings; Song Leader, Mrs. Harrison; Resolution and Courtesy Committee, Mrs. Demays and Mrs. Simmons; Girls' Work, Miss Olive Searls, Holloway.

Thanks were extended to the St. Thomas' Church for use of hall; to St. John's Guild for catering; to florists, musicians and speakers, and all who helped to make the convention a success.

Miss E. Hopkins, in conducting the Girls' Hour gave a lighter and more optimistic outlook by speaking from personal knowledge of the new superintendent of Institutes, Miss B. McDermand, graphically sketching her many activities and achievements in similar work in Athabasca and in New York, and speaking of earlier student days in Guelph.

Music and singing were interspersed during the program.

Hatchet Slaying Suspect Apprehended

Charged with the murder of his mother, Mrs. Nathaniel Vermilyea of Belleville, Ontario, Harold Vermilyea has been arrested in Ontario, California. He is shown here with Officer Wm. H. Hammond, who made the arrest. According to police, Vermilyea flew across the continent after the murder and then sent a telegram asking what is was all about, to his sister, Mrs. J. A. Faulkner, wife of the minister of health in the Ontario cabinet.

Weddings

RATH—BURGOYNE.

TWEED, Oct. 12 (Examiner Correspondence).—At the home of the bride's parents, 96 Dundas Street West, Belleville, a charming autumn wedding was performed Wednesday mornin_, when Rosemond Elizabeth Mary, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Burgoyne, became the bride of the son of Mr. and Mrs. Thomas S. Rath of Tweed. Rev. Dr. Semple, pasto: of Bridge Street United Church officiated.

The bride, who was given in marriage by her father, wore a graceful gown of brown velvet and carried bronze chysanthemums. She was unattended.

Mr. and Mrs. Rath left on a motor trip to Quebec, the bride travelling in a smart Langbourne three-piece suit, beaver trimmed, and felt tricorne hat. Upon their return they will reside in Tweed.

Obituary

MRS. JULIA ROBINSON.

TWEED, October 12 (Examiner Correspondence). — Mrs. Julia Robinson, wife of the late Thomas Robinson of Hungerford, died at the home of her son, Murney Robinson, on Sunday morning, October 7, following a brief illness, in her 70th year. She was born in Thurlow Township, a daughter of the late Mr. and Mrs. Albert Latta. On her marriage to Thomas Robinson, she came to Hungerford, where she resided practically all her life. The late Mrs. Robinson was a member of Bethel United Church, and took a deep interest in church work.

She is survived by two sons, C. A. Robinson, Durlingville, Albert and Murney at home, besides one daughter Mabel, also at home. Two brothers remain, W. Latta of Napanee, and A. Latta of Thurlow Township, and two sisters, Mrs. R. McCammon of Hungerford and Mrs. Percy Mott of Belleville.

The funeral was held on Monday from her late residence to Bethel United Church, where Rev. H. B. Herrington had charge. Interment was made in Thomasburg Cemetery.

The pall-bearers were: John Countryman, William Countryman, Roy Marsh, Hermon Tucker, J. H. Foster, and Fred Blakely.

ROYAL MORGAN.

TWEED, October 12 (Examiner Correspondence). — On Thursday morning, October 11, the death occurred in the Belleville General Hospital of Royal Morgan of the Village of Roslin. He had been in failing health for a considerable length of time.

The late Mr. Morgan was born in Huntingdon Township 66 years ago. For some time he lived in Crookston, eventually moving to the village of Roslin, where he had resided for the past twenty years. In Crookston and Roslin he operated a blacksmith shop. In religion he was a member of the United Church.

The late Mr. Morgan is survived by his widow, one daughter, Mrs. Fred Reynolds, Toronto, and three sons, Earl Morgan of Foxboro, Russell Morgan and Gordon Morgan of Roslin.

HUGH SPACKMAN.

TWEED, October 12 (Examiner Correspondence). — Word has been received in Tweed of the death in Guelph on Wednesday, October 10, of Hugh A. Spackman, father of W. Earl Spackman, manager of the Tweed branch of the Bank of Montreal. Mr. and Mrs. Spackman have been in Guelph since last Friday when Mr. Spackman, Sr., was seized with a stroke.

The late Mr. Spackman was well know nin Tweed where he spent a great deal of his time. For many years the late Hugh Spackman was a resident of Exeter, where he successfully conducted a hardware store. On his retirement from business nine years ago, he went to Guelph to reside, coming to Tweed for the summer months. He was in his 78th year.

Surviving are two sons, W. E. Spackman, Tweed, and F. C. Spackman, Guelph. One brother, E. J. Spackman, lives in Toronto.

STILL HEARTY.

GUELPH, Ont., Oct. 12 (C.P.).—Col. W. W. White, one of Canada's oldest military men, was still in good health to-day and found his physique unaffected by reports of his death.

A week ago to-day Col. White celebrated the 91st anniversary of his birth, still attending to his duties as an issuer of motor licenses. The following day the Canadian Press inadvertently included his name in its "deaths yesterday" feature.

KEITH EASON TOPS HOLSTEIN CLUB LIST

Ronald McDonald Close Second With 936 Points—Bruce Graham Third.

Keith Eson, Indian River, has been announced the high boy of the year in the Norwood District Boys' Holstein Heifer Calf Club, with second and third honors going to Ronald McDonald, Warsaw, and Bruce Graham, Hastings. The club activities for the season were brought to a conclusion at the Norwood Fair on Wednesday.

Final standings for the year were: Keith Eson, 937 points; Ronald McDonald, 936; Bruce Graham, 933; Allan Davis, R.R. 7, Peterborough, 931; Roy Drimmie, R.R. 5, Peterborough, 920; Armand Webster, Warsaw, 918; Paul Evans, R.R. 1, Indian River, 902; James Hope, R.R. 1, Keene, 894; Ivan Clyadale, R.R. 2, Warsaw, 893; Richard Coughlin, R.R. 3, Norwood, 881; Walter Clyadale, Birdsalle, 875; Stewart Fife, R.R. 1, Indian River, 873; Frank Fife, R.R. 1, Indian River, 861; Andrew Evans, R.R. 1, Indian River.

Award of points were made on the basis of a possible 400 points for the calf itself, 300 for the year's work, and 100 points each in the judging competition, the club examination and for showmanship.

The fourteen members of the club between the ages of 13 and 20, exhibited their animals at the Norwood Fair. Sponsored by the Norwood Fair Board, the club's prize money was supplied by the Fair Board and through grants from the Dominion Department of Agriculture and the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Agricultural Representative A. D. Runions supervised organization of the club.

As a result of the showings at the Fair, Ronald MacDonald and Bruce Graham were chosen to represent the club in the inter-club judging competition to be held at the Ontario Agricultural College in Guelph on October 19.

Exhibits were judged by F. J. Webster, agricultural representative, Picton, who spoke highly of the boys' work. W. G. Barrie, director of the club section, assisted in the day's program.

It is expected that these club members will care for the calves during the winter and show them as yearlings. There will also be a calf class at next year's show and the present members, along with other interest boys, will be enrolled.

Keith Esson was winner of the special prize of three dollars donated by James Hawthorne for the best calf shown by a club member. The two-dollar second prize went to Paul Evans.

Mr. J. W. Ketchen and sons Donald and Jack visited friends in Springbrook and Marmora this week.

Mr. and Mrs. James Williams and sons Jimmy and Kenneth accompanied by Johnny Mackey of Toronto spent the holiday with Mr. and Mrs. R. Smith and family.

The executors of the estate of the late Lewis Mack held a sale of household effects on the estate property King street Saturday afternoon.

Mr. and Mrs. Clair Price and family moved from Port McNichol to Havelock last week. Mr. Price is a bridge and building foreman with the C.P.R. and lived here five years ago. They will occupy their old home on Mathison street next to John E. Wood. Their many friends here extend a warm welcome.

Mr. C. P. R. Holdcroft of New York city and son of Dr. J. Holdcroft of town returned home last week after a lengthy convalescent period spent here and Kosh'n' Bog summer camp. He was accompanied by his brother, Dr. D. J. Holdcroft who will take a short medical course in the American metropolis and spend some time at the hospital where he served as an interne. On his return he will resume his practice here with his father.

Mr. W. Morris of the Bank of Toronto's special inspection staff was in the district last week and paid the local branch a visit.

Mr. David Vansickle who has found employment as a foreman on the Burleigh-Bancroft highway for several months past returned home this week.

Although bond transactions of small dimensions have taken place almost every day for the past week, the new refunding loan didn't prove to be nearly as popular as the shares in the first Central Bank of Canada.

Mrs. William Sexsmith of Toronto accompanied by Mr. Sexsmith are in town this week.

Mr. Alfred Bennett of Toronto and formerly of Havelock is visiting Mr. and Mrs. William Martin this week.

Skeleton staffs had charge of the village's business places on Wednesday when the town took on the appearance of the deserted village. The folks from here attended the big fair in Norwood almost "en masse." If the fair attendance didn't break all records it was not the fault of the local and district citizenry, many of whom made it their first fair this season.

Mr. and Mrs. R. P. Wright of Toronto as well as Mr. and Mrs. Don Wright of Peterborough were the guests of their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Wright over the holiday.

The men workers of the Havelock United Church held a bee on Wednesday afternoon when they succeeded in collecting eighty-five bags of vegetables for the railway car going to Southern Saskatchewan.

For the most part the bags contained potatoes; but carrots, beets, turnips, etc., were also loaded up. Twenty-five jars of fruit were sent along by the men; but it is safe to predict it was the ladies who prepared them. The car was loaded in Norwood on Wednesday and under the direction of the Peterborough presbytery, it was to be sent along the five hundred mile stretch in a belt stretching fifty miles north of the frontier.

Mr. and Mrs. Thos. Wright accompanied by Miss Dorothy and Miss Olive Pollock as well as Dougal Wright motored to Smiths Falls on Tuesday where they visited friends and relatives.

Mr. and Mrs. R. Crawford and little daughter Shirley of Toronto spent the long week-end at their summer camp on Ceder Isle, Trent River.

Miss M. Pacey spent the week-end at her home here.

Miss Myrtle Seeney spent the holiday with her parents, Mr. and Mrs. W. J. Seeney at Rush Point.

Mr. Harrison Wing was in Peterborough recently and returned a full fledged Justice of the Peace.

After October the 17th village of Havelock taxes will be payable at par until the month of December, so C. F. Roberts, collector states.

A jolly group of members of St. John's A.Y.P.A. in Toronto, were the week-end and holiday guests of Mr. Roger Young at Rockdale. Dancing, boating and the exploration of the Old Cordova Gold Mine were indulged in by the merry group of young folks made up of the following: Misses Evelyn Smallwood, K. Madill, Audrey Watson, Ilene Madill, Helen Davies, J. Rittenhouse and Marjory Stewart, Messrs. Ralph Spencer, Edward Watson, Jack Rorke and Dick Thornlow.

Mr. W. W. Steenburgh of Rockdale and Mrs. Steenburgh are planning on their usual migration to West Virginia, Florida and other warmer climes, as the cold weather approaches.

WARSAW

On Tuesday evening, Oct. 9, a most delightful evening was spent at the home of Dr. and Mrs. Munro. Some of the neighbors remembered that date is Dr. Munro's birthday and a little surprise party met at Mr. and Mrs. Henry Clements' home and went across to the doctor's.

A jolly evening was spent in merry social converse, games and music; the music supplied by Dr. and Miss Jean Munro. For a time one of the games was played by the three celebrating their birthday and one whose birthday is Christmas Day.

HAVE YOU Digestive Troubles?

DR. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery increases the appetite, eliminates poisons from the intestines, stimulates the digestion, enriches the blood, clears the skin of eruptions and blemishes and you gain in vim, vigor and vitality. This is what Mrs. Kate Sharp of 28 Emilie St., Brantford, Ont., said: "I found that for indigestion Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery was a great help to me. Pains in my stomach were so severe I would double up. I was hardly able to eat anything. I would become so distressed and a gassy condition would follow. But, I had taken Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery only a short time when I was able to eat everything without distress."

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

THE MOST popular race track in Toronto will be in operation tomorrow when Dufferin Park throws open its gates for a seven day session. There is no members stand or club house or lawns with flower beds and fountains, like other tracks, but there is something about Little Saratoga which attracts the crowds, and keeps them coming. In the past few years it has led all Toronto tracks in the matter of attendance and mutuel play.

As the Canadian season draws to a close the principal turf topic from now until next May will be, who will be the King's Plate winner in 1935? Unlike other years there was no outstanding two-year-old this year, such a Horometer was one year ago. At the present time Ryland H. New's, Lipton who has won his last few starts, Eddie Seagram's Gay Sympathy and Listaro from the McLaughlin barn, seem to have the race between them. If no mishapeoccur during the long winter months we think that Listaro will carry off the coveted prize. We suppose you noticed where we wound up the selections for the season with four winners on the closing day card at Long Branch.

HORSEMEN returning from Detroit say that city resembles a cemetery these days after the long racing meeting and the world's series excitement all over. Still it won't be long until hockey will be taking up their attention again. Cupboard, an old Dufferin favorite is in grand shape having finished second in his last two efforts at Long Branch. He will grab off a purse or two this coming week or we are very badly mistaken. Word comes from Laurel that General Lejeune is just waiting for the proper spot to cut loose with a winning effort, also one by the name of Cherokee Sal.

The first race each day at Dufferin will get under way at a quarter to two on account of the days getting shorter. They have erected a new entrance and built a new betting pavilion with a covering, something similar to Long Branch. The boys will hardly recognize the old place now, but they will still be able to sit in the grandstand or on the fence, and follow every move of their favorite steed without the aid of field glasses, and the pink lemonade stand is still under the odds board at the north end of the track.

Intercollegiate Football Rules Are Not Clear

C.A.L.A. FROWNS PROPOSED TRIP OF ORILLIA CLUB

No Post-season Series in Vancouver This Year as Far as Executive Concerned.

IGNORE BURLINGTON.

BY ERIC DUNN
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Oct. 12.—(CP)—Orillia Terriers were still the hometown heroes today but there was a bunch of intermediates doing a lot of shouting around Burlington, eager to take a few wallops they thought would knock the Dominion lacrosse crown right off its present perch. While the Burlington boys figured Terriers not so great around certain parts of Ontario, Terriers began to feel the sting of a few thorns they found within the Dominion crown.

Terriers received a great hand from the home folks when they marched into town after a three-straight win over New Westminster Salmonbellies in the Mann Cup finals at Barrie but their idea of journeying to Vancouver for an exhibition series with St. Helen's produced no handclapping within the portals of the Canadian Amateur Lacrosse Association.

Only frowns and a motion the executive approved greeted the idea of a post-season series at the coast. And the motion had a real kick, strong enough to send the old Mann Cup flying out of Orillia if Terriers leave Friday night for Vancouver. There will be no post-season series this year, the association heads decreed, and suspension faced the team who ignored the order. To Orillia it meant the loss of the Mann Cup, first Dominion crown of any kind held in the town.

Ignore Burlington

While the executive edict flashed over the wires to Orillia and St. Helen's club heads, Burlington intermediates got into Terriers' hair because the challenge thrown out was side-stepped by the Canadian titlists. There are few Burlington people today who wouldn't back their team against Terriers, a squad the intermediates humbled in an exhibition game and accomplished the trick right in Terriers' own backyard.

Burlington knocked aside all opposition during the season schedule to grasp the intermediate laurels of Ontario. With a record besmirched by only one loss the intermediates challenged Terriers for the Ontario honors and the Ontario Lacrosse Association favored the plan. They had a victory over Terriers and other senior teams in exhibition matches but lateness of their playoffs kept Burlington out of the picture.

Ontario lacrosse heads, Burlington stalwarts maintain, promised a match with Terriers after the Mann Cup finals so a doughty delegation marched to Barrie Oct. 8 when the second game of the finals was being staged. They were informed a little lacrosse went a long way but a post-season series with Burlington was too much.

When the Burlington folk heard Terriers were bent on a coastward jaunt of 3,000 miles to indulge in some more lacrosse with St. Helen's, Terriers' prowess was questioned and a few doubts expressed about them being the best team in Ontario or in Canada for that matter.

Might Take Dare

Meanwhile reports from Orillia indicated the Dominion champions might toss a dare into executive circles and hop the train for Vancouver tonight.

Fred Waghorne, president of the Ontario Lacrosse Association, approved the journey, Orillia club heads declared, and that was all they needed. They go with the warning that approval of the Ontario body was not packed with the right authority as the proposed series was an inter-provincial affair, something that the governing body alone could handle.

"SCHOOLBOY" ROWE WEDS MISS SKINNER

Tigers' Ace Hurler Marries Childhood Sweetheart in Detroit Hotel.

DETROIT, Oct. 12. — Lynwood ("Schoolboy") Rowe, 22-year-old pitching star of Detroit Tigers, and his childhood sweetheart, Miss Edna Mary Skinner of Eldorado, Ark., were married in a Detroit hotel last night.

Only a few personal friends of the couple attended the ceremony, Rowe and his sweetheart having finally escaped the fans who promised to follow them all the way to the altar.

Ervin "Pete" Fox, Tiger right-fielder, who was Rowe's roommate during the baseball season, and Mrs Fox were the attendants. The ceremony was conducted by the Rev. O. L. Calkins of the Preston Methodist Church.

Earlier in the day when Rowe dodged through crowds of admirers at the County Building to get his marriage license, the ace pitcher refused to say when he would be married.

COLLEGE FOOTBALL SQUADS MAY RULE AGAINST "IMPORTS"

Decision to Withdraw From Dominion Playoffs Seen as Protest Against Meeting Packed Teams—Referees Maintain Rules Not Clear.

By W. M. GLADISH
Central Press Canadian Sports Writer

TORONTO, Oct. 12—Senior football finds itself more or less on the proverbial spot for at least two important reasons—and the season of 1934 is barely under way.

One difficulty has been encountered with respect to the somewhat fantastic rules of current vintage; so impractical have the new rules been regarded in one quarter that two well-known and proficient referees made the threat that they would not proceed with an appointed game in the Intercollegiate Union between Queen's and Western at Kingston on the ground that they could not handle a game efficiently under the new code. The officials were Joe O'Brien, who has been looked upon as an able arbiter for the past 12 years, and Hod. Foster, who has handled many senior matches as well. One of their objections was directed at the introduction of horn-blowing to call personal fouls without stopping the play. There is also much conjecture and uncertainty regarding the new interference system which provides two different zones of "offside blocking" for wingmen and backs, respectively. The arrangement is regarded as confusing to officials, players and spectators alike, to say the least.

Americans Not Necessary

But the new rules are not the sole cause of uneasiness. Growing concern is being shown in the import question and it is expected that the matter will come to a head when the Amateur Athletic Union of Canada holds its annual meeting at Toronto on November 15 to 18. The subject will be on the agenda for that convention at the urgent request of the Central Ontario branch of the A.A.U. and the prime mover is John DeGruchy of Toronto, president of the Ontario Rugby Football Union for many years, and an officer of the Central Ontario branch.

Against Imports

DeGruchy introduced the subject with considerable gravity at the annual meeting of the branch in Toronto the other night, declaring that the time had passed when the presence of various U.S. players on Canadian teams could be regarded merely as the desire of these gridiron artists to engage in games. If such were not the case, and if the imported stars were securing positions because of their playing ability, then it was a matter for the attention of both athletic and government authorities because there were Canadian players of merit who were being denied desired employment. The branch adopted the suggestion that the Canadian Union should deal with the subject at its general meeting in November.

Adept at Passing

The O.R.F.U. president brought out the thought that it was no longer essential that star players be imported so that new rules could be efficiently introduced as Canadian participants had become adept in the forward pass and other innovations. Frankly, the Canadian A.A.U. will undoubtedly look upon the subject from the viewpoint of amateurism.

There is also some significance in the formal announcement of the Intercollegiate Rugby Union that its representative team will not participate in the playdowns of the Canadian Rugby Union, but will have play-offs of its own between the first and second teams for the college title after its schedule is concluded.

RUTH TO MANAGE TEAM DURING TOUR OF JAPAN

PHILADELPHIA, Oct. 12.— Babe Ruth, who a few days ago said he would like to be the manager of a baseball club, is going to have his wish, for a time, at least, this winter. The Babe is going to be the manager of the touring American Leaguers when they play teams in Honolulu, Japan, Shanghai and Manila.

The tour actually starts today, when Connie Mack, manager of the Athletics, leaves for Chicago, where most of the party of thirty-six will assemble on Monday. The players will leave Vancouver on Empress of Japan, Oct. 20, and are due in Honolulu on the 26th.

Bartolome Murillo, Spanish religious and genre painter, was one of the chief masters of the school of Seville.

"Dynamite" Returns

"Dynamite" Eddie James, Western Canada football star of past years, who has been idle through recent seasons with a badly injured arm, is back in action again. The handle of gridiron T.N.T. is doing his stuff with the 1934 Winnipegers.

TWIN FOOTBALL BILL SATURDAY

P.C.I. Tangles With Lindsay in First—Local O.R.F.U. to Meet Belleville.

INITIAL GAME 1.45

One of the greatest sport bills ever presented to local fans is promised tomorrow afternoon at Riverside Park in a double-bill of fast-moving rugby entertainment. Both contests are naturals.

The first game brings P.C.I. senior gridders and Lindsay Collegiate's smart squad together in a battle for the leadership of the Central Ontario Interscholastic League. In the second affray fans will have their first opportunity to see the Peterborough intermediate squad in action. The Petes will oppose the heavy Belleville squad in an intermediate O.R.F.U. game.

Coach Bamforth's Garnet and Grey team are reported to be in the pink for their combat with Lindsay. Both teams are fast, playing a wide-open game with plenty of end runs and much judicious use of the spectacular forward pass. The two squads appear to be the class of their group, and much depends upon the result. The Scugog team are confident that this is their year and have yet to taste defeat, while P.C.I. also feel that they are going places again this season.

Coach Bamforth will have his full team in uniform, with Griff Young, who booted so well here last Saturday, again doing the punting duties. Behind an effective line, the Garnet and Grey have a fast halfline in Jopling, Archibald and Clark. McIntyre and Marsh are two more brilliant performers with the squad.

The intermediate game is going to be a battle between two squads who depend on entirely different systems of play. The Petes are light and fast and make their points by speed and trickiness, while the Belleville squad are heavy and brawny and depend upon a steamroller attack. Both squads have many stars who were well-schooled in the game with collegiate squads.

The Petes have been practising hard for more than a month and all their players are in first class condition. Their lineup includes such former P.C.I. stars as Gardner, Richardson, Gordie Young, Magee, Sloan, Weir, Reynolds, Kirkwood, and a lot of other young huskies who know what it is all about.

The P.C.I.-Lindsay game starts at 1:45 and at its conclusion the intermediate contest will get underway immediately.

CELLAR OPEN TO THE LOSER OF ARGO-ROUGHRIDER TANGLE

Scullers Prepared for Ottawa Squad in Expected Repeat of 1933 Run.

VARSITY AGAIN FAVORED.

(By Elmer Dolmage, C.P. Staff Writer.)

Because schedules are brief and title hopes can be just about quashed with two defeats in the October skirmishing, to-morrow's most important football duels in the East will bring together Argonauts and Ottawa Roughriders at Toronto, Hamilton Tigers and Montreal Wheelers at Hamilton, and the Tricolor and Red—Queen's and McGill—at Montreal.

Any one of three other senior jousts might turn out to be of more importance in the final analysis. In fact, it would be startling indeed should Hampton Cubs upset Sarnia Imperials, Western Mustangs beat University of Toronto's Blues or Balmy Beach overturns Bill Storen's promising Irish from St. Michael's College.

The Interprovincial struggles at Hamilton and Toronto can be nothing but bitter affairs because undisputed leadership depends on the Wheeler-Tiger game and the cellar is open to the loser of the Argo-Roughrider contest. Montreal nosed out the Canadian champion Scullers a week ago, while Hamilton was trouncing a reputed Ottawa power house.

Scullers Prepared.

Argos dropped two straight to open the 1933 campaign, then stampeded through eight straight games without a loss to wind up on top of the heap. It was an almost unprecedented performance that neither the Scullers nor any other team has immediate hopes of duplicating. The Scullers are primed for the Roughriders.

They will match Abe Eliowitz's kicking with Ab Box's kicking; the Eliowitz forward passes with Bob Clark's tosses; Eliowitz's line smashes with the old team of Tommy Burns and Ted Morris. Argos are confident they can hold Big Abe, hold a rugged Roughrider wingline and win on Box's punting, Burns' placement kicking and the running offensive powered by Burns, Morris, Frank Tindall, and Jack Taylor.

If they fail, the title-holders will face the task of winning all their remaining games and still being not certain of finishing on top. A crowd of 15,000 is expected to watch the Ottawas' invasion, featuring Eliowitz, Andy Tommey and a collection of United States-bred performers who failed to bring down the Tigers in their opening engagement.

The Tigers will be favored to beat Montreal largely because Frank Turville, the greatest individual footballer in the East two seasons ago, has returned to form and finds himself aided and abetted by Johnny Ferraro, former Cornell captain, coach and forward passer of an entirely renovated Hamilton brigade.

Ferraro can pass and Turville can receive passes, which is one way the Tigers expect to march forward. Turville also is a spectacular broken-field runner, as good a punter as any of them and just about as good a field goal kicker. Montreal was actually no more impressive than Argos in the opening game they won, and that if why the Tigers will be expected to win tomorrow.

But the Tigers may have to give ground to Montreal's wingline and the Wheeler forward pass attack is a ground-gainer in its own right under good conditions.

McGill's strong team suffered a 10-4 setback at the hands of Toronto last Saturday, but the Redmen appeared powerful except in kicking, strong enough to make it close for a Queen's outfit that barely eked out a 3-2 verdict over Western. Joe Smith, husky Californian on the McGill backfield, may be the figure to lead the Montrealers to a victory.

Varsity Again Favored

Varsity will be expected to beat the Mustangs in London, though the margin may depend almost entirely on the kicking duel between Bob Isbister and Boyce Sherk. Isbister loomed as the best punter in the Intercollegiate Union against McGill last week.

Hamilton's young Cubs invade Sarnia with scant hopes of beating the Imperials, and Balmy Beach will be forced to put on a better show than they have so far this season to win from St. Michael's College. The Irish defeated Varsity in a pre-season game, gave Argos a close game, and defeated the Cubs in their opening O.R.F.U. engagement.

O.R.F.U. Lineup

The local intermediate squad have developed a new defensive system styled to stop the steamroller attacks of the heavy Belleville team and it will be used in the game tomorrow afternoon at Riverside Park. Several changes have been made in the Petes' line-up, and the frontline has been strengthened with more weight.

The official lineup for the game follows:

Flying wing, Newson; halves, Gardner, Richardson, Hope; quarter, Young; snap, Sloan; insides, Ashmore, Waddell; middles, Gerow, Kirkwood; outsides, Reynolds, Weir; subs: Broadley, Francis, Parnall, Janeway, Mealey, Mitchell, Spencly and Dineen.

PRINCE OF WALES DEFEATED 2 TO 0

Central Registers Surprise Victory in Public School Soccer.

Prince of Wales took a sudden drop in the Public School Soccer League yesterday afternoon, when Central trounced them by two clear goals, at King Edward Park. This win puts the winners in a favorable position. Hollingsworth, Scumrik and Copperthwaite were outstanding.

Central made many dangerous rushes upon the West-end charge, only to be held in check by the defense. Hollingsworth dribbled his way through his opposition time and again, but failed to make use of the openings. Exchanges continued even until the interval. No scoring.

On resuming, Prince of Wales combination proved successful in the open field, but lost the advantage near goal. Innis broke through twice to miss the upright by inches but he returned on the next visit to bring Jones, Prince of Wales custodian, into action to save a rocket drive. Copperthwaite meeting the rebound to tap the ball into the corner of the net. The losers retaliated with nice combination to find Hollingsworth carrying the ball towards goal where he was brought down to spoil his scoring opportunity. Just before the finish, Central concentrated upon their opponents' goal and registered the second counter through Millen.

Central, 2; Prince of Wales, 0.

Prince of Wales—H. Jones, goal; A. Campbell and G. Curtain, full backs; D. Leal, S. Csumrik and D. McDonald, halves; A. Meldover, B. Leal, J. Hollingsworth, R. Whatman and M. Williamson, forwards. Subs—T. Jackson, W. Crouter, and T. McMillan.

Central—B. Bartlett, goal; E. Copperthwaite and R. Innis, full backs; B. Sage, G. Lee and L. Ascott, halves; N. Millen, L. Clarke, R. Clarke, G. McKinnon and J. Downer, forwards.

Referee—J. Isle.

Game Postponed

After twenty minutes of play in the King George versus Queen Alexandra game on the Oval, with the former winning by two goals to nothing, the game was stopped owing to the field being in an unsatisfactory condition and will be replayed in the near future.

Paul Dean's Romance Strikes An Obstacle

COLUMBUS, O., Oct. 12. — "Paul's liable to have a bridal suite and no bride," Miss Betty Holt said here yesterday when informed that Paul ("Daffy") Dean, starry hurler of St. Louis Cardinals, had tentatively reserved a Cleveland hotel suite for the latter part of next week.

About two weeks ago Dean announced his desire to wed Miss Holt. She promptly demurred. Told that the prospective groom had reserved the bridal suite, she said: "I don't know anything about it."

Miss Holt returned yesterday from St. Louis after watching Paul defeat the Tigers in two World Series contests. She returned to Columbus when Paul and "Dizzy", his older brother, boarded a plane for Oklahoma, where they appeared in an exhibition baseball game.

But she said today that the reported romance had progressed not a bit.

"Our engagement hasn't been announced, and when I get ready to announce it I'll call you," Miss Holt said.

GRAFTON TAKES CLARKE TROPHY

Baltimore Drops 3-2 Decision in Close Struggle on Former's Grounds.

Northumberland Honors.

COBOURG, Oct. 12. (Special to The Examiner). — Wednesday at Grafton the Grafton baseball team won the Clarke trophy, presented by the late Sam Clarke of Cobourg, and which is a much coveted cup.

It was an exciting game which kept the numerous fans from Baltimore, Grafton and district in a fever of excitement up to the last minute. The two teams were Baltimore, champions of West Northumberland and winners of the Rogers Cup, and Grafton, winners of East Northumberland League and of the Dawson Cup.

In the first inning Baltimore scored and Grafton came back after them hot, scoring one in the second. From the on tension was high as each team played almost errorless ball. No more scoring was done until the teams clashed in the ninth and Grafton, rallying their forces put one over. That finished the scoring and the game stood 3-2 in favor of Grafton.

In the first game played at Baltimore diamond, Grafton won by a 14-9 score from Baltimore.

The second win made the third game necessary.

JOLIAT REFUSES HOCKEY CONTRACT

Canadiens' Brilliant Left Winger Objects to Terms Offered Him.

MONTREAL, Oct. 12. (CP).— Pens scratched along dotted lines in the Canadian Hockey Club offices yesterday as players of the French-Canadian National Hockey League team affixed their signatures to contracts for the season. Aurel Joliat, Canadiens' clever left-wing veteran, spoiled the scene slightly when he refused to sign the contract at the terms offered him.

Sylvio Mantha, veteran defense man, signed without trouble, as did several other players. Joliat indicated that, while he was not satisfied with the "economic contract" offered him, he will join the other players in their pre-season training at Saint John, N.B. The Canadiens leave Montreal for New Brunswick this week-end.

The names of the players who will report to their Saint John, N.B., training camp are as follows: Wilf Cude and Claude Bourque, goalkeepers Sylvio Mantha, George Mantha, Jerry Carson, Pete Lepine Jack Riley, Aurel Joliat, Wildor Larochelle, Armand Mondou, Paul Raymond, Leo Bourgault, of last year's team.

From last year's team will be missing: Howie Morenz, speedy centre; Marty Burke, defense man, and Lorne Chabot, goalkeeper, traded to Chicago, and Albert Leduc, who will manage Quebec Beavers of the Canadian-American League, to be supplied a team from the remainder of the players.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball, Lacrosse, Soccer Softball, Bowling, etc.

By E.A.O.

If the local hockey executive intends doing anything about importing a few players to bolster up the Petes for a determined drive on the O.H.A. intermediate championship this winter, action must be taken quickly. Next Monday, October 15, is the last day for players to move around and such roamings receive the official sanction of the O.H.A.

* * * * * * *

It is doubtful if the local club has taken any action in this direction or has even given it any serious consideration. No mention was made of it at the recent meeting in which the former executive was re-elected to office. Some one asked: "Are there any new players around?" There was silence and then a bright youth replied: "Not that I know of."

* * * * * * *

There is no doubt that during the next six weeks or so the executive will discover just what material is available, and it may be just possible that its members have some surprises up their sleeves. But at the present moment there is nothing definite and the executive body is maintaining a deep silence.

* * * * * * *

It must be stated that the policy of Petes during the past few years has been to develop their own players. This task has been left in the capable hands of Frank Buckland and "Shorty" Burgess, manager and coach of the junior team. Manager Buckland is constantly on the hunt for youngsters who show any shinny ability whatsoever. He attends as many kid games as possible, has scouts out in every quarter, and regularly goes through the city with a fine-tooth comb. By the time the first practice of the season rolls around, he usually has given a special invitation to half a hundred youngsters to be on hand. And he gives them plenty of opportunity to display their wares.

* * * * * * *

That crack "Dizzy" Dean made about his head is claimed to be the prize wise one of the World Series. When doctors told "Dizzy" that X-ray pictures of his head, cracked by a thrown ball as he was whirling around the bases, showed nothing, he replied, "Shucks, I knew it all the time." But the same Dean is not so Dizzy. An enterprising vaudeville circuit signed him and "Daffy" to a contract some weeks before the World Series at $600 per week. "Dizzy" inserted into the contract in his own hand, "this contract to be null and void if St. Louis wins the World Series." The new contract is for $5,000 a week.

Napanee is piling up the baseball honors, adding yesterday the intermediate "B" championship to its laurels. Ernie Gibbard's town has blazed across the baseball firmament this week winning two Provincial titles. It proves what can be accomplished when a determined effort is made, because a few years ago Napanee had little but interest in baseball. Gibbard, a large manufacturer, has backed the teams and Walter Gerow, former field marshall of the Belleville Nationals, has coached them.

* * * * * * *

With the N.H.L. teams preparing to open practice reports indicate that amateur teams throughout the country have again been raided by the pros in their keen search for material. The Toronto Leafs are developing a new "kid line" of Art Jackson, "Pep" Kelly and "Red" Metz, and another amateur getting a try with the Leafs is Reg. Hamilton, defence star with St. Mikes' juniors last year. The new St. Louis team under Eddie Gerard, are prepared to give at least nine amateurs trials and several of these are from the States. The management of the Oshawa hockey arena, suffering bad times financially, has been fortunate again in having the New York Americans do their pre-season practising there.

* * * * * * *

The wise sport fan who likes plenty of color and dash to his entertainment will need no second urging to view that doubleheader rugby tangle at Riverside Park tomorrow afternoon. Singly either of the two games would be a big attraction. The PP.C.I.-Lindsay Collegiate battle promises to be one of the best interscholastic games of the season, while the Peterborough-Belleville intermediate O.R.F.U. contest will be a repitition of the titanic 6-6 tie struggle played last Monday at Belleville.

St. Helen's Prepared To Dare Association

VANCOUVER, Oct. 12 (CP) — Backed up by the British Columbia Box Lacrosse Association, St. Helen's are prepared to go through with the proposed five-game exhibition series with Orillia Terriers, regardless of any action the Canadian Box Lacrosse Association may take.

S. B. Pratt, head of one of the service clubs sponsoring the series, made the announcement following a meeting last night of the executives of the service clubs, the B.C. organization and the St. Helen's club.

The B.C. body would reinstate any B.C. players suspended for taking part in the series, Pratt said, and Les Dickinson, manager of St. Helen's, said his team would play the Terriers if the Easterners came out for the series.

Pratt said all arrangements for the series had been completed and that the $4,000 guaranteed the Terriers was sent East to-day.

Soccer Notes

Canadian General will travel to Trenton to play the Airport club for the Eastern District Championship on Saturday afternoon. Kick off has been arranged to take place at 2.30. There will be a party of 16 players and executive members. The return game will be played in the city and if a third game is necessary a neutral ground will be selected. All players to be at plant at 12:30 prompt.

The local attraction is the first round of the Father Phelan Cup between Lindsay and Canada Packers on King Edward Park. Kick off at three o'clock prompt. Referee, F. Dyer.

There will be two games in the school soccer on Tuesday afternoon —one at the Oval and one at King Edward Park. Kick off at 4.30.

Valuing the Great Western Railway's property in England for taxing recently meant dividing $14,000,000 between 32 counties, 455 taxing authorities and 1973 parishes.

Morenz Is Honored At Montreal Dinner

MONTREAL, Oct. 12 (C.P.). — Howie Morenz, who has brought joy to the hearts of Montreal hockey fans for the past 11 years, was given a rousing send-off by 200 of his friends at a dinner here last night. Howie leaves to-day to join his new team, the Chicago Black Hawks. It will be the first time in his professional career that he has played without the red, white and blue sweater of the Canadiens of Montreal.

The stand of the Canadiens in trading Morenz to the Hawks was explained by Leo Dandurand, club director, in a toast to his friend. Dandurand said the club had considered Morens' future when the trade was made and expressed the sentiments of the audience in wishing him the best of luck in his new surroundings.

TRINITY COLLEGE TEAM IS TROUNCED BY RIDLEY

ST. CATHARINES, Oct. 12. — Trinity College, Mulock Cup football team from the University of Toronto, visited Ridley College yesterday and went home on the short end of a 19-to-2 score. The game was a good exhibition of foobal, good kicking, catching, plunging and a few fumbles combining to make it interesting.

The biggest thrill in the last quarter, when Ridley, after failing to make yards on two downs, tried an onside kick from the Trinity eighty-yard line. The kick went over the goalline, and it changed hands seven times before Ridley finally secured for a major score. For Trinity, A'Court and Schivner were outstanding, while Frances, MacLachlan M.I., Hilton and Patterson starred for Ridley.

The quarter scores were: 8-0, 8-0, 8-1, 19-2.

CRICKET CLUB ELIMINATED IN MATTHEWS SEMI-FINALS

Local Cricketeers Won Two and Lost One in County Championships.

A FAIR SEASON

Peterborough county again reached the semi-finals in the Ontario cricket championship for the trophy presented by the Hon. R. C. Matthews. They played 3 matches, won 2 and lost 1.

On the 24th of May they easily defeated Ontario County at Nicholls Oval, by 128 to 42, Mawhood scoring 37 (retired), Dyer 27, and Gore 20, while bowling honors were shared by Jefferson, 6 for 23 and Dyer, 4 for 17.

On July 2, the team travelled to Almonte to play Lanark County and again they won by 164 to 74. Rev. E. C. Worrall scored 52, Mitchell 26, and Jefferson 20 and Mitchell had 6 wickets for 35.

Next Meet Waterloo

This brought the team into the semi-finals against Waterloo County, the ultimate winners, the match being played on the grounds of the Toronto C.C. at Armour Heights, Toronto, on Civic Holiday, Aug. 6, when the local club were heavily defeated. Mawhood, who had been elected captain by the team, won the toss but put Waterloo in on a wicket that was likely to get worse rather than better and the Waterloo men piled up 256 runs for 7 wickets and then declared the innings closed. The Peterborough innings only reached 83. They had 8 wickets down for 10 and only a fine stand by Hamilton (26) and Binks (26) redeemed the innings. They both batted well against good bowling and keen fielding and the score was taken to 83 before Hamilton left, but the 6th, 7th, 8th and 9th wickets fell at 79 and the total, as stated, only reached 83.

A Fair Season

The result of the season can be considered fairly satisfactory as the local team beat their opponents in Eastern Ontario, but the Western counties seem much stronger.

Experience has taught that it will be necessary to alter the organization and methods of the club. A selection committee of experienced old players should be appointed, the idea of proportionate representation should be given up and all minor differences and considerations should go by the board and the best available team of cricketers, as such, should be picked. If this had been done—though the defeat by Waterloo probably would not have been averted—the margin of that defeat might have been considerably reduced.

Averages for Season

The following are the batting and bowling averages:

CHAPTER 2

Completing his survey, Callaghan stepped around the body to the open windows, closing and locking them. He paused with his hand on the knob of a door near Reeves' desk. "What about this door?"

"It opens to the washroom," Dan answered, raising his eyes from the body. "It's always locked. Nobody's got a key." His manner was calmer now as if he had been influenced by Callaghan's self-possession.

The patrolman strode to the door through which they had entered. "Got the key to this?"

Dan nodded.

"Lock it then and show me where there's a 'phone."

Dan did as ordered and led him toward a small office at the front. The room, when Dan had unlocked the door, was disclosed to be that of a secretary, with neat bare desk and filecase.

The officer picked up the telephone and called Central Station.

"Detective bureau," he ordered. 'Gimme the inspector." He spoke with a certain amount of satisfaction. It wasn't every day a cop got to report a dead man on the university beat.

"Inspector Lee? This is Callaghan at the university. A perfessor's been killed at the English House. . . . Yeah, 162 University Row. I ain't sure it's murder, of course—there's a gun laying near the body. But he sure don't look like he meant to shoot himself. . . . Yeah, the janitor just found the body and told me."

Dan bristled. He had never been chummy with "the campus cop," as the students called him, and it would be a distant day before he forgave Callaghan for calling him a janitor.

"O. K., inspector," Callaghan answered after a moment's listening, and hung up the receiver.

"The inspector says to keep the door locked and not to let nobody go in. He'll be right out. Better give me that key," he added.

Dan shook his head stubbornly. "That key's the only one I got and I got to clean the rest of the offices."

"No, you don't," Callaghan replied. "What do you want to do, go around destroying a lot of clues? Just for that, you'd better give me the keys to all the offices."

"There's only one. It opens them all. I got to empty the wastebaskets, anyway."

"Only one, eh?" Callaghan ignored Dan's last sentence. "So a guy with a ket to any office could get in any other one?"

"Say, listen," Dan demanded with some loftiness in his manner. "Are you trying to say that one of this department—the English department—killed Reeves? Because you're crazy if you are. You don't know the door was even locked and if it was, somebody could of got in on the fire escape, couldn't they?"

Callaghan laughed. "Come on, give me the key. How do you know anybody killed him? Maybe he shot himself. Though like I told the inspector, a guy that looks that scared don't look as if he'd done it himself. Anyway, the prints on the gun will show that."

Dan looked startled.

"You hadn't thought of that, huh? Well, it might've happened that way. What was this guy Reeves like, anyway? Any reason you know of for him shooting himself?"

Dan walked over and picked up the discarded mop and broom. "I suppose I can mop the hall floor, anyway."

"Well," Callaghan hesitated. "Oh, I guess so," magnanimously, waving his hand. "Go ahead. It don't show any footprints anyhow. What about Reeves?"

Dan went deliberately to the washroom, there was the sound of swiftly running water and when he returned he carried a full scrubbing pail in his hands. Picking up his mop, he set conscientiously to work near the secretary's office.

Between slaps of the mop, he growled, "Reeves would never do anybody the favor of shootin' himself."

"So you didn't like him, huh?"

"I was an old grouch. Always yelling at everybody." He grinned suddenly for the first time that morning. "He sure scared the girls to death, though, always yellin' at them. They all hated to get into his classes. Good for them it was, too. Always taking better minds than theirs off their work." Dan had a deep and unreasoning dislike for the co-eds of the university which even extended to Marilla Edwards, the only woman on the English faculty, who hadn't been a co-ed for many years.

"How long had the professor been here?" asked Callaghan stepping out of the path of the big mop as it swished its way to the murdered man's door.

"He wasn't a perfessor," explained Dan painstakingly but scornfully as an educated mind might chide a stupid one. "He was only an instructor. Like—like you aren't a captain but only a cop, see?" He offered the explanation with relish.

"Say, what do you mean?" demanded the officer.

"Well, you ain't a captain, are you?" asked Dan reasonably.

"No, but I will be some day."

"Sure and he would have been a perfessor some day, too," Dan answered, "if——" He paused. This exchange with Callaghan had made him forget what lay behind that door.

Now he remembered and began mopping feverishly as if he were anxious to get on down the hall and away from it.

He had reached the end and was turning into the washroom with the mop and pail of dirty water when Callaghan's next question came. "Was he married?"

"Yeah. She was nice, too. Too nice for the likes of him," called back Dan as he emptied the pail.

The rush of water into the pail from the faucet almost drowned the policeman's reply.

"Can't hear you," yelled Dan. "Wait'll I'm through." The water rushed on for a minute or two, then stopped. Callaghan heard Dan swishing the mop around and squeezing it out. In an instant he reappeared in the hall, mop and pail in one hand.

"What'd you say?"

"I said maybe she done it."

Dan looked disgusted. "She's the only one that never would of done it. She was crazy about him," he declared vigorously. He collected the broom and dustcloth, putting the broom in the pail with the wet mop, and hanging the dustcloth across the handle. Then he looked about him and sighed.

"This'll be the first time they ever got here and found the place in a mess. Wait till Wilson sees it. He'll tell you what's what, interfering with——"

A siren sounded down the street, interrupting him.

"It's the inspector," yelled Callaghan, leaving his post and hurrying down to the front door. Dan set his pail in a corner of the hall and ran down after him.

HASTINGS

Trinity United Church anniversary services will be conducted on Sunday, October 14th with Rev. R. J. Richards, B.A., B.D., of Grace United Church, Napanee as principal speaker for services at 11 a. m. and 7 p.m. Clifford M. Hall of Peterborough, an eminent tenor soloist will sing at morning and evening service. The anniversary will be continued on Wednesday evening, Oct. 17th when their annual fowl supper will be served, this year in the basement of the church. A special program will also be provided.

Harvest Home Services will be held on Sunday, Oct. 14th in St. George's Anglican Church at 11 a.m. and 7 p.m. Venerable Archdeacon Warren of Toronto will conduct the services.

THE STARS SAY . . .

By GENEVIEVE KEMBLE

For Saturday, October 13

A day of fair activity is forecast from the ruling mutual and lunar aspects, but the general tone of affairs will not be constructive or profitable, unless methods of subtlety, craft, intrigue and strategem are employed. Beware strangers as well as fraud, deception, trickery and various brands of subtlety, false promises and dubious schemes. With diligence and hard work in employment there may be solid benefits.

Those whose birthday it is may be prepared for a year dominated by subtlety, craft, shrewdness, treachery and possibly underhanded methods where least expected.

A child born on this day may be steady and faithful as well as practical in its work, but full of subtlety, schemes and alluring and intriguing projects and ambitions.

ANNUAL DINNER IS BIG SUCCESS

MUSICAL NUMBERS

LAKEFIELD, Oct. 11 (Examiner Correspondence). The annual Thanksgiving dinner put on by the Women's Association of the United Church was an unqualified success, viands and service were both superlatively good and the large crowd which attended was enthusiastic in praises of the delicious hot fowl supper with hot potatoes and gravy, with a great variety of sauces and condiments and delicious dessert. The committee of ladies and assistants was well organized and there was no crowding or confusion but a well-regulated method of controlling the crowd.

After the supper the entertainment which followed was especially fine and was arranged by the choir and consisted entirely of excellent home talent.

Rev. W. R. Archer welcomed the crowd and expressed his great satisfaction over the anniversary in all its aspects, the attendance, the spirit of hearty worship and the generous thankoffering. Mr. Archer thanked the choir for their co-operation in making the anniversary such a happy event. The decoration of the church was done by Misses Eva Hendren and Helen Miles.

IT'S LIVER THAT MAKES YOU FEEL SO WRETCHED

Wake up your Liver Bile —No Calomel necessary

For you to feel healthy and happy, your liver must pour two pounds of liquid bile into your bowels, every day. Without that bile, food starts sour, gas bloats you, constipation poisons in the body. General wretchedness.

How can you expect to clear up a situation like this completely with pure bowel-moving salts, oil, mineral water, laxative candy or chewing gum, or roughage? They don't wake up your liver.

You need Carter's Little Liver Pills. Purely vegetable. Safe. Quick and sure results. Ask for them by name. Refuse substitutes. 25c, at all druggists. 54

The program opened with a verse of that well-known hymn. "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," and the Lord's prayer, followed by an anthem by the choir, "Praise Ye the Lord," with the parts taken well and delightful harmony.

A ladies' quartette contributed a particularly attractive lullaby. Sung very softly and sweetly, the ladies were Mesdames Hamblin, MacMillen, Purdy and Webster.

Miss Betty Brown, a talented reader, gave a selection, "Castor Oil," and was obliged to give an encore number. Miss Eva Hendren sang "Love's Old Sweet Song" very sweetly. Miss Nelson and Mrs. Warren Payne played a piano duet, and especially high-class number.

Miss Ora Dunford gave a humorous reading, the theme being a case of mistaken identity. Mrs. J. R. Hull, always a popular soloist, sang "The Same Old Dear Old Place," a delightful home song sung with genuine appeal.

A mixed quartette: Mrs. MacMillen, Mrs. Hamblin, Rev. W. R. Archer and G. W. Payne, sang a number in a lighter vein, "See That Watermillion Smilin' Through the Fence. They were compelled to reply to a vociferous encore.

A quartette of the junior section of the congregation gave their inimitable selection, "Four Black Crows." They were Gerald Northey, Earl Robinson, George Tanner and Donald Yale—a merry quartette who brought down the house.

Miss Mildred Purdy sang very sweetly "Give Me Your Smile." Little Jean Miller, a talented little girl, gave a reading which showed real ability. Jean took first place in her group in the urban school oratorical contest in Norwood last week.

Mrs. Yale gave a humorous reading, responding to a well-merited encore. The local clergy, busy men as they are, were not all able to be present in the same strength as on Sunday night, Rev. W. B. Walker had another engagement and Rev. R. J. Burton had returned to Toronto. Rev. W. J. Creighton was present and gave a short address, taking as his theme the value of trees; they protect from the wind and they help to hold the moisture in the ground and they are a strong factor in prevention of drought. Palestine, formerly known as a land flowing with milk and honey, became an arid land when the cedars of Lebanon disappeared. When the first settlers came to Canada they chopped down trees to build homes and clear the land. In Quebec one reason for the very narrow fields is that the fences hold in the snow which fertilizes the land and makes it moist.

A very dainty number sweetly sung was the "Little Dutch Boy and the Little Dutch Girl" by Betty Brown and Muriel Miles.

The accompanists of the evening were Mrs. H. E. Moore, Mrs. G. W. Payne and Miss Eva Hendren.

Another anniversary successfully over with generous co-operation between the organizations, so generous was the response that a social was held on Tuesday night to dispose of the superfluous food.

Judgment Reserved In Accident Suit

Judgment was reserved by His Honor Judge Sheldon L. Smoke in a County Court civil action hearing of which was completed late yesterday afternoon. Plaintiffs were the Peterborough Automotive Supply who sought damages amounting to $209.76 for repairs to a motor truck and loss of business, which resulted from an accident on the Bancroft-Madoc road last November. Counsel for plaintiff firm was W. F. Huycke.

John L. Kavanagh of Bancroft, the defendant, driver of the automobile that was involved in collision with the truck, counter claimed for $76.65 damages and costs. He was represented by C. A. Cameron of Belleville.

In arguing his case Mr. Huycke submitted that the evidence pointed to contributory negligence, and he expressed the opinion that His Honor should apportion the damages.

Mr. Cameron argued that there had been no negligence on the part of the defendant, stating that the evidence had led him to the conclusion that Harry E. Carr, the truck driver, was what was "commonly known as a road hog."

Deciding to reserve judgment, His Honor stated he was inclined to accept the evidence of the defendant and his father. The fact that plaintiff's truck had not given half the road constituted negligence on the part of the plaintiffs.

CANADIENS' WHOLESALE DEAL IN HOCKEY TALENT MARKS BREAK-UP OF FLASHING REDSHIRT LINE

Morenz-Joliat-Gagnon Combination Made History With Speedy Dashing Play

Veterans Of The Flying Frenchmen Now Broken Up By Trades

(By Bern Raymond, Central Press Sports Writer)

MONTREAL, Oct. 12.—Upon hockey's trading table, around which figuratively clustered representatives of four bigtime hockey's most famous clubs, the auction hammer has descended to smash to atoms the ice game's Flying Frenchmen.

Les Canadiens of Montreal, standard-bearers of the French-speaking race, are still in the National Hockey League as they have been since its inception and in its predecessors for a total of 25 consecutive years, but when Leo Dandurand, dapper managing director of the club, announced that speedball Howie Morenz and stolid Marty Burke would henceforth play their hockey in Chicago uniforms, he wrote "finis" to possibly the most colorful collection of hockey talent ever gathered under the bigtime tent.

One of Largest Deals

The trading orgy which sends Morenz and Burke along with Goalie Lorne Chabot to the Black Hawks in exchange for Roger Jenkins, Leroy Goldsworthy and Lionel Conacher, and smooth - skating Johnny Gagnon to Boston for the services of Joe Lamb, was one of the larges deals ever culminated in the final breaking of a Redshirt line which, in the minds of thousands of Montreal's rabid fans, could never be broken, the Morenz-Gagnon-Joliat line of other days, a line that for sheer speed and glamorous, dashing play has never been equalled around the circuit.

This, then, is the obituary of a team—of the Red Devil team which has burned the ice for the last ten years and driven its wildly partisan compariots in the half-French metropolis into a frenzy of enthusiasm.

Want New Talent

Leo Dandurand and Coach Newsy Lalonde are attempting to introduce new talent into the club, the majority of whose players are undoubtedly past their peak, but that cannot remove the fact that, to the fans in the coming season, they will be definitely "on the spot" unless a new sensational line can wipe from the cash customers' memories the exploits of the traded stars. Five years ago, to mention disposing of Morenz, or of separating him from his beloved Joliat would have been tantamont to a disaster. Nowhere do fans take their hockey more seriously than in the French-speaking section of this city.

The present situation recalls another famous break-up — Connie Mack's wrecking of his $100,000 baseball infield and the lean years for Mack's Athletics which followed. The Red Devil forward line was one of those combinations which seem to carry everything needed within itself. Tinker-to-Evans-to-Chance, baseball's time-honored "perfect" infield trio, was such a combination.

The Canadiens have always had a colorful, hard-battling, thrill-providing aggregation. It was the Redshirts who produced Georges Vezina, "the Chicoutimi cucumber," still called the greatest goalie of all time. Their earlier teams bristled with great money players — Bert and Con Corbeau, the Cleghorns, the Denneney boys, Billy Coutou, the Bouchers, all names to be reckoned with among hockey's great.

Won Cup Five Times

They have won the Stanley Cup five times since it was first competed for in 1894. They are the only club left of the old "originals" who entered the National Hockey League from the defunct National Hockey Association in 1917. In the 1933-34 race they finished second in the Canadian section and tied with New York Rangers for fourth place in the combined league standing with a point total of 50.

With the breaking up of the old guard goes all that is left of the legend that all Canadien players were of necessity from French-Canadian stock. The club's roster throughout the years has been packed with French names, it is true, but in point of fact the rule, while fostered undoubtedly with an eye on the compatriot support in its home city, has not been rigid. Morenz, the centre ice meteor whose name is synonymous with the crimson-sweatered crew, is of Swiss extraction. New recruit who will replace the traded stars cannot be called French. Nelson Crutchfield, McGill University ace, around whom Dandurand expects to build a new forward line, is far from a French-sounding name. Joe Lamb and Jenkins are not French. It will be a strangely assorted crew who will drop over the boards when the cry "Les Candiens Sont Le" rings through the Montreal Forum this winter.

What About Joliat?

The question naturally arises, What will become of Joliat with Morenz and Gagnon gone? The Mighty Atom, the favorite "Quette" of the fans, who has teamed with the Stratford Streak since 1923, is still apparently untouched by time. But will he remain, to weld himself into a new forward line, now that business interests have overcome sentimental ties and shipped the meteoric Morenz, the sturdy defenceman Burke, the veteran goalie Hainsworth and then Chabot to other teams? He helped his flashing centre-ice sidekick wear out three right wingers in succession, Billy Boucher, Art Gagne, for a brief space Nick Wasnie, and then the Chicoutimi Black Cat, Gagnon, who still is in his prime. Will he, too, be sold or traded, removing the last of that flaming Red Devil line? Only Dandurand, and perhaps not he, could tell.

King Edward School Wins Kiwanis Trophy

In 1927 the Kiwanis Club of this city presented to the Horticultural Society a silver cup for annual competition among the various Public and Separate Schools of the city and district. This cup has been won and held by S.S. No. 2 for the past four years, but this year it was won by King Edward Public School.

The competition was quite keen and the cup was won by the narrowest margin—one point. This school won 51 points, while Queen Alexandra Public School was second with a total of 50 points. King George Public School was third with 40 points.

This morning at King Edward School, Mr. S. T. Harris, president of the Horticultural Society accompanied by Mr. F. H. Dearborn, chairman of the Junior section of the society, presented the cup to Mr. R. J. Bolton, principal of the school. They also presented the various pupils who were successful in winning prizes, with their prize money.

Lefty Bishop Hurls Napanee To Victory

NAPANEE, Oct. 12. — 'Lefty' Bishop, the phenominal southpaw pitcher who came to Napanee several months ago with his teammates, under the skilful coaching of Walt. Gerow, added to the season baseball laurels when the Gibbard "Bees" defeated the Courtright team at the G. W. Gibbard Memorial Park yesterday afternoon by 5 to 3, thus capturing the intermediate "B" championship of Ontario. On the preceding day Bishop also hurled his team to a victory and on both occasions he was opposed by 'Lefty' Woods, the speed boy from Courtright.

Only two of many county cricket clubs in England "broke even" financially this year.

THREATRICAL COSTUMER WILLIE CLARKSON DIES

LONDON, Oct. 13 (C.P. Cable).—"Willie" Clarkson, foremost theatrical costumier, died here to-day at the afe 73. His name had appeared in every theatrical production of note here for half a century.

Clarkson assisted the perpetrators of two of the greatest hoaxes in this century, when a bogus sultan of Zanzibar was given a civic welcome at Cambridge while the real sultan was in London.

The same conspirators, arrayed as Abyssinian dignitaries, visited a battleship to receive the most ceremonious reception. University men were behind the business.

Back to Lamps

LINDSAY, Ont., Oct. 13.—Haliburton merchants are experiencing a brisk demand for coal oil lamps, lamp chimneys and accessories as the whole town prepares to go on an extended vacation as far as electricity is concerned.

Haliburton has its own up-to-date power plant and although the town is situated far fro mthe beaten path it has enjoyed modern conveniences for some years. Repairs to the power plant will take a week or two before completion and during this time the streets will be in darkness and the 1,200 citizens obliged to get their illumination in the 'old fashioned way."

BADLY WANTED FOR HAMILTON, TORONTO JOBS

Recognized by California Teller—Wife Grabs Him on Street.

$8,000 REWARD OUT.

Canadian Forgeries Believed to Have Yielded $15,000—"Glad It's Over."

SAUSALITO, Calif., Oct. 13. — (CP) — The "Santa Claus forger," it seemed certain today, will spend this Christmas and many of them to come behind prison bars.

The wife of a crippled Canadian bank teller flung her arms around the neck of a stout man dressed as a cleric on a Sausalito street yesterday and shouted loudly for police.

After questioning her catch, authorities said he readily confessed he was Lucius Albert Parmalee, the notorious forger sought up and down Canada and the United States the past 14 years.

Mrs. Charles W. Wilson, wife of a one-legged teller in the San Francisco branch of the Canadian Bank of Commerce, was the woman who apparently brought an end to the long international hunt.

Because of her courage it promised to be a merry Christmas for her. A reward of $6,000 had been placed on Parmalee's head by the banks in the Dominion and in this country allegedly mulcted through the psuedo-clergyman's pen-wizardy.

In December, 1931, a cashier in Hamilton, Ont., rushed with Christmas business cashed a $4,000 cheque for a smiling, red-faced man who appeared to be a good-natured church minister. The cheque was quickly revealed as a bogus but the "preacher" had vanished.

3 Toronto Banks Victimized.

The year before, also during the December holiday rush, three Toronto banks were victimized of $11,000 through expertly forged cheques. A jolly "clergyman" had cashed all of them. Toronto police spread a net for Parmalee, as did Hamilton police 12 months later, but they caught nothing.

After the Hamilton coup of '31, nothing was heard of the pen-master turned crook until Mrs. Wilson

FEAR MRS. STOLL BEEN MURDERED

Police Begin Combing Area Around Large Kentucky Estate.

SEEK BODY.

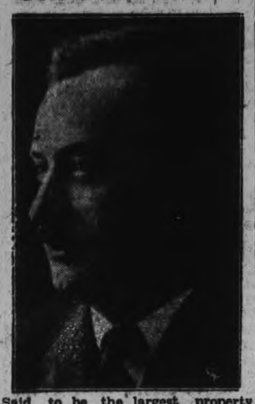
LOUISVILLE, Ky., Oct. 13.— (A. P.)—Fear that Mrs. Alice Speed Stoll might have been killed by the kidnapper who stole her from her home Wednesday was indicated today by a sudden rush of city and county police and federal agents to search the entire area around the 15 acre Stoll estate of the fashionable lime kiln lane near here.

Belief that the woman's body might be found was expressed by one policeman as he dashed up in the sudden convergence of about 50 officers in striking contrast to the withdrawal of all guards a short time before yesterday's announcement that the ransom demands had ben met.

Dunlap Wakefield, Louisville director of safety, who led one party, concentrated upon a long abandoned house a few miles southward of the Stoll home. He searched it intensely from cellar to attic, poking under partly fallen in floors, but his only answer to a question prompted by the policeman's remark as to whether whe was looking for Mrs. Stoll"s body, the $50,000 ransom or the kidnapper himself, was "I can't say, except that we are overlooking no clues."

During recent heavy floods in Rumania the fire department of Bucharest received hundreds of calls to inundated parts of the city.

Gets Death Threat



Said to be the largest property holder in Napanee, Ontario, and a prominent citizen of that city, Arthur S. Kimmerly has received an extortion letter demanding payment of $30 000 on pain or death. Mr. Kimmerly fears the kidnapping of one of his four small children

Peter Waves to Throng As He Helps Widowed and Ill Queen From Train.

COUNTRY QUIET.

Hundreds of Suspects Rounded Up—No Real Evidence of Plot.

By Charles M. Meister
(Copyright, 1934, by the Associated Press).

BELGRADE, Yugoslavia, Oct. 13. —A scene of unprecedented popular acclamation, joy and devotion greeted the child King Peter when he arrived here to-day to take the throne of his assassinated father.

Peter arrived at 9 a.m., accompanied by the widowed Queen and her mother, Dowager Queen Marie of Rumania.

Three weeks ago the 11-year-old Peter left here as a simple school boy on his way to England to be educated. To-day he returned a king.

All through the night huge crowds thronged the railroad station. When they caught sight of the smiling boy, dressed as simply as a school child, standing on the platform of the train waving his handkerchief, tears of pity and sympathy mingled with the cries of joy and affection from the multitude.

The widow of Alexander was too

Worthless

ERIE, Pa., Oct. 13.—(CP)—An Erie County jury has decided that a horse's tail is worth exactly nothing in dollars and cents.

They returned a verdict against Sam Kocholski, who sued John Smith, farmer neighbor, for $287 after a horse Kocholski loaned Smith lost its tail in a threshing machine.

REFUNDING LOAN PASSES LIMIT BY $33,000,000

Outstanding Success—Fitting Culmination to Series of Refunding Issues Says Rhodes.

ALLOTMENTS MADE.

Only Holders of Liberty Bonds Reinvesting to Receive Full Amounts.

OTTAWA, Oct. 13. (CP)—Oversubscription of the 1934 Dominion refunding loan by almost $33,000,000 necessitating a heavy scaling down of the larger cash subscriptions was announced to-day by Minister of Finance E. N. Rhodes. The total subscribed for the $250,000,000 flotation was almost $283,000,000.

All cash subscriptions were received subject to allotment and they will be cut while holders of maturing victory bonds reinvesting in the new loan will receive the full amount of their subscriptions.

"With an over-subscription of about $33,000,000" said Mr. Rhodes, "the loan may be regarded as an outstanding success and a fitting culmination to the series of refunding issues which have been made at lower interest rates since 1931."

The minister expressed himself as being exceedingly gratified at the response received from both large and small investors.

Up to $25,000 in Full

All cash subscriptions in amounts up to $5,000 in all four maturities are alloted in full. In the two year two percent bonds and the five-year 2½ percent boads, cash subscriptions in excess of $25,000 will be allotted only 50 percent, in the eight-year 3 percent bonds and the 15-year 3½ bonds, cash subscriptions of $25,000 and up to $500,000 will receive an allotment of 70 percent, and subscriptions over $500,000 an allotment of 50 percent.

All banks and bond dealers have been advised of the basis of allotment and purchasers of bonds will be expected to make payment for the amounted allotted and take up their securities on Monday, Oct. 15.

The loan was floated by the regular officials of the Finance Department who made all plans for the campaign and received and handled the subscriptions.

Truck Hits Ditch Man Fatally Hurt

COBOURG, Ont., Oct. 13.—(C.P.)—When the truck in which he was riding crashed into the ditch on the Baltimore-Roseneath road last night Albert Thair of Scarboro, was instantly killed.. His companion, Robert Sherwood, of Toronto, was badly injured and taken to Cobourg Hospital. Benjamin Morris, driver of the car, escaped injury. An inquest was opened to-day and adjourned for one week.

The Weather

Cost collars of late strollers last night were turned up as the thermometer dipped to 24 degrees, 8 degrees of frost. It was not a new record but equalled the record low so far this season.

"It is nothing unusual," Walter Peters, weatherman, commented. "It's getting around the time when we must expect cool nights."

By noon today, the temperature had climbed slowly to 45 degrees.

Freight movements in Sweden in the first six months of this year were 22.6 per cent above those for the same period of 1933.

Too Anxious

ST. PARIS, O., Oct. 13.—(CP)—Burglars wasted a lot of time in the St. Paris Grain Co. office.

In the first place, there wasn't anything in the safe. But they couldn't know that, so they blasted it open.

But they should have tried the safe door first. It was unlocked.

Gang Breakers

CHICAGO, Oct. 13.—(C.P.)—Detectives Thomas Torpy, John Torpy and Joseph Lenert are gang breakers.

Since the first of the year they have sent 139 boys and young men to prison after they had received orders to break up the notorious "12" gang of Chicago. One of their prisoners, the police say, confessed to a slaying.

PLANT KILLING FROST SWOOPS UPON ONTARIO

Temperatures Drop Abruptly From 47 Degrees to 28 or Lower.

VEGETABLES FROZEN.

By the Canadian Press

Chill air blown southward from the high-pressure area about Hudson Bay made Ontario shiver during the night and brought the season's first plant-killing frost.

In Toronto the temperature dropped abruptly from 47 down to 28 last night. Similar sharp decreases were shown throughout the province.

Minimums of 27 degrees at London, [illegible] Kitchener, 30 at Windsor, at Parry Sound, 28 at [illegible] River and 18 at Moosonee were reported. Coldest spot on record was Doucet in Western Quebec with a temperature of 12 degrees above zero.

North Bay reported garden vegetables frozen when placed on the market in the early morning hours. The situation improved however, with the appearance of a warming sun.

Crisp autumn weather was in store for the afternoon making conditions ideal for innumerable rugby games. Sunday's predictions are fair with higher temperature.

BALKAN TROUBLE UP TO LEAGUE

Should Have Full Responsibility Says Britain—Plot Points to Hungary.

MAY BE COMPLICATIONS.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—(AP)— The British government wants the League of Nations to have full responsibility for investigating the Marseille assassinations should international relations become strained, it was said authoritatively today.

Leaders of the government are anxiously watching latest disclosures indicating an international terrorist organization with members from Italy, Hungary and other nations linked to the assassination of King Alexander and Louis Barthou, and the possible effect of felations between Yugoslavia and Hungary and Italy.

If proved the plot originated in Hungary it was feared a critical situation might arise. It was pointed out that earlier information the arrested men carried Czechoslovakian passports, now established as foregeries, was not so serious, as Yugoslavia and Czechoslovakia have been stunch allies since the war. On the other hand Hungary has consistently demanded revision of post-war treaties at the expense of Yugoslavia and other neighboring nations.

Serious Turn

Now that attention has turned on Hungary with reports terrorists had headquarters at Hanka Pufta, Hungarian official circles here admit the situation has assumed a more serious character.

It was authoritatively stated terrorist societies among the Balkan minorities such as the Croats, and their activities, have been watched closed by British official representatives in those countries.

It was confidently believed in official circles here that before resorting to any force Yugoslavia would immediately request the League to summon an extraordinary session of the council to consider her position under article II of the covenant.

ONTARIO SYSTEM OF BOOKKEEPING TO BE REVAMPED

Must Balance Budget Before Sinking Fund Created to Retire Province's Debt.

HEPBURN TELLS PRESS.

Says Price's Fund Mythical—Cash Actually Borrowed to Create It.

TORONTO, Oct. 13.—(C.P.)—Until the Ontario government is able to "set up an accurate system of bookkeeping and then balance a budget," there will be no sinking fund created to retire the Provincial debt, Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn said to-day.

At a morning interview with the press, the Premier said the present bookkeeping system is to me "thoroughly revamped," at present it "is difficult to get a true picture of Ontario's financial situation."

The sinking fund created by Hon. W. H. Price, at that time provincial treasurer, was a "mythical fund and money actually was borrowed to provide for it," the Premier said. "We may just as well put an end to this kind of conspiring to hide the truth from the people of the province. Borrowing money to provide the mythical sinking fund was ridiculous, and anyway where it has gone we do not know."

The Premier said a conference was being held to consider flotation of a large refunding loan. "But the bonds must go to maturity, and it is pretty hard to refund them in a province. A province cannot make a patriotic appeal as can the Dominion. So we can't announce a policy to do it overnight."

FINAL TRIBUTE PAID BARTHOU

Representatives of Nearly Every Country in World Follow Casket.

LONG A FACTOR OF PEACE.

PARIS, October 13 (A.P.). — Louis Barthou, assassinated last Tuesday by a Terrorist in Marseille, was borne to his tomb to-day amid the homage of nearly every country in the world.

President Lebrun of France and dignitaries of many countries walked behind his flag-draped casket, over which Premier Gaston Doumergue pronounced a funeral oration on the vast Esplanade des Invalides.

Barthou's casket was carried on the shoulders of six of his colleagues in the French Foreign Office through a solid lane of soldiers with fixed bayonets presenting arms.

Lebrun was the first among the mourners, then followed the Premier and the Cabinet, the diplomats Canadian Minister, was in the second row.

Sir John Simon, the Foreign Minister of Great Britain, and Dr. Edouard Benes, the Foreign Minister of Czechoslovakia, long friends of Barthou and often associated in negotiations, walked with J. A.C. Avenol, the Secretary-General of the League of Nations, and Nicholas Politis, former Greek Minister to France.

Extols Statesman.

"In a few days Barthou was to visit a neighboring country to which we are closely allied by ties of blood to iron out differences and promote understanding," the Premier told his hushed audience.

"The tragic events at Marseille," he continued, "striking Yugo lavia to her very heart and us in the person of one of our most illustrious statesmen cannot but knit closer the union of our two peoples.

"Let us block the road to the forces of evil spreading death and let us remember that the man who just sacrificed his life, fell while attempting to assure the peace of the world."

The Premier then extolled the slain Minister's courage and energy during his many years of political activity and the deep patriotism which guided all his actions.

The 180-year-old grape vine at Cumberland Lodge, Windsor Great Park, England, bore nearly 800 bunches this year.

Mining Section

The Examiner contains to-day ten pages devoting to mining in Northern Ontario, Manitoba, Quebec and British Columbia. Numerous stories appear describing the growth of some of the world's leading mines and what these have meant in the development of Canada. The ten pages containing this valuable historic information are to be found in the first part of the second section of this issue.

CROSSING CRASH TAKES 4 LIVES

Car Hits Freight at Sarnia, Killing Three, Fourth Dies Later.

ON SIGHT-SEEING TRIP.

SARNIA, Ont., Oct. 13 (C.P.). — The death in general hospital this morning of Arthur Holder, 53, city market clerk, swelled the toll of a level crossing crash here last night to four lives.

The other victims were Mrs. Jessie Holder, 93, city, Ada Holder, 50, and Marguerite Holder, 21, of Long Reach, N.B.

Miss Jennie Holder of Sarnia who was injured, is suffering principally from shock, and her recovery is expected. She was the only one thrown clear of the car by the impact.

Funeral arrangements have not yet been completed, but it is expected the remains of Ada and Marguerite Holder will be shipped to New Brunswick for burial.

The accident, one of the worst in this district for years, occurred when an automobile driven by Arthur Holder ran into a Canadian National Railways freight train which was backing up from the Imperial Oil Refinery yard on South Vidal Street.

On Way Home.

The party was returning from a sight-seeing trip down the river and Mr. Holder had driven to Vidal Street to give his passengers a view of the Canadian entrance to the St. Clair Tunnel when the crash occurred.

The driver apparently did not see the waving lantern in the hands of W. L. Steinman, trainman on the freight, until it was too late to avoid a collision. The auto ran squarely into the side of the rear tank car and was carried 220 feet down the tracks. The body of the aged Mrs. Holder was thrown out of the car and was found underneath the train. The others, with the exception of Jennie, were imprisoned in the car.

Arthur Holder was caught under the freight car, and he directed operations for his rescue. He was not removed for more than an hour because it was necessary to lift the car with jacks.

An inquest will be held, but the date has not been set.

Vegetables Freeze On Farmers' Market

NORTH BAY, Ont., Oct. 13.—(C P)—Cold weather gripped the north today and so frigid was the temperature that garden vegetables froze when put on display at the farmers' market here.

George Winton, superintendent of the market, declared it was the first time in his many years' experience that such a thing happened so early in the season.

Later in the morning the sun came out strongly and it was reasonably warm. The lake here is not yet frozen.

Plums which cost 3.90 to pick and $1.40 to haul to a London market recently brought the producer only 60 cents.

Photographers and artists have been forbidden to take photographs or make pictures within six miles of French military barracks.

TENSION TIGHTENS.

Beautiful Czech Woman Said to Have Carried Guns for Assassination Squad.

BY RICHARD G. MASSOCK
Copyright, 1931, by the A.P.

PARIS, Oct. 13. — The terrorist band "Utashi" which Yugoslavia accuses Hungary of harboring, was identified by the French Surete Nationale today as the sinister power behind the assassinations of King Alexander of Yugoslavia and Louis Barthou of France at Marseille Tuesday.

Two suspects held in Annemasse and two men who escaped the police hunt for accomplices of Petrus Kalemen, the actual assassin, were identified from photographs as members of the Yugoslav refugee organization Utasha which is alleged to be headed by a man named V. E. Paverich.

It was this organization, said the police, which sent a pretty, brown-haired woman to carry the gang's guns to France. The "gun moll's" name was Marie Vjoudroch, the police said. The girl escaped capture.

Started From Hungary.

The autho rities announced that all the members of the "assassination squad" started with Hungarian passports for France by way of Switzerland from the Jankarmata Farm in Hungary, where they had engaged in target practice with 30 other Yugoslav refugees.

Two suspects held at Annemasse, Ivan Rajtich, and Zvomemer Pospechil, gave the French police most of this information.

Rajtich said that the four squad members were met at Lausanne by an unidentified man known only as "Monsieur Le Docteur"—the Doctor. He bought them all new clothes, some of which were purchased in Lausanne and others in Paris. The police previously had announced that Balkan revolutionaries dressed the slayer who was picked by lot, in new clothes prior to the assassination which would be tantamount to his own suicide.

Rajtich forgot to remove the label of the Lausanne dealer who sold his new hat and so did Kalemen the label of the Paris store where his suit was purchasd.

Had False Passports.

Rajtich said that the band went from Lausanne to Fontainebleau after having been supplied with false Czechoslovak passports. From Fontainebleau they came to Paris by motorbus. Here the four split into two parties, two of them stopping at one hotel and the other pair at another.

Kvaternik, whose photograph was identified by a hotelkeeper at Aix-en-Provence out of a batch sent from Belgrade as that of Kramer, arrived in Aix-en-Provence October 7. He took a taxi at the station and had his driver stop at a street corner to pick up a "beautiful, tall woman" with four handbags.

They went to a hotel where the woman stopped with the bags which are believed to have contained the assassin's guns. Kvaternik took a room in another hotel.

Kvaternik, who was described as a pale, slender, blonde man aged about 32, was joined on the following day by Kalemen and Chalny. Then Kvaternik, said the hotelkeeper, paid his bill and departed, presumably for Fontainebleau. The woman, Kalemen, and Chalny checked out of their hotels on October 9, the day of the assassination.

SPEEDY ACTION ON SUGGESTIONS SAYS HEPBURN

Racine Condemns Lee, Urges Chairman, Other Officers Be Ousted.

CUT MOOSONEE SERVICE.

Immediate Audit Needed—Officials Open to Suspicion on Coal Deals.

TORONTO, Oct. 13.—(C. P.)—Immediate action was promised by Premier Mitchell F. Hepburn today on recommendations contained in the report of Armand Racine, K.C. who conducted an exhaustive inquiry into administration of the Temiskaming and Northern Ontario Railway.

"Naturally," said the premier, "I'll take action immediately. There will be a cabinet meeting Monday and I probably will have something to say then, but until then I have nothing more to discuss."

The report, submitted officially to the premier yesterday, contained suggestion for sweeping reorganization in the personnel and all phases of operation to provide improved service with reduced expenditures, estimated to permit an economy of $500,000 annually.

Retirement of George Lee, chairman of the Commission of the government-owned railway which runs from North Bay with branch lines, to Moosonee on the James Bay, is recommended by the special inquiry Commissioner who condemns the Railway Commission for what he describes as laxity and negligence in their duties.

Mr. Racine said the Commission, composed of Mr. Lee, chairman, L. T. Martin, vice-chairman and J. I. McLaren, never knew the exact financial position of the railway and never took "proper steps to ascertain it." He suggested henceforth, commissioners serve without remuneration.

The Railway Commission further, says Mr. Racine, were, along with the Ontario Government, "most negligent in not giving proper consideration to the factors that could justify construction" of the extension of the line from Abitibi to Moosonee.

Line Mostly Over Swamp

"In attempting to seek justification for the construction of this extension," said the report, "I cannot conceive how anyone could have anticipated any profitable traffic to result therefrom. . . . It is 80 per

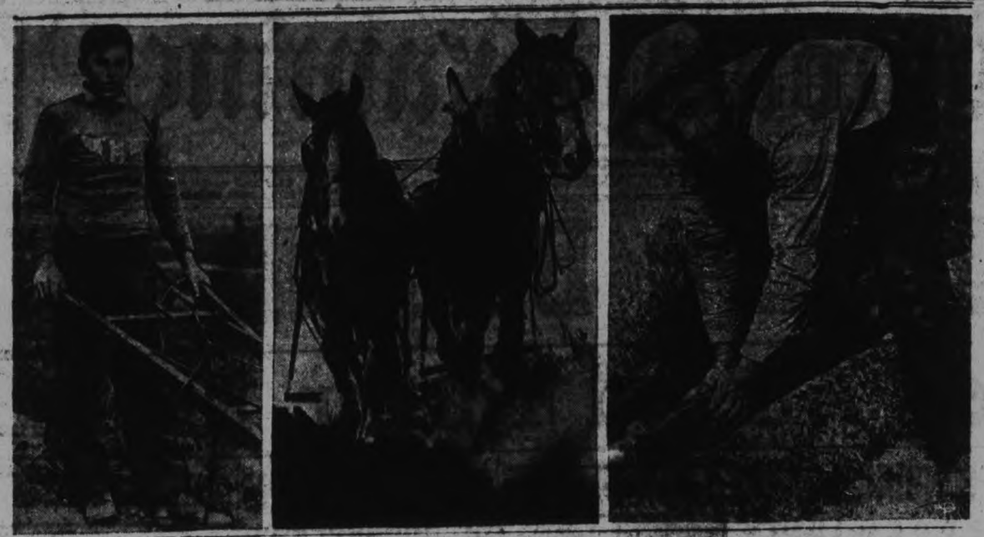
BRAN and OATMEAL COOKIES

Makes 4½ to 6 dozen Cookies

1 cup Quaker Oats	½ teaspoon Baking Soda
½ cup Raisins	3 tablespoons Hot Milk
½ cup Shelled Walnuts	½ cup Pastry Flour
1 Egg	½ teaspoon Cinnamon
½ cup Granulated Sugar	½ teaspoon Nutmeg
¼ teaspoon Salt	½ cup Quaker Natural Bran
½ cup Melted Butter

Put the Quaker Oats, raisins and nuts through the food chopper. Beat the egg, add sugar, salt and melted butter and combine thoroughly. Then add hot milk in which soda is dissolved. Sift together the flour, cinnamon and nutmeg, and add with the bran to the batter. Lastly add the chopped ingredients, mix well and drop by small spoonfuls onto a greased baking sheet, keeping them 2 or 3 inches apart. Bake in a moderate oven (350°F., to 400°F.) for about 15 minutes.

International Plowing Match Draws Big Entry List



Ploughmen from all over Ontario, some from other provinces and several from the United States, churned up the farmlands of Frank O'Connor at his Maryvale Farms, near Agincourt, Ont., seeking prizes in the international ploughing matches. These ploughing matches always show more than who can plough the best furrow; they show who among the men in the public eye were once, or still are, farmers. Lieutenant-Governors, Premiers, and big industrialists hobnob with each other as they watch fine teams churn up the turf. The layout shows: Left, Ivan Raymer of Milliken, Ont., who won the title for those under 18, the day before his 18th birthday; centre, a fine team of horses; right, William Harrison of Oak, winner of the open jointer (sod) class.

ROSENEATH FAIR LAST OF SEASON IS BIG SUCCESS

Attendance and Entries Exceed All Previous Years.

RACE TRACK ACCIDENT.

Big Variety of Entertainment Put On in One Day's Program.

ROSENEATH, Oct. 13.—Barnum's old circus phrase "bigger and better than ever" shed its novelty years ago, but it was applicable in literal truth to the Roseneath Fair yesterday, the fade-out of the Central Ontario circuit.

A crowd that packed the spacious midway, circling about the permanent merry-go-round, and spread out to the fringes of the grounds, was a recognizable cross-section of the counties of Northumberland, Peterborough, Hastings and Durham, with other visitors from Victoria and Prince Edward.

And among those present, by way of final approval, was our old friends Orme Gamsby of Orono, who has a flair for picking the bigger spots.

President Fred Slade told The Examiner that the attendance and the number of concessions exceeded past records by substantial margins, and the cross roads lined with cars and the obvious thousands of people afforded concrete evidence of the accumulating success of the Slade leadership.

Mayor Harold N. Carr, M.L.A., of Campbellford, formally opened the Fair, wearing a blue winter overcoat which might have been accepted as the day's barometer. The last rose and the remnant gladioli of the summer reflected the same seasonal note in the vestigial flower show, and the hills were gay tapestries of autumnal coloring, enchanting back-drops in the scenery of the October stage.

The Roseneath directors contrive a variety of entertainment which others Fairs pass up. For example, Harry Mouncey was in charge of a program of public speaking and singing for children, old time fiddlers, and other competitive incidentals which invariably attract a large section of the crowd to the grandstand. They even include a rolling-pin throwing contest for women, among other side-line events, and for boys they provided a kite-flying contest, minor events that carry a surprising appeal for many people.

The baby show was the main interest of a group of young mothers from the district, and for many men the race track was the afternoon's feature. Louis Bennett of Port Hope took the wraps off "Ginger Grattan" and his stable mate "Walter Stone", and pulled down first and second money in a convincing performance in the free-for-all.

For the children the merry-go-round owned by the Fair Board, clicked its busiest afternoon in twelve chonths, and added consid-

ASK RIGHT TO PICKET.

SAULT STE. MARIE, Ont., October 13 (C.P.). — Silent as to the reasons for the strike in the Sault area, bush worker who have left Abitibi Power and Paper camps held a meeting here last night at which they demanded the release of seven French-Canadian workers arrested near Cochrane during the strike trouble. They also demanded the withdrawal of armed police from the Cochrane area, and the right to strike and picket.

G. D. McAdam, chairman of the meeting, charged that unsanitary conditions existed in camps in the Sault area. At a camp at Franz, he charged, no provision was made for sleeping accommodation for the men. Pulp cutting was started as soon as the walls and roof of the camp were up, he declared.

Interviewed, McAdam declined to give any information on the progress of the strike and the aims in view. "We cannot give any information," he said. "It must all come through the Central Strike Committee." Other speakers were J. S. Buchanan, Tom Hill, and J. Berry. About 200 persons attended the meeting.

RECEIVES PURSE.

(Examiner Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 13. — Campbellford's "Grand Old Man", Thomas Barrie, reached his 85th milestone on Friday, and went about his work through the day just as usual, little thinking that plans for a birthday party in honor of the occasion was being quietly arranged and it was a real surprise party. Upon his arrival at supper time, he was greeted by every member of his family from far and near, who escorted him to the dining room where a monster birthday cake, candles and all graced the centre of the table, surrounded by all kinds of good things to eat, later presenting him with a well filled purse. The remainder of the evening being spent playing cards and dancing. Among those present were, Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Sloggett and family, Mr. and Mrs. Stollery and family, Mr. and Mrs. Roy Sykes and family, Mr. and Mrs. Ross McComb and family, Mr. Gordon Barrie and family, Miss Emily Barrie of Shannonville, Mr. and Mrs. Edward Sykes, of Connecticut, Ohio, and Mrs. Thomas Sykes of Dartford, who all joined in wishing the man who had watched Campbellford grown from a mere hamlet to a fair sized town. Many happy returns of the day, and incidentally it might be said that both Mr. and Mrs. Barrie are enjoying excellent health, Mr. Barrie being quite hale and hearty and would pass for a man of sixty-five.

AIM TO IMPROVE GRADE OF WHEAT GROWN COUNTY

Fourteen Farmers Used Certified Seed on 250 Acres of Land.

GOV'T INSPECTED

Fall Wheat Growth Been Most Unusual This Season.

A move to put Peterborough County in a position to compete in the grain markets with the leading winter wheat producing counties of the Province is now under way. More than 250 acres of certified fall wheat seed have been sown, and early growths are being watched closely as a practical experiment in raising the standard of the local product.

"During the past few years, local farmers have been feeding most of their wheat to their livestock and poultry, and, as a result, have not been paying attention to the quality of the wheat they have been sowing," Agricultural Representative A. D. Runions said this morning. "There is no reason why Peterborough can't compete with any county in Ontario."

True To Variety.

The winter wheat grown in Huron and Kent Counties, the two leading districts for the product at the present time, is not necessarily better than Peterborough wheat in quality but it is true to variety, Mr. Runions explained. Where there is carelessness in the selection of seed, a grain variety will break up gradually as it has done in this district. The task here will be to maintain quality with a trueness of variety through the use of certified seed.

Fourteen farmers in the district have joined in the initial experiment. A total of 128 bushels of certified seed of the Dawson's Golden chaff variety, all secured from Hensall in Huron County, has been sown. The fields are away to an unusually good start with fine tops showing, and unless too much top develops, the crop will go into the winter in fine shape. Several of the farmers have had to pasture their crops to keep down the top.

The majority of the crops will be field and bin inspected by Government men, and the sacks eventually Government sealed. It is hoped that the district will be its own source of certified seed for next year. It is expected that a great many farmers will be ready to join in the move now that a start has been made.

10,000 Acres Sown.

Peterborough County has an acreage of 10,000 to 12,000 acres normally under fall wheat. Estimating a normal yield here as in the vicinity of 20 bushels to the acre and taking a price of 80 cents, the county crop has a potential value of more than $150,000. The hope is that local farmers will be able to meet the standards required by Peterborough cereal plants. At present these plants are securing the bulk of their Ontario wheat needs in Huron and Kent Counties.

The list of fourteen farmers who have joined in the initial planting includes three in townships adjoining this county. The fourteen are: Gordon Hancock, Joseph and Fred Mann and Gordon Mann, Smith Township; Howard Quinn, Douro; W. A. Anderson, R. E. Drummond, Robert Plunkett, Herbert Miller, W. W. Dawson and Alex. Huston, Otonabee; A. Humphries and Son, Asphodel; Tom McIndoo and Robt. Armstrong, Cavan; and W. L. Morrison, South Monaghan.

W. G. Michael of Belleville, a representative of the Dominion Seed Branch, in co-operation with Mr. Runions, sponsored the movement.

REV. W. H. NEWELL GIVES ADDRESS

Hastings Pastor in Charge of Anniversary Service at Roseneath.

SPECIAL MUSIC

(Examiner Correspondence.)

ROSENEATH, Oct. 13. — The anniversary services in connection with the Roseneath United Church on Sunday last, were characterized by large congregations, bright music and able sermons. Rev. W. H. Newell of Hastings, was the officiating clergyman, the church being packed to the doors to hear his messages.

Rev. Mr. Newell based his morning discourse on the words taken from the Lord's Prayer, "Our Father."

In the evening the subject was "The parable of the Sower," speaking, from St. Marks' gospel, chapter 4, verse 9, "and He said unto them he that hath ears to hear let him hear." Rev. Mr. Newell reviewed the events preceding the sowers, and comparing the thorny soil, the weeds that are planted, stoney soil, all the different kinds, and thus what kind of soil is needed to build a character to be proud of.

In concluding his address Rev. Mr. Newell made a strong plea for the people to worship God and do not let anything keep you from God. Work in the good soil. Jesus starts at the wayside and works up.

The morning anthems by the choir under the leadership of Mrs. Lily Turner, were anthems, "We will rejoice," and "O Give Thanks," by the choir, and a solo "The Holy City," was beautifully sung by Mr. Lewis Roberts.

At the evening service, the special musical numbers were provided by a male quartette from Trinity United Church, Cobourg, and were Messrs. A. E. Hircock, W. Chappel, F. G. Hempstead, and M. Harper. Their singing was thoroughly appreciated, each member singing in a strong clear voice. While the congregation was gathering, Mr. Hircock favored the audience with singing an old favorite, "The Old Rugged Cross." Other numbers were, "Remember, Me, O Mighty One," "Though your Sins be as Scarlet," as a quartette, A duet by Mr. Hircock and Mr. Chappel, "He Lifted Me, He Wept."

Flowers in colorful and fragrant profusion were banked around the communion table and the pulpit, making a very beautiful picture, and giving the entire event a Thanksgiving spirit. Proceeds for the day was close to $300 in collections.

Way to Ease Headaches, Pain Almost Instantly

METHOD OFTEN RELIEVES NEURALGIA AND RHEUMATIC PAINS IN MINUTES!

Remember the pictures below when you want fast relief from pain. Demand and get the method doctors prescribe—Aspirin.

Millions have found that Aspirin eases even a bad headache, neuritis or rheumatic pain often in a few minutes!

In the stomach as in the glass here, an Aspirin tablet starts to dissolve, or disintegrate, almost the instant it touches moisture. It begins "taking hold" of your pain practically as soon as you swallow it.

Equally important, Aspirin is safe. For scientific tests show this: Aspirin does not harm the heart.

Remember these two points: Aspirin Speed and Aspirin Safety. And, see that you get ASPIRIN. It is made in Canada, and all druggists have it. Look for the name Bayer in the form of a cross on every Aspirin tablet.

Get tin of 12 tablets or economical bottle of 24 or 100 at any druggist's.

Why Aspirin Works So Fast

Drop an Aspirin tablet in a glass of water. Note that BEFORE it touches the bottom, it is disintegrating.

IN 2 SECONDS BY STOP WATCH An Aspirin tablet starts to disintegrate and go to work.

What happens in these glasses happens in your stomach—ASPIRIN tablets start "taking hold" of pain a few minutes after taking.

THE

HAS NO HOME

HAVE you ever felt a sudden leaping of the heart when ducks come rushing through the wrack of a northeast storm?. . . or a strange yearning at the sound of their babbling high against the Autumn moon? Moving southward. . . moving to new feeding grounds. . . free in the vast spaces that stretch from the Arctic to the Equatorial Zone!

But the wild duck has no home. And your instinctive feeling at the sound of his rushing movement is not so much a desire to follow him away as it is to bag him. . . to bring him to pot, as the keen hunger of Autumn days warns you the time has come to prepare for Winter.

The wild duck is not so free as man. Hunted from marshland and bay, he is driven from one precarious resting place to another, forever on the move, forever in danger.

In Autumn the instinct of man is to dig in. It is primitive instinct, for the chief enemies of man are the forces of nature. He survives only because he is foresighted. He has the ability and the means to look ahead and prepare for storms.

Instead of being forced forth to search the world for the things we need, the world brings us its best offerings.

Psalm 119: 97—"Oh, how love I thy law! It is my meditation all the day."

MAN'S NOBLEST FACULTY

(By Dean O'Sullivan)

It is significant that when God created the first man, He said, "Let Us make man to Our own image and likeness". The use of the plural number indicates that the Blessed Trinity took counsel together, if I may so speak, in the creation of man, who was made to the image of the Trinity. There is something God-like in the body of man; for unlike the animals, he walks erect with his eyes raised aloft. It is especially his soul that is the image of the Trinity, and the most perfect image that exists. The three higher faculties of the soul—reason, free will and intellectual memory—are each symbolical or emblematic of one of the three Divine persons. Reason typifies the Son Who was begotten of the Father by an act of the intelligence; free will the Holy Ghost Who by His grace inclines our wills to the performance of good; and memory God the Father, for it keeps us mindful that every best gift and every perfect gift which we have received, "is from above coming down from the Father of lights".

The consideration of these faculties brings us to the dividing line between physiology and psychology proper, that is between the sensuous operations of the soul and those that are purely intellectual. There are many professors in our universities who teach, at least implicitly, that these higher powers of the soul are nothing more than complex sensuous operations, attributable solely to the brain and nerves. But everyone who believes that man is a responsible being must admit the existence in him of a spiritual principle that dominates the powers of sense and that is endowed with intelligence and free will.

The intellect is the faculty of thought. Now how do we begin to think or to have ideas about the nature of things? We bring no ideas with us into this world. Our mind, at birth, is a "tabula rasa", a clean slate. We first receive impressions through the senses. The child sees the objects within its vision and receives impressions through the sense of hearing, taste, smell or touch. When reason dawns—and this is at a very early age—it forms judgments about the nature of the things of which it has had experience. For example, the child has seen the dog driving home the cows, wagging his tail and jumping up on its master. It has heard it barking at the approach of a stranger and noticed that it chases the cat wherever it sees it. From this data, received through the senses, it arrives at the conclusion that dogs are useful, faithful, affectionate animals, possessed of an unmusical voice and an antipathy for cats. In the same way it forms an abstract idea of the nature of the various other things that come within the scope of its experience. These things have various qualities and from the observance of these it forms ideas of beauty and ugliness, goodness and badness and so on. This is all summed up by Thomas of Acquin in the statement: "There is nothing in the intellect that is not first in the senses".

As the child advances in years it compares concepts with one another, and thus forms new judgments. This is called reasoning. When it goes to school it learns that two and two make four and that two parallel lines will never meet and that every effect has its cause. These truths are not apprehended by the senses, but by a power beyond sense, which is the noblest of man's faculties, viz., his intellect, a faculty that enables him to arrive at a knowledge of the existence of God and of many of His attributes. Angels have an intuitive knowledge of universal truths; hence they are called intellectual beings. But man is called a rational being because he acquires knowledge, not intuitively, but by the laborious process of reasoning, that is comparing one truth with another and thus deducing a third.

Closely associated with the gift of reason is that of speech. In fact they are so closely associated that the Greeks call them by the same name, "logos". Speech is an admirable interpreter of the intelligence. By means of it we can communicate our most intimate thoughts to others without losing anything of what we communicate. As God did not give intelligence to animals, neither did He give them the gift of speech. But both of these He bestowed upon man. As all the races of men trace their descent back to Adam, so all the different tongues have a common root in the language spoken by Adam; and that language came from God. The Bible tells us that God brought before Adam all the beasts of the field and all the fowls of the air, and the latter gave each an appropriate name, which designated the nature and the qualities of the object named. Great is the power of speech in the natural order, but still greater is the supernatural. It is fittingly called "the censor of the Divinity". By it we give expression to our acts of adoration, thanksgiving and petition, in a word, to our prayers, which ascend as incense before the throne of God. It is the tongue that operates the grace of the sacraments which enlightens that intellect of which I have spoken and moves that free will of ours of which I will have omething to say later.

CATHEDRAL MUSINGS

CONSCIOUSNESS may be defined as an awareness, externally to environment, internally to one's own self. With most of us, this latter phase is but superficial, because we are not truly aware of our own selves. The majority do not desire to plumb the depths of their own being, some of us are afraid.

It is written that man is made in the image and likeness of God. As God is a spirit it is obvious that the image and likeness is a spiritual image and likeness and has nothing whatever to do with form. It is also written that the kingdom of heaven is within, that we are children of the Most High, and that our physical bodies are temples of the Living God. It is quite clear, therefore, that to enter into the consciousness of God means the finding of the kingdom within the depths of our own being.

It is unfortunate that the idea has arisen that heaven can only be experienced after the change that is termed "death" has taken place because the finding and entering into the kingdom has to be done in this world. There is many a man to-day who, like Enoch, walks with God as he goes about his daily affairs, and so is in heaven while yet on earth.

To such a man there is no death, but only a transfer of consciousness from one state of being to another; from a state of somewhat imperfect realization to one that is complete. He cannot die, for he has already died to his lower self and has awakened to his real nature as a son of God while yet clothed in the flesh.

If we think in terms of the lower self, the selfish "I", we think in terms of illusion, of time and not of eternity, for this lower self is not our real self, but only a distorted, inverted reflection of that which is within us. Its ways lead down to death. To approach to God we must make manifest the Word which is within us, our real self. In other words, to realize God in our consciousness we must be God-like so that our every thought, word and deed is but the clear shining from within of that Light which lighteth every man that cometh into the world. — Frater IX., Rosicrucian Order, San Jose, Calif.

Of Park Street Baptist Church.

IN 1935 we shall observe the one hundredth anniversary of the invention of the electric telegraph by Samuel Morse. The story of the invention is an interesting one. A theory proposed by a science teacher in Yale, and eventually worked out by Morse, produced the invaluable discovery of the telegraph. The theory was this: "If the circuit of electricity be interrupted, the fluid will become visible, and when it passes it will leave an impression upon any intermediate body." To use Morse's own words: "The fact that the presence of electricity can be made visible in any desired part of the circuit was the crude seed which took root in my mind and grew into form and shape and ripened into the invention of the telegraph."

Life, for the most of people, contains many broken circuits. Interrupted plans, disappointed hopes, purposes not carried out, ambitions unrealized, and goals unattained. The last twenty years have witnessed more broken plans amongst young and older persons than probably any other period in the world's history. Circumstances—"Some cause that needs assistance, some wrong that needs resistance"—ill-health, misfortune, business reverses, problem of unemployment invade life and produce our broken circuits. Scarcely a day or week passes that does not bring an interruption of one's program and miscarrying of one's plans.

It should encourage us, however, to remember that our New Testament is a continued story of broken circuits which God has used for His glory. Jesus called His men from the boats and nets, and their plans for the fishing business are broken that they might fulfil Christ's plan for their discipleship. The career of Saul of Tarsus is re-directed on the Damascus road that the persecutor might become a preacher of the Christian faith which formerly he sought to destroy. The Good Samaritan suffers an interrupted journey to care for the one fallen amongst thieves, and there flashes from that broken circuit the light of true neighborliness. Simon, the Cyrenian's travels are interrupted, too, to bear the Saviour's cross, and thus assist in love's redeeming work. The Christ Himself dies on Calvary's Cross, voluntarily suffering that awful broken circuit that He might effect the Atonement and that we might say:

"In the cross of Christ I glory,
Towering o'er the wrecks of time;
All the light of sacred story
Gathers round its head sublime."

Let us not forget John Bunyan's imprisonment, that interrupted circuit in his life out of which there has come Pilgrim's Progress. Or Milton stricken with blindness writing Paradise Lost and Regained. Or Dr. Moon, of Brighton, England, loosing his sight and saying, "Lord, I accept this talent of blindness from Thee. Help me to use it for Thy glory, that at Thy coming Thou mayest receive Thine own with usury." The result of that prayer was the invention of the Moon alphabet for the blind.

Friends, may our broken plans and our bitterest disappointments not be turned over to God Himself in whose plan,

"Defeat may serve as well as victory to shake the soul and let the glory out."

And in whose purpose,

"Sorrows come
To stretch out spaces in the heart for joy." (Edwin Markham.)

Can anyone of us serve the purpose of God? Are we not all failures and far short of coming up to what God wants us to be? —H. M.

The better we understand God's purpose concerning us, the more convinced are we that we come very far short of what we should be. The other day I watched a game of baseball for the championship of a town. There were some bad errors —too many of them—but there were many fine plays, and after all it was baseball and not too bad.

In the game of life we have a bigger and harder job, but the Divine Manager is a sympathetic encourager and He patiently seeks improvement.

Your Problems

Religious and Social Questions Answered By DR. WYLIE CLARK

Which is the more pessimistic—The pulpit or the press?—R. F. D.

The press has the harder job. Each day it has to record all the abnormal happenings of the world. The ordinary daily paper generally has many things to say which are very far away from the perfect, but in spite of this it does not quit, and most papers see a better day.

Dr. Wylie Clark

The pulpit's message is one of hope and assurance. It has the cure for the ills of the world. Of course, at times the pulpit allows itself to be overshadowed by what church, but it always comes back.

Define what is your idea of being born again.—A. W. A.

I hope my idea is as nearly right as it is possible for a human being to come. It is founded on the teaching of Jesus in His conversation with Nicodemus in the third chapter of John's gospel. It is a birth of the water and the spirit. The water was symbolical and meant that the past was washed away and the man was separated from his sins. The spirit was the new life taking possession and producing the fruits of righteousness.

Is it true that the great sin of the age is that we have belittled God?—G. R. T.

There seems to be a general opinion that God does not hold first place in either our thinking or living. The old idea of the sovereignty of God is no longer supreme. If this be true, then we have revolted from our allegiance, and have been guilty of treason, which is a great sin against God.

Can a real Christian rightly indulge in all kinds of worldly pleasure?—A. W. A.

There are terms in this question which are more or less indefinite as to their meaning. What is a "real Christian"—what does "rightly indulge" mean, and what are "all kinds of worldy pleasures"? Many Christians and non-Christians would differ wildly in their definitions. I have been astonished and a little amused at the answers made by different people to these problems.

If a real Christian were considering the pleasures he would choose only those which his real self would justify. I think the spirit enlightened soul has to depend a good deal on common sense.

If a man get converted, what is the next step he should take? —F. G.

He should rejoice, be thankful, and start to be useful as a Christian. Many converts fall away because they try to live in spiritual idleness. There are so many ways in which he can show that his life is changed. The doing of these confirms his own thinking and establishes his faith. It was rumored that a certain business man had joined the Oxford Group. Next day his staff knew it was true by his attitude in the office. At noon his stenographer announced to the rest: "He has sure got it, for three times he said, 'Thank you'."

The Christian and His Bible

ILLUSTRATED SUNDAY SCHOOL LESSON

Scripture — Acts 8:26-39

By the Rev. Alvin E. Bell And Alfred J. Buescher

Philip, one of the early Christian church's seven deacons, was preaching to great crowds in Samaria when the Spirit of God sent him into the desert road leading to Gaza to teach an Ethiopian who was returning from Jerusalem reading the Scriptures.

The Ethiopian asked Philip into his chariot to explain the Bible to him. He was reading Isaiah's prophecy of the man of sorrows, but could not understand until Philip showed him its fulfillment in Jesus. Christ was the one "led as a sheep to the slaughter". Philip taught.

The Ethiopian believed the scriptures and accepted Christ as his Saviour. To show his obedience to God's way of salvation he requested Philip to baptize him, which Philip did as they came to water.

This lesson teaches us how to study our Bible to find Christ in its every part as Philip did here. We should study it prayerfully and submissively as the Ethiopian did, seeking to learn God's will for us and doing its teachings.

WHY TURN HIM LOOSE?

It is probable that many people in other parts of the province will find it difficult to convince themselves that the Seaforth magistrate followed the wisest course in suspending sentence upon a man found guilty of molesting a ten-year-old girl in that town, and in making it a condition of the sentence that the prisoner must not come back to Seaforth.

"Young girls are not safe where you are," the magistrate said, "and at your age there is no use telling you not to drink. In placing Seaforth out of bounds to you I am protecting you as well as the women of that town."

All of which is excellent so far as Seaforth is concerned, but if this man is such a menace to the safety of women, why should he be turned loose to molest girls in other places?

If, as the magistrate said, girls are not safe from this offender, it will appeal to most people as common sense that he should have been sentenced to an institution where he could be kept locked up, rather than allowed to go free to continue his activities with the whole province, except Seaforth, as his hunting ground.

It is difficult to follow the reasoning that led to the decision that this man was a danger to the safety of the women of one town, but could be permitted to remain at large so long as he kept away from that particular municipality.

Behind the bars would seem to be the logical place for individuals of his calibre.

THE WORKERS' VARSITY.

The workers' evening class to be conducted under the auspices of the Workers' Educational Association of Peterborough will hold its opening meeting in the Collegiate Institute on Monday night with Adrian Macdonald, M.A., of the Normal School staff, as tutor and "Psychology" the subject to be studied.

This organization, which has been in existence here for some years, is one that should be attractive to all workers who think, because it provides them with an opportunity, under their own direction, to increase their knowledge along lines that will make them better citizens.

The Association in general is sponsored by the University of Toronto, the University of Western Ontario, Queen's University and McMaster University; material for discussion is presented by a number of qualified tutors of university training, and the subjects offered include economics, psychology, composition, current events, civilization, finance, philosophy, appreciation of art and music, public speaking, literature, sociology and civics.

The Peterborough class during the fall and winter months will study psychology.

As explained in the prospectus, psychology is a study of mental and nervous processes, of those things that account for the thoughts and actions of human beings. It includes an examination of the nervous mechanism, the learning process, and a discussion of the influence of heredity and environment, habit formation, instincts, sensation and thought.

It is to be hoped that the Workers' Educational Association of Peterborough will have an interesting and profitable season.

NOT THE BEST WAY.

Instructions have been given by the Town Council of Whitby to the relief inspector in that town to furnish the Whitby hotelkeepers with a list of persons on relief with the request that recipients of relief should not be sold beer or wine in beverage rooms.

Admittedly those who are dependent upon public funds for the necessities of life should not be customers of beer parlors, but at the same time, The Examiner is not inclined to agree with the Whitby plan as the best method of dealing with this problem.

In the first place, there is an objectionable side to circulating a list of persons who, through no fault of their own, are receiving relief; secondly, it does not seem to be fair to expect proprietors of beverage rooms to keep track of all citizens who may be recipients of assistance, a task of no small magnitude, even with an official list to guide them.

If there are those who are not playing the game and are spending money on beer that should be used in meeting the needs of their families, the relief authorities should be able to single out these offenders without calling upon the hotelmen to maintain a black list of unusual size.

Probably the families who are being neglected in favor of the beverage rooms would be glad to furnish the information to the relief staff; in any event the policy that has been adopted in Whitby does not appeal as a reasonable or practical way of handling a problem that since the advent of beer by the glass has caused relief organizations everywhere a great deal of concern.

A BUSINESSLIKE POLICY.

No one will be able to attack successfully the logic of Hon. David Croll's contention that in municipalities where the province has been paying the whole cost of relief that it should have direct control of expenditures.

In a number of Ontario centres the province has been contributing 100 per cent. of the relief paid with the municipalities merely paying the cost of administration.

Now, as the Minister of Welfare announces, the Provincial Government will assume the cost of relief administration as well, and thus will have supervision of the money expended.

While this will entail from now until the end of the calendar an additional expenditure of roughly $40,000, there is reason to hope that by reason of adequate control there will be an ultimate saving through the elimination of extravagant practices and the weeding out of fraudulent cases.

Where the Government has been putting up all the money required for relief it is undoubtedly the case, as Mr. Croll has expressed it, that "there is a strong disposition to extract as much as possible from the benevolent institution called Government. There is also a tendency to be reckless in the expenditure of provincial funds through the feeling that the money falls from the sky and is not to be counted out too carefully."

In deciding to exercise supervision of relief expenditures for the balance of this year and in insisting that next year these municipalities must budget not only for the cost of administration but also for a proportion of the cost of relief, Mr. Croll is adopting a businesslike policy.

Some municipalities have been milking the province long enough, and it is time they should be called upon to meet their responsibilities, especially in cases like Windsor where the authorities, in spite of depleted civic revenues, have stubbornly refused to collect municipal income tax from those liable for that levy.

VINTAGE YEARS FOR SARDINES.

There is a Scot named Moar who is a licensed victualler in Old London—in other words, he keeps a "pub"—who features sardines on his menus, British saloon keepers being supposed to serve meals if asked for. Mr. Moar is an authority on sardines, and speaks of their vintage years with the same affection as an Italian innkeeper speaks of wines. He has his "cellar" for storing them for years, turning the cans over once a month so that the olive oil will properly seep through the fishes. For those who are interested in sardines, take Mr. Moar's word for it that the best vintage years in modern times are 1906, 1910 and 1917. The 1906 vintage is so rare now that Mr. Moar only serves them to his special friends and on special occasions. He lays down the principle that sardines are not fully "matured" until they have been kept in the can for 25 to 30 years.

The bulk of the sardines sold in Canada are not true sardines at all. It is doubtful if a can of real sardines can be bought in St. Thomas, or any other city outside the big stores. Millions of cans are labeled sardines which, scientifically speaking, are not entitled to be so described. The true sardine is found off the coasts of Brittany and Norway, and the sardine fishermen of France and Norway have registered the name in Europe so that only their products can be sold as sardines. But elsewhere millions of cans are sold every year as sardines which are merely some other species of small fish belonging to the herring family and preserved in oil.

A large percentage of the world's population think they have sardines for tea when they haven't.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

AMERICANS STUDY BRITISH TAXES.

With a long and historic plan of taxation, one which has had to be worked to the limit of endurance of late years, the British Government has a pretty nearly perfect system, and as the United States Government has to look ahead for more taxes to pay for the recovery program, it is looking to Britain for guidance. There are many loopholes and injustices about the American system, and so a delegation from the United States Treasury is going across to get first-hand information as to how they do things over there.

The English and American income tax systems are fundamentally different. Basically they are predicated upon distinct conceptions of what constitutes taxable income. The English regard generally as taxable income only earnings received for personal services or for the employment of capital, like wages and salaries, interest and dividends from investments, and profits derived from the sale of commodities in the conduct of trade or business. Enhancement in the price or value of securities or other property held for investment and accretions to capital are not generally taxable; the latter are deemed returns of capital regardless of whether the proceeds of sales thereof be less or more than the cost of acquirement. Thus an accretion to capital does not become income merely because the original capital was invested in the hope and expectation that it would rise in value; if it does so rise, its realization does not make it income.

Generally, under the American system of taxation, realized increment in value and capital accretions, as well as personal earnings and profits from business, are taxable as income. While neither the income tax laws of England nor those of the United States permits of wholly recouping capital invested in business enterprise, the English laws in this respect are eminently fairer. Under U. S. law losses sustained in a business may not be carried forward as a deduction from the profits of subsequent years; whereas, under the English law losses sustained in trade or profession may be carried forward and deducted from the profits of the following years up to the sixth taxable year after the year in which the loss occurred.

Solitary sales, under the English law, do not make of the seller a dealer for income tax purposes. For example, a person who owns a collection of pictures or paintings, and who sells one of them either because he needs the money for personal use or because he is offered a tempting price, is not taxable upon the proceeds of such sale.

English taxation, while severe, is as fair as it can be to the taxpayer.—St. Thomas Times-Journal.

EDITORIAL NOTES AND COMMENT.

The Telegram seems to be worrying about the cost of new rugs, etc., in Mr. Roebuck's office. It should remember that the Attorney-General has had a lot of persons on the carpet since he took office.

And now Norman Harris declares that no lawyer should be Securities Commissioner, which is a slap at both Col. Drew and his successor, J. M. Godfrey, K.C.

The rumor that G. Howard Ferguson was returning to Canada caused about as much excitement in political circles as an announcement in St. Louis that Dizzy Dean was going to pitch.

Anyway the telephones of those good folk who are on the sucker list should not ring so often from now on.

The enumerators next week are to be paid for each name on the list. That should prove an incentive to be doubly careful.

NEWS OF OUR OWN VILLAGE

Cavalry fellows from all over this fair Dominion held a meeting here the beginning of this week and not 1 of them come on horseback, believe it or not.

Joe Duffus, our leading authority on plowing, has been spending the week up on the farm of Frank O'Connor, a boy from this town which has made good in the candy business, Joe making the trip to see the International plowing matches, which is a sorta world serious affair among the plow boys, your scribe gleans.

Business as usual has been the slogan here since Tues., on which date the Cards of St. Louis, well to the southwest of us, beat the Detroits, from just across the river from Windsor, in the final game of the world serious. Several plutocrats from here took in the doings.

Holes in the Main St. sidewalks was patched up this week, there being now enough customers in the business section to make it necessary to keep them from breaking a leg or something.

Thanksgiving Day was spent very quiet here, eating being the principal occupation for most of the citizenry, so far as your scribe could glean after a close survey of what was going on locally.

A list of the voters in these parts is going to be took here next week. Some thinks if the enumerators could find out at the same time how the folks intend to vote at the next election it might save the expense and fuss of holding the same.

MAD WITH SELF-CONCEIT

To the Editor of The Examiner:

Sir: My friend, Mr. J. C. Smith, fairly represents the expiring agonies of the attempt to substitute force for character, something the Creator Himself, did not do. Mr. Thomas Pratt observed to me the other day that "life is become nothing more or less than a racket." The determination of a large body of people not to submit to the will of God, but to substitute force for character and criticism for religion, has wrecked the world. If we do not submit ourselves to the will of God, what can we do?

Noah got drunk, yet Mr. Smith will persist that the juice of those days was not intoxicating. It is hard to kick against facts, and further it is the refusal to face the facts of life that has ruined our economics. The so-called upper world has become mad with self-conceit, and has of course collapsed.

FOREIGN AFFAIRS

By H. W. L. MAHODO

LETTING IN THE LIGHT

Senator Nye is getting nigh. He has compelled the accused munition firms to tell some unsavory facts. This for instance. The firms, accommodated to the extent of receiving all the latest designs for the manufacture of certain special types of guns, have been selling them to anybody in any market.

As in a story book the plot deepens. Certain military officers who have represented the United States at the disarmament conferences were closely tied up with the makers of war machinery. Senator Nye is a real up-to-date investigator. He has produced evidence to prove that private armament firms have been active in provoking war scares. To arouse suspicions between friendly nations is dangerous business for any man. Yet private manufacturers for gain have not scrupled to stoop. Any man or any group of men guilty of this crime ought to lose the rights of citizenship. The purpose of the war scares was to block disarmament conferences and to sell war materials.

Readers of the Toronto newspapers have noted the scare items about the large air force to be authorized by the American government. The intent is to minify the effect of the Nye investigations. The item bears the ear marks of some employee of the American munitions industry. The item is bunk. Keep on the lookout for similar news as long as Nye is probing disarmament and war. Some half-wit has dropped the thought that Nye is getting a great kick and lots of publicity. Anybody to meet Nye even once is sure to be impressed with his seriousness and sincerity. He is very much in earnest. To him the record of the munitions industry is detestable. He is set on cleaning up the whole business. The American people are with him. The private manufacture and sale of munitions will hereafter be subjected to governmental supervision.

VIOLA LLMA GETS HERS WITHOUT ASKING

It came in 1933. A convention of the American Women's Association was convened that year. Miss Anne Morgan is president. In that convention composed of American representative women Miss Viola Llma stood out prominently. Her mentality, humor, repartee, saying the right thing at the ripe moment won her a place among the brilliant. That very convention sent her as the American Women's Association representative to Geneva. In that picturesque city the International Congress of Women met that summer.

Miss Lima longed to travel to know the world better. This was to her a timely opportunity to find a path that led into the human world-wilderness. To know the human world, as well as may be, is indispensible to constructive social investment of one's life. Viola Llma knew her limitations. She must know, to be. Instead of travelling Europe she roamed. Walking took the place of riding. Common folks imparted to her more than books, or magazines, or any printed thought could. Through the common folk she studied leaders and movements. Conditions in France, Germany, Italy, Britain, Spain, Scandinavia opened up to her the hidden. Impressions and insights and information were stored away in a retentive memory. She went to Europe empty minded. But new ideas, and new visions poured in upon her as she followed the trail. People in all nations had perplexity, and difficulty, and unsolved social problems. She became a companion of others in trouble. For her to travel through Europe, the after-the-war Europe, to sit down by the side of European mothers and to listen to their story of woe and sorrow determined her attitude to war. In France she heard from mothers more about the curse of war than about a victorious army and navy. On her return to America a book with a call and a cry found its way into print from her pen. The title is arresting, And Now—Youth!

NYE INVESTIGATION AROUSES THE NATIONS

To Nye's investigation there have come some world reactions. Other governments have taken action to investigate. An irresistable wave of public opinion will demand that private profit be taken out of war. This step taken by the most civilized of the nations will usher in the end of war and will cement an international brotherhood that cannot be severed.

Some of the nations have a gigantic job to curb the war propagands that has gripped all the peoples of the earth.

An American armament firm sold airplanes to the Japanese Navy, which is one of the countries whose fighting forces are most often referred to in stimulating arms preparations in the United States. Nye had the evidence to confirm the accusation. The firm investigated is wealth-strong. For once it was face to face with something mighty. Nor will it escape censure and punishment.

The Du Ponts are entrenched behind influential lobbyists at Washington. But before the law they are just common folks. Their pride has been brought low. War loves to parade. War craves for the public gaze. The Du Ponts would be glad to retire out of sight for a long time. This firm has declared profits during the years from 1915 to 1918 of 456 per cent on the par value of their original stock. Piling up a vast fortune on the very days when the nations were slaughtering each other with weapons and destructives imported from the United States. Is it any wonder that judgment has fallen from the Judge of the whole earth in the form of depression, and hunger, and blasted harvests, and unemployed? For a government to approve the Du Pont activity in the war days is a blot that cannot be washed out.

A Thought

CONSCIENCE

How beautifully was its office set forth in the ring which, according to an Eastern tale, great magician presented to his prince! The gift was of inestimable rubies, not for the diamonds and rubies and pearls that gemmed it, but for a rare and mystic property in the metal. It sat easily enough in ordinary circumstances; but as soon as the wearer formed a bad thought or wish, designed or concocted a bad action, the ring became a monitor. Suddenly contracting, it pressed painfully on the finger, warning him of sin. The ring of that fable is just that conscience which is the voice of God within us, which is His law written on the fleshy tablet of the heart.—Dr. Guthrie.

A DAY IN CANADIAN HISTORY

By Fred Williams

THE REAL VICTOR AT QUEENSTON.

One of the things that has always puzzled me (a mere Englishborn Canadian interested in Canadian history), has been why it is that Canadian history writers, school teachers and tea table gossipers give all the credit for the victory at Queenston Heights on October 13, 1812, to Sir Isaac Brock and completely ignore the man who really won the day, Roger Hale Sheaffe. Looked at calmly, Brock's charge up the heights to his death was brilliant, but it was not needed. He died in glory, doing his duty.

Far be it from me to detract from that glory, but let us, in all fairness, give credit to the man who won the battle after all hope had been abandoned. All day, until late in the afternoon, the enemy were in control of the heights. Then suddenly the tide of battle changed. Sheaffe, having secured re-inforcements, attacked, surprised the enemy completely, and within a little while had them utterly defeated. Sheaffe, in his official despatch to Sir George Prevost at Quebec, wrote: "I had the satisfaction of receiving the sword of their commander, Brigadier General Wadsworth, on the field and many officers with 900 men were made prisoners. A stand of colors and one 6-pounder was also taken".

I have been told that Canadian opinion of Sheaffe has been colored because in the following April, when he found that he could not save York, he withdrew his little force to Kingston, and thereby aroused the resentment of the people of the future Toronto. But why should that hostility to Sheaffe extend over the Province of Ontario? He saved the Niagara peninsula; one would think that the people of that section at least would give him honor. But for Sheaffe the whole fight at Queenston would have been a rout and all the Niagara frontier would have fallen to the enemy at the beginning of the war. Brock's fame can never be lowered by giving to his successor the honor that is due to the man who snatched victory out of the jaws of defeat.

One should not on this day fail to remember that the greater part of Sheaffe's army was composed of raw local militia, who won the battle and then went home to complete their harvesting. They are indeed men to be proud of. Contrast their courage with the cowardice of the American militias thus related in McMaster's History of the United States:

"No sooner did the militia behold a real battle, no sooner did they see the dead brought back in boats and hear the groans of the wounded, than fear overcame them and they refused to cross. Soldiers who the day before were clamoring to be brought face to face with what they called 'British hirelings', now stood on their 'constitutional rights' and refused to help their fighting countrymen. They were, they said, militia and the only services for which the militia could be called out were to uphold the laws, to put down insurrection, to repel invasion—the constitution did not give the President power to send them out of the United States, and they would not go. Holding such views, they stood quietly on the American side, saw the British gather in force and march up the hill, saw their countrymen overwhelmed by numbers, driven back foot by foot to the edge of the cliff and down the side to the river bank, where, as no one would row a boat across, the little band of 600 threw down their arms and surrendered. With them were captured some 300 skulkers and cowards, who had been crouching at the river edge all day."

No man can cast aspersions upon the Canadian militia. They saw their duty and did it and then went home to do their chores.

What's in The NAME of Canadian Cities and Towns?

By FRANK H. WILLIAMS

JOLIETTE, QUEBEC.

This city, or rather the municipality in which it was located, was founded by the Hon. Barthelemy Joliette, and it was incorporated as a village in 1823. It was not until 1850, however, that the village was named Joliette, in honor of its founder.

The Hon. Barthelemy Joliette married Mlle. Charlotte De Lanaudiere, heiress of a wealthy estate, and it is thanks to her financial assistance that the founder was able to foster the community until it reached the status of a city in 1915.

ALL OF US

(By Marshall Maslin.)

AN OLD FELLOW NAMED DIOGENES.

I like to think of that old cynic philosopher Diogenes, who lived so long ago that his life seems like the gleam of a distant star. He lived, as I remember, at least four centuries before Christ and many tales are told of him.

He wasn't exactly a friendly sort and I have an idea that I wouldn't have enjoyed his company greatly . . . But he was a rare character and thinking of him is something of a tonic . . . It is said that he traveled around even in the daytime with a lighted lantern in his hand and when he was asked why he did so he'd reply that he was looking for an honest man—implying that he did not really expect to find one . . . His clothing was coarse, his food was plain, his bed was the open street or a porchway or even a huge jar (not a tub, as many suppose), and he maintained his freedom by desiring few material comforts.

Old Diogenes exuded contempt for ordinary men. He'd laugh at a man of letters who sighed over the sufferings of Odysseus and passed over the sufferings of the living man at his side. He sneered at musicians who made sweet harmonies on the strings of lyres, but whose own lives were discordant. He upbraided the savant who speculated on heavenly bodies and knew nothing of the earthly bodies around them. And he heckled the orators who talked so grandly of truth and justice and had so little of these qualities in their own nature . . . You can see that he was a most cantankerous fellow and something of a nuisance to the neighborhood.

But I liked him because of what he said to the splendid, arrogant, shining young Alexander the Great. It may not have happened, that interview, but I prefer to believe that it did . . . When Diogenes was in Corinth the king came by, saw Diogenes lying at his ease by a wall and said to him: "I am Alexander the Great." . . . And Diogenes replied: "And I am Diogenes the Cynic." . . . Alexander, gracious and condescending, asked what he, the king, all powerful, could do for Diogenes—and the cynic said he could do just one thing for him. "Stand out of my sunshine," said Diogenes. "Take your shadow from me, give me back my sunshine, that is all Diogenes asks of any man, be he king or slave." . . . And Alexander went his royal way, less pleased, I am certain, than he pretended to be, because it must be very humiliating to a man who has conquered the world to meet a fellow who asks nothing but that he give him back his share of the sunshine of the earth. . . . But that's why I like that old Diogenes.

LORD CUSHENDUN IRISH PEER DIES

Signed Kellog-Briant Peace Pact in Paris in 1928.

MADE BARON IN 1927.

LONDON, Oct. 13.—(AP).—Lord Cushendun, former delegate to the League of Nations, who was popularly called "Ulster's Giant Irish Peer," died yesterday at his home in County Antrim, Ireland. He was 73 years old.

The Irish lord had been ill for a fortnight and unconscious since Sunday. Despite his high rank, he was still known familiarly to all Ulster men as Ronald McNeil.

Lord Cushendun came from a family of large men, hailing appropriately enough from the section near northern Ireland's famous Giants' Causeway. He stood over six feet six inches and his father was an inch and a half taller.

An angry incident in which Lord Cushendun heaved a book across the floor of Parliament at Winston Churchill, then a member of the Asquith Cabinet, is still vividly remembered in the House of Commons.

The incident occurred during bitter debate over the Irish Home Rule question, in which Lord Cushendun was a staunch advocate of Unionism.

As a member of the House of Commons in 1922, Lord Cushendun, then Ronald John McNeill, denounced conditions on Ellis Island and the treatment of immigrants by the United States, which drew a reply from Washington.

Three years before he expressed resentment at American "interference" on the Irish question.

The barony was conferred upon him by King George in 1927 after he had become Chancellor of the Duchy of Lancaster. Lord Cushendun signed the Kellogg-Briand peace pact in Paris in 1928. He was the author of several historical works.

Lord Cushendun served as Conservative Undersecretary for Foreign Affairs and earlier was Financial Secretary to the Treasury.

Members and friends of the choir of Mark Street United Church were entertained very pleasantly last evening at the home of the church organist, Mr. Harold Kitney. The evening took the form of a weiner roast. Two large fires out of doors were made of stumps and roots of trees. Over one hung the big iron kettle in which the weiners were cooked, and around the second bonfire, the guests played games. Later, games were played in the house, and coffee and cake were served by the hostess, Mrs. C. F. Kitney.

The big annual dance of the Firemen of the city is to be an event of next Tuesday night, October 16th, at the Brock Street Summer Gardens. The fire-fighters will use the money for the purchase of supplies to carry on the worth-while community effort which they started some years ago, in collecting, repairing and delivering toys that have been discarded by their owners and that only need a new coat of paint or a little repairing, to make like new for some of the underprivileged children of Peterborough. Thousands of toys of various types were repaired and distributed in this way last year. Already the firemen have started in on the work, and ask the public to support this dance and help them in their effort at community service.

SLIM! ISN'T IT?

Just another charming proof that the needs of women of heavier build are being considered just as much as their slimmer sisters.

Very simple is this smart model, yet exceedingly well balanced and slimming for the heavier figure.

A lovely soft ribbed woolen in rich dark green made the original.

Metal-threaded woolen, marocain, sheer wool, pebbled crepe silk, canton crepe, metal threaded crepe silk, velveteen in new lightweight rayon novelties that suggest wool, etc., give you a wide choice of suitable fabrics for its development.

Style No. 3373 is designed for sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust. Size 36 requires 2¼ yards of 54-inch material.

THREE NEW RECIPES FOR USING UP LEFT-OVERS

Here are some new recipes to use up certain left-overs, and delicious dishes they make, too. One is for ham, another for squash, and a third for cheese. When there are some of these left-overs they may be eked out, enough for a serving once around at least.

* * * * * * *

CHOPPED HAM WITH RAISIN SAUCE

Left-overs of broiled ham can be used just as well as those from boiled or roasted hams. Chop the ham into coarse pieces or cut it. To each cupful add ½ teaspoon dry mustard, toss well to blend ham and mustard.

Sauce: ¼ cup seeded raisins or seedless one cut in halves. ½ lemon; squeese out juice, and chop rind. 1 cup water. ¼ cup sugar.

Cook last three ingredients until rind is tender (about 15 minutes) and add a little more hot water if much has boiled away. Add the raisins and cook ten minutes longer. Pour over the ham and keep warm until just before serving. Garnish dish with parsley and the other half of lemon cut into lengthwise segments. Serve some of the garnish on each plate.

* * * * * * *

SQUASH BAKED IN MILK

Mash the left over squash. To 1½ cupfuls allow 1 egg slightly beaten. 2 level tablespoons flour. ¾ cup milk. Salt and pepper to taste

* * * * * * *

As the squash may already have been mashed and seasoned, the amount would be small. If not seasoned allow ¾ teaspoon salt and ⅛ teaspoon pepper. Mix milk with flour a little at a time to form a sauce Stir in egg and seasoning. Then the squash. Put in buttered baking dish and dot top with bits of butter. Bake slowly for ½ hour or until set and delicately browned.

* * * * * * *

CHEESE EGG CUPS ON TOMATO

Hard cook as many eggs as persons to be served. Remove shells Cut eggs in halves and remove yolks. Put whites in water to keep them white. Mash yolks fine. Mix with mayonnaise and season highly with salt, pepper, and a little mustard. Add as much cream cheese or cottage cheese as is left-over. One third as much as the egg yolk preparation can be used, or less. Or if other cheese is the left-over it must be grated fine and mixed with the yolks. Cut a very thin slice from ends of egg whites so that they will stand up and form little cups. Stand each on a round slice of ripe tomato, which is on lettuce leaf after the cup has been filled and piled high with the seasoned egg and cheese. Broiled bacon, cold sliced ham, or dried beef, are recommended to serve with these egg cups when they form the main dish for a meal. As a salad they need no accompaniment.

guest speaker for his very interesting talk was ably tendered by Mrs. O. Laderach.

Preceding the address, a devotional and short business session was held, with Mr. A. Busby, president in the chair. The business was chiefly the completing of arrangements for the A.Y.P.A. concert on Thursday next.

St. George's A.Y.P.A. Hears Splendid Talk

St. George's A.Y.P.A. spent a pleasant time on Thursday evening, when they were entertained by Charles Coleman with a description of his recent visit to the Old Country. Mr. Coleman, who was introduced by Mrs. A. Busby, convenor of the Literary Committee, had a number of pictures and views which added interest to his talk.

After first visiting his mother in the county of Suffolk, Mr. Coleman went to his old home town of Melshan (Wilts). He took several excursions, mostly by bus, one being to Yarmouth with its wonderful sea front. While at Bath, the speaker was interested to find the name of a Peterborough lad in a visitor's book. Mr. Coleman did a round of sight seeing in the nation's capital, Westminster Abbey, St. Paul's Cathedral and the City Temple being among the outstanding buildings. At the open air theatre in Regent's Park, Mr. Coleman had the pleasure of witnessing the performance of a Shakesperian play, and was also present at a cricket test match between London and Australia. Bournemouth was noticed as a progressive go-ahead town while Southampton from where the speaker embarked for his return trip is adding to its territory, by reclaiming land from the sea. During his voyable to Liverpool, a number of athletes who were to take part in the Empire games at the White City London, were his fellow passengers. Mr. Coleman spoke in terms of admiration of the splendid type of men they appeared to be, and felt proud of the fine representation Canada was able to send.

Your Health

By DR LOGAN CLENDENING

I like an article in the September issue of The Modern Hospital by Dr. Otho F. Ball. It should appeal, I think, to physicians and citizens living in small communities which have what is called "only a small hospital".

Dr. Ball's point is that "only a small hospital" may be just as efficient, even more so, than a large one; that a hospital is to be judged not so much by the magnificence of its structure, or its equipment, as by the character of the staff.

Those of us who live in less expensive places go to visit some of the great hospitals in large medical centers. The perfection of detail, the size, the expense, and the durability of the institution awe us, so that when we return home our own little hospital disappoints us greatly. Yet such an attitude may be all wrong. One of the most efficient hospitals I know is in a small town in Kansas, and its original unit is a converted residence. But the quality of work done there, due to the integrity and ability of the staff, could be equalled in few far larger institutions. Some of the most acute observations in modern surgical practice, and a whole series of brilliant books on surgical pathology, have sprung from its daily routine.

Not long ago, after visiting a physician in a small town, my wife said she thought there was little future for him in such a small place. I reminded her that Rochester, Minn., might not have seemed to have much future when the Mayo brothers were young there.

Corrigan, the great Irish physician, who described once and for all the features of one of the most frequent of the diseases of the heart, did all his work in a little hospital in Meath, in which he had control of only six beds.

We have gone through a long period of standardization in hospital practice. But, as Dr. Ball reminds us, standardization provides for only minimal requirements. After those have been met no amount of further standardization can guarantee improvements. Nor can expensive apparatus do so. "Keeping up with the Joneses" has been the ruin of many a fine start in hospital service, as well as many a fine career in medical practice.

Be Beautiful

According to a well-known Hollywood masseur, the beautiful Sari Maritza is the strongest and finest little athlete in pictures. Sari, he claims, exercises vigorously every single morning. And her lovely figure, according to him, is due, in a large part, to this systematic exercising that she does.

This famous masseur is probably right, at that, for it's a cinch that stream-line figures do not result from neglect of exercise. Gals whose occupations are of a sedentary nature are usually the ones who are most inclined to get beefy, because of their inactivity. Constant sitting, you know, is rather conducive to extensive hiplines. And large hips just aren't going to combine very well with the slender lines of the new fall frocks.

Now's the time, therefore, for every lass to become hip-conscious. Now's the time for her to take a good, honest look at her hips. And if she detects any flabbiness or fat, she should begin at once to correct these faults. Of course, there are plenty of exercises for whittling down bulky hiplines, but really, all a gal needs is a few good ones. And if she sticks to these, she's bound to get good results.

There are two exercises that are especially effective for slenderizing the hips. The first of these is known as the "barrel roll", and the second as the "cross roll". To execute the barrel roll, lie with your back flat on the floor, legs straight, arms at the sides and palms flat against the floor. Next, swing your legs over head and back, until your toes touch the floor. Keep your knees stiff at the same time. Then swing your legs back to the floor and roll up into sitting position. Lie down and repeat.

To execute the cross roll, lie flat on your back, legs together, arms extended sideways at shoulder level. Then raise your right leg, cross it over to the left and try to touch your left hand with your right foot. Return your right leg to first position and then try to touch your right hand with your left foot. Keep your head and shoulders on the floor during this exercise, and let it be your hips that roll you over to the left and right.

Wrong Baby Case Is Finally Settled

LIVERPOOL, Eng., Oct. 13.—(CP Cable).—The "wrong baby case" was settled yesterday with Mrs. Edwin Price convinced that a baby in a Liverpool hospital is her's, and her husband, not entirely convinced, accepting his wife's conviction.

The trouble arose through the hospital having at the same time two 20-months-old babies of the same name, Dorothy Price. Some weeks ago Mrs. Edwin Price took her baby to the hospital for treatment, and later a baby was returned to them which they suspected was not theirs. Hospital attendants took this baby back to another set of parents that was claiming it, and offered to Mrs. Edwin Price another baby of the same name and age that was still in the hospital. The Prices refused to accept this baby until to-day.

CONTRACT BRIDGE

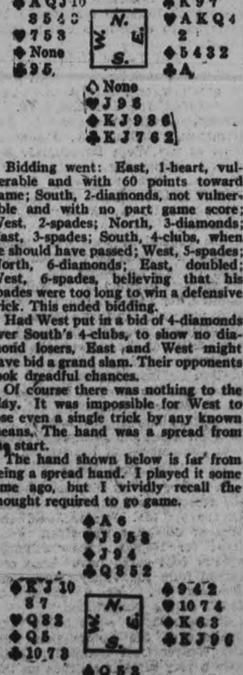
By E. V. SHEPARD

SENSELESS PUSHING

If neither able to fulfill a high contract nor to defeat a slam, never risk pushing unwilling bidders into a slam which they can make, especially when opponents are vulnerable. The bidding by North and South on this hand was very bad, as they could see that East and West were timid about bidding higher than necessary.

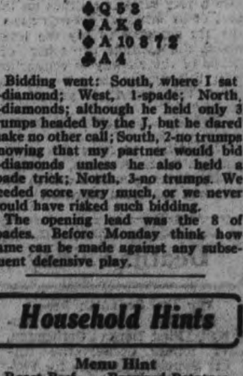


Bidding went: East, 1-heart, vulnerable and with 60 points toward game; South, 2-diamonds, not vulnerable and with no part game score; West, 2-spades; North, 3-diamonds; East, 3-spades; South, 4-clubs, when he should have passed; West, 5-spades; North, 6-diamonds; East, doubled; West, 6-spades, believing that his spades were too long to win a defensive trick. This ended bidding.

Had West put in a bid of 4-diamonds over South's 4-clubs, to show no diamond losers, East and West might have bid a grand slam. Their opponents took dreadful chances.

Of course there was nothing to the play. It was impossible for West to lose even a single trick by any known means. The hand was a spread from the start.

The hand shown below is far from being a spread hand. I played it some time ago, but I vividly recall the thought required to go game.



Bidding went: South, where I sat 1-diamond; West, 1-spade; North, 2-diamonds; although he held only 3 trumps headed by the J, but he dared make no other call; South, 2-no trumps knowing that my partner would bid 3-diamonds unless he also held a spade trick; North, 3-no trumps. We needed score very much, or we never would have risked such bidding.

The opening lead was the 8 of spades. Before Monday think how game can be made against any subsequent defensive play.

Menu Hint

Roast Beef Browned Potatoes
Baked Onions Tomato Salad
Cake With Chocolate Orange Frosting
Tea

Possibly you would prefer coffee with this menu, which would serve well for that Sunday dinner.

Today's Recipes

Stuffed Onions Baked.—Eight large onions, two tablespoons chopped pimentos, one tablespoon chopped parsley, one hard cooked egg, diced; one and one-half cups crumbs, one-fourth teaspoon salt, one-fourth teaspoon paprika, one-fourth teaspoon celery salt, four tablespoons butter, melted. Peel onions, cover by two inches with cold water. Slowly bring to boiling point, drain and rinse in cold water. Cover again with water and allow to simmer five minutes. Drain and rinse with cold water. With spoon scoop out part of insides so that little cases are formed. Mix rest of ingredients and stuff onion cases. Arrange side by side in shallow baking pan, add one-third inch of water. Bake 30 minutes in moderate oven.

Chocolate Orange Frosting.—Two squares unsweetened chocolate, one and one-third cups (one can) sweetened condensed milk, one tablespoon orange juice, one tablespoon grated orange rind. Melt chocolate in double boiler. Add sweetened condensed milk, stir over boiling water five minutes until it thickens. Add orange juice and rind and blend thoroughly. Cool cake before spreading frosting. Garnish with strips of canned orange peel if desired.

SCENES CHANGING FAST IN SPAIN; FOUNDERS OF REPUBLIC IN FLIGHT AS CURTAIN FALLS ON THE REGIME

Unable to Impose Western Democracy on the Land in Rapid Manner.

RECENT REBELLIONS

BY HARRY LEVIN
Central Press Canadian Writer

LONDON, Oct. 11 — News from Spain is of revolution and bitter bloodshed. Behind the roar of guns lies a story of dramatic events of rise and fall, of rapidly changing scenes. Even the 'roles' of the chief 'actors' change with startling suddenness. The founders of the republic, who a few months ago, were the government, now are branded as traitors and flee for their lives or caught, face a court-martial.

What is the story behind romantic Spain's sudden emergence from feudal monarchy in the famous bloodless revolution of 1931, that astounded the world by its "gentleness," and is now climaxed in the present eruption of dead and wounded?

Political commentators see in the peninsula's unrest and misery, another example of the futility of suddenly imposing western democracy on a land in too short a time, particularly when its previous history has been one of century long autocratic feudalism.

King Flees

On April 14, 1931, black-moustached, debonair Alfonso XIII, took one look at the menacing crowds overflowing the Madrid streets, and fled the country. For the first time in more than 45 years, a reigning Spanish Hapsburg had stepped down voluntarily from his throne.

Spain has long been a proverb among nations for its extremism. During the middle ages its monarchs were the most powerful in the world, its masses among the most ignorant and oppressed. And during the passing centuries, its rulers made little attempt to bring the nation out of oppressive darkness to make its citizenry conscious of modern western thought.

After the Spanish-American war of 1898, a band of liberals and republicans began to preach the doctrine of modernism, but at first made little progress.

First Rumblings

The first rumblings of revolt came in 1921, when 10,000 Spanish soldiers were massacred in a battle with Abd-el Krim during the Riff warfare. Anti-imperialists denounced the feudal monarchy for "seeking to maintain an empire in Morocco by shedding Spanish peasant blood."

To bulwark his trembling throne, Alfonso turned to General Primo De Rivera, who became dictator in 1923. For six years, De Rivera censored the press, sought to bring the Moroccan conflict to a face-saving close, maintain the monarchy, and keep down the growing vigor of liberalism and republicanism.

But the growing dissatisfaction of the army gave Alfonso an excuse to oust De Rivera, and Premier Berenguer, another soldier, took up the Hapsburg cudgels in 1930, this time announcing that the "constitution" would be restored, and elections to the national parliament or Cortes, would be held.

The depression circling the world, however, reached Spain, and with the fall of the peseta, hard times hit the industrial centres. Workmen and republicans declared general strikes which were put down with bloodshed. Concentration camps were erected for thousands of political offenders.

The days of Alfonso, nevertheless were numbered.

Republicans Win

In two hours on April 14, 1931, Alfonso wavered between ordering martial law throughout Spain, or crushing the will of the nation, which had elected a majority of "republican" delegates. He sailed for France at midnight, while millions of Spaniards sang songs and danced in the streets.

Up sprang nation-makers like Manuel Azana, provisional president of the embryo republic, and Niceto Alcala Zamora, who aided the transition from a feudal monarchy overnight.

Their constitution was utopian. Land laws were to give each peasant a share of the vast estates possessed by the deposed nobles and clergy with ultimate socialization. Disestablishment of the church, and appropriation of its wealth. Autonomy for nationalist areas like Catalonia, with its seaport, Barcelonia. Autonomy for the Basue provinces, too. Denunciation of any imperialistic war. Compulsory collective bargaining for labor, and the repeal of harsh laws against workers. Suffrage for both sexes.

It went too far and not enough. And the Socialists, who had forged the modern republic out of the decadent monarchy found themselves opposed by the conservative, clerical, monarchist and middle-class parties. On the extreme, the anarchists and syndicalists sought to set up a completely proletariat regime.

The lines were quickly drawn. In 1932 a monarchist putsch, led by many of the guardia civil policemen and regular soldiers, was quickly put down through a general strike and the loyal republican forces.

But President Azana had alienated the conservatives and clericals. Under the guidance of Jose Gil Robles, they gained power. Ironically enough Azana had adopted the democratic idea of giving women the ballot. They in sympathy with the clericals promptly voted the Socialists and left parties into oblivion.

Scuttles Constitution

Gil Robles bided his time. An old centre party leader terming himself "radical," Alejandro Lerroux, formed a ministry, and began to repeal most of the "radical" legislation and to scuttle the socialist part of the constitution. Liberties disappeared.

Succeeding ministries wrestled with the Catalonia question. Legislation to permit peasants to own the land after 12 years of paying rent brought matters to a crisis. Catalans threatened to secede, if Madrid objected. Conservatives and clericals denounced the soft glove treatment of the "rebels." Labor and Socialists declared the formation of a reactionary government would result in a general strike and possible revolution.

With the aid of Gil Robles and President Zamora, Lerroux, again premier, called their bluff. And with the news that he had assumed power, thousands of workers, republicans, syndicalists and autonomists, unlocked caches of guns, and sought to 'save' their republic, now fast disappearing.

Azana has fled Spain. Col. Companys, president of the Catalan autonomist was arrested, and faced a court martial. Thousands of other republicans and leftists were imprisoned.

The pendulum has swung back again.

Magistrate's Court

AT CAMPBELLFORD
(Examiner Correspondence)

CAMPBELLFORD, Oct. 13.—Senior Magistrate Langley, presided at police court here on Friday afternoon, when Elyal Henderson, alleged to have stolen a motor car some months ago at Hastings was given a hearing. The case was a most complicated one, involving the changing of markers, and the disposal of the car to a Havelock man, and occupied the greater part of the afternoon, however there was enough evidence for committal and the accused was given the option of being tried here or before a judge and jury at Cobourg. Henderson preferred the judge and was escorted to Cobourg by Provincial Constable Gordon Campbell, who laid the charge. Col. F. D. Boggs appeared for the Crown.

The next case called, and quickly disposed of was that of a dapper young man, whose offence was, consuming liquor in a public place, the place being Warkworth Fair Grounds. He pleaded guilty and promptly handed over $10.00 and costs, for the privilege. P. C. Campbell laid the information.

SPEEDY ACTION ON SUGGESTIONS cent. swamp area and is not mineralized.

The Commission also was condemned for permitting publication of what Mr. Racine said was a financial statement "That did not represent the true position of the railway," which shows an actual deficit as of Oct. 31, 1933, of $9,018,211.

Recommendation was made in the report that services of certain operating officers be dispensed with and "pending a general survey all members of office and advisory staff tender their resignations immediately, to be dealt with as decided on."

Mr. Lee was charged by the investigator with being incompetent to administer a railway, and appointment of a general manger, with wide experience, to operate the railway and be free from the Commission was urged by Mr. Racine. The general manager, he said, would be independent of the Commission and would be responsible to the Government.

An immediate audit in order that the "true financial position of the railway be fully known to the government," also was urged by Mr. Racine, who suggested reduced service on certain branch lines, sale of the private car Whitney or its use as a business car, cancellation of all passes; immediate repair to all rolling stock, closing of James Bay Inn; rejection of tender of the Weaver Coal Company; employment of a chartered accountant as treasurer and chief accountant, and discontinuance of the electric line of the Nipissing Central Railway between New Liskeard and Cobalt. All branch lines, in fact, would be surveyed to determine which are paying.

List To Be Fired

Stressing what he called their lack of qualifications, Mr. Racine recommended for dismissal, W. Maund, secretary-treasurer; D. Hamilton, auditor; A. Freeman, chief of the Wage Bureau; G. B. Alford, Purchasing Agent; S. F. Clement, Chief Engineer; E. L. Sherman, Chief Clerk to the Auditor, and B. A. Wauchope, Tie Inspector.

The suggestion also was made that all contracts be awarded only after tenders are called for.

Contracts granted H. F. McLean, Limited, for line construction work, also met with criticism from the investigator, who said in regard to one section of the railway, the lowest tender "without proper consideration or investigation was rejected and the contract awarded to H. F. McLean, Limited." On this contract, charged Mr. Racine, the McLean Company received $384,000 over the amount of the tender.

The Coal Deals

In regard to his recommendation for rejection of the Weaver Coal Company, Mr. Racine said the Weaver Company was given contract for 100,000 tons "although similar coal could have been obtained from the Valley Camp Coal Company . . . at a saving of $6,500 to the Commission."

Circumstances surrounding the dealings of the Commission with the Weaver Coal Company, "indicate a very careless attitude on the part of its members towards necessity for economy to say the least, whilst the attitude of other officials of the railway in connection with this matter, in my opinion, leaves them open to grave suspicion."

Five inches of snow fell on the Canigou in the Pyrenees, in France, in September, almost a month earlier than the usual schedule.

THE ROMANCE OF A GOOD HOSPITAL

ABOUT forty years ago there was an old doctor living in Minnesota, U. S. A., who had driven around the countryside so many years that he almost seemed to be indispensable. His name was Dr. Mayo; he lived to be ninety-two years of age, and almost to the close of his life was actively engaged in looking after sick people.

Doctor Mayo had two sons, Charles and William, both of whom became doctors. The same kindness and devotion to hard work which everybody had noticed in their father, people found in these two young doctors, and when they decided to carry on a hospital in their native town of Rochester, the news gave widespread satisfaction.

Small towns are made famous by different things. Sometimes it is an orchestra that does it, or a baseball team, or a college with a high record. That which has made the town of Rochester famous is the fact that Doctors Charles and Will Mayo have established their hospital in the town. The story of these two skilful physicians has travelled not only throughout the length and breadth of their own country, but to lands beyond the seas, and the "Mayos of Rochester" have an international reputation.

The great hospital which these two brothers have established is the growth of many years. Additions to the premises have been made so frequently that the institution must be ten or twelve times larger than when the two brothers first timidly made their venture. No one begrudges these two men their success, for it is the result of hard work, devotion to duty, combined with amazing ability.

At the present time the institution has over one hundred and fifty nurses on its staff together with a large force of trained nurses. More than fifty thousand patients are treated each year. During 1930 over ten thousand operations were performed, about half of this number being done either by Dr. Charles Mayo or his brother. It is not surprising to learn that physicians from nearly every country in the world visit this Rochester clinic in order to observe the methods of the Mayo brothers.

The scene at the hospital is always interesting, though naturally there is a sad side to it. Outside each building may be seen wheel chairs, crutches and scores of wistful patients, all of whom have been attracted to the hospital by the reputation of these men. Just what the labors of these two brothers, together with those associated with them, have meant to thousands of sufferers, is not easy to imagine.

Doctor Charles Mayo and his brother have for more than thirty years made it their life work to study, not only how to cure the many and painful diseases to which people are subject, but at the same time to discover the cause of so much ill-health. They have closely observed the habits of those who came seeking relief, and it is not to be wondered at that both these men have reached many definite conclusions as to the benefits or dangers of habits which people form. Both men are fond of outdoor exercise and both are splendid specimens of sound physical health.

Over thirty per cent. of the patients treated at the clinic have been charity cases—sufferers quite unable to pay for their treatment, while almost another thirty per cent. have not been able to do more than pay for the expenses of operations. The hospital has not been carried on as a mere money-making concern, but because the Mayo brothers have been keenly and sympathetically interested in relieving suffering.

In an interview given to a writer not long ago, Doctor Charles Mayo was asked to explain the secret of the almost unparalleled success of the clinic. He said: "I think that my brother and I were exceedingly fortunate in having the parents we had. My father was a physician who never spared himself, he worked hard all his life and he lived to be ninety-two years of age. My mother was also an indefatigable worker, and she reached the age of ninety. My brother Will and I learned early in life that there was nothing to be ashamed of in hard work, and we have found our greatest joy in trying to fill every hour with profitable employment. I believe in cheerfulness even in the sick room. No man who is naturally of a sad and melancholy disposition is likely to succeed in the medical profession, and, of course, the same is true of nurses. A happy manner that inspires confidence is very necessary both for doctors and nurses."

Doctor Charles Mayo spends the early part of every day in the operating room, and as a rule, devotes the afternoons to consultation. He has a large farm near Rochester which he greatly enjoys whenever his work makes it possible for him to go there.

Doctor Charles Mayo has repeatedly stated his judgment in regard to alcohol. A few months ago he wrote the following, and, while it was addressed to young Americans with the prohibition situation in the United States in view, coming from so distinguished a physician it is equally interesting to Canadians.

"You can get along with a wooden leg, but you cannot get along with a wooden head. The physical value of a man is not so much—it is the brain that counts, and in order to keep the brain clear you must keep your body fit and well. That simply cannot be done if one drinks liquor. A man who has to drag around a habit that is a danger and a menace to society ought to go off into the woods and live alone. We do not tolerate the obvious use of morphine, cocaine or opium, and we should not tolerate intoxicating liquors. I say, clearly and emphatically, that these things break down the command and control of an individual over his own life and over his destiny. Through alcoholic stimulation a man loses co-ordination. That is why alcohol is no advantage to the brain. You often hear people tell how their wits are quickened for the first half-hour after drinking liquor, but they do not tell you how, after that, the body does not co-ordinate with the brain.

"You will hear on every side men bewail the loss of their drink, of their personal rights, but the rights of the few who cannot see ahead or have the future of their nation at heart, must be regulated to safeguard that great body of future citizens who are now ready to step into the ranks. You boys have something ahead of you in the problem of preventing the return of liquor. We have not lived up to our laws, but I repeat, education is what we need to combat this condition. When we have our younger generation completely educated, we shall not have types who say: 'Why should I not have my rights as a citizen?' It is through the boys of to-day that we hope to see a sound and everlasting prohibition worked out in this country. If there ever was any great man who accomplished anything through the use of alcohol, I should like to have the fact pointed out. We have tried to give you a field of action free from the barricades which used to be set up by the legalized liquor traffic. Keep yourselves free from all entangling habits; remember, it's the brain that counts."

There can be few men living who have performed more critical operations than Doctor Charles Mayo. Hundreds of times he has been called upon to operate when hope was almost abandoned. Therefore, he knows just how important it is that when life is almost extinct, the blood stream should be pure. It is then that the habits of a patient help or hinder the process of healing. Doctor Mayo's position is clear and emphatic. To use his own words: "We do not tolerate the obvious use of morphine, cocaine or opium. We should not tolerate intoxicating liquor. We say clearly and emphatically that these things break down the command and control of an individual."

BADLY WANTED FOR HAMILTON

went into quick and fearless action yesterday. Her husband was driving her in their automobile past the Sausalito Post Office, when suddenly he set the brakes and told her: "That's the man."

He meant the man who had passed a fictitious cheque for $3,500 on him in San Francisco recently.

Without stopping to think of personal safety, Mrs. Wilson jumped from the car and collared the paunchy "clergyman" pointed out by her husband. Wilson, who lost a leg in the Great War, was still scrambling out of the car when the police arrived.

"Got Me Cold."

The prisoner made no attempt to escape. He was booked on a charge of forgery and as a fugitive. Police quoted him as saying, philosophically:

"I'm glad it's all over. You've got me cold and I want to help clear the record. I never knew when some one would recognise me. The strain has been telling on me lately."

Parmalee, who is 44, is quite stout and his grey hair is thinning. He told police he is a sick man and might die any time from a heart attack or apoplexy. His ample face is deeply flushed, seeming to lend weight to his statement.

Police quoted the prisoner as saying illness made him decide on a life of crime while he was working in a Montreal bank in 1920. Fearing death might catch up with him any time the police said he told them he hit upon the idea of travelling widely on the proceeds of forged cheques.

Travelled 14 Years.

The reputed forger successfully satisfied a penchant for travel for 14 years, leaving a flood of faked cheques in his wake. He was said to have placed his total "take" at $50,000. He always escaped arrest.

Then the determined wife of the last bank teller he allegedly outwitted came upon Parmalee yesterday.

He had lived quietly in a Sausalito apartment for several months under the name of A. E. McKay. He feared capture any time, but never at the hands of a woman. He told police:

"When the little lady embraced me so fondly it came as a surprise—a surprise and a shock."

Inspector Arthur McQuade said Parmalee freely discussed the simple manner in which a score of banks in Canada and the United States unwittingly provided the money for his travels.

He told McQuade, the latter said, that he opened small accounts in banks, and by cashing several small cheques obtained a cashier's "OK" signature Then, McQuade quoted the prisoner, by forging the cashier's "OK" it was easy to put through a bogus cheque for a large sum on another teller in the same bank.

May Be Key to Mysteries

TORONTO, Oct. 13 (CP). Swindling cases in Ontario that baffled police in their ingenuity and smooth execution were recalled today with news of the arrest at Sausalito, Calif., of Lucius Albert Parmalee.

Police believed parmalee was responsible for some of the unsolved swindles in Ontario crime annals. They dug through fyles to uncover records of several such cases in which they professed to see the hand of the wanted man.

He was reported to have made no effort to resist arrest and police quoted him as saying after his capture: "I'm glad it's all over."

Notable swindle cases for which police alleged Parmalee was responsible occurred in Hamilton and Toronto respectively in 1931 and 1930. In the former year, on Dec. 6, a man passed a worthless $3,000 draft at the office of Heming Brothers, Hamilton steamship agents. The crime was discovered within half an hour but the criminal had vanished into thin air.

Shortly after Christmas, 1930, a man dressed as a clergyman—a disguise Parmalee was said to have employed frequently—victimized three Toronto banks to the extent of $11,400. Cheques were cashed in the Canadian Bank of Commerce, Bank of Nova Scotia and Bank of Montreal, each for $3,800. The orders were drawn on a Winnipeg estate.

Misses at One Bank

Signing the name of J. J. Murray, executor of the Ezra Cook estate, a man believed to be Parmalee, swindled two Hamilton banks and failed in an attempt to "take" a third Dec. 24, 1927. At the Bank of Montreal and the Bank of Commerce he allegedly cashed cheques for $3,400 and had submitted a third for a similar amount at the Royal Bank. There an alert teller left his cage to investigate. When he came back, the customer had disappeared.

A reward of $1,000 was offered by the Canadian Bankers' Association for Parmalee's arrest or for information leading to his capture. At the same time Winnipeg police were also looking for a cheque artist—again believed to be Parmalee—who was said to have passed spurious money there and gained large sums of money.

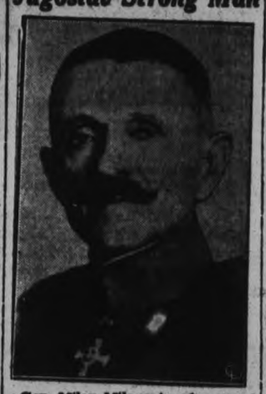
Jugoslav Strong Man



Gen. Milan Milanovic, who served loyally as King Alexander's army and navy chief, is being looked upon as the new strong man who will emerge from his country's political chaos brought on by the ruler's assassination. The three unhomegeneous elements of Jugoslavia, the Croats, the Serbe and the Slovenes, could be held together only by a powerful ruler in the mold of the late king, according to political observers.

YUGOSLAVS HAIL

exhausted from the long train ride and mental and bodily afflictions to participate in the welcome. As she was assisted from the train with her mother on one side and the little King manfully supporting her on the other, a murmur of pity rose from the crowd, for the peasants of Yugoslavia, who called her "our little mother," hold a deep affection for her.

Officials Turn Out

When members of the regency including Prince Paul, cousin of the late King, Cabinet ministers and members of Parliament had accorded the royal family the official welcome, Peter, sitting between two tragic-visaged Queens, was driven in a closed automobile to the Palace.

At the palace Peter rushed to his two younger brothers, threw his arms around them, and kissed them repeatedly. Tomislav, 6, who had not been told of his father's tragic death at Marseille, asked "But Peter, where is papa?"

"Oh, brother, he's gone on a long journey," Peter replied soothingly, attempting at the same time to restrain his tears.

Amazing precautions were taken by the police and the army to prevent a repetition of the Marseille tragedy. No one except government officers and relatives of the royal family was permitted to come within reach of Peter, who was guarded as would be a priceless delicate jewel.

Ever since Alexander's assassination the police have been rounding up hundreds of suspects and in some cases have searched houses. But no instance of any real plot was discovered. Complete order continues throughout the country.

In the nest of a stork caught stealing a handkerchief from a garden at Podebrady, Poland, were found five other handkerchiefs, towels, vests, aprons and a shirt.

Hunters Have Close Escape From Death

LINDSAY, Oct. 13 (Special to The Examiner).—N. J. Moore and Ralph Burke, town, had a narrow escape from drowning last night. The two were duck hunting in a canoe on Goose Lake, when the craft capsized, throwing the occupants into the cool water. They tried to float the canoe, but it sank three times. Finally Burke hung on to the back while Moore, who was heavily clothed, swam to a stump. They were in the water about an hour when their shouts were heard by Raney Burke, who went to their rescue. The hunters lost their equipment, including a double barrel shotgun.

Obituary

JOHN BURNS

The death of John Burns, a life-long resident of this district, occurred at his home on 3rd Avenue in North Monaghan township this morning after a short illness. He was 61 years old.

Mr. Burns was born in Harwood, son of the late Mr. and Mrs. Peter Burns, and came to Peterborough at an early age. He leaves four sons, Paul, John, Herbert and Fred and two daughters, Ivy and Irene, all at home or in Peterborough. Two sisters, Margaret Burns and Mrs. L. Guerin, and a brother, Arthur, all in Toronto, also remain.

The funeral is to proceed from the home of Fred Burns, 566 Albert street, to St. Peter's cathedral and St. Peter's Cemetery at 9.45 a.m. Monday morning.

MRS. SAMUEL CLANCY

The death occurred on Thursday at the residence of her daughter Mrs. David Harding, 173 Northcliffe Boulevard, Toronto of Catherine widow of the late Samuel Clancy and dearly loved mother of Mrs. W. H. McCormack, Mrs. E. J. Boyle and Mrs. David Harding, all of Toronto, Mrs. Clancy passed away after a brief illness.

She also leaves two sisters, Mrs. Margaret Lynch of Port Huron, and Mrs. Julia Dwyer of Aylmer street this city, and two brothers John O'Brien, of Douro and Michael O'Brien of Mark street.

The funeral was held from the above address this morning with a celebration of Requiem Mass at St. Clare's Church. Interment was made at Mount Hope, Cemetery.

MRS. ROBERT LEWERS

The funeral was held on Friday afternoon from her late residence Lot 19, Concession 7 Cavan Township of Sarah Jane Crowe widow of the late Robert Lewers.

Largely attended the funeral was conducted by the Rev. E. M. Cooke and interment was made at Fraserville Cemetery. Pall bearers were: Messrs James Roddy, Bruce Elliot, James Brock, Bert Armstrong, Ray Finlay and James Agnew. Flower bearers were: Lewers and Ivan Deyell, Alfred Marshall, Ray Fee, Forley Brock and Earl Mason.

The late Mrs. Lewers was a daughter of Joseph Crowe and Mary Jane Agnew and was born at Lakefield on December 12, 1863. She was married at the age of twenty-one years to Robert Lewers of Cavan Township, and of the union there were five children, three of whom predeceased. Left to mourn her loss is one daughter Mrs. Harry Deyell of Omemee and one son Fred on the homestead, also nine grandchildren and a sister Mrs. Anette Marshall of Peterborough.

In 1877 the late Mrs. Lewers was confirmed in St. Luke's Anglican Church Ashburnham, but after her marriage she became connected with the Methodist, now United Church at Fraserville where for many years she taught Sunday school and held office as secretary of the Ladies' Aid Society. During the last few years she had been unable to take so active an interest in her church, but she was ever sympathetic to the needs of her community, church and home.

The many floral tributes received testified to the wide esteem in which she was held by her many friends and neighbours.

SITUATION IMPROVED

While admitting that the outlook during the coming winter was the cause of some apprehension to the municipal authorities, Reeve A. B. Burrows told The Examiner that recent weeks had shown a decided improvement in the unemployment situation in Lakefield. "At the present time," Mr. Burrows stated, "we have only 14 families on relief as compared with 30 families who were on relief in March last." Many of the men, he explained, had found employment in the northern highway camps.

PLANS FOR CARNIVAL.

At a meeting of the Kinsmen Club executive held last evening under chairmanship of C. Alex Scilli, plans for the big Kinsmen Hallowe'en Masquerade and Carnival to be held in the Armouries were further discussed.

Modern round dancing and old time square dancing; games and boxing bouts are among some of the attractive items on the program. Two orchestras are being engaged, including Mose Yokom and His Music. Valuable prizes are being offered by the Kinsmen for best fancy and comic costumes and the programme is being designed with a view of providing fun and entertainment for a variety of tastes and ages.

JUDGMENT RESERVED.

In the case of Basil D. Hall vs. Mabel Collins at Osgoode Hall yesterday—Motion on behalf of defendant for an order striking out part of statement of claim or for further and better particulars in action for $20,000 damages for slander. D. L. McCarthy, K.C., for defendant. J. W. Pickup, K.C., for plaintiff. Judgment was reserved.

MEDICAL BAG IS LOST.

Dr. G. Murray Fraser, medical officer of health, reports the loss of his medical bag, which he believes to have been stolen from his car.

The bag, Dr. Fraser stated, contained surgical instruments and drugs. While the drugs did not include any narcotics, such as might provide a motive for theft, there were drugs that were dangerous if handled by inexperienced persons, the doctor said. He is anxious to recover the lost property and has notified city police.

ARMISTICE DINNER

Plans are being made by the officers of Peterborough Militia Garrison and others who have held commissions in the services, to again hold a special Armistice Dinner on Remembrance Day, as was inaugurated last year. While details of arrangements are not yet completed, it is hoped by those who are organizing the function to bring a nationally prominent personage here in the capacity of guest speaker for the occasion.

INVITE MINISTER TO CITY

Following a brief conference between Mayor Roland Deane, Warden Rork Ferguson and Reeve A. B. Burrows of Lakefield held here yesterday afternoon City Clerk S. R. Armstrong was instructed on behalf of the city, the county and the village of Lakefield to issue an invitation to the Hon. T. B. McQuesten, Minister of Highways to open the new section of pavement between here and Lakefield.

The opinion was expressed that it would be probably three or four weeks before the paving contract was completed on the Lakefield road, and while no date for the opening ceremonies was stipulated, it was decided that in the event of the Minister accepting the invitation he would be tendered a civic luncheon by the authorities concerned.

MUSICAL FESTIVAL.

Miss Ethel Payton is the leader of a group of thirty members of the Young People's Songster Brigade representing the local corps of the Salvation Army who are taking part in a musical festival being held this evening in connection with the Salvation Army Congress meetings, in Toronto. The local songsters are to sing to-night as a part of the big mixed children's choir, which is providing one of the highlights of the musical program.

Romanelli Orchestra Policemen's Dance

Louis Romanelli's orchestra has been engaged for the Policemen's dance at the Canadian Legion hall Friday, October 26. This announcement will carry a strong appeal to all dancers throughout the city and district, for the Romanelli band ranks with the best on the continent. The orchestra will be composed of twelve instruments, and an excellent program is assured for what promises to be the outstanding dance event of the season.

PRIZES FOR 1934 COMPETITION PRESENTED AT ANNUAL MEETING

Mrs. G. Borland, Retiring Convenor of Social Committee, Receives Large Bouquet.

SUCCESSFUL YEAR.

At the annual meeting of the ladies' section of the Peterborough Lawn Bowling Club, held in the club house last evening, Mrs. H. Staunton was elected chairman of the ladies' social committee for the season 1935.

Fully ninety per cent. of the lady members sat down to supper. J. H. Sedgewick, chairman of the ladies' games committee, occupied the chair and in his opening address he expressed the pleasure it had given him to work with the ladies. F. Brown, who so ably assisted with the ladies this summer also gave a short address.

Several of the men present spoke of the valuable help the ladies' section was to the club and hoped that they would continue on with the good work.

At this juncture of the meeting Mrs. G. Borland, the retiring convenor of the social committee was presented with a beautiful bouquet of golden mums by the ladies for her splendid work on the committee for the past year. Mrs. Borland, in accepting these flowers, made a suitable reply.

A vote of thanks was passed to Mr. and Mrs. C. Williamson for their kindness in supplying flowers to the ladies for their different tournaments throughout the season.

With the presentation of the prizes the meeting was brought to a close.

met quick protest by Hungary.

International tension resulting from the assassination of King Alexander of Yugoslavia apparently had not diminished.

French political circles said that France and Yugoslavia might call upon Joseph Avenol, Secretary-General of the League, to take action under Article XI of the covenant. This article would empower him to call the council in case of circumstances likely to affect international relations and peace.

Statements at the hearing of two of the assassin's alleged accomplices at Annemasse, placed a stronghold of the Pavelich terrorists at Janka Pusta, Hungary.

Denial issued from the Hungary Legation in Paris, was quickly followed to-day by despatches indicating Hungary's intention of taking action to clear her name.

Cabinet Shake-up

PARIS, Oct. 13 (CP-Havas).—A shake-up in the French Cabinet, precipitated by the assassination of King Alexander of Yugoslavia on French soil, was set for to-day.

Faced with the task of filling gaps in his ministry, Premier Gaston Doumergue convoked a Cabinet meeting, to take place immediately after the funeral of Louis Barthou, who was killed by one of the assassin's wild shots.

Announcement was awaited as to the successors to Barthou and also Albert Sarraut, Minister of Interior, who tendered his resignation in accepting his department's responsibility for the Marseille assassinations.

Candidates for the Foreign Ministry were Pierre-Etienne Flandin, Minister of Public Works, and Pierre Laval, Minister of Colonies.

Sarraut was likely to be replaced by another member of the powerful Radical-Socialist party, political circles said.

Nanking and Hankow, China, are to be connected by a trunk telephone line.

Found injured and taken to a Glasgow, Scotland, police station, a large owl has become the companion of two stray terriers.

Prince Paul Aims To Unite Country

LONDON, Oct. 13 (C.P.-Havas).—Completion of political consolidation of Yugoslavia even though it may cause the sacrifice of further lives was promised by Prince Paul, member of the Regency Council of three governing that troubled Balkan country until King Peter comes of age, in an interview published in London to-day.

"The task that has fallen upon me is a tremendous one," the great-uncle of King Peter told Ward Price, Daily Mail correspondent. "My only qualification for it is that I was always in the closest confidence of the late King (King Alexander of Yugoslavia), assassinated at Marseille."

"I knew his aims and aspirations for our country," the Prince added, "I shall do my best to carry them out."

INSIDE THE PADDOCK

BY ART MURRAY

EVERYTHING was in readiness this morning for the big opening at Dufferin this afternoon. Every stall on the grounds is filled and many will have to be vanned over from Long Branch each day to fill their respective engagements. Opening day at Dufferin reminds us of one opening about seven years ago when old Care Free (now sixteen years old) was in his prime. The Old Rogue as he was familiarly known to the regulars had compiled a winning streak of eleven races on the mile tracks and Bert Alexandria his owner decided to try him on the half mile oval.

He was entered in the opening event which called for passing the grand stand twice. The public made him a prohibitive choice and the burning question that afternoon around the track was can Care Free take the turns. They had Dude Feden, the king of the half mile jockeys slated to hide him and everything was all set. They started at the seven furlong chute on the back stretch and the Old Rogue immediately jumped into a long lead and by the time they passed the grandstand he was in front by some twelve lengths, but he slowed up and finally stopped despite all of Feden's horsemanship, and he simply would not go on. Of course they all passed him and as far as he was concerned the race was over. The trouble was that on all mile tracks when a horse passes the grandstand once the race is over and naturally Carefree figured he was an easy winner. Some of the boys who held tickets on him have not cooled out yet.

× × ×

ONLY THIS past spring when Alexandria moved his stable from the winter quarters at the farm into Woodbine for the opening of the season, old Care Free was left alone on the pasture. His instinct told him that the racing season had started and he fretted so much that he lost over one hundred pounds. Finally they took him to the track and used him as a lead pony and he immediately gained back the lost weight and right today is as sound as a bell. The late Jimmy Rowe,, one of the greatest trainers to ever saddle a horse is authority for the statement that as a juvenile Care Free was the fastest horse he ever saw. The morale of the fore going story is never bet on a horse at Dufferin, no matter how good he is unless you are sure he can negotiate the turns.

Virado and Wacket are two old Dufferin favorites who should each cop a heat before the week is over. George E. Miller is another who is right at home at this track and will account for the handicap events. Tricky's Son was the first race of his career here and now he is one of the top-notchers so don't let him run light.

ADMITS THEFT

HAMILTON, Ont. 12 (C.P.)—The long series of burglaries which have terrorized Hamilton householders for weeks past, was brought to an end in Magistrate's Court this morning when Steve Chesik, Hamilton board Russian, pleaded guilty to 13 charges of house-breaking and theft, two charges of theft of automobiles, and a charge of carrying a loaded revolver.

Magistrate Burbidge imposed sentences totalling six years in Portsmouth Penitentiary.

Ruth's Unemployment Is Problem

O.B.A.A. Bulletin

Monday, October 15, will be the last day for hockey transfers in the O.H.A.

Under the new regulations each senior club A or B may bring in four players who are to be given employment; each intermediate and junior A or B club may also bring in two players under the employment clause.

All these players who desire transfers must have written releases from the club with which they played last season.

All transfers must be registered by November 1. Clubs desiring transfer forms are requested to write to the O.H.A. secretary, W. A. Hewitt, Maple Leaf Gardens, Toronto.

CRICKET CLUB WON 8 GAMES DURING YEAR

Local Aggregation Concludes Successful Season With Match at Oshawa.

AFTER GAME REVIVAL

The Peterborough Cricket Club concluded their season with the match at Oshawa on Sept. 29, and the final results was:

Matches played	12
Matches won	8
Matches drawn	2
Matches lost	2

These figures are rather flattering, as owing to the difficulty in arranging fixtures with outside teams many matches were played against local opponents; Whitakers being met five times and Dominion Woollens once. The outside teams played were Grove School, Toronto Beaches, Trinity College School, Port Hope (twice), Oshawa, and Upper Canada College. Three wins, two drawn, and one loss.

This difficulty in arranging fixtures is one of the problems of the club management. Toronto team plays in the Toronto and District League—to which Oshawa also belongs, and this keeps these teams busy on a regular schedule all the summer. Two of the most interesting matches arranged were not played owing to default by the Toronto C.C. and the C.N.R.A. (Toronto)..

Seek Cricket Revival

An ideal situation would be provided if cricket could be revived in those two former hot-beds of the game—Cobourg and Port Hope, where the game was enthusiastically played in the latter half of the last century—if this could happen and a club formed at Lindsay—a 5-team league could be formed and the fixture problem would be solved. Steps will be taken through the winter to see if anything in that direction can be arranged.

A study of the figures will show that the club has the nucleus of a good side, with eight of the batsmen having a double figure average, with some useful bowlers, and they should be able to make a good show against any ordinary club team in the province.

OWNERS DRAG WELCOME MAT OUT OF SIGHT

Ol' Bambino Has Done Much to Help Big Time Ball in Last Decade.

GETTING RUN-AROUND

Ardor of Babe's Popularity Among Owners Dwindled Sharply Since Spring.

By BUD SHAVER
(Detroit Times)

Now that the World Series is over and grapefruit back on the breakfast table instead of flying around in Navin Field, we can turn our attention to a weightier baseball problem—Babe Ruth's unemployment.

Because that is what is amounts to. The Babe is a man out of work. When he made his rather plain-five announcement in the press box at the World Series the other day, he was, in fact, inserting a free "Situation Wanted" ad in all the public prints.

There is no objection to him doing that, because there is no gainsaying that Babe has done a lot for the public prints and would do a lot more if he were given the opportunity. But so far no one has dashed up to his door with even a smidgin of the kind of opportunity Babe wants.

Done Much to Help Baseball

The old Bam wants to manage a ball club, not one out in the brush, but a Big Time team, where he can sit around and chin occasionally with the sports writers who had soft snaps writing the fat copy he provided in his good days.

As one of those who had a belated dab at the copy Babe provided, doggone it, I'd like to see the Babe have his chance.

He did a lot for baseball. Sure. baseball did a lot for him, but some of these chaps who are getting big money now ought not begrudge him that, since he raised their salaries with his own.

The Deans are sort of weaning me away from the Bam. They're right fascinating, but before I leave him for fresher copy, I'd like to see the old boy settle for his ripening years.

Getting the Run-Around

It begins to look as if the Bam is going to get the run-around, too.

This Spring when it was apparent to everybody that Babe was toddling out for his last season as a regular player, no one in New York especially was perturbed about it.

"Pahaw, Babe will stay right here with the Yankees. When the time comes, he'll get his chance to boss the Yankees. They can't let Babe get out of New York."

You see, even then, everybody had the idea that all Babe had to do was to announce that he was open to offers for a job as manager of a ball club and he would have a heavy mail.

At that time, I don't suppose he would have been overlooked either. He almost came to Detroit instead of Cochrane. Detroit wouldn't trade Mickey for twin Ruths now, but that was last Spring.

The ardour of last Spring has cooled until Babe is beginning to shiver a little from the chill. His blood isn't as warm as it once was.

Looking Around for Other Berths.

Some time ago it became virtually certain that Babe was not going to manage the Yankees. The Babe himself took the hint and began to nose around tentatively for other berths.

It doesn't take a thing like that long to get around and whenever Babe poked his snoot into a big league town the current manager began to view his visits with suspicion and some disfavor, which was only natural.

The enthusiasm over Babe's potential talents as a manager has died down, too. Folks who couldn't detect a flaw in his managerial armor last Winter have developed the habit of jurking rivets out of it now.

All of which strikes me as a little churlish. He would have to be terrible not to do better than some, and besides one ought not call a fellow a bum manager until he has managed at least one ball club.

Babe ought to have a job, even if it is necessary to put a new team in the field. Something's got to be done or we'll have that fellow added to our unemployed this Winter, and he's an awful hearty eater.

Dizzy Gets Bonus, 14 Bucks in All

CHICAGO, Oct. 12.—"Dizzy" Dean won 30 ball games for the St. Louis Cardinals, pitching them into the National League's 1934 championship—and the club directors awarded him a bonus of $14!

When he and his brother Paul refused to go to Detroit for an exhibition game in mid-season, and created a certain amount of rumpus, fines and costs assessed him amounted to $486.

At the end of the season, when "Dis" pitched and won the final game which clinched the championship for the Cardinals, he was called into the war office and complimented on his effort. He was told that the directors had decided to award him a bonus of $500, but nothing was said about returning the $486 fines and costs.

So "Dis" who is a wiz on figures got himself a pencil and a piece of paper and worked out this mathematical problem:

$500 minus $486 equals what?

It equals $14, which is all that "Dis" has to show, as far as the St. Louis club is concerned, over and above his $7,500 salary, for pitching and winning 30 ball games.

A $13 Rest

CHICAGO, Oct. 12 (CP)—John McReynolds is a mailman, but contrary to the popular belief, he doesn't spend his day off walking.

Instead, he hired a rickshaw at the World's Fair and rode from 10 a.m. to 8 p.m. The bill was $18, but all the mailman had was $13.

He was brought before a judge for failing to pay, but the company agreed then to settle for the $12.

CARSON-EMMS OUT OF LINE AT WING CAMP

Alex Connell and Leduc Other Old Timers Who Will Not Report This Season.

PROMISING YOUNGSTERS.

Amateur Authorities Pave Way For "Simon-Pures" to Try Out in Majors.

(By Elmer Dulmage, Canadian Press Staff Writer.)

TORONTO, Oct. 13 (CP)—While the big trek to nine soon-to-be-opened major league hockey camps gets under way, the amateur ladies start hoping they look like big leaguers and some of the big leaguers hope the same thing, there was the odd heartbreak in the day's pre-training news.

Old Frank Carson and big Happy Emms, for instance, are being disposed of by the Detroit Red Wings, National League champions. Jack Adams asked waivers on these stand-bys yesterday. He found little use for them in the playoff struggles of last Spring.

The Battleship of Montreal Canadiens, Albert Leduce, is to move into the Canadian-American League as manager of Quebec's entry. He finished last season with New York Rangers, after a spell in Ottawa. Alex. Connell, the old Ottawa goaler, has decided not to report to Montreal Maroons.

Youngsters Coming Up

These are four the N.H.L. is unlikely to see this up and coming season, and the axe has just started to fall. Crowds of amateurs, whose simon-pure standing is not affected until they sign something, are ready to try for places, some already have been signed and the minor circuits are certain to yield some talent.

The chances are there will be plenty more heartbreaks when the young fellows start to skate past the oldsters. Lester Patrick, whose New York Ranger cast carries more veteran stars than any team, is busy looking for replacements in his own ivory camp, especially set up for the purpose at Winnipeg.

On the Ranger list are Bill Cook, Ching Johnson, Frank Boucher and some other fellows who may be expected to play less effective hockey than last season when the Rangers were not the strongest force in the sport. Patrick is making a survey of some of the best amateurs in the West and East.

Maroons at Winnipeg

In a few days Montreal Maroons, led by Tommy Gorman, will move on Winnipeg to train with the Rangers. Gorman gave up directing the Stanley Cup Chicago Hawks to rebuild Maroons. Among his young hopes are Sammy McManus and Aubrey Webster of Moncton's Allan Cup Hawks.

The Chicago Club may bring in some young talent, but the trend under Manager Clem Loughlin has been to acquire experience and "names"—Howie Morenz, Lorne Chabot and Marty Burke from Montreal Canadiens. The Flying Frenchmen will move on their Saint John, N.B., training camp with youthful reinforcements, notably Roger Jenkins from the Hawks and Nelson Crutchfield and Jack McGill from McGill's Intercollegiate champions.

When Toronto Maple Leafs go to Galt, Ont., for training, a goodly group of promising amateurs will go along. St. Louis' entry, already on ice at Ottawa, may include some rookie talent,, and Joe Simpson's New York Americans are open for more than one good boy.

Now that the amateur authorities have opened the way for the youngsters to have their big-league trials without offending anybody, the N.H.L. camps are likely to be packed—not for long perhaps—with youth. The old fellows will have to show they can still get around.

RE-ARRESTED.

EAST WINDSOR, Ont., October 12 (C.P.). — Thirty seconds free on suspended sentence, David Proctor of Toronto, self-styled and fictitious hotel inspector, was re-arrested this morning on the charge of defrauding a Toronto hotel of $40.

Kostuik Resigns

JOHN KOSTUIK

Captain of Queen's senior football team, yesterday confirmed the report that he was resigning as a member of the Alma Mater Society executive, which body charged the supreme court of the society with prosecuting thirty medical students as members of an international fraternity.

"I found," said Captain Kostuik, "that I was in a rather awkward position, being captain of the team and also on the A.M.S. executive, so my resignation is being forwarded."

Inside Sportin' Dope—By A. Wise Cracker

Mister Sporting Editor:

Well, Mac, I suppose the wind-up of the world serious is the big event of the week in sport circles, and while I called the National Leaguers to cop the big share of the gravy, I gotta admit them Tigers made it closer than I figgered, and the serious was stretched out to the limit. When the jungle cats grabbed off the last 2 games in St. Looey and made it necessary to go back to Detroit to play out the string, many thought the jig was up for the Cards, but they forget the Dean boys, the lads who can fog 'em in any time and fastest when the going is tough. And right here, although Dizzy pitched the rubber game and hung up a shutout, I want to claim that young Mister Daffey Dean really saved the serious, for with the Cards back on the ropes and the rampaging Tigers with 2 straight wins to fill 'em full of fight shooting with their ace heaver, Schoolboy Rowe, it was the Dig's brother that stepped in there as cool as liquid heat, held the Detroiters nicely in spite of some bad breaks on infield hits, and then drove home the winning run himself. It was Daffey's stand that give the Cards the big end of the series' jack.

When Mister Cochrane gambled with his ace Mon. and lost he was out on the end of the line for a pitcher for the final battle. As it turned out, it didn't matter who he started, for the Tigers couldn't get a run off the great Dizzy. On the other hand, considering the slaughter the Cards made of the Tiger pitching staff, Manager Franky Frisch coulda sent the bat boy in there to do the gunning for the Cards. With a extra $1,700 staring them in the face them St. Louis batters took about the whole Tiger front line pitching staff to pieces. Mister Auker didn't last 3 frames, Mister Rowe pitched to only 3 men and 2 of them crashed hits, Mister Hogsett couldn't get a man out, and while Mister Bridges finally got the side out, the bumped him plenty later on in the pastime. Only Mister Crowder, who did the gunning in the last inning, escaped without a hit against him, but by that time the Cards were leg weary from tearing round the bases.

Outside of the decisive win for the Cards, Mac, the feature was the mob scene caused when Mister Ducky Wucky Medwick slid into 3rd base with his spikes gleaming in the October sunlight. Mister Medwick wasn't the only guy in the series who showed plenty of steel going into the bases. What do you think Mister Jo-Jo White was using to kick the ball outa the hands of St. Louis infielders—carpet slippers? But the Medwick incident come when the Tigers was hopelessly sunk, and they took it out on the youngster in the Cards' outfield. They tossed so many pop bottles and so on at the kid that the game was held up, and Big Shot Landis finally ordered Medwick to get outa the picture. It was a hectic 20 minutes ,and the leatherlunged gang in the bleachers may think they won the argument. However, when Mister Medwick feels that close to a $6,000 wad of world's serious money that'll be his he probably will feel that he has the last laugh. You can stand a lotta pop bottles for 6,000 smackers, believe you me.

Well, Mac, that seems to be about enough for this time, so I'll call it a day.

Sportfully yours,
A. WISE CRACKER.

ORILLIA CLUB DEFIES C.A.L.A. LEAVES FOR VANCOUVER SERIES

ITALIAN ATHLETES LOSE AT NEW YORK

Luigi Becalli Fails in Attempt to Shatter Bonthron's Record.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13. —(AP)— Shivering in chill breezes which must have made them wish they were back home, a team of thirty Italian track and field stars yesterday bowed to a pick-up United States squad six events to eight in an international track meet at Yankee Stadium, climaxing New York's celebration of Columbus Day.

Under the circumstances, all the times were slow, the major disappointment being Luigi Beccali's failure to do better than 4 minutes 2 seconds in his effort to lower Bill Bonthron's world record of 3.46.8 for 1,500 metres. The stocky little visitor, Olympic champion at the distance, had little opposition and won easily by 15 yards from Joe McCluskey, New York's former distance star.

PORT CHESTER RACE WON BY PAT DENGIS

Percy Wyer and James Shaw Finish Ninth and Tenth.

PORTCHESTER, N.Y., Oct. 12. —(AP)—Taking over the lead at the two-thirds mark, Pat Dengis of Brooklyn yesterday won the annual Columbus Day marathon from New York to Portchester. Dengis, who finished fourth in the 1933 race, covered the regulation marathon distance in two hours, 31 minutes 30 seconds, finishing more than four minutes ahead of his closest pursuer.

Toronto's two entrants finished eighth and ninth, the veteran Percy Wyer covering the long jaunt in 2.47.03, and his teammate of the Monarch Athletic Club, James Shaw, crossing the line in 2.48.29.

Second place was captured by Mel Porter of New York, whose time was 2.35.36. Robert Willower of the Meadowbrook A.C. finished third.

Paul De Bruyn of the German-American A.C., who won the marathon last year, came in fourth, his time being 2.36.26.

Ontario Association Permission Good Enough is Terriers' Stand.

13 PLAYERS ON TRIP.

ORILLIA, October 13. — Orillia Terriers, Canada's lacrosse champions, last night threw down the gauntlet to the Canadian Amateur Lacrosse Association, when they left for Vancouver to play an exhibition series with the St. Helen's Club in face of an order from the C.A.L.A. forbidding the trip.

Officials of the club said thirteen players, three officials, and trainer, were making the trip to the Coast. The C.A.L.A. threatened to suspend the club if the trip was made, and to take from it the Mann Cup, symbolic of the Dominion's lacrosse title.

Terriers took the Mann Cup in three straight games from New Westminster Salmonbellies, Western Canada finalists.

The newly crowned champions, who swept through their group, Provincial and Dominion finals, without the loss of a single game, received an offer this week to play an exhibition series with the St. Helen's Club.

O.A.L.A. Gives Permission.

President Fred Waghorne, Jr., of the Ontario Amateur Lacrosse Association, granted permission for the trip, and R. J. Miller, secretary of the club, said the Terriers would abide by their approval.

Miller said Waghorne had granted written permission. "Permission of the O.A.L.A. is good enough for us," he said.

St. Helen's first offered all expenses and a 50-50 split on all the games of the proposed best three out of five series. Later the offer was changed to a guarantee of $4,000.

The C.A.L.A. met last night to consider the Orillia situation, and, on the motion of Andy Paul, vice-president, decided to suspend the club if the trip was made. Official word to that effect was received yesterday by the Terriers.

'JIMMIE' FOXX RECOVERS.

WINNIPEG, October 13. — Fully recovered from the effects of a slight concussion suffered in an exhibition baseball game here when struck by a pitched ball, Jimmie Foxx, stellar first-sacker of Philadelphia Athletics, left hospital yesterday. He is expected to leave later for Calgary to rejoin the American League All-Stars, now on an exhibition tour.

DUNKLEY HEADS SENIOR SECTION BOYS' DIVISION

H. Galley and W. Lawson Are Other Leaders in Athletic Events.

SUCCESSFUL MEET.

More than 550 competitors, boys and girls, took part yesterday in the huge field day of sports held at the Exhibition Grounds yesterday afternoon for the students of Peterborough Collegiate and Vocational School. All the many events were keenly contested and the program was put through systematically and without unnecessary delays.

Everything in connection with the lengthy program had been carefully planned and arranged. Members of the teaching staff acted as starters and judges. It was one of the most successful field days in the school's history, the splendid weather no doubt being of assistance in bringing out the large number of competitors who crowded every event.

Ward Wright was the outstanding point gainer in the boys' events, running up a total of 23 points in the intermediate division to secure the championship. M. Dunkley led the senior boys' division with 14 points, H. Galley the juniors with 17 points and W. Lawson the juvenile with 14 points. The championships in the various divisions will not be fully decided until the results of high jump and pole vault events, which will be run off Monday afternoon, are known.

The points were scored as follows: 5 for first place, 3 for second and 1 for third.

The following are the results:

85,000 Passes in 5 Years.

"Excessive" use of more than 85,000 passes over a five year period caused considerable loss of revenue to the railway, said Mr. Racine, and he recommended that only those permitted by the Railway Board of Commissioners be used on the lines.

Recognizing the "long experience and intimate knowledge" of Mr. Lee in the north country, the investigator suggests creation of a freight soliciting department under the former chairman, who, he said, "lacked very necessary qualifications" as executive and head of a railway, which consequently left management of the line to other officials.

These were termed by Mr. Racine as "an internal group of men who had no right or ability to be so entrusted," named as Maund, Clement, Freeman, Hamilton and Alford, they all were recommended for dismissal. Such terms as "totally unfit to occupy the position," "deplorable lack of appreciation of responsibility" and "lack of initiative and experience," were applied to the men by Mr. Racine.

As described during evidence submitted to him, Mr. Racine claims special bonuses were paid in 1925 to the commissioners "without authority of the Legislature," and that yearly bonuses were granted the chairman by former Premiers G. Howard Ferguson and George S. Henry.

Deans And The Cardinals Arrive Home In Triumph

This is how St. Louis welcomed her returning Cardinal heroes and especially the Dean boys whose exploits have travelled far and wide'er baseball's horizon. In the front car, driving among cheering, victory-mad throngs, are Sam Breadon, Card. owner, and Mrs. Frank Frisch, while in the rear car the brothers receive their meed of praise. The entire team was given an uproarious welcome in the Missouri city, whose residents, from the mayor downwards, turned out to greet them upon return from their world series quest.

SPORTS DAY BY DAY

Baseball, Lacrosse, Soccer Softball, Bowling, etc.

By E.A.O.

Success of the P.C.I. field day of sports held yesterday afternoon at the Exhibition Grounds seems to show that interest of the city's younger generation in track and field events has revived greatly. It was the apathetic manner in which the student body regarded such sports for the past several years that decided the Collegiate staff to discontinue the annual field day a year or so ago. But there was real enthusiasm for track and field events displayed on all sides in the huge meet yesterday. The big ring in front of the grandstand was crowded with eager competitors, all ready to put forth their best efforts and they did turn in some spectacular work considering their inexperience and lack of training.

• • • • • • •

It was estimated by those in charge of the affair that there were more than 550 competitors, girls and boys. The large number that took part and the lively interest shown by the students as a whole recalls the fact that P.C.I. field days are an old institution at the school.

• • • • • • •

In bygone days the school developed some really great athletes who made names for themselves throughout the province. Previous to the war, old grads of the school relate, that the annual field day was really the big day in the school's calendar. The boys practised for months in preparation and when they turned out to do their stuff records went by the board.

• • • • • • •

Those days of track and field stars at P.C.I. appear to be on the way back. At least a fair beginning was made yesterday. While no records were set, and few of the old senior marks were even approached, the younger chaps showed much promise and with practice and coaching may develop real ability. Those who displayed the greatest promise will be coached by members of the Collegiate staff and a track team will be formed. Every effort will be made to encourage all the students to take a keener interest in track and field competition.

• • • • • • •

This effort will be directed among the girls as well as the boys because some of the lassies showed really great ability. One intermediate girl, Francis Bestard, cleared the high jump at four feet three inches, which is no mean heighth. And the girls crowded their events even more than the boys.

• • • • • • •

The final lacrosse game of the season is scheduled for Monday night at Millbrock and brings together Dinty's Inn and the Millbrook stalwarts in the fifth and deciding game for the inter-county shield. Each team has won two games and in doing so battered themselves so badly that it was deemed wise to adjourn the final for a week to give the players time to lick their wounds. All the games have attracted huge crowds, folks in the Millbrook district having really taken to the boxla game.

• • • • • • •

An executive meeting of the local hockey club is scheduled for this evening, when the financial report will be read and some other important business transacted. It appears that Fred Scates has accepted the responsible duties of looking after the club's finances again.

• • • • • • •

Reports are that scouts of the local intermediate rugby team have unearthed some smart gridiron stars among workers at the camps along the Burleigh Falls-Bancroft highway. Some of these prospects for the team are said to be former senior players for Argos and Sarnia. Every effort will be made to get them out for the team.

• • • • • • •

Cec. Perdue, writer of this column but at present holidaying in Los Angeles, California, has been hobnobbing with some of the movie starts out that way. He reports that they are just everyday people and look the same way, but then he has not met Mae West as yet.

Ex-K.K.K. Leader's Trial Adjourned

EDMONTON, October 13 (C.P.).—With a motion for non-suit pending the trial of J. J. Maloney, former Ku Klux Klan leader, stood adjourned until Monday.

Claiming insufficient evidence to substantiate the charges of false pretences, Morris Bake, defence counsel, made the plea for non-suit. Mr. Justice Boyle said he would reserve his decision on the plea until the end of the trial, meanwaile ordering the submission of evidence to continue.

The case is based on an allegation by John P. Henry, present leader of the Klan in Alberta that he advanced two $1,000 bonds to Maloney to finance publication of a book.

England now has 56,000 doctors, 15,000 more than in 1912.

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(AP)—Babe Ruth, hoping to land with some major league team as a manager next year, was to set out today on a journey which will carry him around the world before he again sets afoot in New York next February.

The babe will head a team of major leaguers leaving Vancouver Oct. 13 for a series of games in Japan. Following the series, together with his family and Vernon Gomes and his wife, Ruth plans a tour of Europe.

ENGLISH CYCLIST IN TORONTO GRIND

Sydney Cozines Will Attempt to Place England on Cycling Map.

England has produced many great athletes, and this year in particular has had an exceptionally good year at producing champions. Fred Perry has cleaned up everything in tennis, Henry Cotton won the golf, her athletes swept the boards in the British Empire games and now another star enters the field of international competition.

Syndney Cozines has come to America to try and place England on the cycling map. He will be one of the starters in the semi-annual six-day which starts at the Maple Leaf Gardens on October 20 and continues for six-days and nights without cessation. He will be only one of a great international field that will include representatives of a dozen nations.

Born in London, England, July 17, 1908, he has risen to the fore among English cyclists. He won the Manchester amateur quarter mile championship in 1927-28, and in latter years represented his native country in the Olympic games at Amsterdam. The next year he won the world's sprint championship, the quarter mile English title, the Grand Prix at Paris, and the quarter mile cycle pace standing start, setting a National cycling Union record of 28 seconds for the latter event. 1930 was another signally successful year and he repeated his world's championship and Grand Prix of Paris victories. He also won the 1,000 yards English championship and numerous victories in Oslo, London, Paris, Naples, Warsaw and Cologne.

JAILBREAKERS

MICHIGAN CITY, Ind., Oct. 13 (CP)—A report gained circulation that there had been another jailbreak at the Indiana State prison, but it turned out that only a couple of horses had tried to get away from the prison honor farm six miles south of here. The animals were recaptured.

MORENZ TO CENTRE CHICAGO ATTACK

Former Thunderbolt of Canadiens Will be Flanked by Thompson and March.

By ELMER DULMAGE
Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO, Oct. 13 (C.P.)—October trade winds have blown the National Hockey League a new forward line that is likely to rank next season among the top-flight scoring trios. Its pivot is old Howie Morenz, sold—but not down the river by any means—to Chicago Black Hawks.

During the 12 years of his career with Montreal Canadiens, Howie was always the centre of a fine forward line. Aurel Joliat played on his left side and several players in turn held down the right side. There were, notably, Billy Boucher and then Johnny Gagnon. Goals always came from a Morenz-led line.

This is an older Morens in 1934 but if there is as much punch in the veteran thunderbolt as there should be, the Chicago line of Paul Thompson, Morenz and Mush March will get feature billing very shortly after the campaign opens in November. Thompson is a star and March is very close to being a star.

It will be a line that can skate like blazes and backcheck, also like blazes. Thompson has a fine scoring technique. March is a fireball on attack, one of the fastest wingmen in the circuit. He passes well, bores in. The burning speed of Morens on a solo dash will not bother the Regina midget. He will be right beside Howie all the way.

The ranking front line of the day is Toronto's Conacher-Primeau-Jackson powerhouse which succeeded the two famous lines of Clapper-Weiland-Gainer of Boston and Cook-Boucher-Cook at New York. The Bruin trio was broken up and the Ranger technicians are getting old.

Down in Detroit they have Weiland pivoting his second fine line, Larry Aurie on one side and Herbie Lewis on the other. St. Louis gets a good line from Ottawa in Frank Finnigan, Jerry Shannon and Max Kaminsky. Montreal Maroons still have Hooley Smith between Jimmy Ward and Larry Northcott.

Other strings are coming along, threatening to break through with scoring feats. Conny Smythe may find the man he needs to play centre for the dashing Hec Kilrea and Buzz Boll. Some people thought Morenz was just the man for that post, but Howie had gone to Chicago. Probably the new season will produce nothing better than the Black Hawk Thompson-Morenz-March brigade.

HATCH STABLE MAY DISBAND

Prominent Breeder Expresses Dissatisfaction With Racing Conditions.

FAVORS COMMISSION.

TORONTO, Oct. 13.—H. C. Hatch, prominent breeder and sportsman, whose racing establishment at Agincourt represents an investment in property and stock of between $500,000 and $750,000, stated yesterday in the course of an interview that he would consider the advisability of retiring from the sport if the Provincial Government failed to establish a Commission to control the sport. Mr. Hatch explained that his position should not be construed as a threat, or an attempt to bring pressure on the Government to do what he thought was necessary in the interests of the sport.

While racing will suffer if Mr. Hatch retires from the sport, so will the community of Agincourt, where he employs more than a score of workers on his farm and purchases large quantities of produce from farmers of the neighborhood. The closing of the farm as a racing establishment would mean a severe loss to the municipality in the form of taxation.

Florida Heavy Boat For Max Schmeling

NEW YORK, Oct. 13.—(AP)—It appears now as if the next big heavyweight fight to pick an opponent for champion Max Baer will be fought in Miami, Fla., between either Steve Hamas or Art Lasky and Max Schmeling, the former titleholder from Germany.

Jimmy Johnston, Madison Square Garden matchmaker, and Joe Jacobs, Schmeling's manager, announced yesterday that Schmeling is under contract to meet either Hamas or Lasky in February, the articles having been signed on the afternoon of the fight between the last two named. As Hamas gained the somewhat questionable decision the former Penn State football player, is expected to get first call.

Schmeling is slated to arrive in New York the first week in January to start training. Feb. 22 has been tentatively set as the date.

Series Hero

PAUL DEAN

Emerging from the excitement of the world's series, Paul Dean, brother of the more famous "Dizzy" Dean, becomes one of the outstanding heroes of the series by virtue of his two fine wins over the Tigers. Brother Dizzy won the other two for St. Louis. The brothers will be able to argue all winter over whom was the better pitcher.

MAYOR OF DETROIT IS QUITE AROUSED

Demands Apology From Joe Medwick to Detroit Players and Fans.

DETROIT, Oct. 13.—Mayor Frank Cousens declared yesterday that K. M. Landis, baseball's commissioner, ought to clear up the most unfavorable reflection' cast upon Detroit after a near riot during play of the final world series game.

In a letter to Frank Navin, president of the Detroit Baseball Club, Cousens pointed out that refusal of Tiger fans to countenance Joe (Ducky Wucky) Medwick in last Tuesdays game had brought about Nation-wide condemnation of the city.

Medwick, St. Louis outfielder, was ousted by Landis for attempting to spike Marvin Owen, Tiger player, after showers of fruit, bottles and boxes held up the game for 17 minutes.

"Apparently because of the descriptions given by certain radio announcers over the national hookup, an impression was spread that Detroiters are bad sportsmen," the mayor wrote. "Any apology which is due to anybody is due from Medwick to the Detroit players and the Detroit fans."

HOME AND SCHOOL ASSOCIATIONS TO AID CAUSE OF TEMPERANCE

150 Ladies Present at First Annual District Conference.

SPLENDID ADDRESSES.

"Are we Christian parents? If so, we should try to do something about these horrid beverage rooms that have been opened up to entice our boys and girls."

"We would like to place the blame on Mr. Hepburn and Mr. Henry—but was it they alone who did it? What about you and me? Years ago, hundreds of thousands of the boys and girls were kept from tasting intoxicating drinks because they had signed a pledge. But later, we rested on our oars and didn't bother about that angle of the temperance question, because in so many of our provinces public drinking was disallowed. Christians failed to pray about it and others failed to work."

Mrs. G. K. Tyler, wife of the Rev. Mr. Tyler, pastor of the Park street Baptist Church, spoke on "Temperance", with especial reference to young people, at the banquet which was a feature yesterday of the first district conference here held under the auspices of the Federation of Home and School Associations of the Province of Ontario.

It was a splendidly-attended conference, with a delegation from Lindsay of twenty-nine ladies and and a total at the banquet of nearly one hundred and seventy-five men and women, including a number of the school principals and teachers of the city.

And it was a delicious repast, served by the members of the Women's Association of Murray street Baptist Church, where the conference was held. Mrs. R. Gavine supervised arrangements for the banquet which was held at tables decorated appropriately with the leaves and fruit of the sumach, scarlet haw berries, and lighted red candles in pumpkin holders. Mrs. D. A. Loomis and Mrs. T. Hendry acted as treasurers.

Mrs. E. Wand, president of the local Home and School Council, was in the chair and welcomed the guests.

Her words were echoed by the pastor, the Rev. J. H. Sutcliffe, who also invited the ladies to hold their annual Home and School church evening at Murray street.

Special guests at the conference were the president of the Federation, Mrs. R. S. McLaughlin of Oshawa; one of the vice-presidents, Mrs. A. B. Silcox, of Toronto; the secretary-treasurer, Mrs. H. Maltby of Toronto; and Mrs. E. E. Reece, principal of Birchcliff School in York County. The ladies accompanied Mrs. McLaughlin from Perth, where a similar gathering took place on Thursday. Owing to the bad condition of the roads, they arrived late, and numerous references to the value of punctuality at meetings which were heard from time to time provoked the laughter of the assemblage.

Large Attendance

About one hundred and fifty ladies were present at the afternoon session, held in the lecture hall. Mrs. W. R. Morris, who is past president of the Federation, was in the chair and welcomed the members in a few well-chosen remarks.

The first speaker was the provincial president of the Federation —Mrs. R. S. McLaughlin—who is always a welcome visitor to meetings connected withh Home and School work, as she speaks at all times with great sincerity and earnestness.

Taking as the theme of her brief address the subject, "A Good Home and School Program" Mrs. McLaughlin emphasized two elements as necessary for an ideal program of this type. Sincerity of ideals and honesty of purpose.

Quoting from a first prize-winning program in a contest conducted by Women's Institutes of England, Mrs. McLaughlin read this extract:

"I think the ideal meeting is the one that starts punctually where the business is interesting (and where there is not too much of it) and where, if a question is raised, members answer and give their opinions decidedly and promptly. . . . The social hour should vary and we should have a good laugh".

In planning the meeting, said the speaker, there should be four different periods—introductory, business, program and social.

Suggested topics included talks on the safety and health of the child ("How often accidents occur in a home owing to small things like a step that is too sharp, a cellar-door that won't latch, a bottle of medicine labelled wrongly"); also on the use of leisure; in civics or citizenship in community life; on ethical or moral training; on educational methods.

Mrs. McLaughlin advocated the revival of choral debating and discussion groups in meetings of this type.

"But if you have sincerity and honesty, you will have an ideal meeting."

International Minded

The Rev. Dr. C. V. McLean, programmed to address the meeting on the subject of teaching International Mindedness to children, asked permission to change the title to "How we may become students of the International Mind."

"Because," he explained, "you and I are not in a position to teach international mindedness to children, for the reason that we belong to a generation that has just spent four hundred billions of dollars in slaying forty millions of its sons. Why? Because of a pronounced antipathy to internationalism."

The reverend speaker advocated, finally, as a stimulant to the international mind in ourselves; a curtailment of the vocabulary in the use of words which are really a term of contempt such as 'dago', 'sheeny' and 'hun'.

Secondly, "Try and get better acquainted with those not of your own nationality."

Thirdly ("and this is difficult, although it may seem easy") avoid a patronizing air.

"Remember the black man who interviewed President Lincoln and then said: "He treated me like a man". It takes a real lady or gentleman to be able to treat another so that he will forget for the time the sense of inferiority induced by long years of ill-treatment."

Rev. Dr. McLean spoke of the way in which many modern centers of learning are changing their old system of education. For instance, the University of Virginia takes its scholars to Paris for the teaching of French, and Dr. Locke's famous ship sails each Autumn with hundreds of students on board and nearly one hundred courses of study open to them.

"We can all travel by way of the cinema and through pictures and the appreciative reading of books."

"How long, you say, will it take to cultivate this International Mind? Until the war drums throb no longer and the battle flags are furled, in the parliament of man, the federation of the world'."

School Attendance

Inspector A. Mowat, talking on "School Attendance" was the last speaker of the afternoon.

Regular attendance at school and punctuality were stressed by the inspector, as essentials in the battle against illiteracy.

"For it is illiteracy, superstition and ignorance that are causes of the world turmoil of the present day."

The inspector asserted that ninety per cent. of the total of children failing in regular attendance was attributable, not to the child, but to lack of care and and interest in the home and parents.

"We cannot expect a revival of the home life of forty years ago, but the depression has done one good thing at least, in demonstrating to people that there are more important things in life than pleasure and selfish indulgence."

Mr. Mowat declared that the majority of children did not prefer a very indulgent teacher, as shown in a survey of some years back, when only two children out of several thousand were in favor of a teacher who would let them do everything they wished. They really prefer, he said, a teacher who is interested in them and their progress and who is human.

The school spirit—an interest in supervised games, music and art—has much to do with regular attendance, and so has the pupils' health.

The speaker commended the excellent work done by the truant officer, James Abraham and also referred to the efforts of the Board of Education to help in every way and to the splendid assistance given by the Home and School associations.

"Without the assistance of the Home and School Associations, the school attendance would not be so good here" asserted the inspector, who remarked that only once in the last decade had Peterborough's average for school attendance fallen below the ninety per cent. mark.

This fact was commented on later by Mrs. Reece of Birchcliffe School, who led the itneresting discussions which took place at the close of each address. She said that the local average was high, as the average for the province stands only at eighty-five per cent.

During the discusion which followed Mrs. McLaughlin's address, Mrs. Reece spoke of the benefits to be derived from co-operation by the parents, in preparing the children for school by giving them as perfect a physical condition as possible, also by including in them both obedience and courtesy.

"With health, regular attendance, punctuality and a knowledge of school regulations, we are able to do much with the child."

Discussion Period

Speaking in connection with the discusion of the Rev. Dr. McLean's address, Mrs. Reece said that often there were instances of unkindness and unintentional cruelty on the part of school children to those of foreign birth. She also referred to the assistance in promoting an international mind by holding exhibitions in which the work of varying foreign types is displayed by "new Canadians."

Mrs. McLaughlin told here of the flourishing company of Ukrainian Girl Guides (the only one of its kind in Canada) which is promoted by the Oshawa Home and School Associations. These girls present very popular programs which feature their national music, drama and needlework.

In the discusion following Inspector Mowat's address, a question was asked regarding pupils skipping a grade in school.

Mrs. Reece replied that in her opinion, such a practice would inevitably result in loss to the child at a later period.

A pleasant feature of the afternoon program was the singing of Miss Phyllis Rome, whose sweet voice was heard in two solos: 'Danny Boy" and Love's a Merchant," with accompaniments by Miss Elizabeth Webber. Miss Rome took the place of Rev. Mr. Sutcliffe, prevented from singing by a cold.

In the evening, at the banquet table, Mrs. McLaughling spoke briefly, referring again to the importance of well-planned club meetings.

"Try to study also the wise use leisure. That is one of the wastes of to-day, the waste of time."

E. F. Reid, chairman of the Board of Education, expressed the Board's appreciation of the work done by the Home and School Associations.

He suggested that the members might well take up consideration of the problems confronting "the boys and girls who, through the action of two great political parties, have had thrust upon them these beverage rooms or beer parlors."

Love of the Child

Mrs. Maltby spoke of the need for parents to study educational problems and methods so as to keep in step with the knowledge imparted in the school. She said:

"Often parents destroy what the school has built up carefully. And we should always remember that the base of all our programs is the child. If we parents do not keep pace with the times, we cannot keep pace with our children and they won't listen to us. Consider the motto of our founder: 'The love of childhood is the common tie that binds us in a common purpose'."

Inspector R. F. Downey, giving an address on "Stock Taking of Leisure Time" gave as his favorite definition of the word 'leisure'—'Time which may be appropriated for a specific object."

"The fundamental principle at the bottom of leisure is the will to work, either at your own business or at something else. It means really that you have time to do what you want, with the will to do it untramelled.

"Labor and leisure must over remain closely related, only with the difference on the emphasis."

Suggestions on the use of leisure included others with regard to labor. "For we were meant to work. But I feel sorry for people who are driven into vocations or callings in which they are not interested or happy.

"Having made a choice of a vocation, there are many elements that enter into success—friendship, service, the atmosphere engendered by your personality, tact, cheerfulness, self confidence and sympathy. And we must be reliable, trustworthy and approachabe."

The speaker also recommended sleep and regular hours, for nerve restoration and body-building.

In speaking of the four divisions of the day, prayer, labor, refreshment and sleep, he emphasized the necessity for refreshment and for play.

Ride a Hobby

"Take up some hobby, you women as well as the men. Take up anything that you are interested in—any sport, or walking, fishing, camping, motoring. And play, play play!

"Take time to think. This world needs people who are willing and able to reflect. I would like to see a period in our school life in which the boys and girls would be told to sit still and think—reflect on what they want to do in life."

Referring to the need of religion, Mr. Downey quoted: "Forget not the assembly of yourselves together for worship" and spoke of the necessity of soul nourishment as a bulwark against the turmoil and stress of life.

Mrs. Tyler, speaking on the temperance question, delivered a stirring appeal to the parents present to take up the cudgels against enemies of the young life in their midst.

"We must train them to the knowledge that liquor-drinking is a disgrace and that the smoking of cigarettes numb the mind. Do you know that they are making chocolate cigarettes now so that the boys and girls may become used to the habit and take to the use of the real thing?

"They are putting brandy in chocolates and they are sending out rum and butter candy. Whether there is rum in it or not, it has the name anyway. They are fixing lipstick that is flavored with whisky, so that your daughter's lips may know the taste of liquor through that medium. And on the other side, they are flavoring ice cream with whisky.

"What are we going to do about it? Would it surprise you to know that there are many young people in this province who are really keyed up about the situation and want to clean it up? But their hands are tied, even though they are willing to sign the pledge and wear the white ribbon.

"When you are thinking of a use for your leisure time, why not come to the W.C.T.U. meetings and wear the white ribbon bow which stands for the purity of the home, the purity of the individual life, and the purity of national life.

"Many of the young men who fail in Collegiate studies do so because they have become addicted to the cigarette habit which induces in them a careless, muddled, drifting habit of mind that leads in time to failure".

The Teachers' Viewpoint

"The Possibilities of the Home and School Association from the Teachers' Point of View" was the subject of L. J. Pettit's brief talk. Saying that education is a way of life, not a means to an end, Mr. Pettit stressed th increasing significance of opportunity.

He pointed out two avenues of opportunity for the associations—first, an interpretation of education in its broadest sense, to the parents and public generally; second, the establishment of study groups in child psychology.

Mrs Wand informed the speaker that study groups of this type were scheduled for commencement this year among the local Home and School Associations.

Dr. J. E. Middleton, speaking on matters pertaining to Child Health, emphasized the importance of proper care of the teeth.

He said that millions of dollars are spent annually in Canada through illness, while fifty per cent. of human ailments are caused by the mouth and teeth troubles.

Tooth decay can be controlled largely by diet, asserted the speaker who outlined the methods used in pre-school age clinics where the children's health can be watched.

Dr. Middleton said that the first teeth should be allowed to come out according to Mother Nature's own methods. If tampered with in any way or removed forcibly, crookedness is often caused in the second set.

Brief words of encouragement in Home and School work, and of appreciation of the conference, were voiced by Mrs. W. R. Morris, Mrs. Reece, Mrs. Silcox and Inspector Mowat.

Ladies in charge of arrangements for the conference were Mrs. E. Telford, Mrs. J. E. Middleton and Mrs. J. Kingsbury.

BERT MONK IS RETURNED HEAD YOUNG PEOPLE

Representatives From Some Thirty District Societies Meet in City.

SPLENDID REPORTS.

That the United Church Young People of Peterborough Presbytery are building a real fellowship of Christian youth was evidenced by the large assembly of enthusiastic representatives who gathered yesterday in St. James' United Church from some thirty district societies.

Registration began at 1.30 o'clock and a good representation was present when the afternoon session opened with Fred Barnard, executive member of the Bay of Quinte Conference Y.P.U., presiding. The inspiring worship service, with its theme, "The Transforming Friendship," was presented by members of St. James' Y.P.S., led by Miss Muriel Moorhouse.

On behalf of the officials of St. James' Church, the pastor, Rev. A. E. Moorhouse extended a very sincere welcome to these young people whose work is an integral part of the church life.

The president of the Presbytery Y.P.U., Bert Monk, of Bethany, in a concise report outlined the activities of the past year and emphasized the fact that the executive had endeavored to reach every section of the Presbytery. This was done by means of Demonstration Nights and Officers' Congress, held at various strategic centres.

In a brief business session committees were appointed for the convention and the following reports heard. The financial status of the Union was given in an interesting account of the year's work by the secretary-treasurer, A. Cleveland Robb. Following were the reports of convenors of departments: Christian Followship, Miss Connie Wagar; Missionary, Miss Edith Elmhirst; Citizenship, Bruce Dawson; Literary, Lynn Stewart; Recreation, Miss Esther Thornton; C.G.I.T., Miss Vera Squire; C.S.-E.T., Don. Charlton; Leadership Training, Rev. C. D. Daniel.

The following members comprised the Nominating Committee: Rev. C. D. Daniel (convenor); Rev. S. R. Kemp, Bert Monk, Miss Williams, Miss Anna Frank, Miss Esther Thornton, and Fred Barnard.

The Resolutions Committee included for the Central district, Homer Borland; North, Rev. W. R. Archer, Lakefield; West, Ralph Staples, Cavan; East, Rev. Mr. Ferguson, Keene.

Interspersing the business was a delightful quet, "Come Holy Spirit," contributed by Rev. E. M. and Mrs. Cooke of Fraserville, and the afternoon session was closed with prayer by Rev. S. A. Kemp, Havelock.

A recreation period under the direction of Miss Esther Thornton, proved a splendid between-session relaxation.

The banquet hall was gay with Autumn leaves, bright red berries and golden marigolds, which were also used in the artistic table decorations arranged by Miss Muriel Moorhouse assisted by E. Davis. The King's Own Bible Class catered for the sumptuous supper in their usual efficient manner.

Malcolm Latimer led the community singing at the supper hour with George Nicholls at the piano. Greetings from the Bay of Quinte Conference Y.P. Union were brought by the president, Stephen Saywell, while George Lewis, president of Cobourg Presbytery, also extended greetings. Rev. William Fletcher also brought greetings.

Officers Elected

The report of the Nominating Committee presented the following slate of officers for the coming years: Honorary President, Rev. S. A. Kemp; President, Bert Monk; Vice-President, Cecil Wasson; Secretary, Miss Bertha Pickering; Treasurer, Thomas Allen; Department Convenors: Constance Wagar, Christian Fellowship; Edith Elmhirst, Mission; Bruce Dawson, Citizenship; Esther Thornton, Recreation; Lynn Stewart, Culture; Helen Staples, Dramatics; Rev. Daniel, Leadership Training; Homer Borland, Editor; Vera Squire, C.G.I.T.; Don Charlton, C.S.E.T.; and District Convenors: Minnie Williams, Anna Franks, William Holgate, Oakley Conley; Advisory Committee, Fred Barnard and Cleve Robb.

Resolutions

The report of the resolutions Committee was read by Homer Borland and included the following:

1.—That a hearty vote of thanks be tendered to St. James' Board for the use of the Church building and to the King's Own Bible Class who provided the bountiful supper.

2.—That this convention of young people of Peterborough Presbytery wishes to go on record in condemning the present system of the sale of beer and wine in the Province of Ontario. We deplore the existing conditions and urge the young people of our organization and all others to co-operate in stamping out this evil."

At the evening session the president took the chair and a very effective worship service on the theme "Service" was conducted by members of Millbrook Y.P.S., led by Bruce Dawson.

Rev. S. A. Kemp, chairman of the Presbytery, installed the new officers in a most impressive service, and also presented the attendance banner to Fraserville Y.P.S., and the dramatic trophy to George Street United Y.P.S.

A pleasing cornet solo by Mr. W. W. Knight, of Hastings and a beautiful duet, "Abide With Me," by Mrs. MacMillen and Mr. W. Payne, Lakefield, proved a delightful interlude in the program.

Introduced by the pastor, Rev. Mr. Moorhouse, the guest speaker, Rev. Duncan MacTavish, of Port Hope, held his audience with his witty, yet challenging, message on Evangelism."

Armaddy Castle, near Oban, Scotland, the home of the Earls of Breadalbane since the seventeenth century, has just been sold to Miss Kathleen Mackinnon, who holds no title but is famous as a yachtswoman.

HEALTH ACTIVITIES BEING CENTRALIZED

Chest Clinic and Mental Health Clinic to be Conducted in City Hall.

As the initial step towards the centralization of all health activities in the city, it is learned that the Chest Clinic and the Mental Health Clinic are to be conducted in future at the offices of the local Board of Health in the City Hall.

Those concerned are notified that in future all appointments for either of these two clinics should be made through the Board of Health offices (telephone 35).

The Chest Clinic sponsored by Peterborough Health Association and in charge of Dr. F. C. Neal and Dr. C. B. Waite is to meet on the first and third Tuesday of every month, while the Mental Health Clinic conducted by Dr. Cummins and staff of Whitby will meet on the first and third Thursday of each month.

Plans are under way to have the Well Babies Clinic also meet at the Board of Health offices, and definite announcement in this regard will be made later.

"This is the first step in the plan to centralize all health activities in the city", Dr. C. Murray Fraser, Medical Officer of Health stated. "The idea is not to take the work out of the hands of the various organizations who are sponsoring such commendable activities, but is rather to offer those directing the work the fuller facilities which the Board of Health is able to provide for them. The directors of the clinics are very enthusiastic about the accommodation and equipment which has been made available to them", the M.O.H. said.

Contrary to the usual trend in India, motor-vehicle sales in the second quarter of this year were greater than in the first three months.

POTATOES SELL 70 CENTS A BAG

Some Vendors Offer Spuds as Low as 50 and 60 Cents on Local Market.

GRAPES PLENTIFUL.

"It's going to be a hard winter," said one of the men who had nuts to sell on the market this morning. In previous years, nuts have been a novelty on the Saturday market place. This year, there are plenty of them. Oblong, brown-husked butternuts were sold by three vendors this morning, at 25 cents in small baskets. Mr. Black of Port Hope had large, green-jacketed English walnuts, selling at 15 cents a basket.

Potatoes were very, very plentiful. A vendor from Colborne offered his supply, filling a large truck, at 50 cents a bag; potatoes from Garden Hill were quoted at 60 cents, and 70 cents was a general price for the local spuds.

Blue grapes were plentiful, too, selling at 25 and 50 cents in small and large baskets.

Small cauliflowers sold at two for a nickel; citrons were 5 to 15 cents apiece; tomatoes, 25 and 40 cents a basket; vegetable marrows a dime each; late beans were 2 quarts for 15 cents; Brussels sprouts were 5 cents a quart; little yellow fruit tomatoes were quoted at 10 cents a quart. Small carrots were 15 cents a basket.

Wild grapes were 20 cents a basket; while honey was 13 cents a pound, with combs at 15 and 20 cents for amber and clover brand; apples were priced at 35 cents a peck for Wealthies and 40 cents for McIntosh, while Baxters and Baldwins were $1.25 a bushel, and Spies $2.

Little, plump, live Leghorn pullets were offered at $1 each.

In the basket section, butter was priced all the way from 20 to 23 cents a pound, with 21 cents as a general quotation; cream was 30 cents a pint; eggs 30 to 33 cents a dozen, with small sizes at 25 cents; chickens, 18 cents a pound, and hens 15 cents.

Knitted blouses, carefully made, could be bought for $2 each.

Home-made bread was 10 cents a loaf, buns were 15 cents a dozen; cocoanut cakes (large and luscious) were 50 cents; chocolate cakes (smaller) were 25c, and old-fashioned sponge cakes, 30 cents. Pumpkin pies were 25 cents each, with berry pies in half-pint sizes at a dime. Tiny individual head cheese were 5 cents.

Glass jars of the nine-day pickle could be bought for 45 cents and Manitoba pickles were 15 cents.

Bunches of spicy savory herb were 10 cents, and orange-red bittersweet was a dime a bunch. Straw flowers sold at 25 and 35 cents.

IT PAYS TO ADVERTISE

STAMP CORNER
By M. A. BESSEY

When Australia celebrates, she certainly believes in telling the world about it.

The illustrations are not of postage stamps, but of gummed labels, which are available to residents of Australia to use in advertising the Centennial Celebrations. If you get a letter from Australia these days, you will probably find one or more of these labels stuck on the back of the envelope, or on a lower front corner.

The labels themselves, are very beautifully made up in small sheets of 24 labels each. There are two different sheets, that I have seen, and all are printed in a great variety of color.

Birds, animals, plants, country and city scenes, as well as scenes of the Exhibition are all depicted in a great riot of color. It is a real idea of letting people know that Australia is still on the map, and wide awake.

Silver Jubilee Stamps

Judging from the latest news, you had better start and save those old nickels and dimes now; you'll need them all next year for the Silver Jubilee stamps.

The latest word is that special issues of stamps will appear next year to commemorate the Silver Jubilee of King George's reign. Not only will there be a special issue for the United Kingdom, but for all colonies throughout the empire.

The design for the issue of Great Britain will probably depict dual portraits of H.M. King George and Queen Mary, with suitable inscriptions for the occasion.

Designs for the Crown Colonies are now under preparation in England, and will, we understand, be of a pictorial nature.

The self-governing Dominions will each provide their own Silver Jubilee Stamps, so we are already assured of at least one new issue for Canada next year.

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS

G. W. H. Bastram, London Ont.: The 15 cent registration stamp showing a beaver and issued in the province of Quebec, is a revenue stamp. They are not uncommon, and sell for 5 to 10c each.

The new Bi-lingual type of postage due stamps of Canada have been issued in one, two, four and ten cent denominations.

CANADA'S UNSOLVED MYSTERIES

No. 5—Baffling Exit of Ambrose Small

By JOHN C. SCOTT
(Canadian Press Staff Writer)

(Copyrighted, 1934, by The Canadian Press)

TORONTO, Oct. 13—(CP)—When Ambrose J. Small, Toronto theatrical magnate, stepped into the shadows in the evening of Dec. 2, 1919, never to be seen or heard of again, the case went down into Canadian police history as the most outstanding of strange disappearances.

Big rewards were offered. Thirty thousand circulars were despatched to police headquarters all over the world. Toronto detectives travelled 22,000 miles to and from far corners of the continent on false clues. Not a substantiated trace was ever found of Small's movements since he passed the nearest street corner after leaving the Grand Opera House that December evening 15 years ago.

Starting in a small way Ambrose Small had become the owner of a string of theatres in Canada. On the day he disappeared he completed the sale of all his theatre interests to Trans-Canada Theatres, Limited, for $1,750,000. He received a cheque for a cool million in connection with the sale and it was deposited in the bank. That same day he had lunch with his wife and promised to be home for dinner in the evening.

Small had some further business with his solicitor that afternoon and so far as known left the theatre about 7 p.m. The last person identified as having seen him was the newsboy on the corner from whom he purchased his evening newspapers as usual.

Prominent as he was the absence of the millionaire theatre man was not made public for two weeks. He was in the habit of leaving the city for short periods without notice. His relatives and business associates were not much alarmed until Dec. 16. Then the fact were given to the police and the newspapers.

First reward was offered in January 1920—the amont being set at $500. This was shortly afterwards increased to $5,000. In the following June a police circular, with the authorization of Mrs. Ambrose Small and the Capital Trust Company, offered $50,000 for information leading to the discovery of the missing man, if alive, or $15,000 for the recovery of his body.

Following various rumors a large section of Rosedale Ravine was excavated, the waters of Toronto Bay thoroughly dragged and hundreds of bodies examined, without discovery of the slightest clue to Small's whereabouts. As late as a year after he was reported missing a steam shovel and 30 men were put to work on a section of the ravine. Somebody had recalled seeing a party of men carrying something from an automobile to a dump about the time Small disappeared. Nothing was found.

Police received hundreds of replies to the circulars. Information regarding the sighting of men of Small's description came from as far away as Japan. All these "leads" led nowhere in the direction of his recovery. As recently as last Thursday a fanciful prisoner in Kalamazoo, Mich. jail reiterated a claim he was the missing theatrical man from Canada.

Holds High Place on Prize List of Canadian Artillery Association.

ANNUAL CONTESTS.

OTTAWA, Oct. 13.—(C.P.)—The prize list of the Canadian Artillery Association in the annual contests held in 1933, show the 10th Field Battery of St. Catharines, Ont., carrying off the bulk of the honors. The St. Catharines gunners won the prizes for general proficiency, battery gun practice, best shooting (Ontario), battery tactics and gun-laying.

A total of 84 Canadian artillery batteries participated in the competitions at Petawawa, Ont., Camp Shilo, Man., and Sarcee Camp, Alta.

Other competitions and their winners and runners-up follow:

Battery general efficiency, with Governor General's Cup:

Field artillery 1st 10th Field Battery, St. Catharines; 2nd, 40th Field Battery, Hamilton. The Lansdowne Cup went with second place.

Medium and heavy artillery—1st, 22nd Medium Battery, Cobourg (Governor General's Cup; 2nd, 7th Medium Battery, Montreal (the Association Cup.)

The Oland Cup for the best battery in the Maritimes went to the 86th Field Battery, Yarmouth, N.S.

Western Honors.

The Western Canada Military Institute Cup for Manitoba was won by the 17th Field Battery of Winnipeg; the Cape Cup for Quebec went to the 7th Medium Battery, Montreal; and the Mackenzie Waters Cup for Ontario to the 10th Field Battery of St. Catharines.

In battery gun practice for field artillery, the Oswald Cup was won by the 10th Field Battery, St. Catharines, while the 40th Field Battery of Hamilton was second.

The 22nd Medium Battery of Cobourg and the 7th Medium Battery of Montreal were placed first and second for the medium and heavy guns. The former won the Wilson Smith Cup and the latter the Mercier Trophy.

The MacDonald Cup for the best shooting unit in the Maritimes went to the 83rd Field Battery of Stellarton, N.S. In Quebec the McGibbon Cup was won by the 57th Field Battery of Quebec City. The Montizambert Cup for Ontario went to the 10th St. Catharines gunners, while the 17th Field Battery of Winnipeg won the Manitoba Trophy—the Aitkins Cup.

The St. Catharines gunners, the Hamiltonians, and the 12th Field Battery of London, Ont., divided honors for battery tactics, the three sharing the grant and Gzowski Cups.

For efficiency of personnel, the St. Catharines men and the 92nd Field Battery of Edmonton placed first and second, getting the Hurdman and the George Washington Stephens Cups respectively.

The 10th Field Battery of St. Catharines won the MacDonald Trophy for gun-laying.

TRENT RIVER WOMEN'S INSTITUTE CONDUCTS INTERESTING DEBATE

Two New Members Join—Rare Collection of Antiques Exhibited.

Y.P.S. OFICERS CHANGE.

TRENT RIVER, Oct. 13.—(Examiner Correspondence). — Women's Institute meetings in this vicinity are becoming more interesting each month and a number of visitors attend each meeting, who become members at the following meeting. The September meeting was held Thursday afternoon at the home of Mrs. Joseph McNeely with an attendance of 30.

In the absence of the president, Mrs. George Brooks, the meeting was in charge of the vice-president, Mrs. Earl Greenly. The roll call was "A Health Habit," for which nearly every member responded.

Two new members joined. The motto, "We must not be afraid of change, it is the essence of life," was read by Mrs. R. W. Umphrey.

The secretary read a letter from Miss Blanche Graham, of Lakefield, regarding directions for holding a Cambridge debate for the Institute. Letters of acknowledgment for fruit received by sick members was read. A letter was read from the retiring superintendent of Women's Institutes, Mr. George A. Putnam, of the Ontario Department of Agriculture. Miss B. McDermand is appointed in his place, assuming her new duties sometime in October. A letter was read from Mrs. Murphy, of Belleville, who was a visitor at the August meeting of the Institute, containing directions for holding a conundrum tea.

Will Supply Aid Kit.

Correspondence was read from Mr. Wildman, teacher of Old Havelock School, requesting supplies for the first aid kit at the school. The members will comply with this request, and will also furnish necessary supplies for Trent River school cabinet. Mrs. H. Mann was appointed to purchase the supplies. The Institute members received an invitation to attend the Seymour West Institute meeting at the home of Mrs. Gordon Shearer on Thursday, October 18, and a truck was hired to convey them to the meeting. Miss Doris Scott gave a reading, "Going to Move."

Antiques Shown.

A number of antiques were exhibited. A butter print and plaid shawl, each of which were over 100 years old, were shown by Mrs. J. McNeely. Miss E. Cameron showed a copy of Bunyan's Pilgrim's Progress, bound in brown leather, over 200 years old. A copy of Bunyan's last sermon preached 1688 was contained in this book. Mrs. Frances Ruttan showed a cocoa pot of ancient date. Miss B. G. French brought a teapot of Spode china, nearly 200 years old. Mrs. William Preston brought an old-fashioned pipe.

The Debate.

A debate, "Has the introduction of machinery done more harm than good," created much interest. Mrs. Walter Lewis and Mrs. R. W. Umphrey as leaders chose sides—Mrs. Lewis the affirmative and Mrs. Umphrey the negative. The judges were Mrs. John Sedgwick and Mrs. George Brownsell, with Miss Ethel Longmuir as timekeeper. The debate afforded an afternoon entertainment and brought forth much applause. Excellent points were upheld by both sides. The negative side won out.

Dainty refreshments were served. The November meeting will be held at the home of Mrs. Francis Ruttan, "Grandmothers' Day," when the roll call will be, "Your Earliest Photo." The National Anthem closed the meeting.

Y.P.S. Meet

George Armstrong, the newly appointed President of the Young Peoples' League, had charge of the meeting Thursday night at the United Church. Before the opening of devotional exercises Mr. Armstrong expressed his appreciation of the members for appointing him to the office of president. Miss Rena Chaplin was appointed assistant secretary and took the minutes. George Armstrong reported he was unable to attend the League convention of Peterborough Presbytery held in St. James' United Church, Peterborough. Mr. Umphrey resigned from the office of Missionary convenor and Miss Margaret Brown was appointed to the office with Mr. Umphrey assistant. Clifford Chaplin wished to be relieved of the office of social convenor and Mr. Wesley Wildman with Miss Fleda Thompson as assistant, was appointed. Mr. Umphrey asked for the privilege of holding the oratorical contest in the church November 2nd, on a League night; the request was granted. Responsive reading from Psalm I was led by the president. Mr. Umphrey addressed the meeting on ways and means of improving the work of the League and asked for the hearty co-operation of all to make the work a success. League next week will be held Friday night at 8 p.m. There were 26 in attendance.

THIRD SUSPECT TAKEN.

CHAMBERY, France, Oct. 13. — (A.P.).—A third suspected member of the group of terrorist plotters believed responsible for the assassination of King Alexander of Yugoslavia, was arrested to-day at Bourg Saint Maurice as he was about to cross the frontier into Italy by an Alpine pass.

Cumnock, Scotland, will open a cemetery guaranteed to "provide for the normal requirements of the burgh for the next 50 years."

One unceremoniously entered his house about 4 p.m. on Thanksgiving Day, crashing through the window of his kitchen, smashing a large pane of glass. The bird injured its leg but was able to fly around the house until it was caught and killed.

The 60th anniversary of St. Andrew's United Church is being observed in a most auspicious manner, from Sunday Oct. 14th to Sunday Oct. 22nd inclusive.

Bagpipes were known in ancient Egypt, Chaldea and Persia, says a Scotch historian, and were introduced into Scotland by the Romans.

THE BOOK CORNER

Conducted by R. B. W.

NOW IN NOVEMBER—by Josephine Johnson (Simon and Schusten, New York; Musson, Toronto; 291 pages).

It is difficult to believe that this book, which incidentally is recommended by The Book-of-the-Month Club, was written by a girl of only twenty-four years. She has achieved a story of intense feeling by means of prose which at once conveys a sense of beauty and power. It is the very pureness and simplicity of the language which makes the everyday happenings as well as those which are extraordinary seem as actual things witnessed and not as just read in a book.

The story is one of the mid-west where the Haldmarnes have taken a farm on which they hope to make a living after having failed in the city. It is Margot, one of the three daughters, who tells the story after ten years have passed of their struggle to remove the mortgage and to provide a future for the family. It has been a continual series of efforts against the sterile soil, the heat of summer and the cold of winter. When the autumn came each year and the crops were sold for prices which barely paid for their raising it seemed that not even a life-time of work would bring prosperity to this farm.

Of the three daughters Kerrin is the eccentric one, who does little to help the family, even shuns their company and frequently takes long walks in the night. To Margot the hate which Kerrin plainly shows for this existence seems to foretell an impending doom. This feeling grows in intensity throughout that long summer's drought which finally becomes a catastrophe.

This balance between the exterior disaster and the mental desperation is carried on until that night of climax in which insanity and death have their parts.

If we might choose a passage to show Miss Johnson's descriptive powers it would be "The creek stopped running altogether, and the woods were full of dead things—leaf dust and thorny vines brittle to the touch. It was chill and quiet sometimes in the early morning, but the heat returned, the sun blasting and fierce as ever.... In places the grasshoppers ate nothing but the white bones of weeds... and the corn stalks looked like yellow skeletons.

NOTHING HID—By Archibald Marshall (Collins, Loudon, 286 pages).

For those people who enjoy a light novel with a dash of mystery but not one to result in nightmares if read before retiring, we suggest this new story of Mr. Marshall.

While not a book which has any more than a passing interest to read once, nevertheless it is an entertaining yarn told in a not-too-extravagant or sensational style.

The scene is England where an estates agent is accused of poisoning his employer. It is some years after the actual death and he has in the meantime married the wife of the supposed victim. The trial occupies a considerable portion of the book and is well told, with all the dramatic detail which accompanies such a trial.

The denouncement is a surprise which few if any readers will guess in the course of the story.

MURDER STORIES

Murder story readers will welcome several recent books. S. S. Van Dine's latest—"The Casino Murder Case" (Scribner's) is the usual type of this author. In "Hearken to the Evidence" by Russell Wakefield (McLeod, Toronto) there is a story of a false accusation against a lady for the murder of her husband. The guilty party is eventually uncovered. Edward Hale Bierstadt has collected the authentic stories of eight American murders — "Euten Murderers" (Gundy). Each one is picked because of some unusual or spectacular feature about it. "A Century of Creepy Stories" (Ryerson) is a collection of about 70 stories by half as many authors.

Among these volumes the seeker of her thrills will surely find a variety to his taste.

OTHER NEW BOOKS

The Long Day Closes—by Beatrice Tunstall (Doubleday-Doran Toronto) is a story of Dick Turpin and his adventurous henchmen who made English travellers beware.

Man Lost—by Arthur Stringer (McClelland and Stewart, Toronto. This well known Canadian author has here another romance with the action in Labrador.

Lust for Life—by Irving Stone (Longman's, Toronto). This is a biography of the Dutch painter Van Gogh with considerable fiction included.

The Laughing Journey — by Thomas Lennon (McLeod, Toronto. Here is a story of Ireland in which the peasants live and talk and tell old legends. There is adventure too.

East and West—by W. Somerset Maughan(Gundy, Toronto). This popular author has selected about thirty of his own short stories making in all over 1,000 pages. Most of his best known tales are included in this omnibus volume.

FIRE PREVENTION BULLETIN

This is Fire Prevention Week—Do Your Part to Reduce Peterborough's Fire Losses

The myth that firemen use their big axes to break out windows and cut holes in roofs just for the fun of it was exploded by Fire Chief Gimblett in an interview to-day. He explained that any damage that was done by the firemen's axes is far outweighed by the great reduction in the fire loss, because the ventilation of a building permits more prompt control of a fire.

"Hot smoke and gases," explained the Chief, "go to all parts of a building when a fire starts. If they are not released they will bank up within the building very quickly, or result in a smoke explosion." In addition he went on to say that "firemen, when entering a very smoky building are unable to locate the seat of the fire quickly. In order to put out the fire with as small a water loss as possible it is necessary to find the fire and throw the water directly on it."

When a building is "opened up" by cutting holes in the roof, and breaking out windows, the smoke, heat and gases pass off into the outer air. Then firemen can enter the building easily, find the fire, and put it out quickly. Without such action it would take longer to find the fire, water might be thrown where it is not needed, and firemen would suffer greatly from the poisonous gases in the smoke.

The local Fire Department, Chief Gimblett declared, does not break windows or chop holes when it is possible to ventilate quickly without such damage. He did say, however, that it is absolutely essential that the smoke and heat be drawn out of the building just as soon as the Fire Department arrives. It has been found after thorough study that the damage done by firemen in opening up a building is nothing compared to the damage from fire and water if they do not follow such a course.

"No one would refuse to allow a doctor to amputate, if amputation would save his life," concluded the Chief. "Fire fighting is like that. Cutting a hole in the roof often saves the entire building and its contents.

Weddings

BEDORE—DOYLE.

MARMORA, Oct. 13 (Examiner Correspondence)—A quiet but pretty wedding was solemnized at the Sacred Heart Church, Marmora, at 7 a.m. on Thursday, October 11, when Ellen Catherine, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. William Doyle of Marmora Township, became the bride of John Louis, eldest son of Mr. Louis Bedore and the late Mrs. Bedore.

The bride looked very becoming in a gown of coolie blue crepe, with hat and shoes to match. Her sister, Martha, who was bridesmaid, was attired in a gown of navy blue crepe with matching accessories.

Mr. Charles Bedore, brother of the groom, was best man. Mr. Joseph Bertrand, cousin of the bride, served at the altar.

A dainty luncheon was served at the home of the bride's parents to the immediate relatives.

The bride's sister, Mrs. Louis Halaman, gave a miscellaneous shower in the evening at her own home, at which the bride and groom received many lovely and useful gifts. Mr. and Mrs. Bedore will reside near Deloro.

COLUMBUS DAY KITTENS.

OMAHA, Neb., Oct. 13.—(C.P.)—"Becky," the post office cat, in a splurge of patriotism Columbus Day, gave birth to a litter of kittens. Postmaster F. C. Patton, browsed in an early American history and emerged to christen them Isabella, Ferdinand, Christopher, Nina, Pinta and Santa Maria.

GRAIN AND PRODUCE REVIEWS

MONTREAL PRODUCE.

Eggs advanced on top grades and cheese prices declined on the Montreal Produce and Dairy Market yesterday.

Graded shipments of eggs in car lots or less were up a cent at 23c for A large and 21c for A medium. A pullets were down a cent at 27c to 28c, with B brand off ½c at 23c and C grade unchanged at 19½c to 20c a dozen. Receipts were 826 cases.

Cheese dropped ¼c, No. 1 Ontario white selling at 9¾c a pound, No. 1 Ontario colored at 10¾c, No. 1 Quebec whits at 9¼c to 9¾c, and No. 1 Quebec colored at 9¾c to 9¾c. Rail receipts totalled 3,772 boxes.

Fresh No. 1 butter in car lots or less sold at 29c to 30¼c a pound, with No. 1 storage at 29¼c. To retailers, solids were 31c and prints 32c a pound. Arrivals were 298 boxes.

On the potato market, new Quebecs were 35c to 40c per 80-pound bag, and New Brunswick new Mountains at 45c to 50c.

ONTARIO GRAIN.

Approximate prices track shipping point: Wheat, 92c to 94c; barley, 48c to 50c; corn, 90c to 92c; rye 53c to 55c; buckwheat, 48c to 50c; malting barley, 65c to 67c.

WINNIPEG GRAIN.

WINNIPEG, October 13. — Affected by light export demand and weakness at Liverpool, wheat futures prices slipped sharply lower on the Winnipeg Grain Exchange yesterday. At the close values were down 1¼ to 2 cents, October to 79¼c, December 80¾c to 80¾c, and May 85¾c to 85½c.

Rains over Australia's wheat belt caused liquidation of futures in the Liverpool mart, and tended to halt buying operations in Winnipeg. Prices closed with net losses of 1½ to 1¾ pence, and resulted in liberal selling here.

Only a negligible quantity of Canadian wheat was purchased for export yesterday, but exporters, looking upon the decline as a healthy reaction from too rapid recovery from recent declines, were confident new business soon would materialize.

Argentine exports this week totalled 4,236,000 bushels, one-quarter of which went to non-European countries. Several shipments of Argentine wheat have gone to China, it was reported and Chile also has been purchasing heavily.

Cash grains continued active, with good demand shown for higher grades of wheat. Coarse grains futures droped, flax leading the way with a 5-cent recession.

Mineral Advance In North Ontario Without Parallel

Dominion Mines Minister Gives Comprehensive Survey of Year's Mining Activities in Special Message.

ENTIRE AREA POTENTIAL MINING SITE

Voices Note of Caution to Those Seeking to Profit From Operations—Old Sections Being Revived By Price Stimulus.

By HON. W. A. GORDON, Federal Minister of Mines

A splendid past! But take heed of the future!

In these words are epitomized the spirit of mineral development throughout Northern Ontario.

From the Transcontinental, northward, far beyond the courses of the Albany and English rivers, and southward to the forty-ninth parallel and the north shores of Lake Superior and Huron, there is under way in Northern Ontario a development of mineral wealth, gold, silver, copper and nickel, that is without parallel in intensity in Canadian mining history.

The whole area comprising more than 130,000 square miles is, with the exception of the great Clay Belt, an active or potential mining camp.

One may travel north, south, east and west throughout this vast territory and seldom be more than a few miles from a scene of prospecting or mining activity. It may be a party of prospectors engaged in stripping and trenching a newly discovered deposit, a crew of workmen diamond-drilling a deposit to prove its nature and extent, the movement of supplies, the erection of surface plants on one or the other of the numerous properties nearing the production stage, or the large operations of established producers.

A Note of Caution.

I doubt whether I could give the folk of Southern Ontario a more opportune message than to urge them to a greater appreciation of the province's mineral industry, not necessarily with a view to investment, but rather because the present panorama of mineral development affords an intriguing spectacle, the like of which is not surpassed in any part of the globe.

Perhaps at the outset, I should sound a note of caution to those who would participate financially in Ontario's mineral development. Despite the efforts of Dominion and Provincial legislators, the unscrupulous promoter, the parasite of the industry, has not been entirely removed from the scene. The greater the success of the industry the greater are his efforts to prey on the unwary. The statements that appear hereunder have to do with the industry as a whole and may or may not apply to individual enterprises. With honest intent numerous prospects are being explored which may never become successful producers. There are others where the genuineness of the enterprise may be open to doubt. There is no dearth of reliable and authoritative information at the investor's command, and such information should be consulted before commitments are made.

There was a time, and not long since, when it was comparatively simple, for those familiar with mining at least to grasp a perspective of Ontario's mineral developments. That time has passed, and the miner, no less than the layman must be on his toes to follow the vital, vigorous, and astonishingly progressive course of events in the industry.

Output Steadily Rising.

In the course of four years the value of Ontario's gold output has risen from $33,500,000 to $61,648,000 with the value of this year's output conservatively predicted to exceed $70,000,000. Nickel output which in 1932 amounted in value to $7,180,000 attained a value last year of $20,130,000. Given a continuance of favorable conditions in 1934 output value will probably exceed $34,000,000. The value of nickel exports for the first half of 1934 at $16,200,000 constitutes a peak record for any corresponding period. Output of copper in 1933 was substantially higher than in the previous year, and the rate of output during the elapsed portion of 1934 is roundly one third higher than that of 1933.

Dividends to the amount of roundly $16,500,000 were declared by the mines of Ontario during the first half of 1934. Experience has shown that the average cost of mine operation throughout Canada is roundly one half of the value of mineral output. Applying this average to Ontario, it will be found that at the current rate of production, well in excess of $5,000,000 is being expended each month in the development of the province's mineral wealth. International Nickel alone spent an average of $1,000,000 a month in Canada in 1933. Salaries and wages paid by the mines in the Kirkland Lake area in 1933 amounted to $6,500,000. The mines in the Porcupine area will pay roundly $10,500,000 in salaries and wages this year.

Hopes Being Realized.

These are impressive figures and they challenge a closer study of the industry. Is this excellent record but a fleeting phase in the province's mineral development, or is it more in the nature of a prelude to what may be expected in the years that are ahead? Are such old line producers as Lake Shore, Hollinger, Dome, McIntyre and Teck-Hughes well entrenched in their present position? Is it reasonable to assume that the progress of new discoveries is keeping ahead of the rate of depletion? Are followers of the industry overly optimistic as to its potentialities? These and a host of other questions come to the mind of the layman as he addresses himself as to the importance of the industry and to its sphere in the economic and social life of the province and of the Dominion.

A few years ago, it was stated frequently of Ontario's mineral industry that the stage was set for a protracted period of intensive mineral development. These statements were largely expressions of unbounded faith by those most closely associated with the industry, and though the thought may have been father to the hope, there is no gainsaying that the hope, thanks to the rise in the price of gold, the favorable turn in world industrial conditions, and the readiness with which both have been turned into good account, is being abundantly realized.

Northwestern Ontario.

Northern Ontario, as I have stated, is an active and potential mining camp.

Northwestern outpost of this camp is the Howey Mine, located one hundred miles by airline north and west of Sioux Lookout on the Canadian National Railway. Regarded as an uncertain enterprise a few years ago because of the low grade nature of the deposits, Howey has become Canada's outstanding example of the ability to operate very low grade deposits on a profitable basis. Not far distant is the McKenzie Red Lake property soon to be added to the list of Ontario's gold producers.

In the Clearwater and Woman Lake areas, some seventy miles to the northeast of Howey, we have the first tangible evidence of enhanced activities resulting from the rise in the price of gold. The active prospecting and development now under way in these two areas can be largely credited to the incentive provided by the gold price rise.

The Patricia District.

About 125 miles farther to the northeast, in the Pickle Crow area, is the scene of one of the most active and successful of the newer gold developments in the province. This area, with Central Patricia in production, Pickle Crow and Casey Summit nearing production, may also be described as a child of the new gold era though the area had received considerable attention prior to the rise in the price of gold. Strikingly encouraging results have attended development work, the grade of the ore is comparatively high, and Central Patricia has shown that a high gold recovery can be obtained.

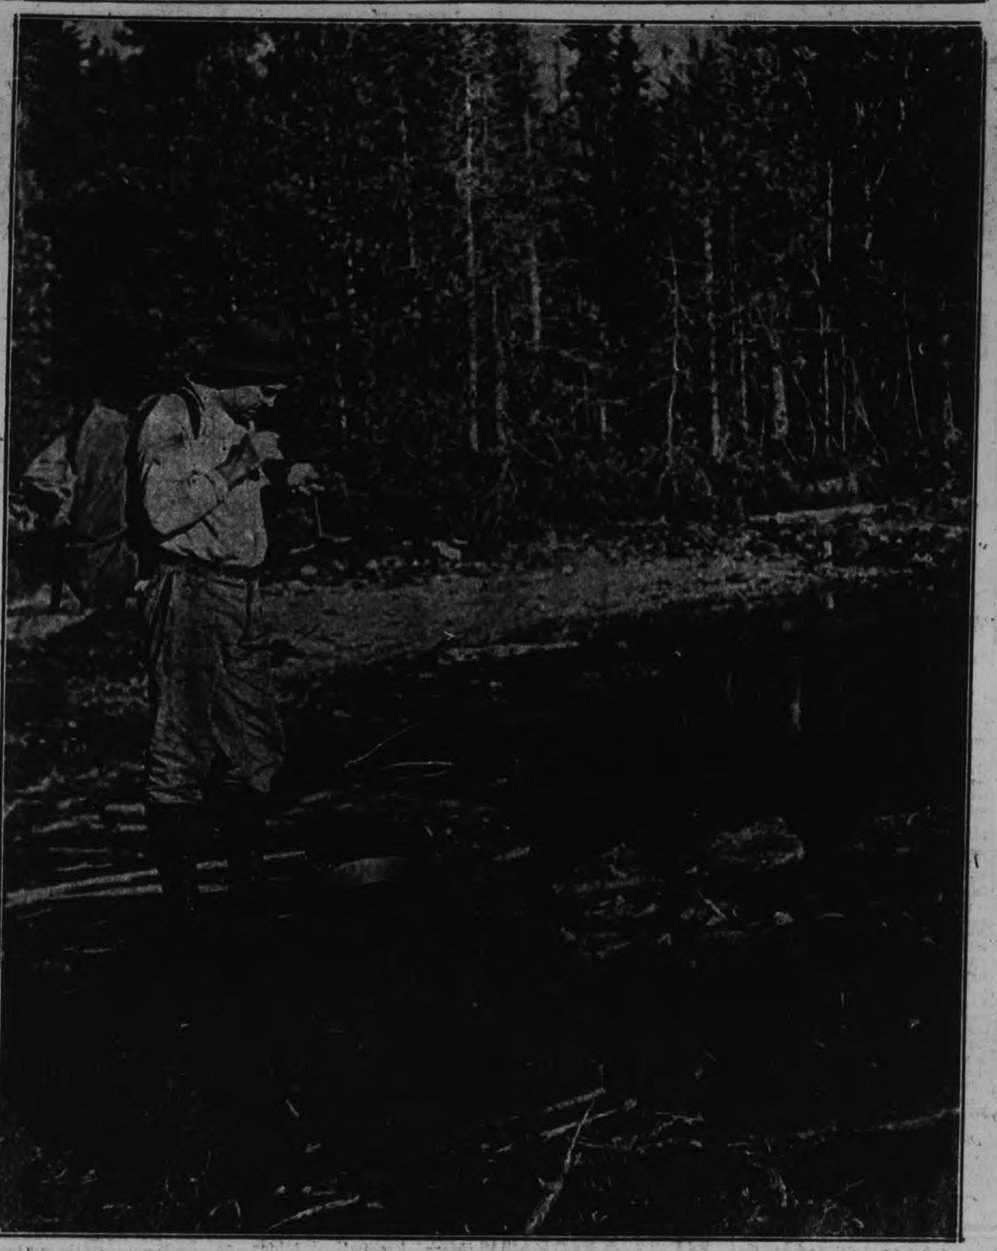
The Prospector --- Pioneer of a Great Industry



Hardy, optimistic, wise in the lore of bush and rocks, the prospector is the man who has done most toward opening up the Northern hinterland. He finds the ore. Development follows. He blazes the first trails to the mining camps.

INTERPRETING NORTHLAND TO SOUTH ONTARIO

Editor Admits His Enthusiasm May Sound Much Like Exaggeration.

HE BELIEVES IN NORTH

Welcomes Opportunity of Telling Examiner About the Gold Country.

No journalistic job with which this writer has ever been associated has been undertaken with more enthusiasm than the work of editing this Northland Edition for The Examiner.

It was undertaken with a full sense of the responsibility in the knowledge that Northern Ontario demands an accurate and comprehensive interpretation, difficulties in the plain fact that it would be impossible to give a complete picture of all phases of Northern Ontario life and industry within the limits of one edition of a newspaper.

Much, of necessity, has been neglected.

One could write a very large book dealing with the historical background alone. Northern Ontario, from western to eastern boundaries, from Lake Superior and Georgian Bay northward, is of vast extent. A great deal of it has been only casually explored but so rapid, so bewildering has been its development and progress since the turn of the century, especially within the past twenty years, that any newspaper survey can hope to catch no more than a few of the highlights.

This edition, therefore, does not pretend to give a complete and adequate interpretation. Its aim is modest enough—to give the reader some information about Northern Ontario with special emphasis upon activities in the mining industry.

And why mining, in particular? Because the progress and development of Northern Ontario in general depends so greatly upon its mineral resources. Because the mining industry has played the leading part in Canada's emergence from depression.

There has been no conscious attempt to paint Northern Ontario as a paradise on earth, with streets of gold and happiness and prosperity for all. It is a strong growing young country of great resources and potentialities. But this writer has long felt, in common with most other Northerners that a majority of Southern folk have a vague and distorted impression of the newer part of the province. And, likewise in common with other Northerners, he has an intense appreciation of New Ontario, an abiding faith in its future and a ready willingness to tell others about it. If the words "richest" and "biggest" and "greatest" are used here and there in this edition they are not used rashly, but accurately for Northern Ontario is a country of astonishingly great resources and correspondingly big achievements.

It is not at all beer and skittles in Northern Ontario. The settler has a hard time of it at first—but then the business of clearing land is not child's play in any country. The prospector does not always find a mine. The lumberjack endures much hardship for little pay. The miner's job demands rugged endurance.

It is a country that demands a great deal of hard, grim, unpleasant labor. It is a country that yields stubbornly to the advance of civilization. But there is something epic about it that cannot fail to grip the imagination.

When one sees great gold mines supporting thriving communities, when one sees new farms cleared in the wilderness, great booms of logs on the the rivers, huge power developments harnessing the might of Northern waters, paper mills turning out miles of newsprint, all the fine things men have achieved in the Northland—then one can appreciate the indomitable courage and perseverance and ingenuity of the people who have made it what it is.

This edition, then, is a friendly gesture from Southern Ontario to Northern Ontario and as such the opportunity of editing it is quite as deeply appreciated in the Northland. If there are faults and inadequacies in the presentation the blame must be laid at the door of incapacity, certainly not to a lack of enthusiasm and pride in the venture, unique in Ontario journalism.

—LESLIE McFARLANE.

Rapid Advances Reported In B. C. Nickel Tunelling

According to a recent progress report issued by B. C. Nickel Mine, No. 1 tunnel has advanced 120 ft. in a week to a total distance of 1,763 ft.; a cross-cut was completed at 1,600 ft. with a heading also in pyroxinite, showing mineralization; No 2 tunnel is ahead 131 ft. for the week to 647 ft. with a heading also in pyroxinite. The size of airline has been increased from two to three inches to speed up drilling. With the completion of the new ventilisation system three shifts will be in operation.

CANADIAN MALARTIC has encountered rich ore through diamond drilling below the present level of underground developments.

Sally Property Shaft Sunk Depth 60 Feet

VICTORIA.—The two-compartment shaft at the Sally Mine, near Beaverton, has reached a depth of 60 ft., according to H. B. Morley, secretary of the company. The shaft is being sunk near the Wellington boundary to open up a vein showing 15 inches of high-grade ore where it enters the Sally property.

Below the No. 3 level on the other side of the property the winze on No. 7 vein has been sunk to 150 feet and drifting commenced. The ore averages 15 inches in width, it is stated, and shows better quality than it averaged in the winze itself. Stoping will commence in about two weeks time when the other side of the block is reached.

At the present time one car of Sally ore is now at Trail smelter and another will be on the way shortly.

Northland Great Expanding Market For Old Ontario

Annual Purchasing Power of Mines, Totalling $60,000,000, Alone is Important Factor in Welfare of Southern Ontario.

NORANDA SUPPLIES FROM 47 CITIES

Section's Manufacturers Get Lion's Share of Business — Wage Average and Purchasing Power Higher in North.

The Northland is a vast and rapidly-expanding market for Southern Ontario products.

It is well recognized today that Canada's gold production enabled the Dominion to endure and survive the depression with less distress and misery than was apparent in most other nations of the world. Gold enabled Canada to maintain its credit at home and abroad.

And 70 per cent. of Canada's gold production comes from Northern Ontario.

Canadian mining industries, to which the Northland of this province is the greatest contributor in production, have swept Canada far ahead on the recovery path. The credit value of gold has been only one factor. Directly and indirectly, the Northland is providing payrolls and purchasing power.

All over Canada industry and agriculture have been stimulated by the great market of the Northland. By virtue of its geographical position and its ability to serve the manifold needs of the swiftly-developing North Country, the Southern Ontario region is getting the lion's share of the business. The mining industry is prospering as never before. It is maintaining thriving cities, towns and villages. It demands machinery, equipment and supplies from a thousand sources. Its people have money to spend—money for food, clothing, housing—all the necessities and luxuries of everyday life.

Sixty Million Dollar Market.

On this page will be found a comprehensive survey of the mining industry in Northern Ontario, written especially for this Northland-edition by Hon. W. A. Gordon, Canadian Minister of Mines. Mr. Gordon estimates that $5,000,000 a month is being expended this year in the development of Ontario's mineral resources.

A sixty-million-dollar annual market!

Its importance to the communities of Southern Ontario can hardly be overestimated. Because the Northland is not industrial.

The prospector buys his tent and canoe from a Southern manufacturer. The mining company or syndicate maintains its office in a Southern city. The mine is equipped with machinery made in plants far distant from the property. The worker buys his dinner-pail, his breakfast food, his boots, his furniture, his radio or his automobile—and sends his money out of the Northland. Lumber products, farm produce, fish, manufactured articles provide a great volume of freight and express business for Canadian railways. The purchasing power of the Northland is widely distributed.

Wage Average High.

The average Northland town or city differs little from other towns and cities of Canada in the requirements of its people. The people wear the same sort of clothing, eat the same kind of food, drive the same makes of cars, see the same movies. Transportation costs tend to make living costs a little higher but the mines' wage average of $1800 a year is generally higher than in other parts of the province. Every fortnight the mines of Sudbury, Timmins, Kirkland Lake and Noranda pay out an aggregate of a million and a half dollars in wages alone.

The Northland, with its mining, lumbering and agricultural industries, is a great producing entity of the Dominion but by the same token it uses enormous quantities of manufactured products. The supply requirements for the average mine over the course of a year are nothing short of amazing and extend into scores of Canadian industrial fields. Canadian industry has kept apace with requirements. Machinery once imported is now manufactured in the Dominion, specifically designed to most Canadian mining requirements. Similarly with lumbering and the pulp and paper industry.

What Noranda Means.

One of the most effective presentations of the significance of a big mine to the industrial life of the country is contained in a recent letter to the shareholders of the Noranda Mining Company, from James Y. Murdoch, president of the company. Last year the company spent $2,200,000 in Canada on operating supplies. The money was spread over 47 cities, towns and villages in Manitoba, British Columbia, Ontario and Quebec.

It is interesting to note that Southern Ontario communities are in a majority on the list. When it is considered that Noranda is but one of many Northern mining companies and when it is considered that the company's payroll of $2,500,000 also represents a great buying power, much of which is spent on Canadian goods, the extent of the great market offered by the mining industry to Canadian industry in general may be realized.

Direct and Indirect Benefit.

"No doubt," wrote President Murdoch in his letter to Noranda shareholders, "our shareholders in some of these communities will be surprised to learn that they and their fellow citizens are deriving financial benefit direct and indirect from their mine, situated in many cases many miles away. The expenditure and distribution is, of course, entirely apart from our payroll of approximately $2,500,000 and the expenditure of over $350,000 for electrica energy. I give you these facts to impress upon you the widespread beneficial effect of an operating mine of this size. There is also the very important benefit received by the nation from the export of a large tonnage of copper and the sale of gold, silver and other metals."

Many Communities Share.

The Canadian communities that shared in the business represented by Noranda's expenditure of $2,200,000 on operating equipment last year were as follows:

Ontario — Belleville, Brantford, Brockville, Carleton Place, Cheminis, Cobalt, Colebrook, Copper Cliff, Delora, Dundas, Galt, Guelph, Haileybury, Hamilton, Kirkland Lake, London, Merritton, New Liskeard, Niagara Falls North Bay, Orillia, Oshawa, Ottawa, Owen Sound, Peterborough, Preston, Sault Ste. Marie, Scarboro Junction, St. Catharines, Sudbury, Timmins, Toronto, Walkerville, Welland and Windsor.

Quebec—Amos, Hull, Joliette, La Sarre, Makamik, Montreal, Noranda, Rouyn and St. Johns.

Other Provinces—Winnipeg, Man.

PORCUPINE IS IN FIRST RANK OF GOLD CAMPS

Northern Gold Field Discovered 25 Years Ago Still Going Strong.

THE BIG THREE

Timmins Centre of Rapidly Expanding Area That Has Produced Millions.

Overshadowing all other Canadian gold camps in point of consistent volume of production, the Porcupine area which has produced more than $350,000,000 worth of gold since 1910, can be said to be at least one of the boot-straps by which Canada has lifted itself out of the depression.

The "Big Three"—Hollinger, McIntyre and Dome—account for nearly 9000 tons of ore a day and have been steady producers ever since the camp went into action, with years of life lying before them. And the Porcupine area in general, with the stimulus of $35 gold, is seeing revivals of old properties and a general expansion.

Timmins is the chief town of the area, largest of the triumvirate of which South Porcupine and Schumacher are the other members. Although it is still but a town in legal standing, Timmins is in reality a city in its conveniences, stability, modern equipment and comforts. A quarter of a century ago a strip of bush, it is now an up-to-date city of 18,000 people, with more than 4000 residences and well over 300 business places. There are four large public schools, three separate schools, a high and technical school and a business college. The town has eight churches, a public library, two modern theatres, skating rink, curling rink, athletic field, dance halls, tennis courts, amusement parks, tourist camps, eight hotels and numerous restaurants. Electric power, paved streets, high-pressure waterworks system, the most modern electric fire alarm system in the North, a large hospital and an up-to-date newspaper, The Advance, are other features of the busy municipality.

Big Annual Payroll.

The clearing of the five banks are equivalent to a city with a population of 60,000. The annual payroll of the camp is in the neighborhood of $10,000,000, but against that is the fact that there is scarcely a line of business that has not been overdone, so keen is competition for a share of the immense business represented by that payroll. When the depression was at its worst Timmins found that it wasn't altogether a blessing to be known as one of the few really busy towns in Ontario because thousands of transients flocked to the camp, swelling an already formidable list of unemployed. The relief bill of the town ran as high as $85,000 in one year.

Timmins is Colorful.

Timmins is one of the most colorful places in Canada, where a great variety of races move against a modern city background, with the great mills rumbling steadily night and day—the whole, in turn, against a background of Northern rock, bush and farmland. Tony from Naples goes on shift with Cousin Jack from Cornwall and Ivan from Poland and Ole from Sweden and young Bill Smith from Ontario and they are all Canadians together down in the wet black depths of the earth. Picturesque marriage and funeral customs of foreign lands are retained in whole or in part, a dozen tongues can be heard on any main corner on any busy evening and many boarding houses can be definitely classified as French, Cacche, Italian, Polish, etc., according to the nationality represented by its lodgers. But in the schools hundreds of youngsters are growing up as Canadians. The process of assimilation is rapid.

Gold Manufactured Here.

The mines themselves are amazing gold factories. The height of metallurgical genius is exemplified in the great mills where some of the cleverest technicians in the industry are in charge and where miraculous machinery puts the ore through the various processes that finally reduce it to bullion. The surface workings are on a huge scale but the underground workings, where men have been burrowing beneath the earth's surface for more than twenty years, include miles of subterranean passages. It is not infrequent for an underground worker to spend more than half an hour getting to his work from the time he leaves the surface, notwithstanding all the conveniences of electric cages and electric tramways. Every device that will protect the health and safety of the workers is utilized including highly efficient ventilation systems that ensure supplies of fresh air at the deepest levels. Department of Mines inspectors see to it that safety regulations are strictly enforced and mortality from mine accidents is remarkably low considering the extent of operations, the number of men employed and the unavoidable risks contingent on certain phases of underground work.

Big Fire Disasters.

The great Porcupine fire of 1911, when 71 people were killed, was one of the major disasters of the camp. A series of bush fires that had broken out through the area at various times came to a climax in July when the townsite of Pottsville was wiped out. A week later the whole camp was swept by a tornado of flame. Many men working in the bush were trapped and lost their lives. Scores saved themselves by plunging into the tank pool at the Dome Mine and in a narrow stream that later became known as Salvation Creek. More than 50 people who took refuge in the underground workings of the West Dome Mine were suffocated. The fire was a disastrous setback to the new camp but in a few days tents dotted the devastated area, supplies were rushed in to the survivors and the work of reconstruction was soon under way. The Hollinger fire of 1929, when 29 men perished in an underground blaze, was another disaster.

It is a far cry from the picturesque early days of the camp when hundreds of gold-seekers stampeded in from Matheson in the fall and winter of 1910, to the present time when the Porcupine area is served not only by motor road and railway but by a tri-weekly airplane service that maintains a regular schedule between Timmins and Sudbury. Besides the "Big Three," other mines in the area include the Conisrum, Buffalo Ankerite, Paymaster, Vipond and Marbuan, while there are many smaller developments.

At present the camp is booming. Housing accommodation is taxed to the limit and construction of new houses is proceeding apace to accommodate the increase in population of the past few months. The Porcupine is expanding. Old mines abandoned several years ago are now slated for a resumption of production activities and aggressive development program are being carried out on many properties. There are scores of old mine workings in the camp and the possibilities of none are being overlooked.

SECOND IN PLATINUM.

Canada is second in the world production of platinum and the entire Dominion production comes from Ontario mines, chiefly from the Sudbury district.

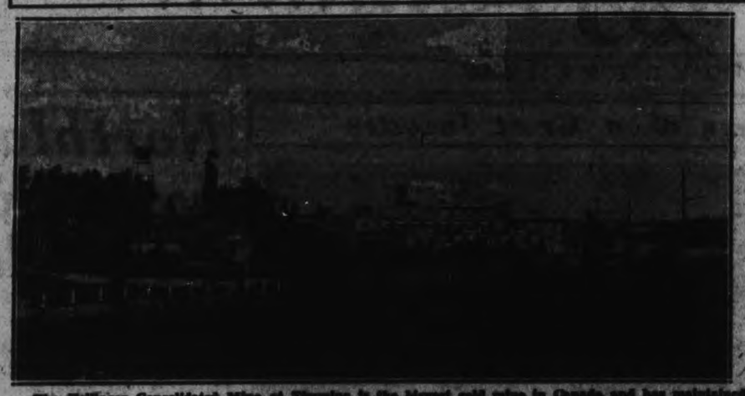
HEAVY TONNAGE.

The tonnage of water-borne shipping, passing through the Sault Ste. Marie canal in the eight months of the navigation season exceeds the total yearly tonnage passing through the Panama, Suez, Manchester (England) and Kiel (North Baltic Seas) canals combined.

IRON AND STEEL.

Sault Ste. Marie's position as the iron and steel centre of the Northland is due to its proximity to the great iron ore deposits o the Great Lakes region and the abundance of cheap electrical power available combined with water transportation.

A Great Gold Mine---Then and Now



The Hollinger Consolidated Mine at Timmins is the biggest gold mine in Canada and has maintained a steady record of production for 25 years. Below—The original headframe of the Hollinger shaft at the scene of the discovery in 1910.

BIGGEST OF ALL CANADIAN GOLD MINES IS HOLLY

Hollinger Veritable Mammoth on Canadian Gold Mining Scene.

OUTPUT $200,000,000

Mill Can Handle 8,000 Tons of Ore a Day—Workings on 25 Levels.

Hollinger Consolidated, affectionately known through the North as "The Holly", is a veritable mammoth on the Canadian gold-mining scene.

It is responsible for more than half the gold production of Canada's greatest gold camp and has maintained that record with scarcely a break for close upon a quarter of a century. Its total output of $200,000,000 has been the biggest contribution to Canada's gold production from any one mine.

It has the largest gold mill in the Dominion, a tremendous plant handling 5,500 tons of ore a day and is capable of handling 8000 tons. The underground workings in all 25 levels cover a total distance of more than 70 miles. It is said that the subterranean railway system in the mine runs to well over 100 miles.

Hollinger is the cornerstone of the Canadian gold-mining industry. Its success, when the Timmins brothers, the McMartin brothers and the late Dave Dunlop made a mine of it in the face of a world skeptical about the Porcupine field, put the whole area solidly on its feet. And Hollinger has continued to set the pace in the Porcupine.

Daigle Passed It Up.

The original property was staked by Benny Hollinger and Alex Gillies, who came in from Haileybury shortly after the discovery of the famous "Golden Sidewalk" of the Dome. They were shown the spectacular find by Harry Preston, who was at that time alone on the Dome property and guarding the big showing. Preston advised the two prospectors to strike westward. On Pearl Lake they came to a place where a man named Daigle had already sunk a test-pit. According to Gillies, it appears that Daigle had discovered a mine without knowing it, for in his abandoned pit the two prospectors discovered free gold showings that assayed more than $30 a ton.

Hollinger and Gillies sold out their holdings to the McMartin-Timmins crowd, who had made a substantial fortune out of the LaRose Mine in Cobalt. It is said that they received $330,000 for their claims. M. J. O'Brien took an option on the Miller-Middleton claims nearby but eventually pulled out of the camp and the claims were acquired by the Timmins-McMartin group.

The Hollinger produced gold to a value of $31,194 in 1910. The disastrous Porcupine fire of 1911, which destroyed the surface plant of the mine, impeded activity, although 1000 tons of ore to a value of $46,000 were milled that year. In 1912, however, Hollinger produced gold to a value of nearly a million dollars when it had its first real mill with a capacity of 400 tons.

Consolidation of Properties.

In 1916, when production had gone over the four million dollar mark a consolidation of the Hollinger properties, the Acme, Millerton Gold Mines and Canadian Mining and Finance Company was effected, giving Hollinger a total of 440 acres. In 1922 the Schumacher Gold Mine covering 160 acres, was also acquired. The 1916 merger was the most important consolidation of Canadian mining properties on record.

Hollinger's biggest year was 1925 when it milled 1,929,988 tons of ore to a value of $15,786,404. It milled more than two million tons in 1927. Last year its gold production was valued at $13,778,683 and in 1934 it bids fair to eclipse that figure. Its ore reserves at the beginning of this year were estimated at $82,000,000. It paid out $66,102,400 in dividends to the end of 1933.

Since the market crash of 1929, in which Hollinger's investment subsidiary the International Bond and Share Co., was involved with a heavy loss, the company has inclined more toward investing its surplus in gold mining.

A Great Gold Mine--Then, Now

The Hollinger Consolidated Mine at Timmins is the biggest gold mine in Canada and has maintained a steady record of production for 25 years. Below—The original headframe of the Hollinger shaft at the scene of the discovery in 1910.

PACIFIC COAST MINES PROMOTE WEST'S WEALTH

Marked Activity in All British Columbia Gold Fields.

ADVANCE SINCE 1932

Gold Production Likely to Exceed $11,000,000 in Province.

The people of British Columbia certainly have plenty to thank gold for today. Never in the history of this Pacific Coast province of Canada has there been so much mining activity as there is today and the people of the province are reaping the benefits of the high price of gold through increased employment, greater industrial activity and larger dividend distributions.

The valued gold production of B.C. in 1934 is expected to reach the very substantial figure of $11,500,000—more than twice the value of any previous year since gold was first produced here in 1858.

During the depression years mining, one of the chief industries of B. C., suffered, due chiefly to the tremendous drop in the prices of base metals. It was not until the price of gold began to advance at the end of 1932 that mining development recommenced on a larger scale.

Pioneer in Limelight

During the following year the Pioneer Gold Mine in the Bridge River sprang into prominence and became famous over the entire North American Continent through the discovery of amazingly rich ore at depth—ore which in some places was literally splattered with free gold. One ton of this ore actually produced $75,000.

Such high values, of course, were not consistent, but in addition to this type of bonanza pocket, enormous ore bodies of great width and length were also opened up and enabled the company to increase its mill capacity to almost 400 tons a day. The ore being extracted and milled regularly is worth $27 a ton, making Pioneer the richest mine of its size in North America. It has been dubbed the "Wonder Mine" and is currently producing over $3,000,000 in gold bullion and paying about $1,400,000 a year in dividends.

Its immediate neighbor, known as Bralorne, has also startled the country during the past 18 months. In that time it has advanced from being a very uncertain producer to a rich gold mine.

(Turn to Page 21, Please)

Like most other big companies it is taking advantage of the high gold price to mill lower grade ore, thereby prolonging the life of the mine, while at the same time it is interested in other fields, controlling among other enterprises the Young-Davidson development which will soon swing into production in the Matachewan area.

MANITOBA GOLD FUTURE BRIGHT

More Production Mines as New Fields Are Opened Up.

No one who observes the Canadian mining scene at the present time can fail to be impressed by the fact that the industry is tending to erase interprovincial boundaries. They have become, in the fullest sense of the word, imaginary lines.

The discovery of Noranda linked Northern Ontario and Northern Quebec, not only by railways and highways and power lines but by a community of interest in the new mining field. Noranda was discovered by a prospector from Ontario and Ontario men have been active in Quebec mining development.

Similarly with Manitoba. The so-called "prairie province" is gold-minded as never before. The pre-Cambrian shield, in which Canada's gold discoveries are largely made, is no respecter of provincial boundaries and from the Red Lake country in Ontario across to the Rice Lake area in central Manitoba intensive prospecting and development is proceeding. Similarly in the northern part of Manitoba, in the new God's Lake field, discoveries have been made and work is going on that binds the mining destinies of Manitoba inextricably with those of Ontario and the rest of Canada.

Development Is Recent.

Gold discoveries were made in Manitoba a quarter of a century ago but they did not amount to much. Even when a Mounted Policeman named Pelletier discovered gold at Rice Lake in 1911 it failed to stir up a great deal of interest. Manitoba was regarded as an agricultural province, in spite of the fact that three-quarters of its area is within the pre-Cambrian Shield. The base metal deposits on the northern Saskatchewan-Manitobaboundarywere known for some years before their development finally came to a head in establishment of the Flin Flon and Sherritt-Gordon Mines. The first producing gold mine in the province was Central Manitoba in the Rice Lake district, which came into the picture seven years ago. San Antonio, originally staked by Pelletier, which has already produced more than half a million dollars in gold and is the first dividend-paying gold mine in the province, has jumped ahead of Central Manitoba to its present position as the major gold producer of Manitoba. There was a heavy staking rush in 1927 and 1928 but activity died down for a while until this year and now mining developments have reached an unprecedented scale. Gunnar Gold is another in the central area, where underground work is proceeding with good results.

God's Lake Country.

Up along the Hudson Bay Railway mining men have been attacking the problem of developing promising areas in the northeastern part of the province, especially at God's Lake, Island Lake, Oxford Lake and others. God's Lake Gold Mines last winter moved 1000 tons of freight and supplies, representing a complete mining plant, by tractor trains over a winter road, a distance of 132 miles from the railway.

In the Herb Lake and Elbow Lake regions in the north, there is also development of gold prospects. The base metal mines in the Flin Flon area have immense ore reserves but have been hard hit by depression conditions. This temporary setback, however, has been partly minimized by the increased activity in gold mining, in other parts of the province.

NORTHWESTERN ONTARIO'S BIG MINING FUTURE

Red Lake Discoveries Have Cracked Open a Great Field.

FORGING NORTH

Impressive Expansion of Activities Lately in Many Scattered Fields.

One of the most important and spectacular angles of the Ontario mining picture in the past few years has been the amazing progress of the northwestern part of the province into the very forefront of the gold scene.

Right across the northern terrain, from the Manitoba boundary to the big established camps in the east, old mines are being reopened and development of new fields is proceeding at a rapid gait.

The Long Lac district has been so consistently in the limelight this year that the public is apt to forget that it is, after all, only one of several gold fields in Northwestern Ontario—apt to forget, too, in the glamor of the Little Long Lac stampede, that prospectors were staking ground in the Lake of the Woods country many years before Porcupine really put the province on the gold map. Now dozens of old properties that were never worked to the extent of their possibilities in the old days have been revived and difficulties are being overcome by way of developing discoveries far north in the Patricia district.

The Howey Mine.

The wealth of Porcupine and Kirkland Lake eclipsed the scattered gold mining operations of Northwestern Ontario until the late Lorne Howey, a prospector of the old Cobalt school, went up into the Red Lake country back in 1922. The accident of an uprooted tree revealed a gold showing that led to the staking of the Howey Mine and the subsequent Red Lake rush in which, for the first time, aeroplanes played a major part in a gold stampede. The Howey faced many obstacles. It was far from the railway and was, moreover, a low-grade gold proposition. Today, benefitting by the higher gold price, Howey is a 1400-ton producer mining the lowest grade gold ore in Canada. Its success was a big factor in encouraging development of the Red Lake and Patricia mining areas. Howey, of course, is not the only mine in the Red Lake country. McKenzie Red Lake, Gold Shore, McCuaig Red Lake and other properties in the field are meeting with success that assures the permanence of the camp.

Red Lake, with special emphasis upon the Howey, has had a far-reaching effect upon the course of gold mining industry in Ontario. Howey, in spite of the low grade of its ore and its distance from the steel, battled its way through to the production stage and is held up as a model of economic management, cutting costs so fine that it became a profitable operation when many experienced mining people conceded it slight chance. Now, with waterway transportation, with power facilities and a higher margin to work on by way of the better gold price, Howey is the leading producer in the northwestern part of the province.

Central Patricia District.

Central Patricia, still farther north and to the east, is next in rank. Howey showed that distance was not an insuperable obstacle and with the aeroplane playing the biggest part in preliminary development of the remote northern field and bringing in big quantities of supplies and machinery, the government is now assisting in the second stage. Power for the Patricia country is now assured and a marine railway on the Root River, the cost of which the government and the mines share on a fifty-fifty basis, will soon solve transportation difficulties that have held back progress of the field. Aeroplanes, scows and tractors, the latter working over winter roads, have been the chief carriers so far. J. M. Consolidated is the other producer in Patricia to date but Pickle Crow and Casey Summit will soon be in the production picture as well.

Other Producers.

Parkhill, in the Michipicoten district over to the east, ranks third among the northwestern Ontario producers and then comes the Northern Empire, in the Beardmore Jellicoe area near Port Arthur, and the Ardeen, formerly the Moss Mine, one of the oldest gold mines in the province. St. Anthony Gold Mines, at Sturgeon Lake, is still another producer, and the number of mining companies doing development work on surface and underground is formidable. The Little Long Lac field, scene of a hectic stampede this summer, is perhaps the most sensational by reason of the high grade discoveries at the Little Long Lac mine and other properties.

Expansion Just Beginning.

It is difficult, as a matter of fact, to find any considerable area from Ochreiber to Kenora that is not thoroughly gold-conscious this year.

Northwestern Ontario was the scene of one of the earliest gold rushes in the province but now seems to be taking its rightful place in the mining sky.

Howey opened the way to the big comeback the Patricia district developments are extending Ontario's mining activities farther north than they have ever done, discoveries at Little Long Lac and east, west and north of the new camp are emphatically of the first importance.

Over a wide horizon the scores of promising and proven operations tell of the greatest dawning period of physical expansion in Ontario's mining history.

MINERAL ADVANCE IN NORTH ONTARIO WITHOUT PARALLEL

The area is still young and has difficulties to overcome, particularly transportation, that are common to all young mining areas, but the uncertain stage appears to have been passed, and this area should soon be among the important contributors to Ontario's gold output.

Old Areas Revived.

One direct effect of the gold price rise is the incentive it has provided toward the re-examination of older mineral areas some of which, under the regime of $20.67 gold, were subjected to extensive development without material success. In Ontario the outstanding examples are developments in the Thunder Bay district and in the Rainy River district and to a lesser extent in the Sault Ste. Marie division of the Algoma district. It must be admitted that this whole region had been fairly well tested, and it must also be admitted that the efforts were productive of little success. The picture from now on has changed almost overnight, and if the mining fraternity regard this vast region as a second line of Ontario's gold reserves, they can support their convictions by the results of developments to date.

The Long Lac Area.

Focal point of interest in the region is the Little Long Lac area, and spearhead of developments in this area is the Little Long Lac property. This enterprise exemplifies the reward of effort to a marked degree. From the viewpoint of high-grade ore, it has few equals in Canada. Developments at this property are being followed with keen interest.

Aroused by the success of Little Long Lac, prospectors and exploration companies are giving their wholehearted attention to the development of other properties in the area. Close to transportation and power facilities, the area is in a strategic position to have its merits well tested. The geology is favorable, financing of operations is not difficult, and with the direction of operations in capable hands, this area should continue to furnish important news for some time to come.

The intensity of development in the Little Long Lac area is typical of the intensity of developments in other areas from Sudbury, west to the Manitoba boundary. The Rainy River district is a hive of mining activity and while nothing as spectacular as Little Long Lac has developed therefrom, the consensus of opinion is that this old area to which many a prospector and exploration company have entered with hope and left with despair will amply repay the efforts expended on it.

Other Districts in the News.

The area lying to the east of Sturgeon Lake is another that has capitulated to the rising tide of interest in gold developments that has swept across the country. The district south of Tashota is another. The same is true of the country in the vicinity of Schreiber; the Michipicoten area, and the Goudreau field. The Shining Tree district, long the stamping ground of prospectors is being given another combing.

And so with others. They are all making news and they are all very decidedly in the picture. As this is being written, press despatches are to hand telling of a virtual rush of prospectors into the Porcupine area in search of new sources of gold. No field is immune even though it may have been thoroughly prospected in other years. It is as though the trials, the fortune, and the failures of the past have been forgotten in one grand effort to wrest from Nature every ounce of gold that can be profitably mined from her Precambrian treasure house.

Low-grade Deposits.

A significant angle of the high price gold regime is the impetus it has given to the development of low grade deposits. Deposits are now being developed in Ontario that would scarcely have been considered a few years back. It is not difficult to visualize what this means in the augmentation of gold ore reserves throughout the province, and, in addition, what it means by way of increased employment, increased outlays for supplies, equipment and the numerous other items that stand to benefit from mining development.

What at first appears like a paradoxical situation has arisen as a result of the mining of low grade deposits.

It will be noted that in recent months, while the value of the province's gold output has increased, the volume has shown a tendency to fall off. This is purely a temporary situation and is due to the policy of producers to mine low grade sections of their ore-bodies along with the richer sections. Actually the mines are more strongly entrenched than ever in respect to ore reserve tonnages.

A Cosmopolitan Industry.

This, in a somewhat sketchy fashion, is a picture of mining developments in Northern Ontario. The tenor is perhaps optimistic but one cannot view the broad field of activities in that section of the province and be other than optimistic.

Mining is perhaps the most cosmopolitan of industries, and nowhere is this better exemplified than in the development of Ontario's mineral wealth.

First in the living that is provided for tens of thousands of workmen and their families; second, in the means of livelihood afforded the thousands of prospectors that are engaged in a seach for new sources of wealth; third, in the means that is provided for the utilization of the vast resources of electrical energy available in the north; fourth, in the funds expended on capital goods, on supplies, and on other items that go to keep the industry in operation, and, fifth, in the dividends paid to the tens of thousands of shareholders throughout the world.

There is an impression that those who are shaping the destiny of the industry are being handsomely rewarded for their efforts.

In a sense they are. But we should bear in mind that many a prospect is uncovered by the prospector before a real find is made, that hundreds of thousands of dollars are expended by exploration companies in an endeavor to prove a deposit as often as not with unsatisfactory results; that well over half of the value of minerals produced is expended in keeping the industry in operation. The industry will go on in any event but its progress will be enhanced by the sympathetic attitude of those out of direct touch with its operations.

The Transitory Stage.

Ontario's mining industry is now in what may be termed a transitory stage. Particularly is this true of gold mining operations. It will take some time before the numerous prospects now under development have reached their stride. In the meantime, progress may appear slow but students of the industry marvel at the rate of change of enterprises from small, often inconsequential producers to large producers.

With respect to the base metal situation, the outlook for nickel appears decidedly bright. International Nickel has made important additions to its productive facilities, and Falconbridge, its near neighbor, reports that nickel is being disposed of as fast as it is being produced. With copper the outlook is not too favorable, but fortunately as far as Ontario is concerned, there is little in the outlook that need cause apprehension.

Silver Situation.

As to the possibilities of rejuvenation of Ontario's silver mines, about all that can be said at this time is that a highly interesting situation has developed as a consequence of the recent action of the United States Government in respect to silver.

With the price of silver at 50 cents the question again arises as to whether silver mining operations will be resumed on an active basis in Ontario. The commodity index price is lower now than when operations were discontinued, hence cost of operations would be lower. On the other hand, operators will likely await further developments in the American situation before taking definite action.

Whether or not the price of silver advances will depend, it appears, on the extent to which foreign purchases of silver are made by the United States Government in order to attain its note coverage on the proposed ratio of 25 silver to 75 gold. At least there is the assurance that the price trend of silver is upwards.

Development Forges Ahead.

In the meantime, the development of Ontario's mineral wealth forges ahead. As quickly as news is received from one section of the mineral front, other news is in making in another section. One cannot witness this pageantry that is passing before us without being seized of its tremendous significance.

Ottawa, August 17, 1934.

Algold Mines Limited Says Much Progress

Algold Mines, Limited, operating the new Goudreau property in Michipicoten area, has completed an examination, and, according to an engineer's report, which has just been issued, sufficient evidence has been uncovered of commercial values to justify the company proceeding with development work. The new Goudreau property was taken over by the Algold Mnes, Limited, when bondholders of the former company agreed to waive payment of principal and interest on their holdings.

The mine has been pumped out and considerable sampling completed. The examining engineer found a change in the dip of the formation between the 100 and 200-foot levels. "The prospects of making a mine of this one-time high-grade proposition," he writes, "are excellent from the fact that though the vein exists for over 2,000 feet on surface and shows free gold in places along the entire length, only about 800 feet of this has been explored on the 100-foot level and about 700 feet of drifting on the vein has been done on the second level. Some 1,600 feet at least has been done, drifting and cross-cutting on the second level, though not half of this was on the vein.

FALCONBRIDGE NICKEL, now firmly established as the second largest nickel mining and refining company in the world, paid a dividend of close to $350,000 on Sept. 27, amounting to 10 cents per share. The company is realizing an operating profit of around 61 cents per share—or a net of around 45 cents after taxes and depreciation. The 10 per cent. disbursement for the third quarter suggests an annual rate of 40 cents per share is likely.

GOVERNMENTS SERVING MINING IN MANY WAYS

Would-be Prospector and Successful Mining Man Bring Problems.

SUPPLY MAPS

Dominion Mines Branch Solves Many Mill Questions for Operators.

Jim Jones was a prospector who was modest enough to admit that he still had something to learn about the rocks. Every winter he was able to improve himself, and without going away from home either. A travelling lecturer sent out by the provincial government held prospector's classes for a week in Jim's home town and Jim added considerably to his store of geological knowledge. It helped Jim recognize a certain rock formation later on—but that's getting ahead of the story.

Jim knew there was going to be a rush into a certain area in the spring. He was tempted to make the trip but he didn't want to waste time. He learned that a provincial geologist had been sent in to that area to make a report.

Jim read the geologist's report and decided that it wasn't promising. But he had another area in mind. He wrote to Ottawa and got a report of the Geological Survey, covering that particular territory. It interested him. The report indicated that the country was favorable.

He decided to go. The provincial Department of Mines had maps that helped him. The Dominion Mines Branch had maps too. He saw what route he would have to follow and was able to estimate how long the journey would take.

Jim went out into the field after the break-up with his partner, and hit for the country mentioned in the report. They were lucky enough to make a discovery in short order. Jim's partner had passed it up, because the rock formation was of a type with which he wasn't acquainted. Jim remembered his lessons in the prospectors' classes and followed up the lead.

They staked, then recorded their claims at the nearest provincial mining recorder's office. They did assessment work on the property and sent samples out to the provincial assay office in Toronto for free assay.

The figures that came back told them that they had made a real strike.

Other prospectors came into the field. Jim and his partner were staking more ground and ran into trouble with another party who claimed prior staking of nearby claims. The mining recorder decided in favor of the other party and awarded them the ground. Jim and his partner knew they were right and they appealed to the Mining Court. They won their appeal.

Jim and his partner raised enough capital to work their property and began to make a mine of it. The company discovered that the ore was of a nature that didn't yield readily to ordinary methods of treatment. They took their problem to the Mines Branch in Ottawa, where laboratory experts worked out a solution. Eventually the experts helped them design a mill.

Their discovery had opened up a new mining field and now that the metallurgical problem had been solved development of other properties in the area was encouraged. The field was a considerable distance from the railway and there were no power facilities. Government Hydro, satisfied that there would be a market for power, agreed to extend a transmission line into the area.

Transportation was still a problem and the provincial government built a three-mile road from the railway to the nearest lake, then a short light railway across a mile portage, which opened up the waterway to the mine. After that Jim and his partner saw their mine well on its way to success and eventually saw the day when their mine was shipping gold bullion to the mint at Ottawa, where it was marketed by the Dominion government.

Jim and his partner made a million dollars each and lived happily ever afterward.

Jim's son isn't going to be allowed to live on the fat of the land, however. He is going to the School of Mines, in Haileybury, and studying the production end of the mining business.

Just a fable, of course, but in a sketchy way it illustrates the teamwork that exists between the mining industry and the Federal and Provincial Governments. From assistance to the man in the field by way of reports and maps, all the way to technical assistance to companies seeking solution of some intricate metallurgical problem, the mines departments offer a variety of services.

The Provincial Government maintains a Department of Mines. It has on its staff geologists who make detailed reports on new mining areas, draughtsmen who turn out maps and blue-prints, recorders in the various mining divisions who look after the issuing of mining licenses, recording of claims and collection of fees, inspectors who make periodical check-ups on working properties and see that safety regulations are enforced, a rescue station supplied with equipment for use in the event of a mine disaster. It maintains a provincial assay office, a testing laboratory and sampling plant, and a school of mines. There is a special Mining Court to administer justice under the Mining act swiftly and economically.

The Dominion Mines Branch covers the activities of the Geological Survey, which can supply maps and reports covering practically every explored part of Canada, and the laboratory facilities which offer a service that is not duplicated by any private organization in the country. Here, for instance, were solved the peculiar problems contingent upon the extraction of radium from the pitchbende deposits at Great Bear Lake. Here was worked out a method of treating the low-grade ores of the Beattie Mine. Here, at the present time, the engineer of the Cuniptau Mine in Temagami is collaborating with departmental experts in working out a "flowsheet" for the economical treatment of the platinum-nickel ore of Cunitptau. Here, in the Ore Dressing and Metallurgical Division, laboratories are equipped to carry out tests on ore shipments large and small. Construction of many Canadian mine mills and alterations in many plants toward more efficient operation can be traced directly to the experimental work in these laboratories.

The Geological Survey collects and correlates information on the geology of the Dominion, working with provincial government departments and many other agencies, as well as sending out field parties on its own account. Its maps are specially designed for the prospector and mine-seeker and its exhaustive reports cover the potentialities of all natural resources.

One of the most interesting services offered by the Ontario Department of Mines is the series of prospectors' classes which are held at various points in Northern Ontario during the winter months. The classes have drawn remarkable large attendances in the past two years. Dr. E. M. Burwash and an assistant travel from place to place, staying about ten days in each town. There are eight classes for the study of mineral and rock specimens, and five evening lectures illustrated by lantern slides. The courses were originally devised by Dr. W. L. Goodwin of Queen's University.

GOLD MINING IS MAJOR INDUSTRY

Almost 13,000 People Employed in Industry Last Year.

Almost 13,000 people were employed in the Canadian gold-mining industry last year, representing a payroll of $20,536,012 in a total of 216 mining companies, according to the July report of the Dominion Bureau of Statistics. Last year capital amounting to $158,599,931 was used in the industry in the Dominion and a total of $3,330,137 was spent in fuel and electricity.

That the 1934 figures will show a notable increase is assured as it is estimated that there are nearly 300 active gold mining companies this year, an increase of at least 70 over last year. Ten years ago there were only 65 active companies and in 1930 there were only 56 gold mining operations, owing to the depression, but since 1931 gold-mining has seen a remarkable expansion.

RECORD MINING YEAR FOR ONTARIO

By HON. PAUL LEDUC, Ontario Minister of Mines

The present year is proving to be a record one, not only in current production of gold, but also in general prospecting and mining developments throughout Northern Ontario.

Gold production in Ontario for the first seven months of 1934 was at the rate of $70,000,000 per year.

If this pace is maintained to the end of the year, and it may be increased, there will be a record annual increase of $10,000,000 in gold production as compared with last year.

This will mean that the value of the annual output of our gold mines has been about doubled in the past five years. The production for 1930 yielded less than $36,000,000.

The increase in the price of gold from $20.67 to $35.00 per ounce has given an added impetus to an already active industry. The prospect for gold mining in Ontario was never brighter than it is today.

MATACHEWAN FIELD ACTIVE THIS SUMMER

Scores of Developments as Camp Sees Genuine Gold Boom.

NEW PRODUCING MINES

Hollinger Controls Important Property in the District.

Matachewan is coming into its own at last. The Montreal River country back of Elk Lake has been humming with activity this summer. After more than a quarter of a century, Matachewan is finally coming through as a producing gold camp, with three major mining companies heavily interested in the field, one producer in operation and a big tonnage mill on the point of turning over, another producer in sight and a score of smaller developments on properties throughout the area.

Like other "new" fields occupying the mining limelight in Ontario today Matachewan is actually an old field with its face washed and its hair combed. The increased price of gold has justified the intensive development and exploration that is now going on. It has had one boom that petered out but this time it appears that the Matachewan camp is "in" at last. And a glance at Matachewan townsite, where hammers are ringing, new buildings are going up, real estate is changing hands, where equipment and supplies are passing through in a steady stream, reminds one strongly of other flourishing northern towns in their early stages.

Ashley is First Producer.

The Ashley Mine, operated by the Mining Corporation of Canada, went into production with a mill of 150 tons capacity in 1932, just about the time the Mining Corporation flooded its Cobalt workings from which it had taken wealth in silver for many years. Mining Corporation's entry to the area gave a tremendous boost to staking and development in the field that had been tramped and camped over by prospectors ever since the days of the Gowganda rush back in 1907.

"Jake" Davidson is the real father of Matachewan. He has been in the country for years and has never lost faith in it. Grubstaked by Wendy Young he made a find in some burnt-over country in Powell Township, a great surface body of porphyry similar to formations in the Kirkland Lake field. It is now the Young-Davidson Mine, controlled by Hollinger Consolidated, which is now conducting open-pit operations and finishing construction of a 500-ton mill to be in operation this month. Many previous efforts have been made to explore the Young-Davidson property, just as there have been several recurrent periods of activity in the Matachewan field, but various factors have mitigated against success. Now with the Hollinger resources of capital, equipment and metallurgical experience behind the venture, Jake Davidson's find is going to be worked to the limit.

"Glory Hole" Operations.

An electric scoop shovel of more than four tons capacity and capable of handling 2,000 tons of rock a day is at work. The mill would have been operating in July had it not been for a fire that delayed its completion. The mine is being worked as a "glory hole" proposition at present, working from the surface to a depth of fifty feet and after that underground tonnage methods will be adopted. To a depth of 200 feet there is more than a million and a half tons of ore in sight. The mill capacity will be from 500 to 900 tons a day and extra units can be readily added should future developments warrant.

Adjacent to the Young-Davidson is the Matachewan Consolidated property financed by Ventures and Sudbury Basin, where a mill of 100-ton capacity is to be built. The Matachewan Consolidated orebody is similar to that of the Young-Davidson although smaller and is now being diamond-drilled in the hope that ore reserves now estimated at well over 100,000 tons may increase with deeper exploration.

Many Other Properties.

Hydro power is available for the new camp. Many properties in Baden, Bannockburn, Cairo, Cleaver, Powell and other townships in the Matachewan area are being developed this summer, giving considerable employment to men doing assessment work on claims. The old Thesaurus Mine in Maden township has resumed operations after lying dormant for ten years. The mine has the advantage of a 300-foot shaft and eight more claims have been added to the holdings. The Wounan River Syndicate, a New Liskeard outfit, is working a gold find in Baden, then discovery last spring creating considerable excitement at the time. The Baden Syndicate is working a group of claims at the head of the east branch of the Montreal River. Central Matachewan, Davidson-Cleaver Gold Syndicate, Matachewan Pioneer and many other outfits are hard at work. The intensive development that has taken place this year has been a boon to business in Elk Lake, terminus of a branch of the T. and N. O. Railway.

NORTHLAND GREAT EXPANDING MART FOR OLD ONTARIO

itoba, and New Westminster, British Columbia.

Great Expanding Market.

The Northland market was one of the great mainstays of the Ontario manufacturing industry in general during the depression years and it is today the market that is showing the greatest expansion. Practically every manufacturer catering to Northland needs reports "better business" in 1934 because of the general improvement of business conditions in the North, with recovery of the lumbering industry and the tremendous new development in the mining fields.

Northern Ontario knew something of the depression. Agriculture, lumbering, the pulp and paper industry all suffered. Thousands of unemployed from all parts of Canada flocked into the mining camps which were unable to absorb them. But it can be said that the Northland escaped much of the distress that afflicted other parts of Canada, because of the beneficent effect of a thriving mining industry. And with that industry prospering as never before, as a direct result of the world economic crisis, the Northland is leading Ontario and Canada out of the dark days.

MOOSE FACTORY.

Moose Factory, the Hudson's Bay post on Moose Island, not far from Moosonee, was established in 1671, one year after the Hudson's Bay Company was incorporated. It has been an active fur trading centre since its establishment and has changed hands twice, having been captured by the French in 1686 but was soon after recaptured by the company.

SAULT STE. MARIE SHARES IN UPTURN

Michipicoten and Goudreau Mining Areas Active—

With two producers operating in the Michipicoten area and development work expanding in the Goudreau district, the Canadian Soo is another city actively interested in and sharing in the Northern mining expansion of 1934. The Parkhill Mine, operating a 100-ton mill, is the leading gold producer and its success has paved the way for many smaller operations and prospecting developments. Michipicoten is one of the oldest of Ontario gold fields and for many years the low-grade iron ore deposits on the northeast shore of Lake Superior were worked at the Helen and Magpie mines. The Minto Mine is the second gold producer in the field at present, having re-opened the old Jubilee Mine, and other developments are in progress at the Stanley, Milmac, Soocana and Wawa Goldfields properties. The Minto is treating about 50 tons a day.

The Summit Gold Mining Company in the Goudreau district, which has also been the scene of prospecting activity for many years, is completing a mill, underground development work is proceeding on the Kozak and Michael-Boyle and half a dozen other gold mining developments are proceeding.

Sault Ste. Marie is going in for development of the tourist trade in a big way, advertising the Algoma Central country and the Mississauga Forest Reserve as vacation playgrounds. Work is continuing on the Trans-Canada Highway from Batchawana and it is hoped that this route will link up with the Nipigon Highway in the near future. The Sault is also benefitting from improvement in the woods products industries, the Abitibi Power and Paper Co. mill running steadily on a six-hour day of four shifts. Its pulpwood cut last year was 90,000 cords, but will be between 125,000 and 150,000 cords this winter.

MINING STOCKS HOLD PITFALLS FOR INVESTORS

Common Sense is Best Protection Against Traps Set by Wildcat Promoters.

A RUN FOR YOUR MONEY

Gambling Element Essential Part of Mining Game — Can Minimize Speculative Risks.

With the Canadian gold mining industry enjoying a period of unprecedented prosperity, the established camps forging ahead, old fields being revived and new fields being developed at an amazing pace, a host of new mining promotion has been the inevitable consequence.

The financial pages of any big Canadian newspaper will show that the announcement of some new company or syndicate, offering stock or units to the public, has been practically a daily occurrence during the past year. And on many days there have been three or four such announcements.

How to distinguish bad 'uns from good 'uns? That's the question.

There is no doubt that the next few years will see the development of many new mines in Canada. There is no doubt that capital is needed for their development, no doubt whatever that many of the prospects for which capital is now being sought are meritorous.

Racketeers and Wild Catters.

At the same time there is no doubt that many of the promotions launched in recent months are rank swindles, that racketeers and wildcatters have found in the public a richer and more lucrative gold mine than they could easily describe in their luscious circulars and that there is going to be a sad awakening for hundreds of credulous investors.

There are two axioms among the suave crooks who specialize in worthless mining stock promotions. One is that no agency has ever been devised to protect a sucker from himself. Another is that a sucker will always come back for a second trimming.

The public is prone to forget that only one prospect in hundreds ever makes a mine. The word "prospect" means exactly that—"a piece of ground with mining potentialities."

The Gambling Element.

The public knows, however, that fortunes have been made by those lucky enough or shrewd enough to put their money into a prospect that has developed into a productive mine.

Scarcely a leading mining stock on the board today could not have been picked up at one time for a few cents a share in the early development stages of the property. And many properties abandoned and deemed worthless after preliminary development work, have subsequently made good and reached the producing stage under other management.

The gambling spirit is universal. The gambling element can never be eliminated from mining, the industry depending as it does upon wealth hidden from the sight of man.

Many of the promotions launched during the past year are backed by honest men who have faith in the property they are trying to develop and who can be depended upon to spend the capital they raise to the best advantage. Some of these, by the law of averages, will fail. The investor will at least have the consolation of knowing that he had a fair run for his money.

Hard to Distinguish.

It is a difficult matter, however, to differentiate between legitimate and illegitimate mining enterprises. In almost every case the company or syndicate actually has a property to develop. Work is actually done on the property. The government is not inclined to discourage the advent of new capital. It sometimes happens that a crooked promoter surprises himself by finding out that he actually has a promising property on his hands. Stringent regulations aimed at dishonest promoters could easily hamper legitimate development and check the flow of capital into the mining fields.

Advising the public to risk its money only on producing mines or mines near the production stage, would be useless and dangerous. If everyone followed that advice there would soon be no new mines in sight and some of the producers might conceivably be ruined by stock-market shenanigans.

Big Mines Repay Losses.

The public will always insist on backing its faith in a prospect with its money and this is a good thing. It has helped make the Canadian mining industry what it is.

Thousands of dollars may be lost in efforts to develop properties that simply haven't made the grade thousands of dollars may be lost in promotions based on these properties—and then comes a smashing big producer

DOME DISCOVERY OPENED NEW CANADIAN MINING ERA

Harry Preston Found Vein on Which Sensational Strike Was Made by Wilson Prospecting Party in 1909—Launched Porcupine Field On Its Career.

The most spectacular surface gold discovery ever made in Canada! That was what they said about the Dome Mine a quarter of a century ago and the statement is as true now as it was then.

There have been bigger mines, wealthier gold producers, but none which revealed such astounding riches right at the start. The discovery of the Dome Mine is one of the major events in Canadian history. Certainly none of the little group of men who were present when Gilbert Rhealt dug his pick into the moss and uncovered the gold-streaked quartz outcropping that startled the country back in 1909 could have anticipated the tremendous events that were to follow—the development of the Porcupine, the discovery of Kirkland Lake, Rouyn and a score of other fields that now loom large in the Canadian mining picture.

Up in Schumacher there is a man known as Harry Preston. He is getting along in years. He isn't a wealthy man. He contends that credit for the discovery of the Porcupine should go to a prospector named George Bannerman. But when all the facts are sifted it would seem that Harry Preston is the man chiefly responsible for the first big strike in the Porcupine field.

Wilson's Prospecting Party.

Gold had been reported in the area as far back as 1907. In 1909 Charlie McAuer had claims near Gold Island in Nighthawk Lake. There was nothing spectacular about these finds but two Chicago men, W. S. Edwards and F. N. Jamieson, grubstaked a party of prospectors to go in to the Nighthawk Lake country. The party was under the leadership of Jack Wilson, of Massey, and his crew consisted of George Burns, Frank Campbell, Clifton Campbell and Harry Preston.

An Indian named Tom Fox guided the party in to Porcupine Lake, which they reached on May 12th. About ten days after their arrival, George Bannerman and Tom Gedde arrived and camped on the north shore. The two parties made an agreement that Wilson and his men should prospect to the south and west of the lake while Bannerman and his partner explored to the east and north and that if either party staked likely looking ground they should notify the other.

Preston Discovered Vein.

Preston didn't get along very well with his party at first because they laughed at his contention that they should prospect near the small lakes to the westward. At one time he was about to throw in his lot with Bannerman and Geddes and even made arrangements to this effect. Wilson, however, smoothed over the difficulty by agreeing to prospect the lake country in which Preston had such faith and on the subsequent trip to Porcupine Creek a quartz vein was discovered by Preston southwest of the creek.

The veing was 21 feet in width but it was not immediately staked. As a matter of fact the Wilson party went out to the railway shortly afterward leaving Preston alone in charge of the camp for two weeks. One story is to the effect that Wilson got word of a silver strike at Massey and hurried out to be in on it, only to find that there was nothing to the rumor. In any case, George Bannerman, on the other side of the lake, made a discovery, told Preston about it and went out to Haileybury to record the claims later known as the Scottish-Ontario Mine.

Men began coming into the country on the strength of Bannerman's discovery and when Wilson and his party returned they lost no time in staking ground. They staked the quartz showings discovered by Preston in Tisdale Township and the first work on the claim revealed the presence of free gold in the vein known as the Ida Maude. "The first shots brought it up," says Preston.

Finding of the Big Dome.

The discovery looked good but the prospectors had no inkling of what was to come. Wilson went to Chicago to report to his backers and while he was away the party chopped trees, cleared away undergrowth and over burden and set about tracing the vein.

They came upon a huge mound of quartz, an upheaval of the vein. Gilbert Rhealt, a blacksmith who had replaced one of the original members of the party, dug his pick into the moss that covered the mound, and cleared it away.

And there shone the Big Dome!

The gold stood out literally in chunks, in masses.

It was the most spectacular gold occurrence ever seen in Canada, a solid dome of gold-laden rock.

"By gosh, boys," observed Harry Preston solemnly, "the T. and N. O. Railway will come in here sure!"

Find Started Gold Stampede

The Dome Mine had been discovered—the Dome that has been a continuous producer since 1910, one of the wealthiest gold operations in Northern Ontario. The sensational find brought hundreds of prospectors hurrying madly into the country. Benny Hollinger and Alex Gillies, two prospectors grubstaked by John McMahon of Haileybury, were among the first to stake ground near by. The property had already been worked by a prospector named Daigle but Daigle had quit work when within a few inches of $50 ore in a test-pit. Hollinger and Gillies staked the Hollinger Mine and a prospector named Sandy McIntyre staked the property that still bears his name, the great McIntyre Mine.

Credit to Harry Preston.

Maybe some credit should go to Charlie McAuer and a few of the men who were first in the field. Credit, too, to Edwards and Jamieson, who financed the Wilson party. Credit to Wilson, who agreed to Preston's insistence that the ground to the west of Porcupine Lake be examined. Credit to Bannerman, who made the strike that started the rush that prompted Wilson to stake the vein Preston had discovered.

But in the long run this writer feels that no one can take from Harry Preston the credit of being the man who discovered the Ida Maude vein—the man, in short, who made the first big find in the Porcupine!

FLOWERY VILLAGE WITH IRISH MILL

River Town May be Partly Wiped Out by Waterway, But Keeps Looking Pretty.

IROQUOIS, Ont., Oct. 13 (C.P.)—Named after as war-like a tribe of Indians as ever roamed the wilds of North America, this peaceful community has laid a firmer grip on its claim as the most beautiful village of flowers in Eastern Ontario.

Right up to the first nips of autumn this year the village gardens were filled with old-fashioned blooms — hollyhocks, geraniums, phlox; the gallant zinnia and ubiquitous cosmos. Last winter was generally hard on the perennial hollyhock but Iroquois' showing was still good.

Among other attractions Iroquois has an Irish linen mill, established by Robert Caldwell, a native of Belfast, who died a few weeks ago. It is like a little bit of Ireland transplanted to Canada. Mr. Caldwell years ago brought mill-hands from Ireland and the business thrived. It is still a well established industry.

Situated on the St. Lawrence River between Prescott and Cornwall, Iroquois has many ships passing in the night—and in the daytime too. The village understands that turns out enough gold and pays enough dividends in a year to make up the losses of dozens of defunct companies.

Indirectly the man who has lost money in one of the dead outfits reaps some benefit from the successful property.

The country as a whole reaps the benefit from production, dividends expenditures.

This is cold comfort, perhaps, for the fellow who has sunk a few hundred dollars in a promising property that didn't quite fulfil its promise but it is a fact.

Authorities Checking Up.

The authorities are trying to curb the activities of racketeers and wildcatters. A number of high-pressure operators from across the border have been kicked out of the country. Tipster sheets and false advertising are being checked up. By the process of elimination, however, the crude crooks are being squashed but the smoothest and smartest remain.

The best protection against a swindler is intelligence and a little commonsense.

Don't Buy Blindly.

Before you invest in mining, go to the trouble of learning something about the industry. If you are disposed to buy a few shares in a new mining company, investigate it. Study the location of the property. If it is in an established mining field, study the location with regard to proven properties. Certain promoters trade on the names of rich mining areas whereas their ground may be away out of the mineralized field altogether.

Discover if the assessment work on the ground has been completed, if there is to be a diamond-drilling program. Ask for results of the assays. Remember that "channel assays" count for far more than "grab sample assays," even though the latter usually looks better in print.

If you can, find out something about the men behind the company. Are they reputable and have they had any mining experience? If a consulting engineer has reported on the property, what was his report? The reputation of the consulting engineer is a factor, too.

How much of the money raised is actually going into the treasury for development of the property? In other words, if you are going to invest $500, how much of that is going to be spent in the effort to make a mine and how much of it is going into commissions, etc?

Power and Transportation.

How about power and transportation facilities? If the property is far away from a railway and in a field where power service is not readily available, remember that these factors will make development expensive. If, however, it is in an area that is coming ahead so swiftly on the strength of other developments in the field, a small property gets the benefit of power and transportation facilities justified by bigger operations in the same area.

Read a reputable journal specializing in mining news. Disreputable sheets are readily identified. Their advertising matter is hysterical and their news columns usually managed to puff and boost certain issues week after week. Good mining papers are edited by men who know the industry and who are anxious to present the news truthfully and clearly. They will rarely, if ever, give you definite advice to buy or to sell any particular stock. They will give you the facts and you may draw your own conclusions.

Remember that the law is insistent upon truth in a PROSPECTUS of a company but that advertising matter, circulars, etc., are not quite so amenable to control. Reputable newspapers and magazines censor their advertising with a view to protecting their readers against extravagant claims, but there is a limit to the protection they can give. They can't guarantee the truth of all the advertising in their columns, just as this special edition can't guarantee it. Experts and editors are only human—and falliable.

"Tips" and "Expert Advice"

Don't bare your financial soul to a broker by sending him a list of your market holdings and asking him what you ought to do about them—especially if the broker is unknown to you. Apply several grains of salt to the advice you receive from "statistical experts" in the employ of brokerage houses. Quite often they are honest. Usually they are just guessing, and if they were good guessers they would be playing the market themselves and making fortunes.

Don't play "tips". A tip is usually put into circulation by somebody who wants to get rid of something.

Don't condemn the whole mining industry if you lose money on one investment. Perhaps inconceivable though it may seem, you exercised bad judgment. Perhaps you were just unlucky.

It isn't a bad idea to string along with established mining companies and mining men who have a record of success in other fields. If they are willing to risk their money and reputations in new properties you may be able to cash in on their superior experience. This doesn't necessarily mean that you should wait until a big mining company exercises its option on a prospect and announces plans for building a mill—although you run a minimum of risk there. Perhaps the property adjacent, or another property in the same area, will benefit by the entry of the big fellow.

Get A Run For Your Money.

Promotional literature and letters recommending stock issues may interest you, may tempt you. But don't sit down and write out a cheque immediately. Study the information on the property. If it is incomplete, ask for more.

In other words, when you bet on a horse, try to be reasonably sure that the horse is running to win. Perhaps he won't. But you won't feel like kicking yourself quite so hard then if you discovered the horse had heaves and a bad leg before he went to the post.

ACE GOLD PRODUCER IN CANADA IS FOUND IN LAKE SHORE MINE

Monument to Persistence of Harry Oakes, Who Never Relinquished Control.

$1,500,000 A MONTH

The Lake Shore Mine, once a dubious prospect, is one of the most dazzling stars in the Canadian mining firmament to-day.

It produces gold to a value of nearly one and a half million dollars a month. It is the greatest gold producer not only in Canada, but in the entire Western Hemisphere.

Its future now is brighter than ever. The Lake Shore management has taken advantage of the high price of gold to work the upper levels of the mine again, taking out rock that was worthless in other years. This work revealed hitherto unsuspected ore bodies. At the same time, at the deepest level of the mine, rich ore has been discovered 4,500 feet below the surface, increasing the high-grade ore reserves of the mine and indicating wealth at depth that has a bearing on the whole future of the Kirkland Lake camp.

Today the Lake Shore Mine handles 2,300 tons of ore a day, employs 1,300 men and pays more than $1,000,000 a year in taxes.

Harry Oakes Staked Property.

Harry Oakes staked Lake Shore in 1911, when the Kirkland Lake district was not seriously considered by many mining men. The narrow veins on the surface of his property attracted scant attention.

Oakes alone had faith in his prospect. Through every vicissitude he has retained control of his mine. He is one of the few prospectors in Canadian mining history who have done so. It has earned him a tremendous fortune.

Lake Shore stock is quoted at more than $50 a share. Oakes owns more than a third of the two million shares. Lake Shore pays a dividend of $3 a year per share. Oakes controls more than half the stock, it is said.

He was an experienced prospector, having prospected in many parts of the world before he came to Canada in 1911, when the Porcupine camp was in its early stages. He was on his way to the Porcupine field when he decided to stop off at Swastika and investigate the porphyry occurrences at Kirkland Lake. The field had already been extensively prospected during the Larder rush of 1907 but most of the claims had been abandoned.

A Cold Night's Work.

The Tough brothers and Harry Oakes went out from Swastika on the night of January 28th, 1912, to stake some claims near the Wright-Hargreaves discovery. The claims lapsed at midnight. The men travelled five miles, with the temperature at 56 below zero, and got their ground. They staked the Tough-Oakes property and part of the Lake Shore. Later on Oakes acquired more ground.

Oakes was very persistent, in spite of the fact that his property did not show rich values on the surface. He was broke many times but managed to raise enough money to sink a shaft. The Teck-Hughes, on his left, had discovered promising ore and the Wright-Hargreaves, on his right, had also made good finds. He believed he was in a good position and decided to sink his shaft under the lake in hope of catching the Teck-Hughes vein.

Buffalo Money Helped.

He had to close down twice in the early years because of lack of capital. He got a little money from his share in the Tough-Oakes. In 1916 he had sunk the shaft to a depth of 200 feet but the mine was still a gamble.

Albert Wende, of Wright-Hargreaves induced a group of Buffalo capitalists to look at the Lake Shore property. They bought half a million shares of stock at an average price of 32½ cents a share.

This was the average price that had been paid for stock up to that time. Oakes wouldn't let them have it at 30 cents a share, as they offered, because some of his friends had bought stock at a higher price.

The market valuation of half a million shares of Lake Shore today is more than $25,000,000. Most of the Buffalo party sold out when they had made a reasonable profit and lived to come in again and see Lake Shore become one of the sensations of the mining market.
